THERE WERE ONLY two choices given for a person to check on the poll which you gave. Neither of these suit the situation. Most of the people in education can see the value of education courses. It would not make sense to have the teachers basis only methods courses and no background material. Persons in teacher education have many courses other than straight education courses for certification, according to State Board Regulations Relating to Florida Requirements for Teacher Education and Certificates." A person desiring to teach English would need 30 semester hours in English specifically, a person wishing to be certified to teach in the broad field of science would have to take a minimum of 32 semester hours in science.

LET'S STOP and think, you would not want to have someone teaching your children who knew nothing about getting along with people or how to deal with young people. There are courses in every profession that people question the worth of, but they have been proven to be of value. Otherwise the accrediting agencies for the various fields would have changed the requirements. We recognize in some of the education courses there are weaknesses, likewise the same can be said for English, Social Studies, Science or any other area there are no perfect programs.

Those of us who are really dedicated to our profession not only are convinced that the program of teacher education is good but we resent those who do not plan to be teachers and are not interested in the problems of teaching trying to dictate the nature of the training for professional-minded people.

Sincerely,
MISS ELINOR NEWMAN,
President Walker-Wentzel Chapter Future Teachers of America, Florida State University.

Our Foreign Policy Negates Our Ideals

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Among the most persistent themes in American politics is a grumbling about this country's role in international affairs. Americans complain about how firmly in control of 600 million people, is really their government.

WE CONSIDER ourselves the most threatened by Soviet expansion, because we have the most to lose, but our politicians are not averse to making political capital out of cuts in military spending.

No country, of course, is perfect, and I wouldn't trade our system of government for any other.

But we shouldn't preach ideals we aren't willing to live up to.

Ironically, the ideals hindered above would not be hard to achieve.

WE TALK ONE way and act another. This, of course, is the privilege of diplomacy, but rarely have a whole people practiced it.

A good illustration is the stand of the United States since the cold war began, as a self-designated citadel of freedom. A shining light to the whole world, an inspiration for slave peoples to follow.

IT SOUNDED beautiful. Then the people of Hungary caught a bit of the spirit of '76, and Washington fell all over itself to protest that the United States had nothing to do with it.

Similarly, we've been brought up to the official tune of the open-door theory with the result that the Statue of Liberty is the only woman more widely recognized than Marilyn Monroe.

ALL THE WHILE, we practice an iron-s them - and - cherry-O immigration policy and immigration, which we relaxed momentarily for Cuban refugees. Now, having let in a few thousands, we get ready to close the door again on the "golden door of Emma Lazarus' poem on the Statue.

In our more lucid moments, we admit that world leadership has to be more than a word, that our economy affects everyone else's. But lower tariffs so that struggling democracies can sell here? One of Eisenhower's prodest fights has been to liberalize the tariff, and his hands are tied.

HONEST? Oh yes, we're honest. We unobtrusively oppose the French occupation of north Africans and denounce the near-eastern slave trade; but we're not going to endanger the existence of a second class citizenship that gives the Reds a fine opportunity to yell hypocrite

Unprejudiced? We recognized Israel within hours after a provisional government declared the nation in existence, but modesty officially that the government of China, no matter how firmly in control of 600 million people, is really their government.

Jon said he felt the entire problem boiled down to responsibility of the teachers themselves. Basically conflicts between the two factions, he said, are a result of a larger movement to convert Smoke Signals to a literary magazine.

Hammond said, "We aren't trying to impeach Truxsi. We are just interested in getting experience in layout and editorial matter."

A motion made by Faculty Board member Earl Beck to turn Smoke Signals funds over to the Flambeau for publication of a monthly supplement was defeated by the Board.

In The Wings
Brown, Jensen Perform

By DAVE WARDZIEMAN

The Certificate Recital of Beverly Brown, soprano, and Ed Jensen, flutist, Friday night set high standards of performance and musicianship.

JENSEN

gram with Carl Bruce Brown at the piano.

Let's Reverse and Petite Valse, pieces of slight value—but played with quite musicality, as benefitted every piece in the program.

Miss Brown's opening Mozart group showed a flexibility and sensitivity in interpretation that was most enjoyable. Her control over high and low notes was equally good. In fact, her extreme registers were more secure and pleasing tonally than her middle register which sometimes sounded harsh.

FOLLOWING Miss Brown's Mozart group, Jensen played two pieces for unaccompanied flute Mompou's Cancion de Cuna and Debussy s Syrinx. A warning flutist would have heard these pieces project more As it were, he noticed composition al weaknesses that could have been made plainable by a really high school, which would now have been out of place

Miss Brown's last group consisted of a variety of songs expressing many different moods The singer seemed more at ease equal to the interpretive problems posed, and in something like Lotti's Oh! Quand je Dors she sang with remarkable artistry and ease. We were pleasantly surprised to learn that she recently was offered a contract in the Metropolitan opera chorus company, where her vocal ability will stand her in good stead

The Rinderath Sonata for Flute and Piano (1936) made a very impressive close to the program. Jensen's tone was ensemble appropriate to the piece, and his execution generated a tremendous amount of excitement. Indeed it was one of the best performances we have ever heard of this work by professional performances included.

Both soloists were aided immeasurably by accompanists Ryan Edwards for Miss Brown and Lowell Roddenberry for Jensen. Who turned in excellent performances We can recall few recita's in recent years that boasted better support than soloist and accompanist than that heard Friday night.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

Alan Whitmarsh

Oh, Those Yankees!

The time has come for the 16 flag-bearers of major league baseball to once again begin their long chase towards the October classic known as the World Series.

Whereas last year the Brooklyn Dodgers were near unanimous favorites in the National circuit, and the New York Yankees a little less solid choices in the junior circuit, now the situation is just the opposite.

The American League is conceded to be a one-team race, the National's anybody's choice. Here's the way the Flambeau staff sees the prospective 1957 finish:

American League	National League
New York	Brooklyn
Detroit	Milwaukee
Boston	Cincinnati
Cleveland	St. Louis
Chicago	Philadelphia
Kansas City	Pittsburgh
Baltimore	New York
Washington	Chicago

It will admittedly take a miracle or two broken legs for Casey Stengle to dethrone the Yankees for the second time in as many years.

Behind them, the Detroit Tigers are rated highly by the so-called experts, but either they, Boston, Cleveland or Chicago could take second—or any of them could finish fifth for that matter.

The Indians still have Lemon and Score to win 20 for them, but the question of Early Wynn and Mike Garcia being in top form and lack of Al Rosen at third base will determine their pennant chances.

The White Sox have basically the same team which seemingly perennially finishes third, with a new manager. The guess is that they'll go down, not up.

BOX HAVE POTENTIAL

The Red Sox have great potential—something they've had a number of years in fourth place. How long Ted Williams and Mickey Vernon can last and the maturity of their pitching staff may govern their second place chances.

The Tigers have Kaline, Kuenn, and two 20-game winners in Bunning and Bertell, but lack second base strength. They must find some winning pitchers, but could make a race of it on the strength of a strong finish in 1956.

In the senior circuit, it seems if Milwaukee is ever going to win this must be the year. Even Cleveland made it once after a number of consecutive second places, so the Braves are overdue.

They admittedly have the strongest pitching staff all-round in the league, and for that matter on paper look like the best in the league altogether. Pennants are not won on paper, though.

The Dodgers lost a measure of class with the departure of Jackie Robinson, if nothing else. Yankee-killer Johnny Podres is back, but he can't beat the Bronx Bombers during the entire season. Gursa here is Brooklyn second.

Cincinnati has the power, but their perennial problem of pitching still haunts Birdie Tebbetts. Warren Hacker, obtained from the Cubs during the winter, could help the save spot. The Redlegs can't be counted out.

SEMINOLE STEEPLECHASE. Three FSU and two Florida hurdlers are shown in pursuit of the Gators Lincoln Knowles as the latter turned in his first track record Saturday in the high hurdles. He also set a track mark for the lows.

Florida Posts Narrow Victory Over Tribe Cindermen, 67-64

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

The University of Florida posted a narrow victory over Florida State, 67-64 before over 1,000 fans in a dual track meet, Saturday at the Florida High Track.

The Gators grabbed a quick opening lead, but it was fought back with a first and second in the next to last event, the low hurdles, to nail down the victory.

Florida came up with nine first places compared to six for FSU. Included in the Gators' first places were Lincoln Knowles's, Pilus Goodlet's and Joe Brodsky's double wins.

Knowles swept both hurdles events, including a track record breaking performance of 14.3 in the High. Goodlet won the 100 and 220 sd sprints.

Standout for the Seminoles was Captain Joe DeLa, winner of the broad jump and second place finisher in the 440, and a member of the winning mile relay team.

FSU broke two track and one school record in their losing effort. Ken Segner set a new track mark in the 880 as he turned in a time of 1:56.9 and the mile relay team set a new record of 3:24.6.

FSU picked up one in the fourth, fifth, and sixth frames to round out the scoring. The run in the fifth came on a 350 foot blast over the right centerfield fence by left fielder Neil Martin.

The Baby Seminoles pounded Pensacola pitching for 12 hits including two apiece by Falon, Rogers, Ernie Lunsford, and Martin who bounced his average to .400 to pace the freshmen.

Colley fanned nine and walked four to gain his second win of the season.

Tribe Baseballers Face Miami Tonight

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Florida State Seminoles, who have seen no action in over a week, play host to their downstate rivals, the University of Miami for a two game series beginning tonight at 7:30 at Centennial field.

The second game will be played tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 on the Seminole diamond. The Tribe carries a 10-4 record into the game while Miami has a 7-7 mark. This will be FSU's last home game.

Since the Seminoles have not played any games since April 5, all the pitchers will be well rested.

FACULTY NIGHT

Tonight's baseball game with Miami will be faculty and staff appreciation night according to Coach Danny Litwhiler.

"It is often necessary for players to miss classes and we appreciate the cooperation and willingness of the faculty and staff in giving up their own time for makeup work" says Litwhiler.

All faculty or staff member and their wives will be admitted free.

It's likely Jerry Boxer and John Bristol will handle the mound chores. Both men have a 3-1 record this season. Hitkich Ok #9 1/2

On the other hand Litwhiler could rest Boxer and Bristol even longer and use Tom Gaskins (1-0) and Frank Bonner (4-0). The Hurricanes top pitchers are C. Hearn and Al Pete who has start against the Tribe.

The Canes, coached by all-time great Jimmy Foxx, have been hampered all season by inexperience. Miami has five players batting .300 or above, although four of these players happened to be the four top batters.

The Hurricanes still have power in the form of John Matthews, Ed Harrison, Sheldon Punkie and Ed Weiss. Matthews, the third baseman, has hit .328 last season and had five home runs.

Last year the Tribe beat the Canes in two games. Coach Litwhiler will probably go with the same lineup he has used most of the season.

Although there are only two Tribe starters hitting over .300, Litwhiler feels he has plenty of the potential power. Phil Hunt, second baseman, is hitting .354 and centerfielder Owen Mellon is hitting at a .317 clip.

Softball Offers Close Battles

At the half way mark, the battle for top honors is close in all of the five intramural softball leagues.

In the District League the Penthouse is out front with a 4-0 record but the Vets are breathing down their neck with a 4-1 standing.

In the Gold League it is anybody's prize, although to the surprise of everyone the Psychology "profs" show the way with a 4-0 record.

In the fraternity leagues ATO is out in front in the "C" League with 4-0. PDT crept up to 3-1 in the standing by beating PKT 3-1 and LCA by 4-2. LCA and PKT stand 1-3, and KS has 1-3.

SAE, last years champs, lead the "A" league with 4-0. SC has 3-1 and TKP and TC have 2-3. SPE stands 0-4. TC defaulted a game last week to TEP.

The "B" league is tight as a drum. KA and DTD both stand at 3-1, with SN and PKP tied with 2-2. PKA holds up the pile with 0-4.

Frosh Baseballers Blank Pensacola

Florida State's frosh nine continued its winning ways Saturday at Seminole field as they blanked Pensacola Junior College 7-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Chris Collier.

The Tribe climbed on Pensacola's starting pitcher Glen Flenoy in the first inning for a bases loaded double by centerfielder Phil Fallon and a two run single by Charlie Rogers, good for four runs.

Netters Face Tars; Blanked By Miami

Florida State's tennis team completes a six game road trip as they meet Rollins today in Winter Park. Yesterday the netters faced Florida Southern at Lakeland.

Tomorrow they return to home grounds to face Indiana and then host the University of Florida on Thursday to round out a busy week of tennis.

The Seminoles lost to the Gators 8-1 March 30 in Gainesville.

Saturday saw the Tribe blanked by Miami's powerful team 9-0 with only one of the matches going three sets.

Sophomore Jim Maddock took the first set from Bob Rohe, 4-6 but Rohe rallied to take the next two, 6-3, 6-4.

Miami captain Ed Robinoff trimmed Frank Bevan, 6-2, 6-3, and Jerry Hoffman defeated Bill Hall, 6-3, 6-4.

Miami's Bob Rohe and Ed Robinoff then teamed to defeat Maddock and Bevan, 6-4, 6-4.

Ugliest Man Wins Again

By JOHN HULL

Al Dayes, for the second consecutive year, has been elected FSU's ugliest man. His comment was "I feel pretty ugly. I've been called 'Ugly Al' so much that I even call myself that."

Dayes, representing Alpha Omicron Pi for the second time, piled up 18,366 votes in the "Ugly Man Contest." Bob Nellums, sponsored by Alpha Delta Pi was runner-up with 14,013 votes. Dayes was presented the trophy at the "Ugly Man Dance" featuring the Devilaires at the Student Center that night.

The "Ugly Man Contest," an annual event sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega was opened April 8, and was ended Saturday. One cent constituted a vote and a five dollar bill counted as double its amount.

The money, which amounted to slightly over two hundred dollars, will go into a student scholarship, said Bob Dumke, President of Alpha Phi Omega.

House Group Reports Today On Nuclear Bill

A House Atomic Energy subcommittee instructed to write guarantees against state universities duplicating efforts in the nuclear energy field is supposed to report back today on the administration's $5,200,000 proposed appropriation.

The move to prevent duplication resulted after a dispute Monday at which Rep Turlington of Alachua County - Gainesville and Rep Mallory Horne of Leon County disagreed upon the issue of whether the nuclear energy act would duplicate courses at Florida State University and the University of Florida.

Horne contended that with the increasing enrollment forecast for the year, duplications were necessary in some fields.

The subcommittee composed of Turlington, Horne, and Rep. Barco Polemor of Sarasota was instructed to consult presidents of the two universities in order to make some provision for non-duplication.

The bill appropriates $2,800,000 for Florida, $2,300,000 for Florida State and $650,000 for Florida A&M.

Miami Concert Slated Sunday For Glee Club

The Women's Glee Club will rise tomorrow morning for Miami where they will give a concert Sunday as a part of the Southern Music Educators National Convention Convention.

The concerts to be performed include various selections from the Alma Mater spring concert here.

During the return trip Monday, the Glee Club will present a concert at the Winter Haven high school.

Twenty students are requested, by Florida State University at the convention, which opened today and ends Sunday. Several were not going by the All-Conference Band, Orchestra and Chorus. These include Frank Freeman, Bob Bader, Elaine Stephens, Carol Owen, Jeanne Talley, Louise McClure, Frances Ellwood and Connie Rothbaugh.

Selective Service Test Slated For May 16

Students eligible for Selective Service who have not taken the College Qualifications Test before may still have another chance to qualify for deferment this year on May 16.

Applications are available in the Selective Service Office, 115 Westcott, but must be mailed on or before May 4, and Mrs. Pat Stanley, of selective service officials.

Students Oppose Teaching Course In Flambeau Poll, Rallying 126-42 Vote

Overall results of the opinion poll regarding present requirements for teacher certification were, 42 for the requirements, 126 against them.

All of the entries, however, cannot be accepted in the final tabulation since they bore no signatures. Thus they may have been duplications in some instances.

Opinion of those who signed went like this: 39 for the present requirements, 117 against.

In all further counts, the unsigned entries are not taken into account, except when indicated.

Voting of Education majors was 26 for, 26 against.

Voting of non-Education majors, 11 for, 79 against.

Voting of faculty members, one for, 12 against.

Number of students who said they were in the School of Education but who failed to sign their entries was six. They voted, three for, three against.

Over 1500 New Students Apply For Admission In Fall

More than 1,500 have already applied for admission as new students to Florida State University next fall.

Assistant Registrar Willis Caldwell, who is director of admissions, announced the figure last week.

Caldwell reported the applications for admission during the semester starting in September are particularly heavy among prospective freshmen women, with 700 applications now on file April 3 compared with 218 at the same date last year.

He explained the increase probably is due in part to a new rule requiring new students to apply for admission before they apply for on with 662 a year ago.

Veep Finds No Quorum; Senators Out

By BOB WOLFENBARGER

"Where, oh where have my senators gone?", wailed Student Body Vice-president Jim Boles Wednesday.

Senate president Boles was in a quandary. Two times in a row, his senators failed to produce the necessary quorum, as the Senate could transact no business.

The Senate quorum is 25 of a total membership of 36.

Wednesday before the Easter holiday, only 23 senators showed up, while this week only 21 appeared in the Senate room.

Next week, the important Student Government budget is on the senatorial agenda — provided enough senators appear to make a quorum.

Included in next year's budget are the funds for the student publications and service agencies.

The budget is to be submitted by Secretary of Finance Evelyn Moll.

The senators listed absent from the April 17 session are: senators Paine, Blue, Moss, Arnold, Coop, Fain, Horner, Lang, Mines, Murray, Roberts, Markham, and Dale.

Senators absent April 24 were: Coupe, Fain, Blue, Horner, Moss, Morgan, Canon, Copps, Crawford, Gilmore, Godin, Moser, Murray, Van DeLinder, Markham, Temple, and Dale.

18-Year-Olds Should Vote: Young GOP

The Young Republican Club this week endorsed pending legislation to grant 18-year-olds the vote.

They did this despite the statement of the Florida Legislator who introduced the bill that it would help the Democratic Party to cover after twice losing Florida to Eisenhower.

"The local club plans to wholeheartedly support all measures of the bill now before the Florida Legislature in favor of the 18-year-old vote," said Dan Gorham, president.

He said it is national Young Republican policy to endorse a reduction in the voting age. The local action was taken by the club's executive committee he said.

NATIONAL SPEAKER

The week before, the young GOPs heard Charles K. McWhorter, chairman of the Young Republican Federation, speak on their behalf.

"The Young Republican Clubs in Florida have tremendous amount of energy behind them, because they have idealism as their motivation," said Mrs. Mary Taylor, Republican Party of Florida five years from now," he said.

While in Florida McWhorter spoke at the University of Florida, University of Miami, and before clubs in DeLand and Tampa.

Daniel Gorham is FSU club president, said representatives from seven other colleges on campus for the Florida Citizenship Clearing House Legislative Conference heard McWhorter speak. He said they are planning to establish a Florida College Federation of Young Republican Clubs.

BEAUTY CONTEST

Gorham said the FSU club will enter a candidate in the "Miss Florida Young Republican" contests to be held during the Florida State Convention of Florida Young Republican Clubs in Sarasota May 3-5. Coeds wishing to enter should write Box 394, campus mail, he said.

The contest winner will compete in a national contest in Washington during June.

Supper Commences Cawthon Weekend

Beginning their annual dorm weekend tonight at 5:30 p.m. North and South Cawthon will sponsor a buffet supper followed by square dancing in the Reservation for residents and their dates.

The "Blue Fan set" formal will follow on Saturday night from 8 to 12 p. m. with the Deriskens providing the music, and campus talent filling the program.

Political observers expect the honest contest to be between Hank McCann, Collegiate Party, and Bill Weaver, of the Student Party, for Senior Class president.

All of the offices except ten are contested. Those for which there is no opposition are the Junior Class treasurer, junior social chairman, the two junior women's Honor Court seats, the three junior men's Judiciary seats, and the three senior women's seats on that court.

CANDIDATES APLENTY

There are candidates enough to fill every office.

Many campaigning according to Mitzi McCullough Secretary of Elections, will begin at 5 p.m. Tuesday, at which time expense estimates will be due and candidates and those missing the deadline won't get on the ballot.

"Candidates are reminded to place posters on designated boards only," said Miss McCullough. "If there are more than one poster to each side of a board for one candidate they will be removed." They will be torn down if they are placed in any other unauthorized places whatsoever.

"Please" she reminded candidates, written permission of owners of off-campus property is required before posters there.

The forthcoming elections will be for present freshmen, sophomores, and juniors to name presidents, vice-presidents secretaries, treasurers, social chairmen, and two women to Student Senate from each class.

All classes, including graduates, are permitted to vote on candidates for judicial offices.

The list of declared candidates follows: <key to party '(c)' = Campus, '(f)' = Fraternity, and '(ind)'—no affiliation>

Life For Denise

Tot's Fate Uncertain As Tests Continue

By SANDRA GIPSON

Winsome Denise Roberts, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Roberts of Florida State University, is undergoing tests for leukemia and cancer in New York as a result of the "Life for Denise" campaign recently undertaken by FSU students.

The child, whose father is a junior here was thought to have leukemia although cancer is the present diagnosis. The possibility of the fatal blood disease has not, however, been ruled out.

When leukemia was diagnosed, the Insurance and Real Estate Club of FSU sponsored a drive for money and blood for Denise and students, faculty and townspeople responded overwhelmingly. To date over $2,000 has been contributed.

Recently Dennis Roberts appeared on TV's Strike It Rich, emerging with $350 in winnings and contributions. He has also become employed by Smith, Barney & Co. of New York, since the child has been there for treatment.

Dr Edwin R Harte, University Chaplain said of the fund-raising drive, "Willingness to contribute has been most heartening and encouraging. Dr Harte is a member of the committee appointed by President Doak S Campbell to direct the progress of "Life For Denise."

At the annual Garnet and Gold Frolic, $1,000 more will be received in donations. Students pledged money individually and in groups, as well as did townspeople.

The people of Sunshine Speedway, the home-town of Mr and Mrs Roberts, have donated over $500 for Denise's treatment.

In answer to the request for blood donations, 200 pints have been already-five pints. Two pints came from Phi Kappa Tau fraternity and three pints were donated by Delta Tau Delta.

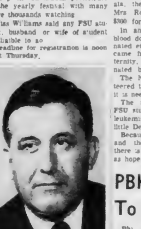
The National Guard has volunteered ten pints, in the event that it is needed.

The mother of Fred Seagrist, FSU student who recently died of leukemia, and a schoolmate of little Denise in her son's memory. Because of the efforts of FSU and the people of Tallahassee there is "Life for Denise," as well as hope.

Folk Festival Trip Planned By Rec Group

Plans are underway for a non-scholastic trip to the Annual Polk Festival at White Springs May 5 according to Miss Marie Williams, director of social activities.

She said the first 40 students to sign up at her office, 16 Longhurst, will be included in the free trip, which will begin at 10:30 a m on May 5. Students will meet at the Reservation.



May 5, a Sunday, will be the concluding day of the three-day festival which is to be held at the Stephen Foster Memorial.

Director Thelma Bollin said participants will meet from juke about every part of the state in show-off time arts crafts and costume, to present folk songs and folk dances, and to tell fireside tales. In addition, there will be performers from Georgia South Carolina and other states.

Monday's performance will begin at 8 p m Thousands participate in the yearly festival with many more thousands watching.

Miss Williams said any FSU student, husband or wife of student is eligible to an

Deadline for registration is noon next Thursday.

DR. F. G. TOWNSEND

Coffee Hour Will Feature Carlyle's Essay

Dr Francis Townsend will be the English Coffee Hour speaker today, beginning at 4 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

The English Department head will discuss Carlyle's "Past and Present," which he calls "an essay in the grand style" and considers the best of Carlyle's work.

Dr Townsend for her defines the "Age of Carlyle" as a period of propaganda designed to set erring Victorians on the path of righteousness. In such areas as politics and economics.

Carlyle differed with many of his contemporaries who considered reforms in politics and economics impossible.

Dr Townsend discussed the same topic in an interview with students at the University of Florida's Language and Literature Club.

Picnic Scheduled For Buddy Students By Student Gov't

A picnic honoring foreign and out-of-state students will be held this afternoon on the lawn between Landis Hall and the Methodist Student house beginning at 5 p m.

The gathering will be part of the "buddy" system sponsored by student government.

About 25 foreign students have taken part in the organization, according to Jan Kamma, secretary of state, who is in charge of it.

The "buddy system" helps foreign students to establish themselves at the university by giving them an American student as a "buddy."

Plans are now being made to get a list of next year's students so American students may write them during the summer to get acquainted with them.

PBK Banquet To Honor 15

Phi Beta Kappa, scholastic honorary fraternity, will begin initiation for fifteen students today at 4:30 p m.

A banquet will be held in the Barwicke Dining Room beginning at 6:30 p m with approximately 75 old members and the 15 new initiates present.

After a reception address by Dr Doak S Campbell, Dr Somerset R Neel, Dean of Men, will be the main speaker.

Tickets On Sale For 'Flying High'; First Show To Honor Legislators

Tickets went on sale this week for "Flying High's" tenth annual home show next Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Doak S. Campbell stadium.

The FSU student circus will honor members of the State Legislature at the Thursday performance.

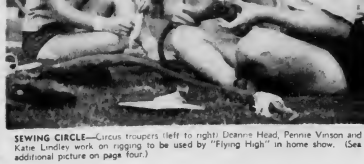
Tickets are on sale for all three shows at 50 cents with activity coupon 1, by FSU students which will purchase reserved seats. Date tickets will also be 50 cents.

General admission will be 75 cents for adults, and 25 cents for children, with an additional charge of 25 cents for reserved seats.

START 8 P.M.

Each night's program will start at 8 p.m.

The tickets are on sale at the Westcott ticket office from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and on Saturday from 8 a.m. to noon.



Circus Jack Hankin said this year's show "is run as hour and 45 minutes—a "the most beautiful show we have ever staged with special emphasis placed on flare area and unique animal acts. Over 150 troopers and 30 bands men will take part.

He said as many as five acts will be going on at one time" in perfect coordination."

He said it will be the public's first look at new training methods especially for the Flying DeCosmos.

Acts will include a quartett, Mazie "Southern Sophistication," an aerial ballet, "Symphony in Black," antics by the clowns and a full-wave clown band; high wire acts; trifling horse drama and a new routine on a free-swinging flying trapeze.

Survey Shows Need Of Study Into Education Requirements

Just as does any matter of public opinion, the question of present requirements for teacher certification here involves two extreme viewpoints with a majority middle view.

The Florida Flambeau's poll was designed to bring out the opinion of the extreme views. The low turnout, therefore, does not necessarily mean the results are without meaning.

Undoubtedly, if some means had been provided whereby all viewpoints could have been represented, the poll would have attracted greater response. This, however, would have required a complicated range of alternative responses and would still not guarantee that everybody's opinion would be represented.

In taking into consideration the Flambeau's limitations and its aims. With this in mind the problem becomes one of the interpretating the meaning of the results in light of the conditions in which they are derived.

We feel that the significance of the poll is this: that the Flambeau has in its possession signed statements to the effect that the respondents' viewpoint regarding present FSU requirements for teacher certification is best represented by the statement, "They are not necessary because they are artificial restrictions and students should spend more time learning what to teach and less on how to teach." And, conversely, say that the statement, "They are necessary and good because they provide minimum standards of college education for teachers, thus protecting the children in our public schools," best represents their opinion.

Since the preponderance of opinion (again, granting the existence of a majority middle view) is that present requirements are not necessary, it would seem that there is valid reason for questioning the worth of present requirements.

Such an examination would look into all the factors involved — possible duplication of subject matter in the education curriculum, the extent to which individual instructors vary their courses, the role played by "counseling" in students' distribution of their free elective hours, duplication of subject matter in Education and non-Education courses, ect.

If such a survey were to show the anti-Education sentiment to hold some merit, presumably a groundwork for action will have been laid.

It is not the Flambeau's intention to state its own opinion; we do not maintain ourselves to be experts in the field of curriculum development. We merely feel that we can provide means for the expression of opinion. Students are used in hearing objections to Education requirements to the extent that it is almost a topic of humor. The poll undertook to measure the criticism with a view toward knowing whether investigation seems justified. We believe the results show it is.

We Came, We Saw, We Ate— And Morrison's Outdid Itself!

We had a nice dinner in Morrison's the other day.

It was an occasion we shall not soon forget, though it did occur prior to the Easter holidays.

As we recall it, the dinner was roast beef. Surprisingly, it was azable, thick and succulent. It was hot and appetizing —the kind of roast beef you see in advertisements.

THEN THERE were side dishes; delicious green salad, chilled fruit cocktail (finer than any we'd seen previously), mashed potatoes (these were unbelievable, considering the locale—creamy, and salted just the right amount), English peas as large and well-cooked we wanted more, hot, soft rolls with butter, and lastly, a dessert of wonderfully tasty apple pie. It was almost too much.

To satisfy our disbelief, we glanced up to see how many people were eating that day (such quality, we thought, couldn't be possible with mass production). But strangely enough, there were about three hundred people enjoying the meal.

IMPOSSIBLE, you say? No—it actually happened at Morrison's Food Service that day! So go rushing over there tonight expecting to get the same. You won't.

For the meal we described isn't available to students. It was a banquet prepared for the Citizenship Clearing House.

But it was there—we saw it.

A Letter

Professor Calls Profit Inadequate

TO THE EDITOR:

There are several points on the opinion poll being conducted by The Flambeau regarding the Florida teacher certification requirements on which I accept no invitation to comment. I hope that these points are kept in mind when the results are made to interpret the results of the poll.

Most important is the wording of the choices on which an opinion is to be expressed. By providing only two options, i. e. that "They certification requirements are necessary and good" or "They are not necessary," a respondent is caused to assume either an all white or an all black position when to many the issue involves shades of gray.

For example, what if a student considers some of the courses he is required to take for teacher certification very desirable and others quite undesirable? How could such a student intelligently respond to your questionaire? To illustrate, in 3½ years of supervising student teachers I have yet to hear even an implication that this requirement produced a poor use of a student's time.

On the contrary, a vast majority of the state finds it to its order interning a highly valuable experience in preparation for teach. I would be glad to provide The Flambeau with the names of these students in order that they might be polled. Yet, I should add of course, the opinions were they not required to do so.

Obviously some would ask for the same reason that they would not take ROTC, primarily, lack of general education if left a their own choosing. Indeed, I am a most hours of general education as a one requirement for teacher certification in Florida.

Carrying this point a step further, certification for secondary school teaching in the broad fields of English, science, and social studies all require 30 to 32 semester hours of college credit in content courses. Might this not also be considered a desirable requirement?

Finally, your instrument provides no information as to whether the respondent has ever taken any courses required for certification. For respondents who have not taken any of these courses and you have no way of determining who these are without going to the registrar's office, this is undesirable in asking a student who has taken them. Each whether it should be required for degree or graduation.

What basis does he have for making an intelligent response? Also identification of students enrolled in the School of Education is meaningless since such students pursue the same program as they would were they preparing for certification for secondary school teaching in the broad fields of English, science, and

Writer Questions Newman Letter's Factual Appeal

TO THE EDITOR:

In the April 16 issue of The Flambeau Miss Elinor Newman wrote a letter which was intended as a defense of the present teacher certification system in Florida. That letter had many ambiguous and misleading statements, but space prevents an adequate evaluation of them. One sentence, though, might be devoted as a critique. The "facts" of educational theory have been proven when compared to the many ideas taught in education courses which are really hypotheses insofar as valid conclusive proof does not "prove" anything, regardless what the profession. It is not expected, however, that those readers with either little or no knowledge of education courses and teacher certification requirements could understand my contentions.

It has previously been stated in Letters-to-the-Editor that basic courses in education are a waste of time and that there are no unnecessary burden thrust upon prospective teachers who then become less proficient because they couldn't take the courses they have now. Material they will teach.

It then follow of course, that less proficient teachers will turn out students with less knowledge than possible under teachers who had a greater mastery of their material. Consequently, people with less knowledge can more thoroughly and their country with less competence.

People with less knowledge cannot appreciate the arts— an essential for the development of any civilization — as well and the subsequent leaning passages of the arts would thereby cement the opinion of foreign observers that were barbarians, only capable of being good businessmen and mass-producers of gadgets.

People with less knowledge also have an develop less interest in

Capitalism Necessary

TO THE EDITOR.

In last Friday's FLAMBO, the Editor made the following statement: "As THEORETICAL IDEOLOGIES DEMOCRACY AND SOCIALISM DIFFER, BUT AS PHRASES "GROUP" VALUES ARE NOT OF NECESSITY ANY MORE INCOMPATIBLE THAN DEMOCRACY AND PRIVATE ENTERPRISE ARE NECESSARILY COMPATIBLE.

REDUCED to simple language, this means Socialism and Democracy can go as well together as Democracy and Private Enterprise.

It all depends upon what you mean by "Democracy" or "Socialism." If you mean the same thing as do Russian Communists when they speak of "the People's Democracies," then your statement becomes a travesty for in Poland and Hungary, State Socialism and Democracy are "according to the Kremlin, one and the same.

BUT if you mean that American "democracy" and Socialism are "compatible" (as the phrase runs for American "democracy" is basically capitalism, and capitalism is not compatible with Socialism.

When some people consider Socialism as a "theoretical ideology." It seems a pretty innocuous thing, but another type. But when it is put into practice, it can be pretty horrible For instance, in Britain, the State has thrown quite a few farmers off their ancestral homes for "not managing them efficiently enough." One poor farmer was killed trying to resist.

ANOTHER EVIL of Socialism is Bureaucracy; in America, for instance, the fight against the ever-expanding bureaucracy is demonstrated by the fuhis in Congress over creating the budget and taxes. If anyone would like to know what the Liberals, Progressives, and Socialists think about economizing on government, go down to the library and browse through copy of the New Republic or the Nation. Bureaucracy leaves one enormously powerless, that the only way their impractical and subversive ideas will ever be adopted is by any great stealth as through the establishment of a Socialist, "welfare state" — Bureaucracy.

Thus it is not unreasonable to say that even "as ideologies," Democracy and Socialism are "compatible", for American democracy, which depends upon free enterprise, is for individual freedom, for the little man who wants in as much as he can for himself and by himself, while Socialism is for Bureaucracy and State control.

Sincerely,
CHARLES MAYO

Says Poll 'Meaningless'

TO THE EDITOR:

I should like to take exception to several aspects of the "opinion poll" contained in the April 12th issue of the Flambeau.

1. "The following best represents my viewpoint regarding present FSU requirements for teacher certification 'Check one'."

The statement is meaningless. It asks the respondent to endorse his reaction to something that does not exist. Florida State University does not set the requirements for teacher certification. Setting the teacher certification requirements is a state function, not the University function.

However, the requirements laid down for graduation from the School of Education lead to certification if the graduate applies for it. I am sure the State Board of Education and the State Board of Control would point the School of Education to operate on a basis that does not endanger certificability of the graduate

2. What is the referent or reference of the word "requirements as it is used in "FSU requirements for teacher certification . . ."

State Board Regulations specify three kinds of required preparation "requirements for teachers: (1) 45 quarter hours in General Education; (2) a minimum of 20 quarter hours in profession education of which only 8 hours are "methods' and '3' various minimums in the several content or subject-matter preparation fields.

When checking the ballot should the respondent assume that all three kinds of requirements are necessary or that some but not all are unnecessary, or just what?

3. The two alternatives from which one must choose are not representative of the reactions one might have It would have been better merely to call one reaction "They are necessary," and the other "They are not necessary." The reasons that they were added to "they are" and "they are not" will probably invalidate the results because they attempt to explain a general reaction on the basis of one specific reason.

Sincerely,
RUSSELL P. KROPP
Assoc. Prof. of Education science and technology, essential for the development of a higher liberal standard of living better health, and, in this age especially, defense weapons.

I submit, then, that the future development of our culture and worse, even our future security will possibly be detrimentally affected if presentday teacher certification requirements in professional education courses are maintained, or worse expanded, and some professional educators would have it.

In fact, the patient people in the Kremlin would most certainly support the present certification system; "Why allow those future capitalists to have their liberal standard of living better health, and, in this age especially, defense weapons.

Enforcement of present teacher certification requirements in professional education courses is a long period of tomorrow 20 or 30 years will eventually undermine our country from the most insidious angle of all: the education system on the elementary and secondary levels. That possibility can do what Communist propaganda and infiltration into various levels of government could never do.

Lower levels of knowledge among our people will most assuredly expose them to a dangerous of having our knowledge and development of defense weapons, not to speak of social science and related studies, surpassed by our declared enemies.

And when we have been clearly surpassed on a technical and scientific level by our enemies, what then? God, help us, if that day ever comes. However, it can be possible to avoid such a day by, among other things, lowering the number of hours required in education courses required for teacher certification.

Granted, there are many Nasty Rumor?

Hmm, Could Be

TO THE EDITOR:

DO YOU KNOW that there is a NASTY RUMOR around campus?

This RUMOR concerns a survey made by some organization of the average I.Q. of students in the various schools and by the average grades of the same students. It is supposed to have found that The highest I.Q. was in the School of Music, next A & S; the lowest rating was Library Science, the next lowest Education.

The highest grades were earned by Music; the next highest were given in Education.

IS THIS TRUE? ARE THESE FACTS?

The Dissenter

Should He Endorse FSU Student Politicos?

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

The curiously anticipated young Republican Soapbox at news-letter graciously distributed before its holiday, was a treat to read.

We thought melodrama had passed away with mustache wax, but the young GOPs have brought it back to life. For example: "These men" . . . "Democrats who hold small political offices in Florida — need to fear no longer. They think of losing the offices that they have held for so long." Tremble.

And, As SOUTHERNERS (Their capitals, not mine) as of this crusade have accepted the only possible role: they are open to us and have thrown over-board the state party that has taken over the once proud Democratic tide party."

WE INFER that the young-party control has ruined Florida, that the people are up in arms, and that the Republicans are the saviors.

We might timidly inquire how come things are in such a mess down in Florida Democrats, there is one-party GOP rule, but that is great-ism!

MORE of concern is the brief announcement, or "bulletin," in the Soapbox that the young GOPs, "being a political organization will endorse various candidates in the coming election in our student government, so the more than 2,000 Republicans on campus may consider them for office."

Now that, we submit, is ironical. Here the young GOPs, red faced from examining for the last-gasp in Florida, are beating the drum for a multi-party system on campus.

THAT'S WHAT it would be. Student Party, Collegiate Party, and the Young Republicans of all 2,000 of them.

Perhaps the day will come when a successful student body president-al candidate will not be afraid to wear an "the" button or mini-mustache. "Dick Tracy"? They'll have to make FSU's elite, Ivy-League-type school. How else will they get a Chiley full of millionaires?

WHILE IT is true that the age of debating issues keeps the campus party system from maturing very much, it would handicap it more to have a campus-wide "private enterprise" party form.

Nor would a young-GOP backed candidate stand much chance of winning if one had to defend the latest "private enterprise" scandal on campus—the Navy service.

PERHAPS THIS writer is too young GOPs. It is possible that he will ridiculously and coolly segregate the respective merits of the two sons seeking office, deciding whether they are Young Democrats or Young Republicans on issues a purely reasoned discussion of the "more than 2,000" Republicans on campus.

Perhaps.

I'm sorry I'm graduating. The future should be fun to watch.

VIDEO'S DELIGHT

The academic world has made its first tentative steps into television. A few lectures, a few seminars, and even I respectfully suggest that the academic world has not yet learned the full potential of video.

Why don't the colleges use television's vast capacity to dramatize, to amuse, to unshackle the imagination? Like, for example, this:

ANNOUNCER: Howdy, folks. Well, it's time again for that lovable, laughable pair, Emmett Twonkey Magruder, Ph.D., and Felicia Mae Crimscott, M.A., in that rollicking, roistering romp, "Early American History 101." And here they are, the team that took the "hiss" out of "Hissterical Fiction": Emmett Twonkey Magruder and Felicia May Crimscott!

DR. MAGRUDER: Howdy, folks. A funny thing happened to me on the way to my doctorate. A mendicant approached me and said, "Excuse me, sir, will you give me 25 cents for a sandwich?" I replied, "Perhaps I will, my good man. Let me see the sandwich."

MISS CRIMSCOTT: Oh, how droll, Dr. Magruder! How eloquent! How you've kept your wit sharp as a razor's edge, Let us get on with our rollicking, roistering fun antics, Dear Doctor Magruder.

DR. MAGRUDER: Today we will dramatize the taut and tingling story of John Smith and Pocahontas. I will play Captain Smith and Miss Crimscott will play Pocahontas.

ANNOUNCER: But first a message from our sponsor. . . . Folks, have you ever tried a Philip Morris latch? Have you treated yourself to that good natural tobacco — gentle yet mild, hearty yet gentle, rich yet delicate? Mmmm! Have you? . . . If not, light a Philip Morris soon. Light a Philip Morris and now to our grim and gripping story. Picture, if you will, a still summer night. An Indian maid stands by a moonlit brook. Suddenly she hears a footstep behind her. It is Smith.

MISS CRIMSCOTT: Oh! John Smith! You-um startle-um me-um!

DR. MAGRUDER: Hello, Pocahontas. What are you doing down by the brook?

MISS CRIMSCOTT: Just washing out a few scalps. But what-um you-um want-um?

DR. MAGRUDER: I came to see the Chief.

MISS CRIMSCOTT: You-um can't-um. Chief is leaving for Chicago.

DR. MAGRUDER: On what track?

ANNOUNCER: And speaking of tracks, stay on the right track with Philip Morris — the track that heeds attitude for smoking pleasure, for fine flavor, for finest content. . . . And now back to those two cool cats, Emmett Twonkey Magruder and Felicia May Crimscott.

DR. MAGRUDER: Well, folks, that's all for today. See you next week, same time, same station.

MISS CRIMSCOTT: Stay tuned now for "William Cullen Bryant: Girl Intern."

ANNOUNCER: And remember, folks, each and of Philip Morris is ignitable. It's just good, rich, natural tobacco, any way you light it!

Batters Explode!

As of in defiance of 14-game statistics which showed they had been batting average of .252, Florida State's baseballers have stayed in the last six games, four of which have been on the

In six contests with Miami, Georgia Teachers and Auburn, the Seminole stickers have scored 74 runs, and vaulted their team to .297.

As a result, Coach Danny Litwhiler's charges seem almost assured of a second straight trip to Gastonia, N.C. for the annual NCAA baseball regionals there.

They own a 15-5 mark as they face Florida Southern today in Lakeland and their only serious road block remaining is Rol- ins, May 1-2 in Winter Park.

In this particular district, Georgia Teachers and Rollins are the only two other at large teams which might threaten the 'Noles chances of going to Gastonia.

They took care of Georgia Teachers in short order this past weekend. With Jerry Boxer and Jack Bristol both pitching two- hitters the Seminoles romped to 11-2 and 6-3 victories.

ONLY ROLLINS

Only Rollins remains, and the Tars have not impressed too many people thus far this year. As an example, they could only get a two-game series with Miami, whom the Seminoles bombed 9-0 and 21-3.

Somewhat like a minor scale Casey Stengel, Litwhiler has put his talented manpower around like chess men on a board as few men starving at the same position long.

Three different first basemen, Fred Twomey, Bobby Watts and Gerald Philp have all started at the initial sack, with Philp currently holding down the starting role with a solid .393 average.

Twomey has also played left field, as have team batting star Leo Corso and Relief Sleeper Corso and Owen McCarron who both opened in center and Bob Rosell, Severn and Corso have all started in right field.

At least three of the infield positions have been fixtures in Litwhiler Phil Hunt, shortstop Dick Howser and captain and all-star catcher Carlee Hendrix. Hendrix and Hunt have been known to switch positions in the middle of a ball game, however.

Despite this switching Litwhiler has certainly found the combination on his three years at FSU. Including this year's record he has teams have won 56 and lost just 18 thus far.

The may be the year they'll go the route at the NCAA.

HOW ABOUT BC?

The addition of Boston College to the 1957 Florida State season slate leaves the Seminoles with a tough road to hoe for the first year of Tom Nugent's three-year contract.

The Eagles from Beantown might be taken lightly by some fans in this area who don't follow eastern football too closely, but they're no pushover.

A couple of years back, they pushed the powerful University of Miami Hurricanes to great efforts before succumbing. That year, Miami blasted the Seminoles 34-6. Both contests were in Miami.

Nugent had originally hoped to add another home contest to the schedule, and offer it to the students and season ticket holders as a "bonus" game, but he couldn't arrange such.

Notwithstanding this the six-game home slate is surely one most outstanding ever offered Tallahassee and fans who like Miami, Auburn, Virginia Tech etc. on tap here.

Netters Tackle Emory In Final

Florida State's tennis team closes out its 1957 season when it meets Georgia Tech today and Emory tomorrow, both matches being played in Atlanta.

Wednesday the Seminoles began their four game road trip against Mercer, a team which the Tribe easily defeated, 8-1, early in the season.

Yesterday they opposed the Georgia Bulldogs who blanked Florida State in the season's opener 9-0 on the home courts.

Wednesday the netters downed Mercer for their fourth win of the season 6-3 giving them their second victory over the Bears in season competition.

Prior to the Easter holidays the sophomore laden netmen blasted Florida Southern 9-0, out then dropped three straight to Rollins, 9-0, Indiana and Florida by identical scores of 7-2.

The Florida match was closer than the 7-2 score indicates" said Coach Keith Pickford. "Most of the matches went in three sets and they were close ones. Our performance is heartening on this year."

The Seminoles record is four victories as against nine defeats and with only two matches remaining will have a losing season for the first time since 1951.

Linksters Host Rollins Today

Florida State's golfers play host to the Rollin's Tars today on the home course as they seek their seventh win of the year.

The Seminoles and the Tars met earlier this year at Rollins with the Tribe winning a close one 13-12.

The only other dual match remaining for the linksters is a return meet with the Florida Gators which will be played prior to the Southern Intercollegiates, May 5-6 in Athens.

No specific date has been named as yet.

The only blemish on the Tribe's 1957 record was a 14½ - 12½ loss to the Gators here in Tallahassee. Victories came at the expense of Auburn, Georgia Tech, Alabama, Georgia Miami and Rollins.

The two won the Florida Intercollegiates for the second consecutive year winning by 24 strokes over the second place to Gators.

JUST MISSED. Seminole pole vaulter Richard Elwood, co-holder of the school record, missed on this try against Florida, but later vaulted 13'2" to set a new mark, along with Warren Strickland.

Senior Jerry Boxer Is Pitching Mainstay

By BESS WELLER
Flambeau Sports Writer

Jerry Boxer, leading right hand pitcher for the FSU Seminoles, should go a long way says Coach Danny Litwhiler.

A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., he attended Lafayette High School there. An outfielder in high school, he lettered two years.

Offered a scholarship to Stetson, he attended school there for one semester before transferring to Florida State. Joining the FSU team he made the grade and was offered a scholarship.

A senior who married 20 Wednesday, Jerry has pitched the most innings of anyone on the team. He has 45 innings, he has struck out 31 men.

PRE-LAW

A pre-law major, Boxer plans to attend law school in New York City. He says he would like to attend Columbia University. He hopes to play pro baseball in the spring and go to school the rest of the year.

Several major league clubs have shown interest in Jerry's pitching.

The Seminole fireballer has hurled two two-hitters and a one-hitter among his four victories thus far this year. Opposing batsmen have had just 58 hits off him in his 45 1/3 frames.

The one-hitter was against Yale in the FSU tournament, when a sixth inning single spoiled his no-hit bid. He fired two-hitters against Florida 4-1) and Georgia Teachers (11-2.

Psychology Profs Continue Winning In Intramural Softball

The Psychology "profs" continued on their winning way in softball, beating the Newman Club 9-4.

In a wild contest the Feds beat Masnolia 15-11. Magnolia took a 4-0 lead, then got behind 7-5. Feds went six out ahead 12-5 but Masnolia came up with 6 runs in the sixth to give the Feds a real scare.

Freshman shut out the Rebels 14-0. Senior Hall thought they had the Vets licked, with a 9-1 lead, but the Vets scored 21 runs in one inning to win 22-2.

The dorm leagues complete their schedule with games next Monday.

ATO dropped their first game of the year to PDT 5-2. It was a case of too many walks as PDT scored 5 runs on 8 hits being 4 costly bases on balls.

SN won a right game from KA 11-8 called because of darkness in the 5th. SN got 11 runs on 4 hits and 9 walks.

MOVING UP

DTD moved up a notch by knocking down PKP 9-6. Goodson and Filmore homered for the Delts and Ralston for the PKPs.

SAE beat TC 10-8 in another game loaded with free passes. TC got only 3 walks but SAE received 9 which supplied their winning margin.

Final Season On Women's Sports

With softball and tennis already underway and the annual swimmins meet scheduled for May 8, the final women's sports season is moving into full swing.

Softball practices are over and the competition underway. Tennis began last Tuesday, and swimming practices must be finished by May 7.

Here are results of softball games of the week of April 11-18: Gamma Phi Beta 1, Phi Mu O; Alpha Z Delta 11, ADPi C. E. Landis 17, Bosgard 2; Delta Gamma 2, Chi Omega 2; Alpha Chi Omega 8, Kappa Delta 3; Delta Beta 8, Kappa Alpha Theta 4; Pi Beta Phi 8, ADPi 5. Cawthon 1, Reynolds 6, and W. Landa 1, Bryan 8.

Oppose Moccasins Twice; Sweep Teachers On Road

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

Now a strong contender for the District 3 NCAA playoffs in June, the Florida State baseball team continues its late season road trip by playing Florida Southern tonight, and tomorrow in Lakeland.

Jerry Boxer will handle the Corso and Philp will be essentially the same ex- 10 innings Tom Gaccia started cept that Dick Howser may move the game for the Tribe but was re- up in the order.

The Seminoles now hold a 15-5 overall record and have won six out of their last seven games. Coach Danny Litwhiler commented that in the last six games the Tribe has looked like a new team.

The boys are starting to hit like we knew they could, said Litwhiler. The baseball coach continued, "our first base problem has been solved by Gerry Philp Lee Corso and Curtice Hendrix have been bringing in the runs."

'IMPROVED A LOT'

"Over all I'd say the team has improved a lot on their batting and base running and have been OK on defense. Of course our pitching staff has been very effective.

The Tribe snapped an eight-game home winning streak of the Auburn Tigers last Tuesday when they beat them 10-4. It was only the fourth beat of the season for Auburn and three of the losses have been handed to them by the Seminoles.

Frank Skinner started the game for FSU but was taken out in the fifth inning and relieved by Bristol who gained his fifth win against one loss.

Corso and Hendrix were the leading batters for the Tribe driving in three and two runs respectively. Hendrix had three hits and was rally with one out and a bases loaded in the extra frame. Rosell scored for the FSU squad in the hitting department getting three hits. Philp and Phil Hunt both got two hits and drove in two runs.

Bristol grabbed two hit ball and his teammates picked up eight runs when the Tribe downed the Georgia Bulldogs at Statesboro last Saturday.

Bob Mosley got the only two hits for the Teachers driving in their only three runs. One of the hits was a homer. However. Three shortstops also hit a round tripper besides getting two other hits. Corso also went three for four and had three RBI's.

The day before. Boxer also pitched a two-hitter as the Seminoles blasted the Teachers, 13-2. The big southpaw fanned 14 men but had a little control trouble and walked ten.

Homer again was the bat boy as he hit a grand slam homer in the seventh. Johnny Sheppard also hit a circuit clout in the ninth with one man on. McCarron collected three hits.

Before the Easter holidays the Tribe took full advantage of the Miami Hurricanes by taking two games from them 21-3 and 1-3. In the second game in which the Tribe got 10 runs Skinner, a relief hurler was the goaling light.

He pitched a tight game, striking out five and without giving up a walk. At the plate Skinner had four hits and five RBI's. One of the hits was a homer.

Citizenship Clearing House Draws From 9 Colleges

More than 100 representatives from nine colleges met last week on the FSU campus for the biennial Legislative Conference of the Florida Citizenship Clearing House.

Schools sending student delegations were Florida State University, the University of Tampa, University of Florida, Jacksonville University, Rollins College, Florida Southern, St. Petersburg Junior College, Stetson University and the University of Miami.

They heard speeches and panels on political topics, including an address by Senator George A. Smathers on "The Challenge of Politics." Read it in "The Inland Challenge there is" and stored students to accept it.

FSU TO HOST

Officials announced that Florida State University will be host school each spring—every two years because the Leon's station is then in session, and next year is only the Florida judiciary in particular.

Supreme Court Justice Stephen O'Connell, concluding his term as FCCH president, held instead of the scheduled breakfast meeting Wednesday morning, a question at 6 p.m.

Panel discussions concerned job-getting relations between the Governor and Legislature during sessions, and the future of the two-party politics.

Betsy Jean and Democratic spokesmen joined in the last panel to predict the growth of a vigorous two-party competition.

Comet Roland To Be Visible In Science Observatory 'Scope

A visible-to-the-naked-eye comet, the Arend-Roland, will be viewed by telescope from the roof observatory of the Science Building Monday between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m., according to Norman Zuroff, president of the Astronomy Club.

The comet will be clearly visible and will be one of the brightest objects in the sky at this time, but by July it will have faded out of naked-eye sight, he said.

The Club will use powerful telescopes to bring out details of the comet's head, which is slightly fan-shaped and is 44,000 miles thick, five times the diameter of the earth.

Zuroff said during the last week in April and the entire month of May, it can be seen in the north west sky for about two hours after sunset.

The comet has been tracked at observatories in Australia, Belgium, China, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Finland, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Japan, the United States, and elsewhere.

In case of inclement weather at sunset Monday, the observation will be postponed to the same time Tuesday night.

Miss Tallahassee Pageant Combines Beauty With Talent

Florida State University co-eds with beauty and talent are being invited to participate in the Miss Tallahassee Pageant, which is being sponsored by the Tallahassee Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The pageant will be held on May 17 in the Leon County High School auditorium. Those interested may contact James Hardy at 208 Wesson before May 7. Each contestant must have a sponsor, but Hardy said it is possible to obtain a sponsor for any contestant who needs one.

Any talent may be displayed in the pageant, either amateur or professional, or the contestant may give a three minute talk on the career she wishes to pursue. She must be 18 by September 1 and never have been married.

Haskin Forms Band Of Clowns

Coach Jack Haskin has announced he is planning a circus "concert band" made up of a medley of clown musicians who will perform for the "Florida Hiah" home show May 2, 3, and 4.

Positions for snare drummers, trumpeters, trombone and bass and clarinet players are open.

Coach Haskin said he doesn't specifically need professional players and that the more untrained and deformed the instruments the better. Those wishing to audition for the clown band should report to the circus lot between 2 and 5 p.m. daily.

"ifs," "ands," and "buts" in the above thesis, including a higher economic incentive to attract more capable teachers to train with it. It still stretches things? Maybe. However, it is wise to keep in mind that the thesis does not sound so far-fetched if colleges and universities do not expand to effectively absorb the expected higher enrollments while still maintaining either their present levels of proficiency or even higher ones.

Of special campus-wide interest is a new Saturday night entertainment, Tallahassee Youth for Christ which is sponsored by the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship.

Singing, special music, prizes, and guest speakers will be scheduled every Saturday at 8 p.m. in a temporary location, Southside Baptist Church, a mile out South Monroe Street.

For the benefit of those who are in doubt about the purpose and activities of the Inter-Varsity, it is interdenominational and evangelical and was formed to provide Christian fellowship for college students in the U. S. and Canada.

It aids in spiritual development through prayer and directed study of the Bible. The group meets each day at noon in the Social Lounge of Longmire and on Sunday from 3 to 4 p.m. on the fourth floor of Longmire for a devotional period and fellowship, with Gary Letchworth or Mr. Commer leading the discussions.

to except that if they enroll in the School of Education as freshmen, an additional 2 semester hour course is required.

The remainder of my remarks relate primarily to The Flambeau editorial concerning "Reform of Education Requirements Deserves Careful Consideration." I particularly I would like to speak to the question of whether too much time is devoted to "teaching methods" courses. Many appear to be grossly misinformed on this point as it rela es to secondary teaching certificates. Florida's certification requirements, on which requirements at Florida State University are based, require only two teaching methods courses!

Furthermore, for students preparing to teach business education, home economics, journalism, music, and speech, one of these courses is taken in a department of the University other than the School of Education. While there are two other courses required for certification that must be taken in the School of Education, these are the methods courses.

These 9 or 12 semester hours ficia l 2 semester hour course for students enrolling in the School of Education as freshmen constitute the sum total of courses that a student preparing to be certified for teaching in secondary schools are required to take in the School of Education. This does not include credit for Intern teaching, which is not a course in the normal usage of the term, and the 3 semester hour educational psychology which is given in the College of Arts & Science, Department of Psychology.

Permit me then to ask how much is too much and what courses and other courses could be given in the School of Education without making it impossible for students now constituting the 9 to 12 semester hours cannot add another course or two to their program. If of the opinion that additional courses of a practical nature teachers would be called for, a few hours were eliminated. May I not also be pardoned in view of the alleged inadequacies of teaching preparation are the result of shortcomings in the curricula of approximately 100 semester hours in other courses, why should students take?

PROPOSES STUDENT EXPULSION

Legislature Halts Action On Anti-Riot Measure

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

A House of Representatives committee put off action Friday on a bill said by its sponsor to be aimed at expelling state university students who take part in pro-integration activities.

The Education and Higher Learning Committee also put aside a companion bill concerning teachers and employees of public schools and universities.

The bills introduced by Rep. ... McAlpin, of Hamilton County, were referred to a special sub-committee instructed to report back in a week.

They came under severe criticism, however, from members of the full committee during Friday's hearing.

CALLED CONSTITUTION

Said Rep. Sam Gibbons, of Hillsborough County, "Even a justice of the peace court would hold this unconstitutional."

The bill affecting students provides that any student who take part in demonstrations or riots promoting any violation of the laws of Florida" or who becomes a member of any organization whose aims and principles include a course of action that would involve a violation of state laws ... shall be immediately dismissed and permanently expelled as a student of the state institution he is attending."

TEACHERS

The teacher bill requires "immediate dismissal of any teacher, professor, or school or university employee "who is a member or becomes a member of any organization, whose principles, or activities, include a course of conduct on the part of the organization, or of any person or group which constitute violence, or a violation of the laws of the state, or would be inimical to the well-being and orderly pursuit of their personal and business activities by the majority of the citizens of the state.

McAlpin, defending his measures, called the student bill "a good bill."

'NEED SOMETHING'

"We certainly need something," he argued.

He said he intended it to expel students "if they promote" integration any way."

He said he didn't think many state university students would be affected but that it would apply to "the ones on the hill" and to "manager schoolteachers — and get half the ones in my county," he said.

By "the hill," McAlpin apparently meant Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University.

ALSO TO KKK

McAlpin conceded that it would

Magnolia Parking Crackdown Slated

Strict enforcement of the ban on overnight street parking will begin in front of Magnolia Hall beginning tomorrow, the Traffic Court has announced.

Parking is prohibited on campus streets between 1:30 and 6 a.m. in order to keep the streets open for the next day's traffic.

In the past this regulation has been in effect but has not been adequately enforced," the Court declared.

Parking is permitted on the street in back of Magnolia.

ARTS, SCIENCES SAID 'SOLUTION'

New Phi Beta Kappa initiates were told at a Friday dinner to look to a combination of the arts and sciences for a solution to man's problems.

The 14 were told that neither alone is enough as Dean of Men Sam Neel spoke following formal induction ceremonies in the Suwannee Room.

President Doak S. Campbell, also speaking to the recipients of the College of Arts and Sciences' highest honor, said the "Our tribute to scholarship can never be adequate.

"The world needs scholarship now as it never needed it before. I ask you to rededicate yourselves to scholarship."

Dr. Neel, introduced Dr. Victor R. B. Oelschlager, president of the Alpha of Florida Chapter, reviewed the potent influence of the Bible upon our culture from its writing and declared: "The penetration of the Bible on the thinking of the average man is on a wider scale than at any time since the Middle Ages."

NEEL

But he cautioned that the Bible is not a magic textbook, unopened ... not a fortune-telling book with which to predict events, and that it is not a textbook of science."

While the Bible needs science, he said, "science also needs the Bible. The Good Samaritan cannot be created by outside forces, no matter how scientific." The arts, or humanizing forces and the sciences are equally necessary he said.

Those inducted into membership and their field of study were Bertha C. Horton (sociology), Gary Nahrstedt (biology), Elton F. Henley (classics), Richard W. Ervin III (literature of western cultures), Maryo Walters (Spanish), Marie Marjenhoff (English), Gordon E. Speed (history), Norma Jean Tedder (social science and history), Helen L. White (psychology), Joan Grice (English), Louis Sica (physics), Judith A. Abrams (chemistry), Edna Runnells Duggan (political science), and Richard G. Pittman, Jr. (chemistry).

Honor Court Reports Action On Violations

By ETHEL CALHOUN

Honor Court action has been completed on the last of 17 honor violations reported recently in freshman history classes, according to Bill Manning, chief justice.

He said the offenders were predominantly freshmen and the violations occurred entirely in mass testing situations. These cases were among the first from the class to come before the court this year, he added.

At the beginning of this year, Manning and Student Body President Dave Bachman submitted a list of recommendations to Dean Coyle Moore and the Committee for General Education.

The recommendations, stressing the observance of honor principles in the classroom, included (1) all examination papers and homework should be pledged, with the student writing out the honor pledge in full (2) seats in mass tests should be numbered (3) if possible, the tests should not be given to large sections at one time and (4) new tests should be made up each year to avoid repetition of questions from year to year.

MORE ACTIVE

The court has been more active this year than ever before in its seven years of operation, having tried its fiftieth case of the year a few days ago, Manning said. The increased number of cases, he asserted, may mean more honor violations, or, more likely, students are being more conscientious about reporting incidents of cheating.

Under the new Honor Code amendment, the penalties are more flexible and are based upon reason and the needs of the individual, said the Chief Justice.

This year the court, in cases of repeated violation, has seen fit to recommend suspension of 11 individuals, all of which were upheld by the Faculty Review Committee.

STIFF PENALTIES

A criticism of the Honor Court which has been made by outsiders, maintains Manning, is that the court assigns stiff penalties for violations, but does little in the way of preventive measures.

The court has taken definite steps to strengthen the honor code this year, including Honor Emphasis Week, two orientation meetings for freshmen, and printed matter distributed to all freshmen giving pertinent honor code information, Manning declared.

Honor Court members will soon begin a program of talks before the mass sections of general education ... portance of adherence to honor code principles.

ARISTOTLE'S ETHICS LECTURE TOPIC

"The Fatal Weakness in the Argument of Aristotle's Nicomachean Ethics" will be the topic for the Philosophy Club's meeting Thursday at 6 p.m.

The speech will be presented by graduate student Joe Gould in Room 310 of the old demonstration school.

Circus Tickets Selling Fast

Tickets are going fast for "Flying High's" ninth annual home show Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Doak S. Campbell stadium.

A spokesman from the Western ticket office said that there are plenty of tickets for all three nights left, but most of the choice tickets are already gone.

Tickets are on sale for all three nights at 50 cents with ... coupon 11 to FSU students which will purchase reserved seats. Date tickets will also be 50 cents.

General admission will be 75 cents for adults, and 25 cents for children, with an additional charge of 25 cents for reserved seats.

The home show marks the end of the circus season, climaxing a series of road shows given in various towns and cities throughout Florida, Georgia and Alabama. Jacksonville, Tampa and Atlanta, Ga. were major cities it played this year.

A majority of the 200 students out for circus make one or more weekend road trips a season. The home show is the only time when all participate together, when all high rigging and stage equipment is used.

Only the home show commands a special circus band, directed by Charlie Carter, and made up of 35 top student musicians to improvise, and follow any slight change in an act. The band will play the "Flying High Overture," written at FSU for the circus. An innovation this year will be a clown band with 15 performers whose specialty is "novelty numbers."

Both on and off the program clowns galore will offer tomfoolery throughout the performance. Elsa Heckendorf will be the only coed among the men clowns. Her identification tag will be a single flower.

Greek Diggings To Be Discussed

Professor Oscar Broneer of the University of Chicago will give an illustrated lecture on recent excavations he directed in Greece tonight at 8:15 in the Library Lecture Hall.

On lecture tour for the Archaeological Institute of America, the visitor will address The Tallahassee Society of the organization. The public is invited to this lecture on "Isthmia, Corinthia, St. Paul."

Cheer Tryouts On Tap Today

Practice for cheerleading hopefuls begins at 4:30 this afternoon on Landis Green, according to Jim Julian, head cheerleader.

During the practice sessions which will be held daily through Friday at 4:30, all candidates will be taught three cheers. Those cheers will be judged at tryouts Saturday at 9 a.m. in the Music Amphitheater, Julian said.

Any student who will be on campus for a full year beginning next fall is eligible to try out.

Julian listed Boston, Philadelphia, Baton Rouge and Tampa, as destinations for tentative trips to be made by the cheerleading squad next year.

In case of rain tryouts will be held in the Women's Gym.

Campaign Estimate To Be In At 5 Today

Candidates for Class and court system elections should turn in expense estimates by 5 p.m. today according to Miss Mc-Cullough, secretary of elections. Names of the candidates will not be placed on the ballot if they fail to file on time, she said.

Allotted campaign expenses are: class presidents $30, senators $25, court members $20, and all others $15.

Campaigning begins today at 5 p.m. Any violation of regulations will result in disciplinary action. Only one poster is to be placed on each side of the bulletin board and posters must not exceed 12" x 18" in size, Miss McCullough said.

DEAN ISSUES STATEMENT

Stone Gives 'True Facts' In Education Controversy

In the interest of "clarification" of a public discussion of the question, Dean Mode L. Stone of the Florida State University School of Education said today that only one-fourth to one-fifth of an education student's work at FSU has to be in educational professional training.

The educator declared that in no case is more than 27 semester hours of work required in purely professional courses in education and psychology" out of 124 semester hours required for a Bachelor's degree. Of the 27 hours he said only six are purely methods courses.

Dr. Stone said in a statement that "since the certification and qualifications of public school teachers for Florida are so much under discussion at present, it ... to clarify first the true facts regarding certification and second the ways in which a student at FSU may become certified for teaching." Dr. Stone made no specific reference to the recent Florida Flambeau poll on present requirements.

Florida's certification system, which he called "one of the best in the nation," ... requires more training in two separate academic fields than in professional education, he said.

45 HOURS NEEDED

For certification of a prospective teacher the state, to begin with, requires completion of 45 semester hours of general preparation courses in five different fields — courses in English, languages, science, mathematics, social sciences and the like.

In addition, here are requirements for specialization. Here are two examples:

If a student wishes to prepare himself for elementary school teaching, he must under the state requirements do special work in art, music, physical education, health, children's literature, science and geography, Dr. Stone said.

To prepare to teach English in high school a student, he said, must have no less than 30 semester hours of course work in this field, including American and English literature, contemporary literature, composition and speech.

PROFESSIONAL COURSES

In addition to the general preparation and special preparation cited, Florida certification "requires that students undergo professional preparation amounting to 20 semester hours," he said. "This rests upon the belief that a teacher needs professional credit is not all to be earned from methods courses. Florida certification calls for courses in educational psychology, social foundations of education, curriculum, special methods and internship.

For a permanent teaching certificate a person must meet all requirements fully in the three categories of general, special and professional courses but a person with a Bachelor's degree may receive a one-year certificate—entitling him to the same pay as others—with a requirement that deficiencies be removed by taking six semester hours of work a year. This may be taken by correspondence, extension, evening or summer work.

DIFFERENCES NOTED

The 27 hours of professional education and psychology required of School of Education students at FSU differs from the 20-hour minimum in the state certification in these respects: the state requirement allows two hours credit for special methods, a course which at FSU is three hours, state requirements allow six hours of internship while FSU allows 10, and FSU has a two-hour course in orientation (guidance) required of School of Education students preparing to teach but not of prospective teachers who are not enrolled in the school.

Dr. Stone summarized these facts about the teacher-preparation program at FSU:

"(1) Students may enroll in any division of the University and earn the credentials for teacher certification. It is not required that they enroll in the School of Education although a substantial number of them do so.

"(2) To obtain a Bachelor's degree of any kind from Florida State University, with or without the credentials for certification as a teacher, a student is required to complete 41 semester

Peters Picked PES Prexy

Melvin Peters has been elected president of Phi Eta Sigma freshman men's honor society at Florida State University.

Other officers announced by Associate Dean of Men James Carr Jr., faculty adviser, are Stanley DeHart, vice-president; William Lindsey, recording secretary; James Shiver, corresponding secretary; Donald Clark, treasurer, and Granville Larimore, historian.

Temple Wins Balfour Award

Robert M. Temple Jr., president of Sigma Chi fraternity at Florida State University, has been given the Balfour award for the fraternity's Florida province.

The award, made in all 24 United States and Canadian fraternity provinces, is based on service to one's university, service to the fraternity; scholarship and personality.

Temple will be in competition for the national Balfour award.

He has been vice-president of the Inter-Fraternity Council and coordinated its "Greek Week" this month, has held several chapter offices, and served Student Government as Student Senate chaplain, Sophomore class senator, junior class president and senior class senator. He was a member of the Homecoming Parade Committee for two years, and has been in "Flying High," the student circus.

Recital Variety Begins Tonight

The Florida State University School of Music has announced a variety of music recitals for tonight, Friday and Saturday.

The public is invited to all four of the recitals all scheduled to begin at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. There will be a graduate recital, a faculty recital and a certificate recital.

Larry Simmons will give a piano recital tonight. He is a master's candidate studying under Edward Kilenyi.

He will play Mozart's Sonata in F major K. 332 (three movements), Beethoven's Sonata in A-flat major Op. 110 (three movements), four short Chopin selections and Prokofiev's Sonata No. 7 Op. 83 (three movements).

POUND TO PLAY

Gomer Pound, instructor in woodwinds, will give a clarinet recital May 3 with Dr. John Boda, also of the music faculty, his piano accompanist.

Pound's program will consist of selections from Mozart's Concerto in A Major, Weber's Second Concerto in E flat Major, Brahms' Sonata in E flat Major, Widor's Introduction et Rondo, Jeanjean's Scherzo Brillante and Coquard's Melodie et Scherzetto.

PECKS COMBINE

Saturday night a husband and wife student team, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Peck, will combine forces in giving a voice recital. He is a student of Miss Betty Jane Grimm while Mrs. Peck is in the studio of Walter James.

The Pecks will be assisted in presenting their program by two other students, Dixon Redditt on the clarinet, and William Alton as piano accompanist.

The program will include a number of sacred and popular songs by such composers as Handel, Schumann, Ravel, Bach, Schubert, Verdi, Bizet, Vita Carneval, and Edward Harris.

Edward Thaden gave a piano recital last night. He is a doctoral candidate studying under Ernst von Dohnanyi.

Junior English Exam By-Pass Allowed With 'B' In Course

Sophomores who made a grade of "B" or better in English 102 will be exempt from taking the Junior English Examination provided they make the proper arrangements.

Miss Martha G. Chapman, director of Junior English, said those who fill out the form appearing with this article will be excused. Therefore all Juniors have been required to take the examination.

Claim for exemption should be filed by May 10 at the Junior English Office, Room 425 History Building, Miss Chapman said.

The Junior English Examination is scheduled for May 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17 from 4 to 5:30 p.m. in Room 202 Graduate School Building, the old library. Miss Chapman said that each student supposed to take the exam should pick up his appointment card at the Registrar's Office, 102A Westcott Building prior to May 10.

"No student will be admitted to the examination without his appointment card," Miss Chapman said.

Students expected to take the examination are (1) sophomores who will be juniors next semester (2) transfers of the spring semester, and (3) all juniors and seniors who have not already taken it.

Miss Chapman added that failure to take the examination at the designated time involves a $5 delinquent fee.

FORM FOR CLAIMING EXEMPTION FROM JUNIOR ENGLISH EXAMINATION TO BE FILED IN JUNIOR ENGLISH OFFICE 425 HISTORY BUILDING BEFORE MAY 10, 1957

I wish to file claim for exemption from the Junior English examination on the basis of my English 102 grade.

I took English 102 at F.S.U.

Museum Shows 'Atoms For Peace'

MAN FROM MARS MAKES APPEARANCE AT UNIVERSITY
Dummy Dressed In Plastic Balloon Suit Part Of Exhibit

The University Museum has on the campus this week one of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission's newest traveling exhibits, "Atoms for Peace."

Dr. Hale G. Smith, professor of archaeology and museum director, said the big exhibit, covering 7,000 square feet of floor space in the Suwanee Room, will be on view through Sunday.

On week-days, he said, the exhibit will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and it will be open to groups at night if special requests are made to him.

Dr. Smith said the exhibit was prepared by the Commission in its program to bring the latest developments in nuclear energy to the attention of the general public. There are more than 80 panel displays, several of them animated.

In addition there are several displays showing developments in nuclear-energy technology: a 16-foot model of a nuclear power plant for production of electricity, a "balloon suit" born by personnel in areas of radioactive contamination; and a pair of mechanical "hands" which enable researchers to manipulate radioactive materials easily from the outside of heavily shielded cells.

The exhibit, which opened Sunday, is operated for the AEFC the American Museum of Atomic Energy at Oak Ridge.

Collegiate Party Slates Reception

The Collegiate Party is holding a "meet-the-candidates" reception in Longmire Lounge Thursday afternoon beginning at 4 p.m.

"We are holding this reception with the hopes of better acquainting the students with the Collegiate Party candidates so that they will be better qualified to cast a responsible ballot next week," Gerry Gordon, party chairman said.

"I believe the party has top notch candidates who are qualified to do well the jobs they are seeking," he added.

POPE TO SPEAK

Senator Verle Pope of St. Augustine will speak tomorrow night at an open meeting sponsored by the American Society of Public Administrators. The meeting will begin at 7:30 in the Student Lounge, Longmire. His subject will be "Problems of the 1957 Florida Legislature."

Weaver Announces Chairmen For Prom

Bill Weaver, president of the Junior Class, this week announced the following chairmen for the Junior-Senior Prom to be held May 18 in the Men's Gym.

Joan Harmon, tickets and invitations; Phyllis Shaddick, refreshments; Allison Templeman, pictures; Kate Ramsey, King and Queen contest; Gay Hicks, chaperones; Dick Crawford, room decorations; JoAnn Smith, band decorations; Martha Trice, foyer decorations; Charlet Poitevint and Priscilla Moss, publicity, and Bill Roche, physical set up.

BARD EXHIBIT SHOWN IN LIBRARY

An exhibit entitled "Shakespeare and His Age" will remain on display in the foyer of the Library until Friday, according to Miss Carmen Rogers of the English dept.

A companion exhibit will remain on display until May 30 in the Humanities section, she said.

Students To Mix Fun With Studies This Week As Annual 'Flying High' Shows Begin

When the FSU circus "comes to town" day after tomorrow, Florida's Legislators will witness what is almost a unique student activity.

As special guests of "Flying High", they will watch students perform all the displays of skill, antics and stunts of the professional circus. We know they will enjoy the show, as have audiences who have turned out by the thousands for past presentations.

As an institution set up purely for its participants' pleasure and its spectators' entertainment, the university circus has little function of an academic nature. This was noted several years ago by Mr. Robert M. Hutchins, director of the Ford Foundation, who blasted this school for giving college credits for "being a clown" (it was probably the only time Mr. Hutchins has ever recognized the existence of FSU.)

Whether credit is due "Flying High" for getting FSU "recognized" by such a well known educational figure is a topic for debate, but we feel that the circus offers no threat to academic standards. Today's universities cannot treat the student as disenchanted from activities of other members of society—in other words, as one who should spend ALL of his time reading, writing or doing 'mathmetic.

We believe the legislators who see the show Thursday will recognize the role of that activity in the university. Behind the gilded gaiety, the greasepaint and clown masks, the student performers will have full awareness of why they are here. But they want to mix a little fun with their studies.

'Blackjack' Bills In Florida Statehouse Offer Threat To Citizens' Freedom Of Speech

A pair of bills in the Florida House of Representatives constitute one of the greatest threats to freedom of speech has ever been proposed in this state.

Though they are constructed in broad and amoiguous language (see story, page one), they would nonetheless require the expulsion of any state university student and the dismissal of any faculty teacher, university professor, or employee who advocated integration or belonged to any group that did.

It would be a dangerous thing to place in the hands of any person such broad power, particularly in these troubled times. Blackjack methods always do more harm than good.

For instance, a "demonstration or riot" could mean, to some, an organized refusal to patronize buses because of segregation.

"Whose aims and principles include a course of action that would involve a violation of state laws. . . ." is a clause that ignores the manifest unconstitutionality of the state laws relating to segregat on.

It is in every way inimical to the nature of democracy that a person be called to account for his "principles."

Thus, the House Committee on Education and Higher Learning is to be congratulated for the disfavor its members snowed to the bills in question.

A motion to send a bill to sub-committee is at its weakest a delaying action, and at its strongest an effective means of diplomatically disposing of bad legislation. Such a motion was passed on the bills without dissent.

We agree thoroughly with Rep. Sam Gibbons of Hillsborough County in his description of the bills as something "even a justice of the peace court would hold unconstitutional."

We do not expect the question of segregat on to be solved easily; but it is vital that the people of Florida be left free to express their views, whatever they may be, in a manner worthy of a democracy.

Of All Things

Students Develop New 'Techniques'

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Students have no doubt noticed that there's wasting their time about enough to flip a coin about whether they've been around a number of years they will have acquired an art that some professors would give their eyeteeth for.

For no matter what their major, students seem to pick up certain techniques during their studies that can be carried perfectly into other fields.

WE REFER to the acquired methods of answering direct questions—or, rather, methods of evading them. It seems that after a couple of years college students learn how not to answer their instructor thus betraying their ignorance but how to get out of answering.

There is, of course, the old story about how students in the various years classify a question fired by an instructor.

Freshman—"I don't know."

SOPHOMORE—"I am not prepared to answer."

Junior—"I don't recall that part of the lesson."

Senior—I don't believe I can add anything to what has already been said."

To this should be added the honors student's answer. A very significant question. It definitely points up a point. I do not know every thing that was covered in individual points before we first were questioned situation." This reply works even if you didn't hey the question on.

THE EVASIVE TYPE is a technique which at least one counselor tells his students is the best way to avoid a question. When the instructor asks you the answer to your question, don't answer. Simply reply with the answer to one you do know.

This usually arouses a puzzled expression on the instructor's part, but he asks, "Perhaps you did not understand the question." Don't answer that one, either. There is at least a chance you will be able to answer it.

SUCH A procedure gives its success to the fact that most professors are more than anxious to help a student. It makes sense to be making an obviously correct attempt to answer a question. For the same reason asking for the author of the comic behind a book, or if there is one, his address—however, this may may think it gets you out of questioning range.

Another bad book to use is that of asking for an answering on the grounds of the Fifth Amendment, conscientious objector, violation of your rights standards, etc. The professor is likely to be more impressed than confused.

EQUALLY objectionable is the emergency scrammer—disabling a typewriter so that you cannot take a seat. One famed "Little Man" on campus does this when he's in a hurry minute ensuring the LMOC's writing hand with a 20-pound sledge.

This will take care of the written part; his roommate says, "Hell, if he gives you an oral exam."

All in all, however students seem to have devised very effective evasive tactics. If they ever run for office, they have a good head start.

Impeach Student Gov't Officials

TO THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT:

I quote from the Constitution Article XII.

"Amendments to the Constitution may be proposed by two-thirds vote of the Student Senate or by petition of three hundred members of the Student Body, and shall become part of the Constitution upon ratification by a majority of the votes cast in a special election during the regular session . . . ." Quote me.

NOW A question—What is a special election? Certainly not the Student Senate election. The new amendment to the Constitution I propose is not binding, since the method of its ratification was not Constitutional. The Election Committee made up only the Student Body would be made to actually know the proposed amendments and be allowed to vote for ratification, not just to vote on something that was published in the Flambeau and the regular ballot. I think the supreme Court should be asked to see what jurisdiction these leaders are acting under, when they violate their own code set up under the Constitution for amending the Constitution. If this is not provided enough to by pass the Constitutional law and are under their own auspices to make sure that circumvent the Constitution that they swear to uphold? There is no excuse to be offered for this flagrant violation. I also propose our suave members of the executive branch should be held liable for punishment of the in violation of the Honor Code, since they, of course, not above any respect in this issue as to the binding of the Honor Code. We reserve the right to criticize the food.

Editor's Note: Mr. Kelly evidently refers to the amendment passed in the last Student Body Election allowing the Honor Court to exercise discretion in punishing convicted students. However, under the amendment, the court may vary the punishment according to its judgment of the seriousness of each case.

Collins Can Help Preserve Freedom

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

It was made a basic law of our country in 1791 that government would not concern itself with religion, but the battle for freedom of conscience is still being fought.

And it is a one-sided battle. The government state of Massachusetts is asking the religious freedom of one little family.

But perhaps the State of Florida can turn the odds back in the right direction.

On MAY 23 Governor Collins will hold a hearing to determine whether Mr. and Mrs. Marion Ellis, now of Miami, should be extradited to Massachusetts to face charges of kidnapping.

They are accused of confining and kidnaping against her will a six year old girl to whom the Ellises are mother and father.

IT DIDN'T matter that Massachusetts had already placed little Hildy McCoy with the Ellises for adoption and that the parents and child had come to love one another.

The Ellises are Jewish. Hildy is the daughter of an unwed Catholic mother. And Massachusetts law requires that a child be placed for adoption only with parents of a faith similar to that of the natural parents.

NOW AS we understand it, the Ellises already had the child when the mother discovered the would-be foster parents were not Catholic and brought action to take the child from them.

She didn't want the child for herself, to give the kind of affection and care the Ellises, by their struggle to save her, evidenced. She just wanted to place Hildy with a Catholic family.

IF THIS is religion not much can be said for it. And if the State of Massachusetts will grant the status of law to such callous hypocrisy not much can be said for Massachusetts.

After failing in their efforts to keep Hildy the Ellises fled, arriving finally in Florida. Then Massachusetts moved to extradite.

NOW HERE is where Florida can step into the fight for religious freedom, and on the right side.

Normally a governor automatically facilitates extradition, but there is a precedent whereby he need not always do so. Governors have refused to send persons to trials that would obviously be unfair, or to punishment that would obviously be cruel.

THE MASSACHUSETTS law, reduced to its essence and applied to this case, means that Hildy McCoy can only be the legal daughter of Catholics.

Religion of the parents usually determines the religion of the child.

Thus Hildy is denied freedom of conscience, and the Ellises, because they are Jewish, are taken from the daughter they had planned to adopt.

SELDOM HAS the United States witnessed such an example of medieval persecution and wanton cruelty nor has its constitution ever been placed more in jeopardy.

The people of Florida will applaud Governor Collins if he refuses to aid Massachusetts in its 19th-century revival of the abnormality that claimed lives in Salem 300 years ago.

Better Food Available For More $

TO THE EDITOR:

Any time a student wishes to pay the same price for the meal, I will assure you that Morrison's food will be much good as to serve them the very same meal. Also there are only two people at the banquet and not "about 500." At supper the same goes in the cafeteria; there was 67. The price for the meal you had was $2. As I have said before, any time a student desires to pay more for the meal, I assure you that Morrison's will be more than glad to serve them the very same meal. In fact I'll serve them that one meal FREE of charge. Sounds like a good head start.

Yours very truly,
FRED BURKHART

Editor's Note: The letter was sent in with a clipping of an editorial in the previous Flambeau which praised a meal prepared by Morrison's for a special event.

Actually, we don't intend to speak unfairly of Morrison's. But at customers (and we here refer mainly to our patronization of the Seminole Club) we reserve the right to criticize the food.

Staples Concert Draws Big Crowd

By DAVID WARD-STEINMAN

The graduate recital of James Staples, pianist, last week drew one of the largest audiences for a graduate recital and justifiably so. It was an evening of very finely-wrought craftsman-like piano playing, with no seeming technical difficulties.

The program was an intellectual one, and showed a new dimension in Staples' creative as a pianist. There was a pointed avoidance of the big, romantic pieces that Staples has always played best and most excitingly, and instead, a gratifying emphasis on the more venerable classics.

THE PROGRAM opened with Haydn's Sonata No. 59 in E minor—a seldom-played work that we enjoyed hearing. The playing was very clean and meticulous, especially in the brilliant last movement. This was followed by Beethoven's Sonata in E flat major, Op. 81a "Les Adieux of Berthoven was the best ing work on the program. The playing was meticulous, with a fine sense of the right pace and everything very carefully calculated but this time we missed that spark of life and spirit that has made Staples' playing in the past such a delight as the Liszt B minor Sonata and the Ravel Gaspard to example.

REAL MUSICAL excitement didn't come until the Barber Sonata of Doors Suite, which followed the Beethoven. This piece with its fiendish demands, rhythmical textures and fanta-stic technical problems was probably the most interesting piece in Staples, who did his best playing of the evening here. Indeed, one have seldom heard him play better.

The program closed surprisingly with two Chopin pieces, the Nocturne in F sharp Major and the Polonaise in F sharp minor, which were dunk poop for Staples. His talent is unquestionably a big one.

Pre-'Methods' Courses Waste Students' Time

TO THE EDITOR:

Some readers of the Flambeau seem to forget a few times concerning the controversy over basic education courses.

1- The majority of opinion is not directed at the "methods" courses, but instead those courses which are pre-requisites to the methods courses. Most people will agree that courses equivalents at FSU to Education 105, 205, and 305 are the ones in which they find the waste of time.

2- Following, the opinion is that the above - mentioned courses should be replaced in their certification requirements by a higher total requirement in the broad field in which certification is desired. In other words the broad field requirements should be raised by 9 credit hours while professional education requirements should be dropped by 9 hours. The opinion is that the present minimum requirements in the broad fields are too low and should be raised, but at the expense of the professional education courses which are considered as superfluous to teacher education.

3- Though teacher certification in secondary schools may require only 20 hours credit, FSU requires enough pre-requisites to set those essential courses that will require a total of 25 hours credit in professional education (not counting edited English) for graduation. In order to obtain the minimum requirements for that particular remuneration. Assuming that we can't have a program like that pointed to above. Why can't the FSU trim away those 5 hours to allow the student to concentrate more on content material which he will teach?

4- Research studies of the form or inadequacy of the Flambeau's letters to the editor writers, objectivity, the substance and function of that poll were applicable to the purpose was always and it was assumed that the respondents, and the Editor, because they are Jewish, are taken from the daughter they had planned to adopt.

SELDOM HAS the United States witnessed such an example of medieval persecution and wanton cruelty nor has its constitution ever been placed more in jeopardy.

The people of Florida will applaud Governor Collins if he refuses to aid Massachusetts in its 19th-century revival of the abnormality that claimed lives in Salem 300 years ago.

Tribe Nine Clashes With Miami

ACE FOR SHUMAN. Senior Bob Shuman of Atlanta Saturday registered the first hole-in-one of the season for the Tribe golfers, going the 145-yard 11th hole on the match with Rollins. Shuman had a 71 for the day, Semin...es won 20-7.

Softball Playoffs Set; Season Ends Today

The Intramural softball season, for regular league play, ends up today with the playoffs scheduled to begin tomorrow afternoon at 4 p.m.

ATO crammed out an 11-1 win best 11-10 by the Perchologs over Delts, 100, and mile relay Conley will run the mile and two mile and possibly in the mile relay.

TWO APIECE

Davis and Conley each won two events a week ago Saturday as the Seminoles bested Georgia and Georgia Tech with 77 points. With three track records dropping during the afternoon.

Tribe half-miler Ken Segner set a record for the second straight time in the event with a time of 1:57.6, while Hal Berman of Tech and Bill Dunkerly of Georgia set standards in the shot put and javelin respectively.

The Seminoles race as heavy favorites over Miami, on the basis of a 87-48 loss to Florida, which swamped Miami 87-41. Over the years the Seminoles are 3-4 with Miami in track.

The Seminole basketballers this season have kept up their tradition of never having a losing season. The closest the Tribe came to losing campaign was in 1944 when they posted a 9-8 mark. Under Dewey Lavelette they won 11 and lost 11 prior to this year.

Track Team Meets 'Canes As Slate Ends

'Magic City' Site Of Florida AAU

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Florida State track-sters wind up their track season this week with a dual meet against Miami Thursday and the Florida AAUs in Miami on Saturday.

The Hurricanes beaten 92½-38½ by the Seminoles last year will be looking for their second victory of the season.

The 'Canes have met, and lost to, Georgia Tech and Florida while posting a win in a triangular meet against Mississippi Southern and Amherst College.

BENNETT BEST

Bill Bennett, captain of the Miami team is expected to acre-head the Hurricane attack. In one year the big man has four individual events and was a member of a winning relay team.

The Florida South of Miami's school records in the hurdle events Other Miami hopefuls are Karl Ellis in the dashes, and Don Lichtenstein in the shot put and discus.

The Tribe will be paced by stalwarts Mike Conley, Jack Trewitt, Jerry Davis, Ken Segner who will be out to regain his form, competing in the 100, 220, 440, and the mile relay.

Davis will enter the broad jump

Linksters Seek Southern Title

The Seminole golfers close out their dual season against the University of Florida tomorrow at Athens, Ga., prior to seeking the Southern Intercollegiate crown there beginning Thursday.

The Florida match is a replay of the one scheduled for April 1 in Gainesville, which was rained out. The Gators downed the golfers 14½-12½ here March 9.

Coach Don Veller's linksters gained a measure of revenge over Florida in the Florida Intercollegiate, though, beating the Gators by 24 strokes to take their second straight state title.

Saturday afternoon here, the Seminoles swamped Rollins 20-7 for their seventh dual victory of the season against the one loss to Florida.

HOLE IN ONE

Senior Bob Shuman of Atlanta registered the team's first hole-in-one of the year in the Rollins match, acing the 145-yard 11th hole.

Senior captain Ed Jenkins of Jacksonville was low man for the match with a 68. Shuman had a 71 for the day's efforts.

Jenkins Shuman, Bunk Berry, Jack Vrahe, Harry Shoemaker and Bob Shave will make the trip to Athens. Any or all of them could be a threat for the individual Southern Intercollegiate title.

Shave finished fourth in the tourney's individual standings last year The Seminoles are also a strong threat for the team title.

Florida State's linksters have broken two school records this season, with Ken Segner setting a new standard in the half mile and Warren Strickland and Dick Elwood clearing 12'2" for a new pole vault record.

CARLEE HENDRIX, captain and second sacker for the Tribe baseballers slugged his fourth home run Saturday on the 10-2 win over Florida Southern.

Win 8 Out Of 9; Rollins Final Foe

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

The Florida State Seminoles, winners in eight of their last nine games, close their season this week by playing Miami today and Rollins Wednesday and Thursday.

These games will also mark the end of the road for the Tribe as a team as Apr. 19. The Seminoles meet Miami last night in Miami.

Going for FSU on the mound today will be Frank Shaver, Jerry Baker, 12 - 0 pitch against Rollins Wednesday and Jack Brasfield will pitch against the Tars in the season's finale.

LAST GAME

Playing their last regular season game for the Seminoles will be seniors Boxer Carlee Hendrix Lee Corse and Fred Twomey.

Coach Danny Litchfield expects Rollins to be one of the toughest teams the Tribe has played this season. Rollins is one of those school's where baseball is the major sport, said Litchfield.

In fact the fans that set a basketball scholarship to Rollins must also be able to play on the baseball team, so they usually have the cream of the crop.

Al Fantuzzi and Bob Johnson are the power men for the Tars. Jack Price, a 6-foot and 180-pounder are the leading pitchers for Rollins and is probably the one who will see action against the Tribe.

The Seminoles won their 16th game of the season last Saturday as Bristol allowed Florida Southern only three hits and two runs. The Tribe in the meantime rapped out 15 hits and collected 10 runs.

Hendrix hit an eighth inning inside the park homer which scored three runs and provided that extra push for the victory.

BOXER WINS

Friday evening Boxer pitching his last ball under the Lafata, shutout the Moccasins as the Tribe won, 4-0 Florida Southern got only three hits and the Seminoles garnered seven.

The Mocs made seven errors which aided their defeat. In fact two of FSU's runs scored on errors. The loss of the two same series left Florida Southern with a 7-4 record while Florida State left Lakeland with a 5-3 mark.

However, some run in the Florida circuit was the fourth of the season for the Seminoles captain. He has an outside chance of tying the all-time mark of 38 in a season set by Fred Twomey in 1955.

The home was also the Tribe's 19th record clout of the year, eclipsing the former record of 12 set by the first in 1951 and 1954.

Netters Split Four On Road, Finish Season With 6-11 Mark

Florida State University's tennis team closed out its 1957 season by splitting their final four games and finishing with an overall 6-11 mark.

The four match road trip through Georgia saw the Tribe win easily over Mercer 5-3, then drop two straight to Georgia and Georgia Tech by the identical scores of 7-2.

Coach Keith Pitchford's netters ended their season on a happy note by dumping Emory 7-2.

GAIN EXPERIENCE

It marked the first time in six years that a Florida State tennis team had finished with a losing season.

However, "we did gain a lot of experience this year," said Pitchford. "Next year I expect to play the kind of competition that we do and come out on top with practically an all sophomore team" he said

The Seminoles will lose only one man from this year's varsity, senior Sonny Bolles.

Four top netters next season are number one man Les Hester, Fred Sorrell, Frank Bryan, Jim Maddock, Dave Teidt and Bill Malmin.

Gymnasts Leave

Fifteen Florida State gymnasts and Coach Hartley Price leave tomorrow for Chicago to compete in the NAAU. The finals will be held on Soldier Field.

In last year's competition at Penn State, the Tribe finished second. The Seminole's Chuck Cain will put his free exercise crown, which he gathered in last year, on the line

Price is entering five men in the all-around. They include Jack Miles, Don Holder, Chris Raford, Leonard and freshman Larry Cannon.

The netters should also be strengthened by some of this year's crop of youth headed by southpaw Howard Levy, Butch Selling and Pete Funt.

Back To Ancient Times

Hale Smith Pens Tallahassee History

Dr. Hale Smith, head of the Anthropology department at Florida State University, has compiled and edited a history of Tallahassee dating back to pre-historic times.

"We know more about the prehistoric culture of Tallahassee than we know of the Indians in Bahiania who lived here just a little more than two hundred years ago," reported Dr. Smith. "For some reason it was difficult to secure funds on the later history of this city."

The booklet entitled Tallahassee is divided into six parts. Beginning 10,000 years ago with the pre historic culture, and continuing with the first Spanish inhabitants the British, the second Spanish colony, the Americans, and special points of interest at the present.

In the booklet Dr. Smith discusses the culture of the Semenole Indians who came here in 1725. Other Indians were here before the Seminoles. The Fort Walton culture for example, was driven out in 1704 by the British. Dr. Smith specializes in the study of Caribbean Indians.

Almost six years were spent in gathering information for the booklet, which took about six months to write, and is the first on its type.

Senate To Consider Budge Of $80,000 For Activities

By BOB WOLFENBARGER

A severely trimmed budget of $80,06 0, approved by the Student-Faculty Budget Committee, goes into Student Senate tomorrow.

The 1957 budget, $2,000 more than the 1956 total, may come in for more slashes in Wednesday's meeting, sensational leaders anticipate.

Three of the main items in the budget, appropriations for the Flambeau, Tally Ho, and the Smoke Signals, may come in for some cuts, they said.

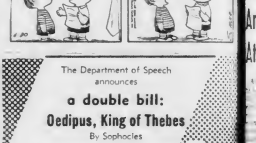
Secretary of Finance Evelyn Moll hopes to introduce the budget either tomorrow or the next Wednesday.

The Flambeau and the Tally Ho were proposed for substantial increases while the Smoke Signals was cut. According to the proposed budget, the Flambeau may get $20,155 compared to $16,394 in 1956 and the Tally Ho $25,570 as compared to $23,910 given last year. The Smoke Signals was allied to $5,095 from $5,225 granted last year.

Only one new item appears in the budget this year—$275 for the International Student's Club.

Although it is customary for the budget to add through Senate if passed by the Student-Faculty Budget Committee there may be minor changes, said Vice President Jim Soles.

Proposed allocations for various classes, organizations and student activities besides the publications are:



Class of 1958, $500; Class of 1959, $600, Class of 1960, $600; and the Class of 1961, $500. Collegians, $1510, Cheerleaders, $845; forensics, $2040, Choral Union, $500; men's intramurals, $1200; Symphonic Orchestra, $600

Student Government, $4,485; travel budget $2500, University Singers, $800; Theater dance $600, Women's Glee Club $8 Graduate Class $210 women intramurals, $1191 Tarpon $1060; University Recreation association $1085, spring festival $1000, Artist Series $ Speaker's Bureau $1000 and fall university picnic, $1800.

The balance will go to student budget reserve for emergency appropriations.

Speech Department Slates First Double-Bill Production

Oedipus, King of Thebes by Sophocles and Anatole France's The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife will share Florida State University's first double-bill speech department production next week.

"An exciting evening of theatre" has been predicted concerning the plans of Dr. Lynn E. Orr who in directing has watched FSU actors create both comedy and tragedy in difficult characterizations.

Performances will be given on May 6, 7, 8, and 9 in the Conrad Theatre with curtain time at 8:15 p.m. The box office opens tomorrow in Westcott for the purchase of student tickets for 40 cents and an activity stub

The cast and crew for the plays returned Sunday from Sarasota, where they presented Oedipus and The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife as part of the Art Seminar in conjunction with the Ringling Museum and Art Department. The plays received excellent reviews in the Sarasota Herald-Tribune.

CHAMBERS OUT

Barbara Chambers, an integral member of the cast, had an unprecedentedly just before leaving for Sarasota, but Betty Caldwell served as a capable understudy, and will do the part when the curtain goes up on Monday.

Dr. Orr stressed the difficulty of the male actors during Greek tragedy and Prince comedy in a double-bill of this kind. Each play has attempted to catch the spirit of its era in acting costumes and setting. The Greek period has been suggested by a stage setting of Ionic columns and steps leading downstage. Charles I. Reimer has directed scenery and lighting

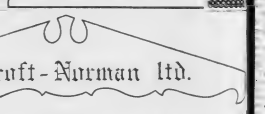
Sheline, Jordan Given Awards

Two members of the faculty have been granted Guggenheim Fellowship Awards for 1957, it was announced today.

The awards will go to Dr. Weymouth T. Jordan, professor of botany, for a study of aeronautic agriculture in the Old South, and to Dr. Raymond K. Sheline, associate professor of chemistry, for studies in nuclear chemistry and in applications of nuclear spectroscopy.

The awards to the FSU professors, among 344 made over the nation, were the only ones announced for Florida.



Dr. Sheline's award is for a continuation of research he has been doing at Cornell, where he received his doctorate of Nieta Behr, the scientist also did first developed the model of the atom which has revolutionized the fields of chemistry and physics

He received both a Fulbright and a Guggenheim award for a year's study there but Professor Behr, director of the Institute for Theoretical Physics, asked him to remain for an additional year in order to finish the Nuclear Chemistry His Guggenheim fellowship is for the additional period

Dr. Jordan's grant is for an extensive study of the world's beginnings in the summer. He will return to his duties as professor and head of the History Department during the 1957 spring semester. Dr. Earl R. Beck will be acting head in his absence.

Dr. Jordan already has accumulated microfilms and other records of many of the source materials for his study, which will be undertaken here with occasional trips to Montgomery, Ala., and other archives apply in his opinion, also to certain administrative committees, such as the Ku Klux Klan.

Although expressing agreement with McAlpin's position to investigation committee members opened fire on the bills introduced.

One referred to broad language and asked McAlpin if it wouldn't provoke litigation in the federal courts.

NO DEFENSE

Rep. William C. Grimes, of Monroe County, objected that the bills would give no student room or teacher a chance to defend himself.

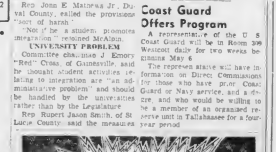
Rep. John E. Mathews, Jr., Duval Democrat, called the provisions "sort of harsh."

Not if he a student, promotes integration," retorted McAlpin.

UNIVERSITY PROBLEM

Committee chairman J. Emory "Red" Cross, of Gainesville, said he thought student activities relating to integration are "an administrative problem" and should be handled by the universities rather than by the Legislature.

Rep. Robert Jason Smith, of St Lucie County, said the measure would be "a limitation of freedom of speech



SUB-COMMITTEE

Rep. J. C. Geiger "Buck of Pinellas County, moved to send the bill to a sub-committee, and the motion passed without opposition.

Appointed to the committee were representatives Grimes, George L. Hollahan Jr., of Dade County, and Mathews, with the latter as chairman.

The referral could be a means of delaying action indefinitely or of killing the bill itself.

As McAlpin left the committee room, he remarked, "Thank you gentlemen, put it to sleep."

Flambo Rated All-American

Wins College Journalism's Top Award For Fall Issues

The Fall semester Florida Flambeau has been named All-American, it was learned this week.

Results in the Associated Collegiate Press' twice-annual rating listed the Flambeau as receiving college journalism's highest honor. The paper was also received in the Fall semester last year for the first time since 1932.

Flambeaux were entered last Spring semester.

Editor Oscar Johnson said "We definitely points up a trend cannot recognize but such a in collegiate journalism. I do no however, feel that we should discuss individual items but rather from a new the overall publication."

Managing Editor Martin Dyckman said, "A very significant honor is the controversial "Dissenter", declared "For mee, I agree."

NEWSPAPER JUDGE

Judging was done by Gareth D Hiatt, columnist and former editor, editorial director of St. Paul Pioneer Press, front-page makeup, number and two- and three-times-weekly papers and the larger weekly papers.

Hiebert gave a superior rating to news coverage, balance between editorial photography, and excellent headlines to news balance news style. Lead paragraphs, features, editorials columns, sports cover-age, front-page makeup, number and two- and three-times-weekly papers and the larger weekly papers.

Hiebert gave a superior rating to news coverage, balance between editorial photography, and excellent headlines to news balance news style. Lead paragraphs, features, editorials columns, sports cover-age, front-page makeup, number and two- and three-times-weekly papers and the larger weekly papers.

Commenting on news coverage he said: "I want to commend you for some outstanding front-page news – background stories – and for the fine writing [illegible] such an enthusiastic staff situation."

HUMAN INTEREST

He said of the Flambeau's use of "specially effective job" in the handling of human interest stories, personal experiences and faculty [illegible].

Flambeau columnist Martin Dyckman came in for high praise from Hiebert, who said, "The Dissenter" has merit. It's the kind of backstreet column I like in any newspaper."

He said use of picture display on inside pages was excellent, adding that "It is a rare thing to find so many good examples of turns in a college newspaper – pictures used large enough to be seen."

Senate Passes $80,000 Budget

The $80,060 student budget was approved quickly in Student Senate Wednesday afternoon.

Meeting for the first time in three weeks, the Senate adopted the record student spending appropriation after only 15 minutes discussion.

All budget items were accepted as proposed by Secretary of Finance Evelyn Moll. Only one attempt was made from the floor to change the budget. Senator Dick Crawford moved that $275 be taken from an emergency fund to pay the secretaries of elections and finance, but it failed to pass on a voice vote.

A PET OFF

The Senate pondered speech on a resolution to join the National Student Association after hearing charges it was pro-Communist and pro-integration.

Budgeted were the following amounts:

Florida Flambeau, $20,195; Tally-Ho, $23,570, Smoke Signals, $3,960, International Club $275, Class of 1958, $300 Class of 1959, $600, Class of 1960, $600, Class of 1961, $900, Collegians, $1,510, Cheerleaders $843.

Forensics, $2,040, Choral Union, $500, men's intramurals, $1,200, University Symphony, $600.

STUDENT OFFICERS

Student Government, $4,483; travel budget, $2,500, University Singers, $600; Theater Dance, $600; Women's Glee Club, $250, Graduate Class, $750, Women's Intramurals, $1,191, Tarpon Dive Club $1,060, University Recreation Association, $7,085; spring formal, $1,000 Student Artist Series, $2,000; Speakers' Bureau, $1,000 and orientation week picnic, $1,000.

The balance, $1,849, will go into a reserve fund for emergency appropriations.

Action on joining the National Student Association, considered by FSU for years, was deferred a week after hour debate.

CHARGES AIRED

Senator Dick Crawford, presenting the majority report of a committee assigned to study the question, reported he had interviewed NSA ex-officers, "left-wing organization" and pinpointed dissatisfaction.

NSA representa about 300 student governments from all over the nation. He found it relatively honesty, and stand on certain issues. Others were questioned, however, according to vice-president Jim Boles, presiding officer of Senate.

ROBERTS SAYS JOIN

Senator Fred Roberts, attacked by one senator as a "cut-and-pasted Yankee", and if FSU should join, reject NSA because of one of its policies in de-segregation.

But Senator Bob Murray countered that, as students of a state-supported university, the Senate should respect the state's policies of segregation.

The Senate passed a resolution asking the university to re-zone four entrances and one exit.

TWIN-BILL READY FOR 4 NIGHT RUN

Florida State University's first double-bill dramatic performance will be staged by the Speech Department four nights next week, beginning Monday, in Conrad Theater.

Curtain time for the last production of the year will be 8:15 p.m., and Dr. Lynn Orr, director of Oedipus, King of Thebes, by Sophocles and The Man Who Married A Dumb Wife by Anatole France.

Tickets are on sale at the West-cott ticket office for 60 cents to students with activity books.

Es. Ash is the star of the one-act play, Derek Frederick, a dramatic form which is seldom seen here.

The Anatole France comedy, to follow the Greek tragedy, will last 45 minutes.

The plays were given April 27 in Sarasota at the art symposium co-sponsored by FSU and the Ringling Museum of Art.

Casts are largely the same for both plays. Student actors include Rick, Ron McCall, Ethel Gifford, Betty Caldwell, Claig Monroe, Richard Asper, Barry Lewis, Stanley Delfarri, Phil Johnson, John Walker, Hank McCann, Ray-mer Ivery, Ruth Shuman, Sandra Cleveland, and Jamie Cooper.

Scenery and lighting are under the direction of Charles Reimer, costume and make-up under Pat Gill.

SAE, KA To Vie In Pledge Run

Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Kappa Alpha fraternities will send their pledge classes on a ten-mile marathon relay race tomorrow morning.

A spokesman said the race will begin 10 miles out on the Tallahassee Highway, come in to Copeland Street, and up Copeland to Westcott Circle

It will begin at 11 a.m. and should end by noon he said.

A trophy purchased by the two pledge classes will be awarded tomorrow to the winner, and permanently to the winner of two out of the next three annual races.

Sellout Predicted

Lockmiller Slated For Grad Speech

Dr. David Lockmiller, president of the University of Chattanooga, will be the speaker for June 1 commencement exercises, it was announced this week.

Dr. Lockmiller has written several histories. His latest book is General Enoch Crosby: Father of Selective Service.

Negligence Laid To FSU Infirmary

A Legislative committee heard testimony Wednesday on the death of a student attributed to FSU infirmary negligence.

The House Claims Committee then took under advisement claim for $50,000 filed on the survivors of Geoil Marlene O'Brien.

He died in Tallahassee Memorial Hospital October 15 after suffering for a brain injury received when he was hit by another student. The Leon County Grand Jury voted not to indict the student.

The suit claims the Infirmary was negligent in not giving O'Brien prompt treatment. A similar bill in the Senate.

Dr. H. G. Hathaway, chief physician, and a Tallahassee specialist who performed the operation, told the committee the doctors would not have done O'Brien's life.

Hathaway testimony concerned matters an infirmary doctor acted in allegedly not making a thorough examination, and that O'Brien was admitted to the Infirmary and whether symptoms of the brain injury were taken into account too late

At Coffee Hour

ROGERS TO PRESENT SHAKESPEARE SLANTS

Dr. Carmen Rogers will present an Individual Interpretation of the works of William Shakespeare this afternoon when she discusses the great English dramatist's views on music and medicine.

Her program will be presented at the weekly English Coffee Hour, scheduled for 4 p.m. in Westminster House

A group of madrigal singers, students of Walter James in the School of Music, will begin the program on invitation of Dr. Rogers, with songs keyed to the query of Shakespeare's England of the latter part of the 16th and early part of the 17th centuries.

Singers will be Patricia Crotty, Fred Scott, Brown Setterlind, Anne Lawrence, Judy Brown, Pat Stephens, Margaret Yeats, Jack Vendor, and Maurice King.

Dr. Rogers teaches courses mainly in Renaissance prose and poetry and English drama which of course rings in the works of Shakespeare. Her research has included work at the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D. C. and at the British Museum in London. A graduate of Meredith College she earned her master's and PhD. degrees at Cornell University.

Oceanographic Open House

Marine Exhibit Set At Alligator Harbor

The annual Open House of Florida State University's Oceanographic Institute marine laboratory at Alligator Harbor will be held Sunday.

Gates will open at 9 a.m. and the exhibits, numbering 23 or more, will be on display until 5 p.m.

Scientists from the Oceanographic Institute and co-operating FSU science departments will be on hand to explain them.

One exhibit will feature a study now going on under a grant by the Rockefeller Foundation to determine whether chicken-breeding techniques can be applied to oysters and other fishlife. Dr. Arie W. Nordhoff, head of poultry breeding at Iowa State College is making the study.

Another tells the story of a group of skin-diving geology students who have been exploring the floor of the Gulf to determine, among other things, the presence or heavy mineral there They have been working under FSU Geology Prof. William Tanner.

Another exhibit is some of the findings of graduate student Gary Kaufman of Jacksonville in the underground cave source of Wakulla Springs. Salmon caves and associa-es have explored the spring to a depth of 300 feet and have brought back colored photographs and mackadon bone, sloth, deer and elephant bones, along with bone tip spear points.

Another exhibit will display some of the effects of preservation treatment on Gulf oysters. Dr. Betty Wurtz of the Food and Nutrition Department has been conducting experiments for the Fish and Wildlife Service on the effects of preservation by use of radiation.

Alligator Harbor is on the Gulf 30 miles south of Tallahassee. Visitors may reach the laboratory by following signs which will direct traffic from U S 98 between Carrabelle and Panacea.

CCC Gets Student Insurance Contract

Student Senate has awarded the student insurance contract in a new campaign for a lower rate than his year's plan.

The Senate authorized Continental Casualty Company to sell the insurance at $4.90 per year.

The Health Insurance Association of America has explored the spring to a depth of 300 feet and have brought back colored photographs

High-Flying Circus Eyes Crowd, Rain

By NANCY GENE BROWN

The 1957 version of "Flying High" opened last night with one eye on the weather and the other on well-filled stands.

Ticket office officials predicted a near-capacity crowd for the weekend performances But gloomy weather prospects for the next several days cast a shadow of possibility that last year's rained-out weekend will be repeated.

"However," said the U S Weather Bureau, "most of the showers should be in the afternoon, and the rain should stop by 7 p.m."

In case of another rain-out, the show will go on next week, and instead, according to Circus Coach Jack Haskin, on Wednesday night a dress rehearsal, presented for the faculty and staff, gave a dress preview of what is to come this weekend. It was only a preliminary, but a fairly accurate one if enthusiasm filled the air as the flying trapeze artists leaped to Flying Hugh.

Behind the scenes, while the lions roaring an uproar in the audience, acrobats, dancers, flyers, and blue and white suited clowns dashed around finishing-up pre-show preparations. The band was warming up in the background. The ringing was punched out on the dainty triangle awaiting its turn to be put up in a flash. Veteran performers displayed little nervousness; it was just another show. The Big Nabla would come this weekend.

Then came the announcer's voice welcoming the crowd, and Charlie Carter's band brought forth the familiar Grand March. The show was on!

SUSGA Names Ari Moore Head At Auburn Meet

A Florida State University sophomore who will serve as general in the presidency next year was elected president of the Southeastern Student Government Association, in a convention held last weekend at Auburn.

The association is composed of representatives from Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, FSU and its purpose is to make it better understanding and more active relationship in universities which are fundamentally the same size and position.

Officials sent from FSU, Gordon, official representative, Jim Sides, Arnold Greenfield and Moore.

The constitution was adopted with a program for future problems such as financial student government, student relations, and the honors system. Also, it was that the conference will be held annually, and to get non-member schools represented. Each will have a specific representative although others may attend.

One of the founders, has been since 1954 and in charge of 1958-59. Will be the conference Moore We are really going to make this conference a success."

Speakers' Bureau Program Is Success

The Student Speakers' Bureau program, begun April 23, is now complete and, according to chairman Arnold Greenfield, has been a success.

More than 50 students, he said made speeches to civic groups throughout the state, talking about the university in general, educational programs, and issues in Florida and activities.

Student Government paid the bureau $600 in travel expenses, and the returns were so much greater than the amount of money spent that the program will and will be expanded in the future, said Greenfield.

He said the letters received from the clubs praised the situation highly and indicated good public relations.

FROSH GETS MATH AWARD

John I Cobb III, freshman engineering student at FSU, was awarded recently in recognition of his scholastic achievement in mathematics.

The department presented Cobb with a leather bound handbook of mathematical tables donated by the Chemical Rubber Publishing Co. for the award.

Cries Of 'Communist' In Senate Chamber Recall Days Of McCarthy And Witchhunts

Student Senate has shown signs of su[illegible] to the same type of witch-hunting [illegible] practiced by the [illegible] Joe McCarthy.

In the [illegible] at the most recent meeting, Senators [illegible] protests against the prospect of Florida State University joining the National Student Association. They [illegible] "communist". Some mentioned its attitude toward the United States Constitution.

We do not believe that a group representing the FSU students would cower in the [illegible] at the whisper of the word, "communist". We do not think that such a groundless, unsubstantiated rumor as was [illegible] in Senate Wednesday would be swallowed without question. Yet that is evidently what some have done.

SUCH FEAR can be carried to [illegible] heights — one can almost picture some such "200 per cent Americans" unfurling the United States flag at any mention, however far-fetched, of communism.

Furthermore, some Senators' allegations regarding NSA's de-segregation stand smack of either ignorance of the group's lack of power or intent to enforce such a policy, or adherance to the same line of unreasoning white supremacy endorsed by their more well-known racist proteges. Are we now to begin hearing the impassioned strains of Dixie float from the Senate chamber at their weekly meetings?

SOMEHOW, we feel, the Senate will look at NSA a little more rationally when the subject is considered again Wednesday. We do not believe they will allow [illegible] logic to rule when the final decision is made.

FSU's decision on NSA should be based on facts. The facts are available (although they by no means [illegible] that NSA is worth-while) and we hope Senate will consider more tangible matters than fear and suspicion.

"Who's Ahead?"

The Dissenter

Which Century Should We Be In?

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Few electoral contests offer the student voter as much chance to have his will done as do those for the men's and women's judiciaries.

Great social changes could be effected if the Student Body elected only candidates [illegible].

It is simpler with the Honor Court. Everyone is in favor of honor. There is no debatable [illegible].

BUT A GREAT Debate could be [illegible] on the principles behind Judiciary. W[illegible] should we live in? Should the coeds be [illegible] Is there such a thing as b[illegible]

[illegible]

THE MALE members [illegible] attendance so that as many "alcoholics" can be acquitted or given light sentences as possible.

Now the purists among us may [illegible] insist that a law is a law, and should be observed and enforced without question. But when a law is a law it is meaningful only when [illegible].

C[illegible] always determine the meaning of the laws [illegible] to [illegible].

Students, awake! You elect the co[illegible].

I DO NOT suggest you elect people who are pledged to [illegible] of the laws. What you should demand, however, is a liberal, elastic interpretive weapon.

Suppose, for example that a coed is on [illegible] going to the [illegible] without signing out. The presumption [illegible] indiscretion she will not provide [illegible] with her whereabouts. Now one [illegible] claims she meant to sign out but was distracted by [illegible] gossip. This [illegible] excuse and Judiciary [illegible] off [illegible] only a [illegible] gossip.

Drinking is another matter on [illegible] could exercise [illegible] simply by demanding [illegible] case be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. It does not do so [illegible].

ONE CAN imagine the testimony that would likely ensue:

Prosecuting Judge: "She was obviously drunk when she came in. She was very happy and gibbering a lot and I smelled a[illegible]"

Defendant: "I was talking a lot because I'd just been [illegible]. And Judas over there has an imaginative nose. She can't prove she smelled alcohol on my breath. Can she?"

Judicial Chairman: "Can You prove the Charge?"

Prosecutor: "You'll have to take my word."

CHAIRMAN: "Oh, we believe [illegible] legal. Case dismissed."

The possibilities are endless if real parliamentarians got elected. The Judiciary could go even further and find ways to keep from meeting.

In The Wings

Thaden, Stafford Play Well

By DAVE WARD-STEINMAN

A plethora of recitals has descended upon us [illegible] seems [illegible] of [illegible] the last minute to schedule a program. There will have been five this week, and there were four last week.

Dutifully attending as many as possible we were struck by the individuality of many of the performers, each of whom seemed to do one thing or one kind of thing exceedingly well — and the rest of the program not so well. One man's meat was musically another man's poison.

THE GRADUATE Recital of Edward Thaden Monday night showed some of the most virile piano-playing we have heard in some time, and it was like a breath of fresh air. His Haydn Sonata in Eb Major was one of the most ebullient, driving performances we have heard, and this quality carried over into the Hindemith Third Sonata which followed. In the opening Bach English Suite (E minor) it was somewhat out of place, but we enjoyed hearing it played this way for a change.

The Schumann Symphonic Etudes which closed the program was anticlimactic after the brilliant Haydn and Hindemith, but it was played quite well.

THE SENIOR Recital of James Stafford Wednesday night was another case in point. His Haydn Andante con Variazioni was done quite cleanly and properly, and his Chopin B Minor Sonata was a real tour-de-force and very exciting. His interpretation of the Appassionata Sonata was a mannered one and not always clean technically, but there were many minutes of genuine musical excitement. The Ravel Ondine from the Gaspard was too hard and brittle for our taste; the Liszt La Campanella, however, was an effective closing piece.

'Funny Face' Spring Delight

By ALAN KASS

Just as the magic sound of a Good Humor man, the roar of a baseball game and the crowded beaches by the coast, symbolic of the Spring time is a Fred Astaire film.

IN THE PAST several years Mr. Astaire has made his [illegible] to the cinema quite a Spring event with such inspiring movies as "Bandwagon" and "Daddy Long Legs." As a sign of the times our favorite ageless dancer encounters pert Audrey Hepburn in a lively remake of "Funny Face."

Indeed, it is reasonable to say that this year you won't see a gayer, brighter musical film or one so stylish. "Funny Face" is a picture with class in every considerable department.

THE EYE is intoxicated with exquisite color designs that are rich in contrast. Two scenes in particular, the Paris club and the opening credit scene are tremendous art achievements.

This is clearly an intelligent movie with many pokes pulled at the Camera and clothing business. Not to mention the Existentialists. The plot has a Cinderella story of a drab sales girl rejuvenated into a top-flight model.

MISS HEPBURN, who plays the title, and Mr. Astaire as the photographer, are both elegant. They get a lot of smoothness in their dances that is a joy to watch. Adding to the Paris locale and the lovely wardrobes is Kay Thompson, who is simply fantastic.

The music by the Gershwins has a freshness about them that is unbelievable. Such songs as "'S Wonderful," "He Loves" were written some thirty years ago. The picture is glittering with life and vitality.

'Only' Is Too Much

TO THE EDITOR:

A leading Florida educator recently said that ONLY [illegible] fourth to one-fifth of an education student's work at FSU [illegible] to be in educational professional training. Considering the [illegible] responsibility of a teacher acting as a storehouse of knowledge for inquiring children, why should those figures above be even that high? Moreover the situation is even more questionable when cognizance is taken that most students taking the first two or three basic education courses find very doubtful value in any of them. Elimination of those "doubtful" courses from both FSU's and the State of Florida's requirements will help teachers become greater "storehouses" for Florida's children.

It seems, then, that ON[LY] is really TOO MUCH.

Sincerely,
A STUDENT

She Has No Parents

TO THE EDITOR:

It is a disappointment after reading Mr. Dyckman's usually logical and idealistic writings, to find him employing twisted and demagogic statements in his recent column, "Collins Can Help Preserve Freedom." We think it advisable that he make inquiry into the facts of an issue before becoming emotionally involved; as a journalist he has neglected his responsibilities to his readers.

The unwed mother of Hildy McCoy, six years ago, placed her infant with the Ellises for adoption. This young mother's mistake was in not requiring proof that the Ellises were Catholic. Within weeks however, Miss McCoy came to know that the Ellises were Jewish. It was at this time that she insisted the baby be given over to a Catholic family for adoption, there were many Catholic families seeking to adopt a child. As the adoption was not final and because the law requires that a child be placed in a family whose religion is similar to that of the natural mother, the Ellises were obliged to comply. This is reasonable. The weeks-old infant was too small to have formed emotional ties; the Ellises could seek another child, the mother could feel satisfied over the child's placement.

However the Ellises immediately began a battle which has resulted in court room scenes, hiding out and publicity for the child. From the very beginning the Ellises have sh[own] a willingness to let the c[hild] be sacrificed that they m[ay] be parents. The fact that [illegible] the child; from the very [illegible] viously divorced made a le[gal] adoption difficult [illegible] having come so close to ob[tain]ing a child the Ellises de[cided] to keep the girl at any [cost]. Hildy was never legally ad[opt]ed. Thanks to the Ellises, [she] has no parents.

The case has been taken [to] the Massachusetts Supreme Court twenty-two times [and] each time the decision has [fa]vored the child's mother. At each adverse decision the [Ellis]es have fled into hiding [in New] York, Pennsylvania, Maine [and] Florida, until found a[nd] brought back to court. This [cal]culated delay has gained [the] Ellises time (at the expense [of] Hildy) and spread misinform[a]tion to the public.

According to Mr. Dyckm[an] the natural mother ha[s no] rights when it comes to the [se]lection of an adoptive [home] for the child. When [these] rights are given the mo[ther] Dyckman describes it as [an] "abnormality" which pl[aces] our constitution in "jeopard[y]". Once the child is adopted [the] rights of the natural mo[ther] are relinquished but su[rely] the mother does have [rights] before the adoption is final. [It] is only logical that a pers[on] with definite religious pref[er]ence would want his child [to be] raised in a home of the sa[me] religious preference.

We find it ridiculous wh[en] Dyckman cries "denial of [con]science" because the cou[rts re]fuse to place a baby of a C[ath]olic mother in a Jewish home. It is just as illogical to de[ny] the upbringing of any ch[ild] in any religion.

We do not offer a solut[ion]; we cannot pretend to know a[ll] the answers to this diffic[ult] problem as does Mr. Dyckma[n]. The Ellises have broken the la[w] and have run from the law [for] all the six years of the chil[d's] life. It is a pity that the la[w] could not or would not act w[ith] more vigor when Hildy was a[n] unknowing infant. Now Hild[y] is no longer an infant [and] surely feels emotional ties [to] the Ellises. Governor Coll[ins] faces a difficult decision.

Sincerely,
JOHN HIGBEE

Whirlwind Of Recitals Goes On

By RYAN EDWARDS

The present end-of-the-year whirl of Junior, Senior, and Graduate Recitals by students of the Music School has so far been pretty [illegible]. We can think of no time in our experience at this school when there has been such a steady stream of accomplished and exciting performances offered to the public.

The two [illegible] [illegible] of the point.

THE FIRST of these was the Senior Recital last Saturday evening of Vinson Williams pianist. Bringing a clean technique and thoughtful musicality to the keyboard Williams presented a program of variety, interest, and satisfaction.

Though he perhaps seemed a little tense during the opening group, and somewhat intimated by the emotional and pyrotechnical demands of the Schumann Sonata in G Minor which formed the second group, he relaxed completely by the time he reached the Rumanian Folk Dances of Bartok. These were projected with a big sound, immense rhythmic vitality, and absolute a[illegible].

NEXT HE turned to a shorter piece of Chopin, the Berceuse, and showed that he could play with intimate warmth and affection.

But it was the closing Ballade in A flat which was most ind[ica]tive of the intelligent, earnest musicianship of the perform[er]. Here he achieved the cohes[ive] unity which he had just missed in the earlier Haydn Variations in F Minor; the performance was intense, continuous, and imminently satisfying.

The following Tuesday evening saw the Graduate Piano Recital of Larry Simmons, one of the better known pianists on campus. Simmons has always been a musician of intense emotionality but we felt that his recital marked the huge step ahead from a sometime confused th[ough] nonetheless sincere, feeling for the expressive content of music to the communicative power of unquestionable emotional conviction.

Without a doubt this was best exemplified in his playing of Beethoven's monumental and emotionally shattering Sonata, opus 110. Playing with a wide tonal range and consistent sensitivity, Simmons approached especially in the last movement, that Parnassian peak of musical experience where personality becomes completely identified with composition, and music "happens" rather than "is played".

SUCH EMOTIONAL power makes any criticism seem like quibbling, but we must admit that we feel time will enable Simmons to balance this power with more intellectual control. That he is capable of it was shown in the almost classical restraint with which he spun out the G flat Impromptu of Chopin; that it is still a not-completely-developed aspect of his playing was shown by the Beethovenesque quality of his opening Mozart Sonata, K 332.

The closing work, Prokofiev's 7th Sonata, proved however that the power to communicate is the essential power, and if this performance had not quite the balance and restraint of the Beethoven, it was nonetheless a vivid and exciting close to a recital which will not soon be forgotten by any who attended.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"TODAY WE BEGIN ANOTHER EXCITING & STIMULATING UNIT IN LATE MEDIEVAL HISTORY."

Yogi And The Pope

Perhaps the most interesting part of baseball to some fans are the stories and anecdotes they tell about the men who make the baselines. Here are a few we've come across recently:

Of modern ball players, the Yanks' amiable backstopper Yogi Berra probably has more stories told about him than anybody.

An American League umpire tells about the time he was sitting next to Yogi during training trip with the Yanks, and he saw Yogi, Mickey Mantle and Phil Rizzuto what to them would be the biggest moment of prestige they could possibly enjoy.

Yogie decided that coming into New York harbor with silence cheering and a ticker-tape parade down Fifth Avenue would be about as high in prestige as you could go. Rizzuto thought that possibly being raised by the president and personally congratulated on his exploits would be tops.

Yogi, after being told what prestige meant, thought it over and commented: "I think that if I went over to the Vatican, and to see the Pope, came out riding on that chair he rides on, and some fan looked up and asked 'Who in the heck is that with Yogi Berra'?"

THEN THERE'S THE ONE about Lefty Gomez, about whom legends of stories have been told also. Towards the end of his career, Lefty came up to the plate against Bob Feller, then a star in his prime. Lefty shrugged that it was getting quite late and consequently lit a match as he stepped up to the plate. When the umpire complained, Lefty observed: "I can see him. I just want to make sure he sees me."

Lefty always liked to hit, though he was never too but a batter at the plate. He always went through the motions of a slugger at the plate, knocking the dirt out of his cleats, etc. One time while going through the procedure he whacked himself on the shin to mistake. Result: he missed three pitches and three of the badly swollen ankle. Said manager Joe McCarthy: "On the next time you decide you need some extra exercise, you don't take any chances on getting hurt. Tap yourself on the head."

Lou Gehrig's feat of playing in 2,130 consecutive games seems even more fantastic when you take a brief glance at some of the injuries he fought off during the stretch. To mention a few: hit on the head three times; chipped left elbow, sprained on he chipped bone, seven fingers broken are or more times, toe of right foot broken, muscle in right leg torn, right shoulder wrenched in a collision and several lumbago attacks.

Another one about the incomprehensible Berra tells about the time he was introduced to Hank Sauer's wife Sauer's wife commented that Berra certainly looked cool in the blistering Texas heat with his match while suit. Said the Yog: "Thank you Mai Sauer, you don't look so hot yourself."

ONE DAY WHEN the great Dizzy Dean was pitching against the Dodgers in Brooklyn and hearing the Dodgers as usual abuse him hollered out of the stands at him "If I was your wife, I'd poison you." Responded Dizzy from the pitching mound: "Lady if I was your husband I'd take it."

Casey Stengel had troubles managing before he took over the Yankees and his days with the old Braves were no exception. One day when he walked into a Boston barber shop and asked for a haircut and shave, he commented: 'When you shave me, don't cut my throat, I may want to do it myself later.' The Braves were earnestly settled in seventh place.

Incidentally, the incomparable Berra has made a believer of one Yankee fan, to draw more fans out to the Stadium. You remember that they ought to put sand in the bleachers to remind the fans of the beach and attract more customers.

Well, that's life, that's Yogi and that's all, brother.

JAVELIN SCORER. Senior Jimmie Harrell of Bainbridge, Ga will be a key man in tomorrow's Florida AAU for the Seminoles. He won the javelin in the recent FSU-Florida match.

Tribe Breaks Even In Miami Twin Bill

The Florida State baseball team last Monday split a doubleheader with the Miami Hurricanes winning the first game 5-3 and losing the nightcap 2-1.

The Seminoles concluded the regular season yesterday with the Rollins College Tars.

In the first game at Miami the Tribe banned out 17 hits. Tom Garcia started for the Seminoles but was relieved by Rudy Kiale in the seventh. Garcia helped his cause by rapping a home run with one man on.

Carlee Hendrix and Gerald Pinchot had three hits apiece and Gwen McCarton and four RBI's by way of a single and triple for FSU.

SLUSSER STARTS

In the second game which was called in the eighth on account of darkness, the Hurricanes slugged three hits but made them all count. Frank Slusser started on the mound but needed help from Fred Kenney in the seventh.

Miami got its first run on a sacrifice fly by Pete Pergamo and its other run on a homer by Ed Contreras.

After the doubleheader the Tribe's record stood at 18-6 and their FIBC record was 6-2.

Golfers 'Shave' U. of Florida

The Seminole golfers took the Southern Intercollegiate title today and tomorrow at Athens Ga. after sweeping their only 1957 dual meet during Florida Wednesday 13½-4½.

Bill Shave, Ed Jackson, Harry Shoemaker, Buddy Beech, Jack Vechie and Bob Shuman are entered in the southern tourney for the Seminoles.

Shave was low man in the Florida match, posting a 69 to lead the Tribe linksters in their eighth 1957 victory. Jack Vechie's 77 was next in line.

Shave finished fourth in the Southern Intercollegiate individuals standings last year, and is a definite threat for the individuals crown this year.

Tracksters Seek Revenge At Florida AAU Tomorrow

Gymnasts After 4th NAAU Win

Florida State's gymnasts left Wednesday for Chicago hoping to cop their fourth NAAU title in seven years.

Since first entering the NAAU in 1951, FSU gymnastic teams under the tutelage of Dr. Hartley Price have gained three first places, two seconds, and one third.

Price pointed out that "oddly enough all of our first places have come on odd numbered years and we are hoping that this year will be no exception." Last year the Tribe was runner up to the Los Angeles Turners.

Price predicted a third place finish for his Seminoles in a field of 25 teams, forcing to place behind the Los Angeles Turners and Illinois.

FIVE BACK

The Turners this year have five of the seven top 1956 American Olympic performers and seem a strong favorite to repeat their last year's championship, according to Price.

He added that "UCLA and Penn State would probably record out the top five teams, but anything can happen in the nationals."

Chick Cicio, FSU's only defending NAAU champion, will defend his free exercise title against a "strong array of competitors."

Cicio was beaten this year in the NCAA meet at Annapolis and will have to face those same competitors plus a continuent of experienced gymnasts from the west.

Ronnie Amster, former NCAA horizontal bar champion will work the high bar, parallel bars, and side horse. Don Holder and Jamie Ashmore will be competing in three events, with Holder a former American Olympian, a possible entry in the all-around competition.

Long Predicts 'Close Battle'; Gator Hurdler Knowles Injured

Florida State University's tracksters will seek a revenge win over Florida in the Florida AAU tomorrow on Miami.

Seminole coach Mike Long predicts that the upcoming AAU "should be as close as our last meeting with Florida. The Gators won that by only one point, 67-66.

Florida is also the defending champion in the AAU, winning the meet in a walkaway with 81 points to Tallahassee last year. The Seminoles won it in 1955, at Gainesville.

The only other college team entered, the University of Miami, doesn't figure to threaten the leaders, but the Coral Gables meet may score quite a few individual points, notably in the hurdles.

The defending champion Gators will have to do with the loss of their ace sprint-hurdler Lonnie Knowles, always a key man in any Florida track victory.

BENNETT FAVORITE

Knowles was both hurdles events in the recent FSU-Florida battle, but if he cannot compete Bennett of Miami may take both of the timber events.

Long will enter 29 men including four freshmen and two others who will enter as the Florida Athletic Club. One of the two is quarter miler Jim Castiel, who holds the school 440 yearly record.

Only man likely to be missing from the Seminole's lineup is weight-man Buddy Davis. Davis, recently released from the infirmary after treatment for a tonsil infection.

Rich pole man Jack Terwilliger will enter the 100, 220 and run the anchor of the mile relay team.

Curtain Joe Dennis and lanky Buddy Elliott will run in the 440, while school record holder Ken Seaner and sophs Dodge Ruff will enter the 880. Seaner set the school standard of 1:57.8 in the record meet with Georgia and Georgia Tech.

CONLEY IN MILE

Distance specialist Mike Conley, holder of the school marks in both the mile and two-mile, will run in both events. Pete Pizzacheri will also run in the mile.

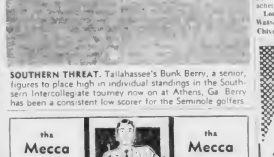
Long will send Davis, Charlie Watson, Tracy Evans and Tommy Chivers in the low hurdles and Brown, Waisod and Chivers in the highs. The mile relay team will likely have Seaner, Ruff, Elliott and Terwilliger on it.

Bill Musselman and Bob McDonald will enter the swingin' Harvey Hall and McDonald the discus and Davis, Brown Bobby Bryson and McDonald the broad jump.

Jerry Henderson, Jimmy Harrell and Mike Gorrie in the javelin Lloyd Lassere Frown and McDonald in the high jump and Richard Elwood and Warren Strickland on the pole vault complete the Tribe entries.

Frosh Nine, Baby Gators Play Two

Florida State's freshmen baseball team has an impressive 6-1 record to Gainesville today when they will meet the baby Gators in the first of a two-game series, holding tap with an 8:30 game tomorrow.



Probable starters for the baby Seminoles will be right-handers Chuck Oliver and Jerry Hohne. Oliver is due to make his second two wins and no defeats and should get the starting assignment that stuff too.

Saturday's game will go to Hohne who lost the Tribe's only game, a one hitter to Jacksonville.

Leftfielder Neil Martin .430 and first baseman Charlie Rogers .400 are among the FSU freshmen at the plate.

The freshmen are making the trip to Gainesville without their coach Jim Ralston who is confined to his home with the mumps. Gus Tuggle former Seminole outfielder will coach in play. But year under NCAA rules, has taken over coaching the club temporarily.

Freshman golfer Albert Yancey of Tallahassee recently fired a 63 at the Capital City Country Club in a fresh match, one stroke over the course record held by Bob Thornton and Ed Jenkins.

SOUTHERN THREAT. Tallahassee's Bunk Berry, a senior, figures to place high in individual standings in the Southern Intercollegiate Tourney now on at Athens, Ga Berry has been a consistent low scorer for the Seminole golfers.

Social Groups Plan Activity

C[illegible] is of course the big news this weekend, but let's gaze into the crystal ball and see what has happened during the last few weeks, and what's coming up in the near future.

M[illegible] of the sororities and fraternities were a[illegible] the Easter season doing things for others. Sigma Chi and Phi Mu joined [illegible] to entertain 25 underprivileged children with an Easter egg hunt and party before vacation. [illegible] Refreshments, and games delighted the children.

The weather forced the Sigma Kappa and Kappa Alpha [illegible] hunt to move indoors. The hosts and hostesses presented baskets, colored eggs and candy to a group of underprivileged children.

Children from Prince Murat school were [illegible] by Gamma Phi Beta at an Easter Egg hunt at the school. Gamma Phi Beta a[illegible] alumnae with a Spring fashion show before the holidays.

We'd like to join in wishing the Gamma Phi Betas many more successful years on campus. They celebrated their seventh birthday on campus earlier in the week with a hamburger fry in the back yard of the house.

Alpha Chi Omega presented a 5 ft 8 in Easter Egg Tree to the patients at W. T. Edwards Hospital before they adjourned for the holidays. The tree was covered with eggs that the members of the chapter had decorated.

Following the holidays the actives of the chapter were special guests of the new initiates and pledges at an overnight camp party. Sunday the Alpha Chi's asked their neighbors, Kappa Alpha Theta and Delta Delta Delta, over for an afternoon culture program. Mr. Thomas Wright played selections from George Gershwin for the sororities. Thursday night the girls were hostess to the FEDS for a calypso party.

In keeping with the weekend Phi Mus carried out a Circus theme at the party they gave the Delta Tau Delta clan. A skit and candy apples were the goodies for the evening. Phi Mu was also hostess to Sigma Alpha Epsilon for an Ivy League party right after the holidays.

Zeta Tau Alpha's calendar was filled to capacity just before the holidays. They were guests of Kappa Alpha, then were hostesses to Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and guests of Kappa Sigma. Sunday before leaving for home, the Zetas had a tea to honor their new housemother, Mrs. F. A. Irick.

Pi Kappa Alpha was host to Ralph Flanagan during the I. F. C. weekend. The Dance Band leader was very impressed with the hospitality of the group. He said that on most campuses they were left to entertain themselves. Hats off to the Pi Kappa Alpha men for keeping up the friendly reputation of the campus.

This is the big weekend for Alpha Omicron Pi. Friday night they're all going to Circus and come back for a party at the house. Saturday they motor out to Mystic Lake for a picnic and the Rose ball is scheduled for that night. At the Ball the outstanding AOPi of the year will be named.

After mothering generations of Alpha Gamma Delta's, Mrs. Rosabelle Gilliland, Alpha Gamma Delta's "Mother Rose" for 28 years, received the pin of pearls in a special initiation service April 27.

The initiation service, arranged with permission of the sorority's National office, opened International Reunion Day activities.

At the IRD Banquet, attended by undergraduates and alums, "Mother Rose", witnessed a skit, "This Is Your Life, Mother Rose", depicting some of her most memorable experiences.

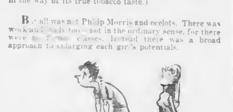
THE THUNDERING MARCH OF PROGRESS



Today, as everyone knows, is the forty-sixth anniversary of the founding of Gransmire College for Women which, as everyone knows, was the first Progressive Education college in the United States.

Well do I recollect the tizzy in the academic world when Gransmire first opened its portals! What a buzz there was, what a brouhaha in faculty common rooms, what a rattling of teacups, when Dr. Agnes Thudd Sigafoos, first president of Gransmire, lifted her shaggy head and announced defiantly, "This here is no stuffy, old-fashioned college. This here, by gum, is Progressive Education. We will teach the student, not the course. There will be no marks, no exams, no requirements. We will break the iron mold of orthodoxy, hey."

Well sir, forward-looking maidens all over the country cast off their fetters and came rushing to New Hampshire to enroll at Gransmire. Here they found freedom. They broadened their vistas. They lengthened their horizons. They unstopped their bottled personalities. They roamed the campus in togas, leading ocelots on leashes.

And, of course, they smoked Philip Morris. (I say "of course." Why do I say "of course"? I say "of course" because it is a matter of course that anyone in search of freedom should naturally turn to Philip Morris, for Philip Morris is a natural smoke, with no filter to get in the way of its true tobacco taste.)

But all was not Philip Morris and ocelots. There was work and study too—not in the ordinary sense, for there were no formal classes. Instead there was a broad approach to enlarging each girl's potentials.

Take the course called Basic Motor Skills

Take, for example, the course called B.M.S. (Basic Motor Skills). B.M.S. was divided into L.D. (Lying Down), S.U. (Standing Up) and W. (Walking). Once the student had mastered L.D. and S.U., she was taught to W.—but not just to W. any old way! No, sir! She was taught to W. with poise, dignity, bearing! To inculcate a sense of balance in the girl, she began her exercises by walking with a suitcase in each hand. (One girl, Mary Ellen Dorgenicht, got so good at it that today she is bell captain at the Dinkler-Plaza Hotel in Atlanta, Georgia.)

When the girls had walking under their belts, they were allowed to dance. Again no formality was imposed. They were simply told to fling themselves about in any way their impulses dictated, and believe you me, it was quite an impressive sight to see them go bounding into the woods with their togas flying. (Several later joined the U. S. Forestry Service.)

There was also a lot of finger painting and gourd rattling and sculpture with coat hangers and all like that, and soon the fresh wind of Progressivism came whistling out of Gransmire to blow the ancient dust of pedantry off curricula everywhere, and today, thanks to the pioneers at Gransmire, we are all free, every man-jack of us.

If you are ever in New Hampshire, be sure to visit the Gransmire campus. It is now a tannery.

©Max Shulman, 1957

And be sure to light a Philip Morris when you visit Gransmire, or anywhere else for that matter, because Philip Morris is always a naturally perfect companion and brings you this column each week and is ignitable at either end.

Vanderbilt Law Schalarship Open

Seniors interested in receiving a law scholarship to Vanderbilt University may receive information by contacting the acting director of the Vocational Guidance and Placement Office, Mrs. Margaret Blair.

The successful candidate should rank in the upper 20 per cent of his class, should have a good grade on the Law School Admission Test and should be recommended by the University according to Mrs. Blair.

Nuclear Center Revised

'Swindletron' To Out-Hoax Atoms

By NANCY GENE BROWN

FSU may soon have a "swindletron."

This new device would be a part of a nuclear radiation center where the state's future nuclear scientists may attend school while aiding in pioneer atomic research, according to Dr. Alex E. S. Green, acting head of the Department of Physics.

The swindletron gets its name because it produces 10 million volts of energy from only five million volts potential. Making up the unit that accomplishes this feat are two atomic particle accelerators, a new radio-active cobalt source, a high-speed electronic computer or "brain", and a "hot lab" for storage and experimentation with radioactive isotopes. The accelerator is called a 10 million electron volt tandem style Van de Graaf positiveion accelerator.

The original proposal for the construction of this nuclear radiation center here called for a smaller, more conventional, type of positiveion machine, but talks with outstanding nuclear physicists of the United States and Canada indicated that a recently developed tandem accelerator is more desirable.

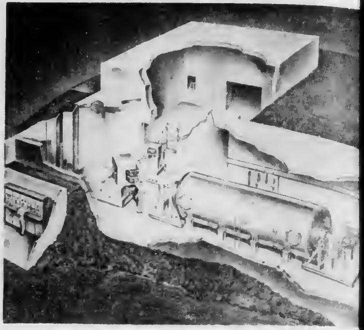
COSTS $2.3 MILLION

Available for a capital outlay of $2.3 million, the new center would make possible training of nuclear scientists and basic research in nuclear energy. It would add substantially to the number of courses offered by the school, giving training in the application of nuclear principles in the biological sciences—zoology, botany, physiology, and bacteriology. Other departments like geology, meteorology, and mathematics would also utilize the center extensively.

By having such a center FSU hopes to hold faculty members who already have gained extensive recognition in the nuclear field, to add additional ones and to attract an increasing number of students who will become Florida's nuclear scientists and technologists.

NEAR WOMEN'S GYM

In addition to the 10 million electron volt (MEV) accelerator, it has asked a 3 MEV electron accelerator, also a Van de Graaff model. These and the other facilities would be housed in a structure with 18,000 square feet of floor space. The tentative location selected is the playing field near the women's gymnasium. The building is horizontal and its 34-foot-long cylinder can be housed in a basement-type structure.



Plans for the center began to be developed as early as 1955, when it appeared that the teaching and research program in nuclear physics and chemistry was outgrowing laboratory facilities.

SMALL OUTLAY

The school now has the opportunity of obtaining two of these research tools at a comparatively small outlay. It can obtain one of the first production models of a new tandem type Van de Graaff accelerator with a reliable source of particles in a range of energies that has not previously been extensively explored. If FSU's proposals pass the Legislature, it will probably be one of the first five institutions in the world to have such a machine. High Voltage Engineering Corporation, in discussions with the university, has said it can complete installation of such a machine in three years, thus enabling FSU to have one in 1960 if a commitment is made by July 1.

Dr. Green said the range of proton energies from 5 MEV to 10 MEV which will come into focus by this new machine is one of the least explored ranges of nuclear physics. The possibilities of accelerating heavy atoms to very high energies and performing precision studies with such atoms is also opened up by the unique features of the machine.

Acquisition of the machine would open the opportunity for FSU to venture into a broad and almost untouched precision field and place it immediately in a position of world leadership, according to Dr. Green.

NUCLEAR CENTER—This is a drawing of the 10 million electron volt tan[dem] Van de Graaff positive ion accelerator—one of the machines sought by F[SU's] nuclear radiation center. It is one of the newest tools in atomic research [illegible] first production model is now being built at Chalk River National Lab[oratory] Canada. The drawing shows how most of the unit is housed underground.

Art Gallery Shows Display On Share

A display of color photographs "The Shore at Ebb Tide" will be in the university art gallery today through Wednesday.

Sponsored by Phi Sigma Society, honorary in biological sciences, the pictures, by Jeanette Klute of Eastman Kodak Co., were taken along the Florida and Massachusetts coasts. The gallery is open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. week days, from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, and from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

INTERVIEWS SET

Those students wishing interviews with Scott Paper Co., Monday, or Sunbeam Corp., Tuesday; may contact the placement office, 309 Westcott for an appointment. Both companies are interviewing for prospective salesmen.

Legislature Still Debates FSU, UF Bills

By CHARLEY POTEVENT

With about three weeks remaining of the 1957 session of the Legislature, bills affecting Florida State University are still to be passed.

Recently both House and Senate committees have approved the appropriation of a $5,000,000 capital improvement program for FSU and the University of Florida.

The bill, it provides $2,300,000 for basic science research at FSU.

DUPLICATIONS

On the recommendation of Rep Tolliver of Alachua, a House subcommittee amended the bill to eliminate duplications in the nuclear research of the two state universities. Rep Mallory Horne of Hillsborough objected to the amendment.

It was approved by committees in the House during the last session.

Another plan for the creation of a nuclear research for the state universities. It passed the bill but was unable for a chancellor under the Board of Control to whom university presidents would be responsible.

The bill calls for a council of presidents with the chancellor to be chairman.

A House Claims committee voted favorably on a bill to pay $2,000 to the survivors of Gerald O'Brien, student who died from a brain injury suffered during football practice in a fight with another player.

ALLEGED NEGLECT

O'Brien's parents claimed damages resulting from alleged neglect and treatment of their son by the college infirmary.

The committee also defeated a bill introduced by Rep J. W. Kline of White Springs which would dismiss students and members of the faculty involved in subversive activities.

The House - Senate appropriations committees will meet probably next week to compromise on the state's record $95 million dollar general appropriation and the $10 million dollar measure.

Percussion, Brass Concert Set Tonight

A brass choir directed by William Revelle and a percussion ensemble directed by Hans Heinz will appear in a joint concert tonight at Eberman Music Mall beginning at 8:15 p. m.

The numbers to be done by the brass choir include Sonata 10 by Pezel, Prelude, Fugue and Allegro by Johann Hermann Schein, Canzona Septimi Toni by Giovanni Gabrieli, Sonata by John Hanmery, Fanfare Introduction and Allegro by Ingolf Dahl, and Sonata by Benedetto Marcello.

The only original number for the brass choir, according to Revelle, is the first movement of Mann's Sonata for Brass Choir, which he composed while at the Music Educators Conference Regional convention.

The first time the newly organized percussion ensemble will appear in concert with the brass group. The first number to be done by the percussion ensemble will also finales assisting, Hans Heinz, is a modern composition, transcribed by Heinz, that they will play. Three numbers by Michael Colgrass and Toccata in three movements by Lucas Chavez.

The two groups will combine in "Bird Fugue" by Gardner Read and Fantasy on a Well-Known Chord by John Satterfield.

Summer School Registration Set

Registration for summer session is being held this week in the Registrars' office. Persons wishing to enroll for either or both weeks session from June 17 to August 10 or the six weeks session from June 17 to July 24 should go to alphabetically starting today with names from C-G, tomorrow H-L, Thursday, M-Q, Friday, R-S, and Saturday, T-Z.

THIS CLOWN'S SMILE IS REAL—Jackie Fortune, fourteen year veteran of Flying High, beams over trophy voted him by fellow circus troupers and awarded during Saturday night's final show. The Gill Aldridge Memorial Trophy was provided last year by the Kappa Alpha order in honor of a former brother and circus member who graduated in 1950 and was killed in action in Korea. Last year it was awarded to John Mabee. Fortune has been a clown and aerialist

Fortune And Misfortune

FALL FROM HIGH WIRE—Circus star Fay Moses fell from precarious perch atop Charlie Matthews' Used Tent Store here Saturday morning as photographer Dick Parks spun around to get a concussion-million chance picture. He had no time to focus or his exposure but glaring lights in Campbell Stadium caused the falling figures. Miss Moses was slightly hurt by the act's balancing bar, but both performers were saved by a net and appeared Saturday night, although this act was not repeated.

'Bartered Bride' To Open In Westcott Friday Night

By JERI BRADFIELD

The Bartered Bride, the Choral union's fifth annual opera production, will be presented Friday and Saturday in Westcott Auditorium, with admission free.

The performances will begin at 8:15 p.m. on Friday and Saturday nights and there will be a special matinee performance Saturday afternoon at 2:15 p.m.

The Bartered Bride is a comic opera in three acts by Bedrich Smetana. It will be sung in English.

The scene of the opera takes place in a Bohemian village on Festival day. The local marriage broker, Kezal, is trying to arrange a match between Marie, the daughter of the peasant Krushina and Vashek, son of the wealthy landowner, Micha. Marie is not satisfied with this arrangement, for she loves Jenik, who is a youth employed in the village. Jenik claims Marie's love, but he thinks it necessary to keep from disclosing his identity.

TRUCK CONTRACT

Kezal, the marriage broker, is quite aware of the handsome sum he will receive from Micha considers everything for the match between Marie and Vashek. Kezal approaches Jenik, offering him another bride and 300 gold pieces, which Jenik accepts on a certain condition that proves to be a trick.

The result of this triangle love affair works out in a satisfactory manner for all the parties concerned, through the efforts of Jenik and his condition. The opera concludes with all the townspeople celebrating the two old events.

30 SINGERS

This year a Choral Union consists of 100 members in the chorus, including the all-student cast, headed by Mary Jane Marriott as Marie and Martin Lee as Jenik. The evening cast also includes Ralph Noles as Vashek, Sheila Turner and Carolyn Glenn as Marie's parents, Krushina and Ludmila. Steve Kind and Chris Bryan, as Vashek's parents, Micha and Hata Kezal, the marriage broker, is portrayed by Peter Peck, with Lenore Keen, Nelle Black and Joe Fast taking the parts of the principal comedian, Esmeralda, the dancer, and an Indian respectively.

MATINEE CAST

In the matinee cast on Saturday afternoon, Ethel Donaldson will play Marie, with Ann Donaldson as Jenik and Fred Scott as Vashek. The parts of the parents Krushina and Ludmila will be taken by Lonnie Keene and Frances Klingman, and Vashek's parents, Micha and Hata will be played by Wesley Chesnau and Harriett Morrill. Jack Rice will sing Kezal's part, with the roles of the principal comedian, Esmeralda and the Indian being taken by Norman Ingram, Nelle Black and Joe Fast.

Choral director is Herman Gunter, Jr. Harry Jane Dunn is in charge of stage production, and Robert Sedore will conduct the Tallahassee Symphony. The costumes and the sets are all being designed and made by the students in the opera.

Phi Kappa Phi Taps 50 New Members

The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, an organization recognizing scholarship in all academic fields announced today the selection of 50 new members at Florida State University.

The group also elected Dr. Philip P. Dillard, associate professor of economics, president of the local chapter for next year. Other officers will be Dr. Odell Waldrip, vice-president; Dr. Marian W. Black, secretary, Keith Pitchford, treasurer and Dr. Walter D. Smith, journal correspondent.

In addition to scholastic achievement during their college careers members must have good character. Students graduating both February and June graduates, who were invited into membership, are:

Graduates — Virginia Allen Dumas, Lindley E. Goame, Sally Nixon Hand, Jean Grover Harvey, Gilbert C. Hughes, and Frederic Kirchberger.

Seniors — Joan P. Braden, Joyce Elaine Cayard, Marjorie A. Curtis, Mary Jane Jennings, Gary W. Nahrstedt, Marcia Walters, Dorothy Ann Cellon, Laura Chapman, Dolores F. Cole, Lucy Burrett Council, Harriet Demouplest, Lucy Nell Hopkins, Evelyn Mell.

Also Edna Runnels Dusan, Franklin Ryan Edwards, Mary Edwards, Ella Edith Ellis, Ann Jenks and Fred Scott as Vashek. The parts of the parents Krushina and Ludmila will be taken by Lonnie Keene and Frances Klingman, and Vashek's parents, Micha and Hata will be played by Wesley Chesnau and Harriett Morrill. Jack Rice will sing Kezal's part, with the roles of the principal comedian, Esmeralda and the Indian being taken by Norman Ingram, Nelle Black and Joe Fast.

Choral director is Herman Gunter, Jr. Harry Jane Dunn is in charge of stage production, and Robert Sedore will conduct the Tallahassee Symphony. The costumes and the sets are all being designed and made by the students in the opera.

Also Edith Diane Hampton, Barbara E. Hasles, Virginia Ann Hodges, Emilie A. Hudson, Daniel L. Kelly, Gordon E. Speed, Charlotte Patten and Phyllis Patten.

Also David Earl Raney, Doris Roberts, Martha G. Shannon, Dawn Sharp, William E. Stanley Jr. Richard Strauss, Martha E. Smith Swann, Norma Jean Tedder David Wardlaw Steinman, and Frances E. Wilson.

Juniors — Judith Abrams Rita Bailey, Jackie Bonjer, Matilde Hume, Martha E. McGinnis, Mary K. McKown, and Richard Pittman.

Comet Watch Slated Again

Popular demand to see a new comet is strong, according to Norman Zuroff, Astronomy Club president.

Because of it, he said, the Club will hold a second comet-watch tonight from 7:30 p. m. to 9 with telescopes and binoculars, on the Science Building roof. Refreshments will meet in 306 Science.

Zuroff succeeding Smith, the comet is higher and higher in the northeast sky. The tail, visible to the naked eye, appears to be getting longer, he added.

Grad Spring Dance Slated

The Graduate Club's Spring Dance will be held Saturday, from 9 p.m. until midnight at the Lee Robles Women's Club.

Music will be by Jerry Kohler and his band of Tallahassee, according to president Don Spille. This dance is open to all graduate students, members of the Deans Club, members of the Veterans Club and other undergraduates," Spille said.

Tickets may be purchased for 50 cents each at the eWstcott Social Office or at the door before the dance.

Spille said the Graduate Club has had an enthusiastic response to our other activities. This dance will be a highlight of our spring program.

Members of the Club are working to make the Spring Dance one of the most successful. Graduate students, he said. It will be the group's last big social event before the Summer Session.

ALD Selects Miller To Lead

Sylvia Miller has been elected president of Alpha Lambda Delta freshman women's scholastic honorary. Other officers named were Sandra Ellis, vice-president; Sonia Rousey, secretary; Sally Matthews, treasurer; Molly Fincher, historian; and Nancy Worrall, senior advisor.

The group also has presented scholarship certificates to members who maintained a 3.5 average for seven semesters. They went to Evelyn Moll, Liz Stainer, Polly Swain, Mary Lois Edwards, Elke Frank, Charlotte Patten, Phyllis Patten, Autumn Shannon and Marjorie Ann Curtis.

Woodward, Roberts Win Wylie Awards

Carolyn Woodward and Ben Roberts were awarded the undergraduate and graduate Phillip Wylie awards Saturday night by the Library School.

The second annual presentation of gold keys and certificates was made during a banquet at the Tallquin Inn.

A spokesman said they were based on scholarship, leadership, service, creativity, dependability, personal integrity, and helpfulness to fellow students.

Elections Are Today; 55 Offices At Stake

Court Class Battles Seen

A hundred and three candidates carry their campaigns for 55 offices to the voters today.

At stake are judiciary, Honor Court, and Traffic Court positions, class seats in Student Senate, and the five offices of each class.

The four polling booths will remain open from 9 p.m. to 3 p.m., Secretary of Elections Mimi McCullough said. They are at, West Hall Building, the Student Center, the Seminole dining room, and across the street from Bryan Hall.

Only one candidate has withdrawn thus far in the race. Cappy Archibald, recently elected president of Sophomore Council who was running for Sophomore Men's Senate, submitted her withdrawal to Miss McCullough Sunday.

All students will be eligible to vote for any of the court positions, said Miss McCullough Senators, she emphasized are eligible to vote for the courts.

However, in the class elections, only members of the class will be eligible to vote. There will be a special ballot for each class, Miss McCullough said.

Of the 55 positions nine are uncontested. They are: Honor Court treasurer, two Junior women's Honor Court seats, three Junior men's Judiciary positions and three Senior women's Judiciary seats.

The positions and candidates listed below are as follows. The key to the list is: Student Party —S; Collegiate Party, —C; and independent, —I.

SENIOR CLASS

JUNIOR CLASS

SOPHOMORE CLASS

President — Bill Bowden (C), Lloyd Bullard (C) and Gene McCormick (S); Vice President — Bill Hamilton (C), Tyrus Dawes (S), Bill Rachels (S) and Bill Weaver (C); Secretary — Nina Fairbrother (S) and Annette McIntosh (S); Treasurer — Barbara Chapman (C), Jeanne Hendricks (S) and Charlotte Kasten (C); Senate — Jim Bullock (C), Chris Bryan (S), Jo Ann Mc Donald (S), Mimi Bullard (C), Diane Godin (S), Kate Ramsey (C), Gene McCormick (S) and Pat Hartley (S).

FRESHMAN CLASS

President — Bill Bowden (C), Lloyd Bullard (C) and Gene McCormick (S); Vice President — Jerry Dye (C), Tyrus Dawes (S), Bill Rachels (S), Barbara Hendrix (S) and Bonnie Wilson (C).

Junior Fred Pore (S), Don Rattan (S), Bill Rachels (S), Jim Rice (S), Buddy Schumacher (ind), Bruce Cooper (S), Nancy Kay (S), Jane Lassiter (C), Grace Pinckard (S) and Peggy Rollins (ind).

HONOR COURT

Two men and two women from the Junior and Senior classes

Starlight Serenade Slated

The second of the Starlight Serenade Concerts will be presented tomorrow night beginning at 8:15 p.m. in the amphitheatre by the Concert Band under the direction of Robert T. Beausoleil.

Beausoleil said the Concert Band has been organized to give an opportunity for the non music-major college student to participate in a fine college concert band and it numbers 80 musicians.

Featured on the program will be "Soliloquy for Trumpet" by John B. Morrisey a solo played by Jackie Cox and "Sia Fair Suite," an original composition in four movements depicting a typical day at a fair, by Charles Carter a School of Music faculty member.

Also on the program are "Trojan March" by P. H. Lowe, "Marvin Overture" by Charles Osmond, "Amparito Roco" by Jaime Tedor, "American Jubilee" by Joseph Wagner, "Toccata for Band" by Frank Erickson and the "Russian Sailors Dance" from the Red Poppy by Gliere.

Junior-Senior Prom Open To All Classes

The Junior-Senior Prom has taken on a new personality, according to Bill Weaver, Junior Class president.

He said that the final invites all classes may attend the annual formal occasion which honors the graduating Senior Class.

The dance will still be administered and planned by the Junior Class to honor Seniors but Sophomores and Freshmen will be allowed to purchase tickets to the event for three dollars per couple. Tickets will go on sale tomorrow at Westcott ticket booth.

Weaver explained that since the Student Government last year provided a special fund of $1,000 to enable the Junior class to book a well-known orchestra it was decided that all classes should be able to attend.

SPRING FORMAL

The name of the dance has been changed to the "Spring Formal," and will be held in the Main Gymnasium from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m., May 18. Ralph Marterie and his orchestra of "Skokiaan" and "Cross My Heart" fame will play.

Invitations have been mailed to graduate seniors, said Weaver. Juniors will receive two free tickets at the Westcott booth on presentation of their student ID card, he said.

Another change in the dance this year is the elimination of the King and Queen contest, according to the Class president. Instead there will be a contest to name June 21 Tomorrow Outstanding Boy and Girl in the Senior Class."

NOMINATIONS

Anyone wishing to nominate a senior for the honor may submit nominees names at the Lemoyne director's office before 5 p.m., Friday. The final vote will be taken a week from today along with student government final elections.

The following qualifications should be taken into consideration, said Class spokesman overall campus leadership service in the student body and university scholarship, quality of team work and participation and promise for future growth.

Board Asks Summer Paper Applications

Applications for the positions of editor and business manager of the 1957 Summer Flambeau are being accepted by the Board of Student Publications, chairman Jack Heidel announced yesterday.

The procedure for application is the same as for the regular position. A letter of applicants must be submitted to the Board before the Friday May 10 at which time the Board will consider and select the applicants. Heidel said Applications should have an overall average of 2.29 for the editorship and 2.00 for business manager. They should also have two years experience on the publication although Heidel noted, this specification may be waived.

An assistants should appear at the May 16 Board meeting to be interviewed, he added.

The Summer Flambeau is scheduled to put out five editions beginning June 21. Letters should be send to Dr. Reid Montgomery advisor to student publications, 16 Longmire.

BAIRD WINS TALK TIFF

The Intramural oratore contest held before the Tallahassee Optimist Club recently was won by Peter Baird representing Alpha Xi Rho.

The other two finalists were David Dynes and Melvin Peters.

Each contestant gave time-limited speaking contest held before The Tallahassee Junior Chamber of Commerce a few days ago. Jim McIntyre, representing the West Hall Fraternity Other finalists were David Hoxin and Jean Bielsher.

Three finalists in extemporaneous speaking contest will speak tonight before the Tallahassee Toastmasters Club. They are Nina Chaffin, Jim McIntyre and Leeanne Reece.

Phi Chi Thetas Plan Meeting

The pre-thi-organized chapter of Phi Chi Theta, national business fraternity for women, will meet tomorrow evening at 7 p.m. in 218 music. Plans for installation will be discussed, an officer chosen.

Friday Declared 'Bermuda Shorts' Day

The Florida Flambeau is sponsoring a First Annual Bermuda Shorts Day Friday for Florida State University men.

The day will be held in order to encourage a better standard of spring apparel on campus, according to Flambeau editor, Oscar Johnson.

"We think FSU should lead the way to other colleges in the matter of dress," he said. "Since we live in a warm climate, Bermuda shorts are a natural form of clothing for most students to wear."

TOO BAD, GIRLS

As for coeds, Johnson said, "It's too bad." University regulations prohibit women students from wearing shorts.

Johnson said he hopes the organized plan to wear Bermuda will encourage a sizeable percentage of FSU men to wear them at least for one day. This is no joke" he pointed out. "I intend to wear Bermudas Friday and I hope quite a few other men do also.

The day will become an annual event if it is successful this year.

NOTHING SPECIAL

No special activities are planned for Bermuda Shorts Day at FSU, Johnson said. The Flambeau is sponsoring the day just for the purpose of seeing how many men students will wear the Bermudas."

He declined to comment at length on the ruling against Coed Bermudas.

"It must mean the university believes men have better looking legs than women," he declared. "We don't intend to let the regulation prevent men students from wearing a sensible form of apparel."

PROGRESS

"Actually, Bermudas will add a lot to this campus," Johnson declared, returning to his subject. "I think they will give it a more cosmopolitan atmosphere. There is a lot of room for progress in certain aspects of university life here."

In case of rain, most men students wearing Bermudas will probably don Pamoneta, he said. "Don't let a little rain prevent you joining in the event," he urged.

Students' 'Isms' Are Of No Importance Unless Understood, Matched By Actions

When the movie "Funny Face" came to Tallahassee, students learned about a new philosophy, "Empaticalism".

As brought out in the picture, "Empaticalism" is a belief in the value of empathy, the placing of oneself in the position of another so as to understand and appreciate his actions. "Empaticalism", however, is just another step in the Ascendency of the Isms, a phenomenon of 20th Century philosophy.

Whether the "Isms" are humorous, as Empaticalism, or serious, as pragmatism, they have one unique feature. It is not necessary that their adherents know what the "isms" mean.

Many of the "isms" have been in men's vocabulary for centuries. But only recently have mass dissemination of reading matter, of public disenchantment from the government and development of snob appeal of intellect combined to effect the Ascendancy of the Isms. Nowadays everybody has to have some kind of philosophy. Whether an "ism", an "ist" or something else, it enables a person to label himself with a group of persons with similar beliefs.

ONE OF THE reasons "isms" have enjoyed such great success is that most of them are on semantically-insecure footing. One good example is Democrat-ism and its ally, Republican-ism. Some people claim there are no difference between these two parties, while others just as obstinately point out distinctions.

In both cases, however, they join, thereby neatly categorizing themselves with half a nation. Lack of agreement on what membership means thus does not prevent growth in size.

The theme of ignorance of the meaning of one's "ism" can be developed further. Taking as an example the "Democrats For Eisenhower"—that is to say, Democrats For A Republican—it becomes obvious that there is some kind of disagreement on what it means to be a Democrat.

Furthermore, the fact that the DFEs find it necessary to label their cause points up the group nature of "isms." A Democrat could vote for Eisenhower just as well without advertising the fact. But by forming an "ism" such voters enjoy group security.

IN SUPPORT of the ignorance-of-meaning aspect of present-day "ism", one might mention the quasi-intellect appeal of Republican-ism in the South. The young Southerner looks at the Democrats Around Us, notes the "wool hat boys" and the "Rednecks" of the "Hog and Hominy" belt, and decides, "Republican-ism" is for me."

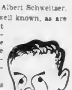
What he fails to recognize is that the Democratic Party, and by that we mean the Northern, effective section of the party, is in actuality the most "modern" and "progressive" source of political pressure in the country. By becoming a Republican, the progressive Southerner allies himself with a bunch that never goes forward unless following the footsteps of Democrats. Attempting to break away from "Redneck" southern Democrat philosophy, he ignores the equal inferiority of the Republicans.

ANOTHER "ISM", that of the liberal (as opposed to the "conservative") is worth noting. One finds it easy to automatically stand for progress, freedom, equality, etc., by simply adopting the philosophy of liberal-ism. "Liberals" have thus become so common that there is actual snob appeal in conservatism. To avoid being "one of the crowd" of liberals the student delves in the so-called intellectual aspects of conservatism.

In effect both the liberal and the conservative are likely to become so engrossed in perpetuating their own philosophies that they ignore the principles for which they supposedly stand, all the while shouting epithets and slogans in support of their creed.

THE "LIBERAL" may thus one day expound on equality and the next vote for segregated schools; the "conservative" may speak for states' rights but defend freedom of speech. In the end, their actions are more important than their "isms."

From our point of view, it is nice to have an "ism". But it is vastly more vital that one know what his philosophy is than merely what it is called, and to believe in it enough to practice it.



Calling The Card

Schweitzer Gives Lesson In Living

By JIM MCINTYRE

I have just come from an amazing lecture about an amazing man. A man of stature, courage, and vision whose life and thought should be an example and inspiration to all of us

The man is Albert Schweitzer. His name is well known, as are his deeds. But often we overlook the true genius of the man in eulogizing his altruism

Schweitzer is one of the most prolific men of all time He is an indefatigable scholar a uniquely superior musician, and a courageous giver of self to a people that are backward, dirty, and all to often unappreciative.

AND HE HAS an example to set for students of our day showing some of our misplacement of values

Starting at the age of five, he progressed rapidly on the piano and organ to the point of excellence at the age of nine and reknown throughout the musical world by his late teens He subsequently became the world's foremost authority on the works of Johann Sebastian Bach, as well as the leading exponent of organ design in Europe.

HIS WORK in theology and philosophy was even more spectacular as he gained doctoral degrees in both, while commuting from Strassburg to Paris to take organ and piano lessons. His works on the life of Bach were written during this period as his published doctoral thesis which upset the world of theology "The Quest of the Historical Jesus"

He wrote the life and interpretation of Bach in French and rewrote it in German while completing his studies in philosophy. He found time during this period to become an outstanding authority of Nietzche the philosopher, Goethe, a poet and St Paul, a theologian. All before he was 30 years old.

HE HAD decided shortly after his twentieth birthday to devote himself to scholarly pursuits until he was thirty and after that time devote himself to humanity.

So at thirty the man who was now a professor in the university took his place among the students of medicine and at the age of thirty-eight added a fourth earned doctorate to his list of degrees. He then sailed for the French Equatorial Africa to establish a hospital with the money he had made on concerts as his only financial backing. There he has spent the last forty-four years, ministering to the bodies, minds, and souls of a group of people who have never been able to understand

AND IT makes you stop and evaluate your own life and thought when you hear of this man It makes you wonder what has happened to this type of scholarship in our "trade-school" culture One can hardly visualize such a man being enthusiastic over a curriculum featuring baking science hotel management, and circus His activities would have been centered more about the library than an athletic field. . . or a student government office . . . or a student newspaper copy room

His example does not mean we should eliminate all the non-scholarly pursuits of contemporary collegiate life, but it does help remind us of some of our personal and cultural disjointedness.

He has a lesson to teach all of us Would that we would listen.

"Confidentially, Which Of Us Do You Think Is Ahead?"

The Dissenter

Does State Buy Students' Minds?

BY MARTIN DYCKMAN

Because the segregation problem has been thrown into Student Senate's debate on joining the National Student Association, more is at stake than mere membership in the NSA

The principal argument heard against NSA is that it endorses de-segregation. Senator Bob Murray insists that Student Senate "out of consideration" to the people of Florida who support the university ought not to approve de-segregation by joining NSA.

HIS ARGUMENT could be rebutted on the ground that de-segregation is only one of NSA's policies, and is not accepted by all member schools but to do so would be to ignore the problem he has inadvertently raised

Does the State of Florida by paying for Florida State University, determine what its students and faculty shall do and think?

If that is the case, then we have not a university but a big propaganda center, whose degrees would be meaningless.

ONE OF THE first things a college student should learn, and he shouldn't really have had to wait till college to learn it, is that a problem cannot be viewed by one aspect alone.

He must shed all prejudices and try to arrive at his conclusions factually.

To say that Student Government should not join an organization simply because one of its policies is contrary to what seems the majority prejudice of the State of Florida is to be blinded by one issue.

And to assume that we shouldn't approve of anything the state officials don't like is to choose the safer, but less honorable, position in the conflict of prejudice and reason.

NOW IS IT quite possible that there is simply not enough value in the National Student Association to make membership worthwhile for this student body. Personally, I see much that would justify our joining

For one thing, there is the research service carried on by NSA There is also its policy of pooling information from member schools on common problems

Let's just examine this service in relation to that "peculiar" problem"—segregation

Integration is coming Sooner or later, it's coming It will come here just as it did at the northern NSA schools, who, years ago, didn't admit Negro students

THOSE SCHOOLS solved some of their problems, and are working on others. Integration posed difficulties in social affairs, residence halls and student government.

FSU too, will encounter these. And it might help us to learn how other schools dealt with them

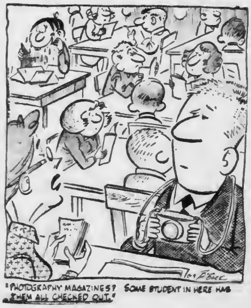
Let Student Senate examine NSA according to merits and demerits, rather than prejudices and it will live up a bit more to the purpose of a University.

Seven Chug-A-Lugs!

DEAR STUDENTS:



Seven chug-a-lugs! For a long time we've been griping about certain professional education courses which we consider completely superfluous and a waste of time Now something's been done about it. Rep Pratt recently introduced into the Legislature three bills which would end our specific complaints and make other general improvements in Florida's education system

HERE'S our chance! Now, how about helping Florida and yourself by supporting Rep Pratt? Let's apply those democratic principles we're so proud of and use that prerogative to voice our opinions Write to your representatives and senators and ask them to support House Bills 1162 1163 and 1164 Ask your parents and relatives to do the same Many other people will also urge this legislation, but every voice counts. Let's form our own "lobby," though it has to be done secretly and unbeknown to each other.

Sincerely,
A STUDENT

DEAR FRESHMEN:

It has been my pleasure and privilege to have served as President of your class this year I have enjoyed working with you and with your cooperation I will continue to do so in the future It is rare that a President has such a fine class to work with Without your help this year could not have been as successful as it has been

I HAVE decided to run for Sophomore Class Senator and I am now seeking your help and support again If I am elected, I will try to be of service to our class and to our University.

There are many problems that face our class now and there will be many others in the future Your Senate will be the deciding factor in these matters After serving as your President I feel that I understand and recognize these problems which confront us

I FEEL that our class has been very close and I hope it will remain this way in the future It has been said that we have been one of one of the greatest Freshman Classes that FSU ever had! I hope we may continue to maintain this fine reputation as we work together as Sophomores.

A FRIEND ALWAYS,
MATTOX HAIR

DEAR FRESHMAN:

Next year you will be a Sophomore and Tuesday you elect the people who will represent our our Sophomore Class It is important that you select people with an intense desire to work and who are capable and experienced enough to credit their offices with good work.

I AM PROUD of my year of service as your Freshman Class Senator I have gained valuable experience in our student government and am very familiar with the questions at hand

I want to serve you next year as your Sophomore Senator I hope you will cast your ballot for experience and service and give me the chance to serve you again

SINCERELY
CHARLES VAN

DEAR JUNIORS,

I would appreciate your consideration and support for the office of President of the Senior Class If you find me worthy of this position I will endeavor to carry out the responsibilities devolving upon the office to the best of my ability

THANK YOU
HANK McCANN
CANDIDATE FOR SENIOR CLASS PRESIDENT.

Weaver

DEAR JUNIORS,

It gives me a great deal of pleasure to be able to write this letter as the President of your class I am still grateful for the confidence you showed in me last year, when you elected me President of The Junior Class I have tried to use that confidence and the abilities God has given me, to the best interests of our class, throughout the close of last year and the months passed of this year

I AM PROUD to say, that with the cooperation and help of all you Juniors, our class has prospered and is rapidly becoming one of the most successful in the history of the University. We are currently engaged in the planning and production of the most spectacular most expensive and largest Junior-Senior Prom any class has ever attempted

It is with these things in mind that I once again ask for your wholehearted support and confidence. I am a candidate for the office of President of The Senior Class in the May 7 election

I FEEL that the President you choose should be one who is experienced in dealing with the problems that confront the President of a class He should be one who is qualified to deal with the problems arising from the changing of University Presidents. He should certainly be a person who has the interests of his class and University at heart.

I believe that I have these very necessary qualifications, by reason of the experience I gained by serving as your president this year, I therefore ask, for your help in re-electing Bill Weaver, President of your class, The Senior Class of 1958.

Sincerely,
BILL WEAVER,
President, Junior Class

FELLOW STUDENT,

I am Tyrel Dear and am run[n]ing for Sophomore Class Vice President Today a election day, and the success of my cam[paign] is in your hands, and an... vote from you will be deep[ly] appreciated

IN HIGH school I was acti[ve] in various organizations such as National Honor Society and H... and organized Stage Technicians, a service club. Although I played varsity football every year, it did not prevent me from making a 3.6 grade average overall and Honor Roll Thespian.

Upon entering FSU I pledged a social fraternity and served as pledge-class treasurer At the beginning of the second semester I was awarded The Outstanding Pledge Award of the Year and was made political chairman of the fraternity upon initiation Elsewhere on campus I achieved the Dean's List with a 3.3 average and was elected Junior Warden (equivalent to Vice-president of the vestry at the Episcopal Church, an office that has deep meaning for me.

FLORIDA STATE, in my estimation, is a top school but I feel that if I were elected to Sophomore Class Veep I would be able to iron out some of the flaws and promote to a higher degree of success such activities as Rat Court, Sophomore-Senior Breakfast, and various other events of the year.

I would like to have the office of Sophomore Class Vice-President to promote a better school and a better class with more unity within it. I will strive for the betterment of the Class of '60. I feel that I am the right man for this office, and I sincerely solicit your vote.

Sincerely,

Winning Season

Statistically speaking, Florida State's nine athletic teams once again had themselves a good overall year in the won-lost columns.

The winding up of spring sports and of gymnastics last month leaves only national tournaments for the tracksters, sailors, golfers on the docket.

Only two FSU athletic units, Bud Kennedy's basketball team and Keith Pitchford's tennis team had losing records, and suffered deeply from a lack of experience.

The overall 1956-57 athletic record including football (5-4-1), basketball (9-11), gymnastics (5-0-1), swimming (3-3), baseball (17-6-1), track (3-1) and golf (1-1) shows a mark of .500 for a season percentage of .500 for Seminole teams.

The 1957 volleyball record is not included, since the volleyballers count their activities in the national tournament coming this weekend at Memphis, Tenn. as part of their season schedule mark.

Pure statistical reports include of course only dual or regular meets, games or matches, and cannot show entirely the success of a university's athletic season.

They don't include the several Florida AAU triumphs chalked up by Seminole athletic teams, or the Georgia AAU victories and records.

These all add in however when you figure a school's prestige over the years, since the university began athletics in 1947, the athletic team has a losing mark, a record of which the alumni can be justly proud.

Florida State teams have run up 809 victories in the last 10 years, losing 417 times with 23 ties. This figure to a fancy .660 percentage of .661.

ET FOR NCAA

It seems to be no doubt that Danny Litwhiler's baseball team will be invited to the NCAA regionals at Columbia, S. C. which copied their 18-6 season with a 3-0 victory at Rollins.

It also seems no doubt also, however that Litwhiler will miss the services of his four seniors, Carlie Hendrix, Lee Corso, John Hunt and Fred Twomey who are ineligible for the playoffs.

Final statistics show that both Corso and Hendrix had regionally good seasons, hitting .321 and .321 respectively, thrown them three down a key 47 runs.

Corso pushed without two bats both have produced 42 native got difficulties. Best bet to replace Hendrix either second or third, is sophomore Dale Koch, who hit .333 in 42 duty.

Heavily arranged outfield will probably have Owen McGriff at his standard place in center, flanked by Riley Bevers Bob Rozell, neither of whom hit over .250.

Also posted a 1.58 earned-run average in relief duty in his season, while Twomey had his worst season here, hitting .248.

BASEBALL BRIEFS

In addition to breaking four records, the Seminoles came close to two others . . . A muddy diamond in the second game of a Miami doubleheader might have robbed Carlie Hendrix of a chance to tie the stolen base mark . . . He pilfered 13, two Braun stole 14 in 1949 . . . Dick Howser, who did just everything in the final 15-game stretch, stole 12 also this year.

McGerion came within two of tying Howser's all-time mark home runs in a season, but couldn't make it in the stretch drive. He had 36 in 102 tries for his .333 average . . . Howser, initially came on with a surge to win the team batting title in '54 . . . He produced 21 hits in his last 36 trips to the plate for a .583 batting average over the home stretch . . . He set a team RBI mark with 29 also.

Braun there is no official record of such. Jerry Boxer may set some kind of mark for the most four-hit games . . . He had two two-hitters Florida and Georgia Teachers and two three-hitters Yale and Rollins . . . A sixth inning single robbed Boxer of a no-hit tid against Yale while the first man up in the game the only hit off him at Rollins . . . For the season, he batted out 39 hits in 49 innings.

COLLEGE MEN, earn $75 per week this summer . . .

If right, you can work in or near your own home town and make per week plus a car. Interviews at the end of the month. Work for a nationally known organization. Call Duval Hotel 8 to 9 between 9 and 10 A.M. or 3 and 5 P.M. to arrange appointment. Ask for Mr. Hamilton. Do it today.

Baseballers Chalk Up 19-6 Mark

TWO IN A ROW. Shortstop Dick Howser picked up his second consecutive batting crown with a .364 average as the came on with a rush in the second half of the season. His .422 mark of last year is the school record.

Beat Miami

Cindermen Second At Florida AAU

By TOM HALE
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State's trackstars posted their fifth and last victory of the season last Friday with 83-48 win over Miami, while on Saturday Mike Long's thinclads failed in a revenge attempt against Florida as they finished second to the Gators in the State AAU meet.

In the University of Miami meet, UM's bespectacled captain, Bill Bennett, was the star as he jumped, ran, and hurdled his way to three places and a tie for another.

He edged FSU's Jack Terwilliger by three points for individual high point man. Terwilliger won the 440, 220 and placed second in the 100.

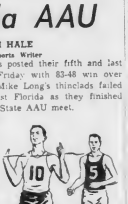
Terwilliger's 21.2 clocking in the 220 easily brought down Bennett's own track record of 23 seconds.

STEALS SHOW

For the fourth consecutive year Buddy Perkins, from Atlanta, stole the show in the AAU's as the former Georgia Tech star won three individual events and equaled a state record in another as he wound up as the meet's No. 1 pointmaker.

The veteran Yellow Jackets stepped 220 yds. in the 21.3 on a wet, muddy, field to set an AAU mark. Buddy also won on the 100 in 9.7 the dash and broad jumped.

Percy Beard's Florida team, in hot warfare with Florida State, won the team trophy by five points, 45½ to 44½. Miami followed at 18½, Tallahassee Athletic Club made up of FSU ineligibles had 13, UF Freshmen 9½ and Georgia 8.



Jim Castell of the Tallahassee AC qualified indoor to come at FSU as he won the 440 and placed second in the 220. His time of 49 seconds in the quarter stands 4 10 of a second faster than the school record he set in 1954.

CONLEY WINS

Junior Mike Conley FSU's distance great, reigned as the state mile and two mile champ his times of 4.25 and 10.08 establishing school records in both events.

Doyle Ruff set another school mark as he broke teammate Ken Seymour's 880 record of 1.57.6 by two-tenths of a second. Ruff is only a sophomore.

The FSU season record ends at two dual meet wins against one defeat, a triangular victory over Georgia and Georgia Tech and a team title in the Atlantic Coast Conference meet.

Freshman Nine Moves To 7-2

Florida State's frosh baseballers brought their season's record to 7-2 by splitting a two game series with the University of Florida freshmen Friday and Saturday at Gainesville. They lost the first one 11-10 and duplicated the baby Gators 13-12 in the second tracks.

Two six-run eplories in the fifth and eighth innings gave FSU the edge in Saturday's slugfest as Charlie Rogers and Buddy Cash each banged out four hits to lead the Seminole batsmen pail an array of three Florida pitchers.

Jim Sewell relieved Jerry Holmes in the fifth and did a workmanlike job in winning his first game of the year. He was taken out in the eighth for a pinch hitter and Phil Benson finished the last two frames.

COLLER VICTIM

On Friday Chuck Coller fell victim to Gator bats and eight errors by his teammates. He was lifted in the seventh in favor of Dr. Benson.

Benson, a rangy right hander from Pennsylvania, held Florida at bay until the bottom of the ninth. With FSU ahead 10-9 the Gators replayed two errors, three walks, and a single into two runs to win 11-10.

Seminole Golfers 6th In Southern Tourney

Florida State's golfers slipped some in the Southern Intercollegiate's over the past weekend but still finished sixth in the team standings.

Coach Don Veller's linksters were in first place in the race for the team title after the first day, but North Texas State came on with a rush to capture the title with a 587 total for the 36 holes.

The Seminoles posted a team score of 592 and finished sixth. It was the fifth time that NTS has won the event.

Sophomore Bob Shave of Wilmington Ohio finished seventh in individual play with 292 for 72 holes to lead the Tribe.

SIX MAKE IT

All six FSU players made the championship flight of 41 men with scores of 150 or lower. Other finishers in the top 20 were captain Ed Jenkins, 297, Jack Veyhle, 300 and Bob Shuman, 303.

Bunk Berry and Harry Shoemaker were the other FSU linksters entered in the meet.

A 74 o nthe second day cost Shave a chance to finish highter as he shot o 70 in the final round which was the best round for the finale.

Veller loses five of his top men next year with Bob Shave the lone returnee.

"Naturally its going to hurt us but we have some fine freshmen who are going to fill in the gaps" says Veller.

TOP FROSH

Some of the top frosh are Albert Yancy, Dave Chadwick and Phil Fasan.

The linksters' multi regular individual wins came over Auburn, Georgia Tech, Alabama, Georgia, Miami. Rollins twice an dta revenge victory over Florida.

The Gators handed the Seminoles their lone loss of the campaign 14½-12½, which broke an 11 match streak the FSU golfers had built up. They've now a return match win streak on the fire.

Ran Schamburger New Grid Captain

Roo Schomburger, veteran end, was elected captain of Florida State's football team for the coming season last Monday night.

The 6-2, 192 pound senior, and possible All-America candidate was on a landslide and Coach Tom Nugent was "very pleased" with the selection.

Last year Schomburger tied with Joe Holt in total pass receiving with 18 for 140 yards besides being a stalwart on defense.

Schomburger, a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., came to Florida State after completing two years of military service in the Army's airborne branch.

Boxer Gives 1 Hit In Season Finale

By BEN BALSER
Flambeau Sports Writer

With a 5-0 win over Rollins last Thursday, the Florida State Seminoles gained their 19th win of the year and a probable bid to the NCAA District three playoffs in June.

The same which was the last of the season for the Tribe was won by Jerry Boxer who allowed only one hit. The big right-hander struck out 12 as he picked up his sixth win of the season.

The Seminoles' final record stands at 19-6. In a bid to do their 58 record of 74-3. The Tribe captured the Florida Intercollegiate Baseball crown for the second consecutive year with a 7-1 mark.

In the Florida Invitational Tournament, sponsored by FSU, the Seminoles placed in a state way is for final place with Duke and Mississippi State.

3 TEAM MARKS

The 57 homestand did great three team records. The former team home run record formerly set at 12 in 1951 and again in 1956, was broken as this year's team hit 18.

The Tribe stole 63 bases this season setting a new record in that department four over the old record. The 57 version of the FSU diamondmen also knocked in 164 runs as compared to the old record of 154.

The team's overall batting average was .297. No record has been kept of this average through the years.

Six regular players hit better than .300 for the Tribe and one individual record was broken. Dick Howser hit .364 and set a new record of 28 as he moved to the old mark of 26.

Owen McCarron, who was headed most most of the season, hit .353 and came very close to breaking the individual record of most hits in a season. McCarron had 36 the record is 38.

Blasting the ball at a .321 clip and failing our short of the record for stolen bases, was the '57 team captain and second baseman, Carlie Hendrix.

Lee Corso finished the season with a .311 mark and Phi Hunt hit .287. Gerry Philp, a late starter who was injured the first half of the season, provided plenty of pinch power as he hit .368.

HOWSER LED

Howser's .364 average enabled him to lead the team in batting average as did last season. Hendrix led the team in home runs with four and in stolen bases.

If the Seminoles do go to the NCAA playoffs they will be minus Hendrix, Corso, Fred Twomey and John Ash who are ineligible under NCAA rules.

Jack Bristol and Jerry Boxer had 6-1 and 6-2 records respectively and led the Tribe mound corps. Boxer pitched two three-hitters and two one-hitters and had an earned run average of 1.45. He struck out 96 men in 63 innings.

Bristol who both started and relieved struck out 41 men and had an ERA of 2.25. Tom Garcia, a junior had a 3-0 record and was effective in the Florida Invitational Tournament.

The best hitting pitcher was Frank Shuaer who had a 2-1 pitching mark and a .455 batting average. Fred Kenney had a .2 mark and sophomore Rudy Kain was 1-0.

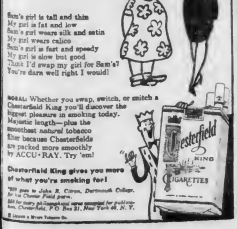
The Tribe never was beaten more than once by the same team. The victories over FSU were Florida, who the Tribe beat one game, Auburn, SEC champs, Stetson, Duke, Richards State and Miami.

Coach Litwhiler commented that he was pleased with the boys and feels sure the team would have had a better record if some of the boys had not got such a late start in gaining their old form.

Rain Washes Out 1st Playoff Round

The regular season of softball ended last Thursday on a rather wet note as there were three games played in a steady downpour.

In these games the PDT practically swam to a 13 to 8 victory over PKT. SC beat out TEP 11 to 4, and TC outlasted SPE 13 to 11.



The first rounds of the softball playoffs were rained out, therefore the whole schedule was revised and play began Monday.

In the dormitory league three games were scheduled. Pemhouse vs Pride and Parcheloor vs Vets.

In the fraternity league ATO was scheduled to meet PDT and KA or SN va PDT. The DTD's and SN's were scheduled to play a game to determine the second place team in that league Friday.

Golf got under way this week with 17 teams entered in the medal play tournament. 15 fraternity teams and 2 dorm teams were set to compete with comparison of scores to determine the winners.

etheless leadership for you, the incoming sophomores. I feel that you should have a big part in class government and would expect you to bring any complaints or suggestions to me, for personal discussion and for consideration by the offices.

I'VE BEEN active the year in Tri-Sigma Flunkies and at the Wesley Foundation, am a member of the Home Economics Club and Fashion Institute, have served on the dorm social committee, am a Flambeau staff member, and was elected chapter Sis of my pledge class. In high school I worked on the annual three years, being elected editor my senior year, held a class office, was a member of Student Council, Grammar Council, Spanish Club, Beta Club, Glee Club, and Elks Teen Chorus, enjoyed sports, did committee work, was a cheerleader, and took part in class plays.

I am sincerely earnest in seeking the office of secretary and would give this job the same enthusiasm and interest that I've always shown to other activities. I hope each of you will consider my qualifications and desire to serve and, if you feel that I deserve your support, vote for me in Tuesday's election.

Thank you,
ANNETTE McINTOSH

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMEN,

I am running for election as treasurer of the Sophomore Class. I have really enjoyed working with you this past year as your treasurer and would certainly appreciate your support in the forthcoming election.

Sincerely,
SANDY BURNS

Bradfield

DEAR FELLOW STUDENTS,

Today is the day in which you make your selection of class officers and court members for the coming year. Your decisions are most important and must be given careful consideration. One of the most important tasks to judge a candidate is by his qualifications and his former experience in regard to the office he seeks.

I AM A STUDENT Party candidate for Senior Women's Honor Court, and am very anxious to serve FSU in this capacity. My record for serving FSU in the past speaks for itself. I have served as a Sophomore Councilor, a Junior Counselor, and I will also be a Junior Counselor this coming summer. I have served on the dorm House Council for the past year and I have always maintained a 3.00 overall average in my academic work.

I am wanting another chance to serve FSU during my senior year and I hope you will seriously consider me for a position on the Senior Women's Honor Court. Remember to vote today! It is your right and your privilege!

Sincerely,
JERI BRADFIELD

Griffin

DEAR FELLOW STUDENTS:

On Tuesday, we will go to the polls to select those people who will fill the many campus offices for the year of 57-58. This is the time when we students have an opportunity to voice our opinions in the future of our university. Therefore it calls for our utmost discretion. There are a great many seeking office and we must take care to choose carefully and wisely. Because this is such a difficult task I feel that perhaps a little added information might help you to make a wise decision.

I, SARAH JANE GRIFFIN, am seeking one of the two positions open to senior women on HONOR COURT. I have been a member of Honor Court this past semester by appointment and through that, have gained a knowledge of the general procedure followed as well as an insight into the requirements for a good court member.

Our honor system is vital to each of us. It often a difficult task and it needs the support of the entire student body. With this in mind I would like to ask you to remember my experience in making our honor system a working system, to consider the value of my past experience, and to take care to select someone in whom you have utmost confidence.

Sincerely,
SARAH JANE GRIFFIN
Candidate for Senior Honor Court

Strickland

DEAR FELLOW STUDENTS,

Last year I was elected by you to be one of the junior members of the Honor Court. I feel that it has been a great privilege to have served you in this capacity and I believe that the record of the entire court is one in which you can feel pride.

NOW I COME before you again to seek your support for my re-election. The Honor Court has gained many long strides during the past year and I believe that with your help and mine, it is on the threshold of even far greater achievements. It is my sincere desire to aid the court in its further climb toward a more perfect honor system, and if I am re-elected, I promise to the best of my ability to carry out this desire.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely
BILL STRICKLAND
Candidate for
Sr. Men's Honor Court

Young

DEAR FELLOW STUDENTS

I am seeking a position on the Honor Court in the forthcoming election. In the past year, the Honor Court has taken a great step forward, and I would like to have a part in the progress it will undergo in the year to come. With your help and mine, I believe that in the near future we will have an ideal Honor System, one that all of the students will view with pride and respect. If elected I promise with all sincerity, that I will do my utmost to continue the outstanding progress made in building a respected honor system on our campus.

Thank you for your kind consideration.

Sincerely,
MIKE YOUNG
Candidate for Sr.
Men's Honor Court

R. Combs

DEAR STUDENTS,

Since there are many of you that I do not know personally, I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself and tell you of my qualifications for Junior Judiciary. This past year, I have served in student government as assistant-Attorney General and as Co-Chairman of the speakers bureau. My participation in campus activities have included: Sophomore Council, Chaplain of Alpha Lambda Delta, Inter-Faith Fellowship Council Baptist Student Union, Varsity Debate, and Tau Kappa Alpha. I feel that the experience that I have gained in these organizations would aid me in serving you in Junior Judiciary. I would appreciate your consideration and support in the coming election.

Sincerely,
RUBY COMBS
Student Party Candidate for Junior Judiciary

Key

DEAR STUDENT BODY:

SUBJECT: The KEY to a good college is P.S.U.

Having been closely associated with members of the student body while serving as secretary of Sophomore Council and Vilkee Vamps, pres- and a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, I feel that I am well qualified to serve you as a member of Women's Judiciary. Knowing that justice is the KEYnote for which we strive in our judicial system, I will, if elected, work to uphold and better the standards already set forth.

Thus as you pick your candidates for Junior Women's Judiciary on Mar. 7, I would greatly appreciate your consideration.

Sincerely,
NANCY KEY
Student Party

Baumgartner

DEAR STUDENTS:

You have read and read letters from many candidates telling you what they will accomplish IF and WHEN they are elected.

I AM A candidate for the office of Junior Womens' Judiciary, a position for which a platform would be futile.

My experiments in student government are fairly recent, this being my first year on campus. I am a transfer student from St. Petersburg Junior College.

THIS PAST semester I served on house council in Gilchrist Hall and was Floor Chairman in the same dorm. I was also on the Dean's List.

My interest in serving on Judiciary is keen. I will make judgements in all fairness and sincerity to the best of my ability.

I would appreciate your consideration and support in the coming election.

Respectfully,
BARBARA BAUMGARTNER
Jr. Women's Judiciary Candidate.

Pinckard

FELLOW STUDENTS—

As Student Party candidate for Junior Women's Judiciary I would like to urge each of you to go to the polls and vote in today's elections. Vote for the candidate you feel will do the most for the job. Your representation in the elections today is essential for a democratic Student Government.

Very sincerely,
DENSE PINCKARD

J. Combs

DEAR STUDENTS,

I am seeking the office of Sophomore Judiciary. I feel that I have the interest, experience, and ability that a member of this court must possess. In the past year I have gained valuable experience in many phases of campus life. I am now a member of sophomore council, Vilkee Vamps and circus. In addition I have served on dorm committees, Intellagent Week committee, Baptist Student Union, and have served as pledge class president for my sorority. I am eager to serve you and will appreciate your support in this election.

Sincerely,
JOYCE COMBS,
Candidate for Sophomore Judiciary

Jordan

DEAR STUDENTS,

Today you will all vote for school court members and I would appreciate it if you would consider me for Sophomore Class Women's Judiciary. My activities and honors for this year are as follows: recently tapped Sophomore Council member and newly elected Treasurer of of the same organization, Dean's list, Vice-president of my Student Religious House, recipient of my orority's best Pledge Award, Circus member, Publicity Chairman for Interfaith Fellowship, a member of the Publicity Committee for Intellagent Faith Week, and a first semester member of the Flambeau Staff.

I would like very much to have this opportunity to serve you on Women's Judiciary. Thank you for your support.

SINCERELY,
JILL JORDAN

1957 Staff Exits In Wild Flurry

This front page represents what is known in journalism as "wild make-up" or unrestrained lay-out.

There is a reason.

This is the last issue being published by the graduating editors Charles Poster-ini, next year's editor and her staff will assume office with Tuesday's paper and publish the remaining editions of May 14, 17, and 21.

'GOLDIE' OBSERVES FLOUNDERING FEMMES

Fountain 'Runneth Over' At Mass Pool Party

By GOLDIE THE GOLDFISH

(As told to Oscar Johnson in special Flambeau interview.)

Things are really getting rough for us Westcott Fountain goldfish. The other night we had to swim for our lives while a couple of hundred inconsiderate students thrashed around in our home. We didn't like it.

Flambeau Art. Martin Dyckman

ABOVE—Hapless coed gets carried toward Westcott fountain pool after making mistake of standing around watching proceedings during 'pool party' Tuesday. Other innocent bystanders' also got thrown in.

Pool Party Scenes

AT RIGHT—Student cluster around pool in various states of dress ,undress, excitement, dejection and anticipation. Shouted war cries could be heard for blocks as well over one hundred students took the plunge.

(Note: FSU students held a mammoth "pool party" Tuesday night (Tues 6:30 to 7:45.)

It's not that goldfish object to students visiting us occasionally. Especially if it's for a good reason like a pinning. But that night it was too much. It seems like every local Seminole went for a Westcott swim—simply and in groups.

And what for?—no reason at all, just Spring Fever. Might as well have a panty raid.

(Note: The Spring pool party might be called FSU's version of the "panty raid".)

We goldfish, after a while, get to know you students. Since we get visited pretty regularly by representatives of every fraternity and sorority (plus a few unidentified specimens) we're experts at telling who is what.

During the recent madhouse, even we couldn't keep up with the rapid sequence of events.

(Note: Neither could Flambeau reporters. There are almost as many versions of what happened that night as there were students thrown in the pool.)

Since you really want to know, though, here's what happened, as best as I can remember don't forget, I was having a pretty rough time of it that night.

The Theta Chis were drinking a few members who had been ponied. This attracted the attention of quite a few spectators, who gathered around to watch. Then the KAs started throwing a few in. At this point somebody grabbed a coed (here her in, and that really started it.

(Note: Flambeau news editor Martin Dyckman, taking pictures of a certain student government official in the pool, was pointed out as a likely prospect for a dip. But he kept a death grip on the camera and nobody would throw him in while he had it.)

Goldie's note: Dyckman got his later that night. Gold Key took care of him. He almost landed on me coming in.

To continue with my tale, I estimate that more than 10,000 FSU lassies took a trip into the drink before the party was over. This was accompanied by much yelling, running around, etc. I was pretty busy myself, getting out of the way.

Funniest thing about it was, nobody cared whether he knew who he was throwing in after a while. It was like wild.

There was a tremendous traffic jam at the gate, and I saw that poker-faced campus policeman unconcernedly directing traffic as best he could while the melee went on. Then "they" began pulling people out of cars.

(Note: Just their friends.)

I saw one coed—a cheerleader, I think—take off like a scared swordfish I thought she had outrun her friends, but later on she came in.

Being the chivalrous type, I might as well admit at this point that I thought some of you coeds might get a little peeved at all the goings-on.

But you were amusing as you hit the drink—To me it even looked like you enjoyed it.

(Note: Some of them paid for it as witness a line at the infirmary Wednesday morning for treatment for colds, runny noses, etc.)

I think you get the idea by now. Just imagine men airdenie, the shirts torn from their backs, running around grabbing people at random to throw them in the crowd cheering with each dunking then someone grabs you coeds running into Westcott Building, hiding in closets others doing brief dances on the fountain's upper rim after getting thrown in, just a general bad scene.

Though I shudder at the thought, I'd even rather go through one of those tee-dunking parties.

PIANIST AND COMPOSER—Ryan Edwards, who will give his own recital Monday night, sits at piano while discussing new piano sonata he will play with its composer, Dennis Floyd Floyd, on leave from the faculty with a Rockefeller Guggenheim composing fellowship, has been Edwards teacher for nine years. Edwards will also play Mozart's Sonata in D Major, K. 311; Chopin's Sonata in B minor, opus 58 and Beethoven's Sonata in E minor, opus 90. The public recital will begin at 8:15 p.m. in Copperman Music Hall.

40% VOTE TURNOUT SAID GOOD; RUN-OFFS, DISPUTED RACE TUESDAY

Swelled by a large turnout of freshmen, about 40 per cent of the Student Body turned out to vote in Tuesday's class, court, and Senate elections.

Elections officials viewed this as a good turnout. Most seniors said secretary of elections Mimi McCulloch, "were probably unaware they could vote on the courts."

491 FOR SENIORS

The 491 seniors-to-be who appeared at the polls elected Bill Weaver president. The Student Party candidate defeated Hank McCune, of the Collegiate Party, 282 to 191.

Present sophomores voting for next year's offices numbered 881; freshmen 1,003.

A total of 2,375 ballots were thus cast for class offices; 2,288 for the courts. Many students did not cast court ballots, so it is impossible to estimate how many graduating seniors voted, said Miss McCullough.

ONE PROTEST

Only one race has been contested, and it will be repeated in next Tuesday's run-offs.

Bill Smith, who trailed the lowest of his three opponents for Sophomore judiciary by only 35 votes, protested that the place for voters to mark his name on the ballot had been obscured. Smith, and Sheldon Prettwell, John Grumpert and Pace Ramsey will battle it out again Tuesday for the three seats.

ROCHE ELECTED

Bill Roche defeated Floyd Palmer for senior vice-president. Barbara Chambers was elected secretary.

Adria Ann Whittle, with 163 votes and Barbara McCartney, with 139, came out a third candidate and will compete in the run-offs for treasurer.

Linda Broderick was elected senior social chairman.

SENATE

Don Lewis was re-elected to Senate for the seniors. Also voted in are Graham Teschke, Diane Lutsmer and Kate Ramsey were named senior women's senators.

Phil Kniskern, running with strong Collegiate Party support, defeated Bob Kanaly 364-187 for Junior Class president.

VEEP SLOT

Bill Bunkley and Tricia Taylor will contest the vice-presidency in Tuesday's final elections. Diane Williams and Nancy Fowler were named junior secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Victor Barke was elected social chairman for the juniors, and Gerry Gordon and Mike Copps winning re-election to the Senate. Pat Maguire and Arla Karen Wall

Vindicated Vance Still Faces Firing

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Despite a faculty committee recommendation that he not be fired, Professor Earl Vance may have difficulty in keeping his job.

The Committee on Professional Relations and Standards recommended this week that Vance be given a position in some other department, President Doak S. Campbell said announced he would ask the Board of Control to fire Vance as a professor of journalism.

The committee said evidence presented to it during a twoday hearing last month was not enough to bear out the charge Vance is and has been noncooperative with and antagonistic toward the policies and the program of the School of Journalism.

But it recommended that, because of tension and disagreement between Vance and the journalism dean and faculty, he be transferred to another department.

REQUESTS MADE

Dr. Doak S. Campbell, Florida State University president, said this week that specific requests have been made of the deans of the University to find teaching assignments for Mr. Vance, but in each instance they have indicated their unwillingness to assign him work in their division.

"We shall be glad, of course, to make requests of the deans to give further consideration to possible teaching assignments for Mr. Vance."

AWAITS BOARD MEET

Dr. Campbell's office yesterday said he had no further statement to make and would announce no further action until after the Board of Control meeting next Thursday.

Neither Dr. Campbell nor the Board are bound to observe the recommendation of the faculty committee. The FSU constitution provides for the committee to act in an advisory capacity.

'SERIOUS CAUSE'

The committee said Vance, who has been on the faculty 23 years and formerly headed the Department of Journalism, is a permanent member of the faculty and "may be dismissed only for serious cause and on the basis of written and specific charges."

The committee ruled that the administration was within its rights in bringing charges against Vance if the "non-cooperation" could be proved of "persistent character."

'REASONABLE' DIFFERENCE

"Personal prejudices or reasonable differences of professional opinion do not justify

Annual Delivery Slated May 27

Ray Hemans, business manager of the Tally Ho said this week the yearbook will be delivered on time and according to contract on May 27, and will be given out that week by the Tally Ho staff, probably in Louisiana.

All the work was finished and sent to the engravers and printers several weeks ago and everything is going on schedule," said Hemans.

After the proof was checked by Tally Ho members Hemans added "they judged the caliber of photographs to be far superior to any other year and the students should be well pleased.

He credited editor Barbara Ayala, who is serving in Tampa with a "fine job" to getting the book to the printers.

Dead Week Begins Monday

Dead Week will beam Monday, May 13.

Replies to a questionaire sent last semester to all organizations on campus by Morris Board, leadership and scholarship honorary for Junior and senior women, indicated that a majority of the groups felt it would be advisable to bring extra-curricular activities to a minimum during the week preceding final exams, according to Evelyn Moll.

During this time traditionally known as Dead Week, other measures will be taken to encourage study, including prevention of excess noise in dormitories.

Senate Vetoes NSA In Stormy Session

By JIM McINTYRE

Membership in the National Student Association was turned down by a 13-10 vote in a Student Senate session Wednesday.

The vote came at the close of lengthy debate introduced by the reading of a committee report to Senator Dick Crawford which urged the Senate to drop consideration of membership in the controversial organization.

Crawford, in his report, mentioned several advantages that the committee felt might be gained from membership in NSA, but after reviewing alleged disadvantages he said they just didn't result from affiliation. He said that no further consideration be given to joining NSA.

TO TABLE

Senator Priscilla Moss immediately moved to table the motion until a later date in order for senators to familiarize themselves with the details involved. The motion was defeated.

Vice-president Jim Soles then explained the various reports he had been made in years past by himself and others who have attended NSA conventions. His statement was in reply to Women's vice-president Carolyn Cone's charge that Soles' separate report was the only one ever filed Miss Cone, who sup-

HAS HE ABANDONED SWEETHEART?—Martin Lies (left) as Jenik, hero of "The Bartered Bride," is jeered by chorus after seemingly abandoning his hopes for pretty heroine Marie for a sum in gold. At table are Peter Peck, as Kezal, a marriage broker, and Norman Turner, as Marie's father who hopes to wed her to the portly son of a wealthy land owner. But the contract contains a trick clause resulting in a happy ending. Below, Jenik tries to tell Marie, sung by Mary Jane Marriott, that his love is sincere. Opera will be given tonight and tomorrow in Westcott, beginning at 8:15 p.m. and at 2:15 p.m. tomorrow with a different cast. "The Bartered Bride", to be sung in English, was written by Bedrich Smetana.

Nominations End Today

Today is last day for Seniors to nominate classmates for the "Outstanding Boy and Girl in the Senior Class" contest.

Nominee's names should be submitted at the Leonardo directly after before 5 p.m. according to Kay Ramsey, contest chairman.

Miss Ramsey says four outstanding qualifications should be taken into consideration in the campus leadership, service to the student body and campus, scholarship, spirit of team work and cooperation, and promise for future success.

The final vote will be taken Tuesday along with the regular class court, and senate run-offs.

The winners will be announced at a banquet Junior-Senior from Saturday night. The formal banquet will be held in the Men's Gym from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. with Ralph Marterie and his orchestra furnishing the music.

Pershing Rifles Pick Marks

Next year's officers for Pershing Rifles Army ROTC honorary for freshmen and sophomores, were chosen last week.

Serving will be Thomas Marks, Captain-President; Perry Penn, Executive Officer-Vice President and Second Lieutenant Alan Revis, and Claude Grizard, in charge of administration and supplies, respectively.

AKP To Initiate Collins At Dinner

Governor LeRoy Collins will become an honorary member of Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional business fraternity, at a dinner meeting tonight.

Percy Steele, president of the FSU chapter, will officiate at the ceremony, scheduled for 6:30 p.m. in the Suwannee Room tonight.

Speakers will be President Doak S. Campbell and Bill Norwood, president of the Tallahassee FSU Alumni Association.

A number of prominent Tallahasseans have been made honorary members of the chapter in previous years, including former governor Millard Caldwell, Attorney General Richard Ervin, Treasurer J. Edwin Larson Supreme Court Justice B. K. Roberts, and President Campbell.

The initiation-dinner tonight, followed by a dance tomorrow night at the Floridan Hotel, will be the highlights of the AKPsi weekend. The campus chapter has 67 active members.

Senate's Decision Against Joining NSA Shows Lack Of Clear Thinking On Topic

Clear-thinking people were Student Senate's minority Wednesday.

A majority vote disposed of the possibility of joining NSA after victims of the segregation neurosis waited about NSA's pro-integration policies and victims of the communist hysteria protested NSA allows even communists freedom of speech.

Some day Senate will learn there is more to the United States than what is south of the Mason-Dixon line and that the beginning and end of wisdom is not to "always vote with the crowd."

Until then, we suggest Senate invite the Florida Legislature to an interposition party. The two rational deliberative bodies would get along famously.

Incidentally, it sounded to observers as if there was acute disagreement between Student Body President Dave Bachman and President-elect Arnold Greenfield as they spoke to the Senate concerning NSA. Bachman, it seemed, felt FSU should join — that if NSA has faults, we will not solve them by retreating into our turtle-shell.

Greenfield, on the other hand, spoke directly against our joining (though he went to pains to state there was no disagreement between Bachman and he.) This was surprising from a candidate who before his election appeared to be an NSA advocate. But at least Greenfield's argument went along the line that SNA doesn't offer enough advantages to be worth the money — a point of view that is perhaps correct, perhaps not — and he avoided the obscure reasoning of some of the senators.

Could the "solid" Student Party be split over NSA?

Letters From Candidates Fail To Give Enough Information To Vote Wisely

We bescate to use a "now it can be told" technique, but we could not let the candidates' letters to the Flambeau situation pass without comment.

Those who read the last edition will remember the letters, since they took up all of page four and a good part of page two. Taking a typical one at random and de-emng particulars, the letters go like this:

"I am running for election of the class. I have really enjoyed working with you this past year as your and would certainly appreciate your support in the forthcoming election. Sincerely, ." This is supposed to give the voters sufficient insight into the issue at stake to vote wisely.

Not all of the letters are this short. The longer ones impart more information, but one is apt to run across such additional intelligence as "On Tuesday we will go to the poles . . ." (one is left in doubt as to whether the writer meant the North Pole or the South Pole both); "Florida State, in my estimation, is a top school . . ." (the voters were no doubt glad to hear this)—and the list could go on.

In another letter in Tuesday's paper, 17 students endorsed a candidate. Seven of the names typed at the bottom of the letter were misspelled — which justifies at least some doubt as to the authority of the signatures.

The whole situation is worth considering; if the letters cannot be of substantial value in helping the voters they perform no function. Publishing them means other things get left out. Perhaps in the future the decisions will be made to cease offering space for letters of candidacy.

Injury Could Occur At Westcott Fountain

Some young men observe the coming of spring by composing beautiful love letters to their ladies fair, real or imagined.

But at Florida State University this is too old-fashioned.

Our stalwart males celebrate spring by throwing every young lady whom they can catch into Westcott Fountain.

Education Profs Don't Know Subject

TO THE EDITOR:

Each year a number of Education majors go to junior high or elementary to Florida High School student

SINCE THE SCHOOL of Education requires that a certain amount of hours must be derived to major, it is assumed the teacher knows chemistry. In other words, to teach chemistry, one must know chemistry as well as Education. Since they equate 3 hours chemistry to 24 hours Education, they give the impression that one hour of chemistry equals three hours of Education, thereby ranking Education with ROTC where it belongs.

Now, to teach others to teach chemistry, one must be able to relate chemistry content to the Education. Besides the prospective chemistry teacher is forced to take. To relate these courses, one must know therefore chemistry as well as Education, or as it would logically seem. In other words, how can the School of Education teach students how to teach chemistry without knowing chemistry itself?

I will wager that not one of the "PhD's" in the School of Education can pass the Entrance test administered by the FSU department of chemistry to its candidates for graduate study. Qui custodiet ipsos custodes? Qui docent ipsos doctors?

Hits Misunderstanding

DEAR STUDENTS.

This is a letter to try and help clear up a misunderstanding which seems to be developing concerning my financial affairs in this recent election. The candidates for Senate are allowed the sum of $25.00 to cover the expenses of campaigning. It has been rumored to the effect that I have spent more than this sum for the campaign, and I would like to set the record straight up this misunderstanding. After purchasing my bills for the campaign, here is what I have spent:

One rubber stamp—$1.30 - Did not use

One lot plain badges and buttons—$7.20 Did not use badges and only about three-fourths of the buttons

Printed matter: Posters, Blotters, and Pencils $12.98

Masking tape—$1.00

Paper—The

What I had to use totals—$24.50 ± What I did use totals—$24.50 ±

It is therefore shown that I have not gone above my budget and still have $0.50 remaining. I sincerely hope that this rumor, which has now been proved false has been straightened out in the minds of those that questioned my finances.

Sincerely yours,
PAT MICKLER
Candidate for re-election to Sophomore Senate.

Thank You

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMEN:

I realize that the vote you gave me in the first primary. The results have given me the much more desire to serve you as your senator next year. Florida State is a democratic institution of learning and I feel there are many modern improvements needed in our school. If elected by you in Wednesday's run-off I will strive to do the best job as your representative. You, fellow classmen, are the ones who will decide the senate race next Tuesday. I would appreciate all the support you give me. Here's hoping for the best on those finals. Have a happy and safe vacation!

RONNIE CLARK
Candidate for Sophomore Senate

FRESHMEN:

To all my wonderful friends in the freshman class I extend my heartfelt thanks for the support given me in Tuesday's primary. With your continued support, both verbal and at the polls, my CORE campaign promise — to work assiduously to make every function of the sophomore class a conspicuous success, will be fulfilled.

Sincerely,
KEN PRESCOTT

Criticism Cards At Morrison's?...

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

It should be obvious to most Florida State University students that Morrison's Food Service is not like a typical Morrison's cafeteria.

There are, of course, such manifest factors as quality and substantially lower cost of food. But the difference is subtler, most doesn't have to do with the food.

In their big-time, assumedly money-making cafeterias, where lines move rapidly and the bus boys move even faster, each table has on it a card inviting the diner to advertise thereon comments and criticisms and post in the nearest mailbox to Morrison's GHQ.

OF COURSE, the Seminole Club does not have these and they are not to be found either in the Student Center, Soda Shop, or at the West Hall snack bar.

One can well imagine what commercial might be received were Morrison's sufficiently interested in their student public relations. Let's just take what could be an average day's return from patrons of the Seminole Club:

"Dear Sirs, won't you please drop dead? I just did."

"EVER SINCE the middle ages the western people have been used to adequate amounts of salt and pepper. Please get help."

"It might help if the waiters were some steam in the steam table."

"I'm not saying your prices are too high, but this is FSU, not the University of Miami."

"Are you serious about these cards?"

* * *

"WERE THESE ears prepared?"

* * *

"If what I paid 15 cents for was born of worries, It was great, but if it was a piece of pie I think I was overcharged."

"Send your rolls to Charlie Wilson. He can just feed them to the Russians and they won't need to draft us."

"IF WE HAVE to clear off our own tables can't we at least get a rebate on the price?"

"You'd better have this attic checked. There are vultures circling around the roof."

"Monsieur! You claim you serve French dressing! I, Pierre, will write my uncle. He is ambassador. This means war, Zut!"

"Your ork-and-roll lookbos as real score man. It is real crazy dinner music! I really did start dancing on tables, man. K-rips, the music majors out. Resal george."

"SHOULDN'T you call it lead ice instead of iced lead?"

* * *

"Gentlemen, I never thought I would think well of my old army mess sergeant. Until today."

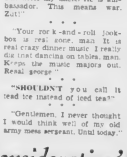
ShowFSU'Consideration'

TO THE EDITOR:

The last issue of the Flambeau contained an article by Martin Dyckman called "Does State Buy Students Minds" I have every respect for writer Dyckman's opinions and views but the article as presented was not a factual report of our talk.

MY CASE is this.

A That the most important problem before institutional education today is the segregation issue, in that it involves basic changes in institutions costing millions of dollars and hundreds of years of tradition.



B That for over 100 years FSU has been building a reputation in which we as present students have participated little or no short four year term.

C. THAT the taxpayers of our state, whose views are vividly seen in our state legislature, pay in excess of 8 million dollars per year to support this institution.

D Consequently if the N. S. A. stand on integration is as strong as it presently seems then we students don't have the right to throw the full influence of FSU, as an institution, into such a controversial issue because we, as we have had relatively little to do with the making of FSU's reputation

I specifically pointed out to Martin that the State should not, by its means, exercise even partial control over the minds of students individually. A major criteria for education is free individual thought. I do believe, that we owe some consideration to our many past graduates and supporters on an institutional level. This would put no pressure on any student's thoughts and would emphasize the "State Buying Student's Minds." My stand is one of moderation—a total policy to give institutional consideration.

Sincerely,
BOB MURRAY

Letter Of Gratitude Is Student's Adios

By JUAN L. LOPEZ

In October 11, 1952, I went to my first class of the first year of the Medical School at Havana University. It was a day of happiness in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Lopez. Their younger son was going to be a doctor.

During the first semester I was elected member of the student government and the borrow member of a team. The "Team" was composed of seven student students. It was a medical team to take care of the poor in the Havana University Hospital. I learned many things about medicine and specially I learned to love my fellowmen and protect them from the else and evil politicians.

THE WORK at the hospital was very interesting and to heal was for me something like my religion. I learned that only God is the one who cures and save lives, we could only put things together and wait for the results. "God was the Healer."

During my second year, after the "team" finished operating an emergency case, Dr. Sacasa, my teacher, congratulated me for my work as the anesthetic administrator. At that moment I thought about my future: I was on my way to be a Medicine Doctor. But they had prepared for me another life . . .

A few days after my success in the operating room, the police of my country put on the Havana University Student governments a reformation. It was a terror time that we committed was the same that Lincoln, Juarez, Martin and Bolivar were guilty of. We the students, were fighting for a dictator, a regime of government. Many days in jail, in which the only our hands, did not stop us from having our meetings and protesting the people from criminal government and sickness. That was our job.

The criminal repression of the government was so tremendous that I had to get exile in the Embassy of Argentassy. In order to save my life, and from that Student government only hundred remained in Cuba, the rest hidden from the police or in exile with me in Mexico.

ONCE IN Mexico I worked for the Red Cross and a doctor from Latin-America. I also registered in the University of Mexico, even though I knew that I could not possibly pay the tuition fee But what I could do if my desire to become a doctor was more than the fact that I did not have enough food for one complete meal a day. I still remember all the people who gave me their sympathy and fraternal love.

When the situation was more critical, I first heard about FSU. After two long years of interchanging letters with Dr. Carr, I left Mexico for Florida to come to FSU.

After I bought my ticket to Tampa, I had only $5 in Tallahassee. I had left in my pocket 7 cents. So I bought some jelly and crackers for the 2,000 miles trip.

During my stay I did not suffer from hunger; I thought about my family and that they had in America. I was thinking in America in any hospital at Tallahassee, even if I have to clean the floors; at least I would work for a good hospital and after I am an M.D. planning to stay I might be the director.

But I am living my dreams till I met Dr. James Carr

WITH VERY poor English I tried to see Thanny and Dr. Carr. But he was more interested about the situation of the FSU at that moment and almost $400.00 to be paid for the offside registration I do not know how that was solved but I am sure that in the next issue of the went to all the business offices in the University and thought I had a scholarship somewhere. Finally when the classes resumed I was informed even though I realized at that moment that I did not understand English.

At the beginning I thought I was in the wrong place, that I did not teach me medicine; they were teaching me about mathematics, chemistry and English. So I want to see my counselor and he explained to me: "Here are only teachers Medical, teach will take you from three to four years and then you will be able to go to a medical School, but to keep good academic work."

So I worked for four years at smart studyins medicine easin

But I decided to be a M D even if I had to learn grammar school easin. . . .

It was so nice to live in this country where everything was so good and democratic, that I did not need think to 4 times to make FSU my home.

For a chance I ate every day and studied in a very nice and warm room. The days passed one after another and I considered myself very rich in happiness This was a land of opportunities; a land of freedom; a land of democracy and friendship. That was my only ambition in life and at last I found my paradise . . . I was studying in an American University.

Now, two years later as realize how difficult it is to be a doctor in America I am very sad because I have to say: Good-bye, Florida, to this good country For one who loves medicine as I do it is only one way to go But before leaving I have to say a word to all who helped me . . . Just a word of gratitude. . . .

GRATITUDE to Mr Wilam Killeen, Deputy Mayor of Miami City, for helping me to get a job in the Medics Center of Jersey City. Gratitude To the medical staffs of the 14 and 16 floors which gave me good training and new techniques in the care of the sick.

Gratitude to Mr Elbert N Mathews and Mr George W Ivey from the Rotary Club of St Petersburg for their wonderful demonstration of friendship to foreign students

Gratitude to Miss Princess Wilson, R N and the staff of the Edwards Tuberculosis Hospital for the opportunity I got in the treatment of T B

Gratitude to Miss J Greene, R N and Nurses Staff of the Tallahassee Memorial Hospital for the work they let me do with patients.

Gratitude to President Campbell for giving me the honor of being a student of Florida State.

Gratitude to Dr Paul Reynolds for the education and moral advice received from him.

Gratitude to Dr. Hartley for the letting me be a member of the best gymnastic team of the United States

Gratitude to Dr Karl Dittmer for letting me be an assistant student of his Chemistry Dept.

Gratitude to Dr. James Carr for giving me an opportunity to do much help in all the respects of life and for showing me the tremendous friendship of the American people

Gratitude to my teachers for the wonderful learning I have got from them and gratitude for the good grades received in the Science Courses and Nurses in the English courses

Gratitude to the American Students who listen to my talks about friendship

Gratitude to the American Jews, Protestants and Catholics who showed me how to serve the Lord.

Gratitude to the Governor and people showing a country of Liberty and Democracy

Gratitude in general to all the A A A . . . "To the American brothers" . . . the ones who built this country and being always anonymous working the land show me the Greatness of the United States of America

Gratitude also to my neighbors who let me walk with them my little knowledge of Medicine

Gratitude to all and a promise that in my Cuban Fatherland America will have in the second

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Juan Lopes, president of the International Student Club, has written this letter of appreciation prior to his leaving FSU at the end of the semester. We feel the letter is worth printing in full because it expresses a love for America and its ideals so often found lacking in the country's native-born sons and daughters.

Whatever Juan does in the future, we believe he will respect the principles of democracy and fair play that are evident in his thinking. He is a credit to FSU and this country.

We Need Tradition

A large part of athletics is tradition. This is particularly true of university athletics, because of the tradition of the ivy-covered walls etc.

All universities have awards of some kind or another which are given to outstanding athletes, as well as scholars, upon graduation and which an athlete can look back to after his graduation. Every university that is, except this one.

There have been numerous attempts in the last few years to establish an athlete-of-the-year award, either for the most outstanding senior athlete or just for the most outstanding athlete senior or otherwise.

In almost all cases they have failed. This has been true usually because of a lack of university support. And where else would the support come from?

In these columns last year, we attempted to start the athlete-of-the-year idea by presenting our candidates for the most outstanding in each sport.

We'll do this again this year, and I expect it will draw about as much notice as it did last year. Practically none, except from the boys whose pictures made the paper as the ones selected.

The International Club last we heard had instigated a movement to select the outstanding senior athlete, in every sport and for the school as a whole.

LACK OF FUNDS

The movement evidently died from want of interest or funds for a trophy, or both. I was supposed to be a member of the committee, but to my knowledge said committee never met.

I think it is a fine idea for the International Club to start such a movement. It would be fine with me if every club in the school did something similar. Everybody might get a trophy of one kind then.

However, I firmly believe it is the university's job to establish some kind of an official trophy for athletes of this year.

To my knowledge, the only sport which selects an outstanding athlete is gymnastics, with its Scotty Stanton Award for the person contributing most to the team during the year.

Quite a few of the other teams often express their appreciation for a job well done with the naming of captains after the season is out. That's all, though.

This is something the university should do something about. When a guy leaves the university, he likes to have something to look back on besides his fraternity pin, and the numerous letters for varsity sports.

A simple trophy, or plaque which says "job well done" though not in so many words will do the trick. I think any athlete who has done an exceptional job for four years here deserves that, at least along with the plaudits from newspaper reporters and his coach.

When the athletic department finally gets its confused setup running smoothly, it's something for the big wigs to think about.

And we mean it seriously!

PENNSYLVANIA STOCK

Here's another baseball story we came across in our scanning of old books and such. They tell the one about Casey Stengel gonna the days he was managing the Toledo ball club in the minors.

The team had been in one of its customary losing streaks when Casey announced after another loss: "Boys you'd better get some Pennsylvania railroad stock." When one of the ball players asked Case if he had a good tip, he replied:

No, but tonight I'm going to stop so many of you guys out on the Pennsylvania Railroad that I figure they'll make enough money to announce a new dividend.

Golfers Meet Auburn To Close Campaign

Florida State University's golf team closes out its 1957 season tomorrow when they face Auburn away seeking their ninth win of the campaign and their eighth straight.

The Tigers and Seminoles have met once this season here at Tallahassee with the Trice winning handily 20-1.

Coach Don Veller is planning a few personnel changes for the match and will use Billy Shelton, a native Alabaman and possibly Dave Morris, who turned in a fine round against Rollins.

Five linksters will be playing the final dual match of their college career. The seniors are captain Ed Jenkins Bunk Berry, Jack Vrazel, Bob Shuman and southpaw champion Harry Shoemaker.

Bob Shava is the lone returning regular.

The lone date remaining on the schedule is the NCAA so-

Confusion Clouds Softball Openers; Vets Club Forfeits

Penthouse Nips Feds; SAE, SC Victors In Frat Division

The softball playoffs finally got underway this week with much confusion and mishap.

In the dorm league the Vets Club, which had won their first two playoff games, got caught using an ineligible player and was forced to forfeit those games. This little mishap made it necessary to start the playoffs back at the second round.

In the first round games the Penthouse defeated their close rivals, the Feds, by a score of 6-4, and the Psychology Dept. won their game from the Vets by a forfeit.

Since the Vets are out of the playoffs the Feds get a bye in the losers bracket, and must play the loser of the Penthouse-Psychology Dept.

FRAT DIVISION

In the fraternity division the ATO's downed the DTD's in a close first round game 6-5. In the other first round game, the PDT's beat the SN's in a fine game 2-1.

In the second round of play the SAE's who had drawn a first round bye, beat ATO 3-2.

The SC's came through with what might be called an upset, by beating the PDT's 2-1. Joe Ervin was the hero in all their runs with a double in the fourth inning.

All dorm teams wishing to enter horseshoes must report to the courts on the east side of the Men's gym at 5:30 Monday, May 13.

The fraternity horseshoe double elimination tournament is slated to begin Monday May 13 at 4 p.m.

★ ★ ★ Spikers Take National Title

Florida State's crack volleyball team yesterday won its second National Intercollegiate title, at Memphis, Tenn.

The Seminole volleyballers under Bill Odgood defeated George Williams College of Chicago, 15-9, 15-13, 15-2 in the final round.

The high-flying Tribe netters moved through the double elimination tournament without a loss, handling the experts who had been seeded them first prior to the meet.

The other national title for Odgood's crew came in 1953. Last year they finished third in the NCAA.

Odgood's volleyballers lost only five times this season, all to a crack Nashville team.

★ ★ ★ Showers Slow Softball Tilts

Women's intramural sports were held up last week due to showers, but some of the softball games and tennis matches did get to be played.

In softball West Landis beat Reynolds, 5-2; the Chi Os pulled out a close one over Pi Beta Phi, 3-2; GPB won easily over AGD, 15-2; DG abstain; ADPi, 1-0; Florida abstained; Byron, 5-0.

Pi Beta Phi won in the ninth again, this time from DG, 3-1; AGD defeated the DZs, 6-4 and Broward edged out Murphree, 1-0.

In Tennis singles, Garrett beat Hayden 6-1; Kaminis lost to Welsh 6-3 and Pritchard won by default from Chapman.

In the finals of the doubles are Archibald and McDonald who defeated Merrimon and Briner, 6-2 and the team of Bava and Magnuson which won by default from Graham and Morrell.

In the recent all-Florida college women's sports day at Miami, Florida State was the volleyball title over women from the University of Miami, Barry and St. Petersburg JC.

In tennis doubles Lolly Villaste and Nadine Vera and the first place with Rollins and Betty Harrel and Di Darnell won the badminton doubles by defeating Miami.

Frosh, Jax Nines To Vie Tomorrow

The Florida State baseball freshmen wind up their 1957 season tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 on Seminole Field where they will host Jacksonville University in a single game.

Paul Bertolucci is slated to start for the baby Seminoles and will enter the contest with a 1-1 record.

In his only start the strong right hander blanked Troy State Teachers College. His loss was in relief of Cutler against the University of Florida last weekend.

Leading the frosh batters in their season finale is Charlie Rosen, the team's first baseman. The lanky lefthanded batter is hitting at a .444 clip hanging out 22 hits in 50 trips to the plate.

Tribe Gymnasts Place Fourth In National AAU Competition

By MIKE PLATTIS

The Florida State gymnasts ended another successful season Saturday, by gaining fourth place honors in the NAAU's, held in Chicago.

The senior gymnast Tech tying them in mat a near from Ohio wound up with an perfect record. In NCAA competi- eighth place in the all-around to tion the FSU gymnasts settled lead FSU scoring.

for third place behind powerful Illinois and Penn State.

In the NAAU finals Saturday the Los Angeles Turners, with their Olympic-studded line ran off with team honors scoring 82½, and FSU 71½.

ONLY MEDAL

Rafael Lecuona won the only medal for the Seminoles by plac-

Other Florida State scorers were Don Preisser, fourth in trampoline; Jerry Addison, fifth in tumbling and Laird Anderson, fifth in rope climb. Anderson's time of 9.8 seconds was the best time ever recorded by any FSU gymnast in competition.

Dr. Hartley Price said that "the Seminoles fourth place finish might be attributed to the fact that there was a revision of the 1956 rules governing the point system.

RULE CHANGES

"Under the 1956 point set up the first ten places in the qualifying round qualified for competition in the finals Saturday.

"This it would be possible for a man scoring ninth or tenth in the qualifying round to come back and win or place high in the finals.

"However, this year only the top six qualifying rules could enjoy the finals. This definitely hurt us because we had so many gymnasts on the prime area, seventh, eighth, and ninth."

The gym coach concluded that "to make a long story short under the '56 rules we would have been able to enter all of our 14 men in the finals."

On the Seminoles performances in the national events Price said, "I am satisfied to finish in the top six in both the NCAA and the NAAU. Our trouble is getting born in some here!"

Exam Pressure Puts Squeeze On Parties

With less than two weeks to go before exams, the campus is beginning to call the year's party machine to a temporary halt. However, there are still a few grouns yet to get in their yearly quota of fun and festivities.

The round of activities will begin at the Delta Tau Delta house tonight as the annual Rainbow Ball dance gets underway. Trophies for active and pledge of the year are to be awarded and the Deli queen and her court will be named.

More than 150 members and guests are expected to participate in the dance and a softball game and hamburger fry scheduled tomorrow behind the house. Later in the day the Delts will return to a transformed Deli house as a theme decorated for the Mardi Gras.

The Deli weekend will be climaxed with a trip to Panama City Sunday morning.

Before we go any further, a correction must be made. Last week the wrong group are credited for entertaining Ralph Flanagan. The Pi Kappa Phi's entertained the orchestra. Charles Addams, the "famous" cartoonist of the New Yorker magazine, set the stage for a part at the house of Sigma Nu. Every decoration was a take off on "Charlie's Addams" arrayed like men and their guests.

Gamma Alpha Chi, professional advertising fraternity for women, was entertained at the last meeting of the year by the pledge class. The pledges presented a fashion show and served refreshments.

Delta Gamma is using a switch on the Pledge-Dance exchange dances. This time, exchanging with Lambda Chi Alpha instead of the usual sorority groups. It's a great way of getting to know the people on campus. Last Saturday the pledges gave the actives a dinner before circus; a circus that was used in the decorations and entertainment.

Speaking of Circus, word was today, back in Gainesville about how great it was and what a terrific school off FSU is by the Phi Gamma Delta's from the University of Florida. The fraternity was an entrant by their sister sorority Kappa Alpha Theta. They were guests for a tour of the campus, dinner at the house and Circus. So returns the Phi Gams serenaded the Thetas with a few of their sweetheart songs.

West Hall's "Penthouse Gang" is holding its first annual weekend dance tonight. Residence on the dorm's eighth, ninth and tenth floors are invited to attend a dance starting at 8:30 p.m. on the West Hall roof tonight.

An all-day beach party and a steak dinner are planned tomorrow at the Algia or Harbor home of a Penthouse resident. Penthouse president Donald Pickett said he believes this to be the first time a men's dormitory group has held a "weekend."

Pickett said tonight's dance will honor four-year residents of West Hall who have made outstanding contributions in Pen house scholarship, social and athletic programs.

Things are jumping at the ol' Phi Kappa Tau Ranch this weekend as the Phi Taus celebrate their Wild West Weekend. Featured activities include a fish fry, square dance, Mexican fiesta, mixed softball game, Canadian Ball and banquet, beach party, and barbecue. The Phi Taus are planning to wear their cowboy hats on campus today and all the weekend off with a BANG. Selection of the Phi Tau Dream Girl will be announced tonight at the Carnation Ball following the banquet.

Retirement Dinner To Cite Campbell

Changes and developments at FSU during the last few decades will highlight the annual retirement dinner tomorrow night when members of the faculty and staff pay tribute to their president and five colleagues.

Dr. Doak S. Campbell, president since 1941 and scheduled to retire June 30, heads the list of honorees. He is the ninth member of the group who recently announced retirement.

Outstanding in years of service of the five is Dr. Venia Shores, professor of history and Miss Anna May Tracy, who joined the staff in 1922. Others who will be honored are Dr. Emily Dewey, professor of zoology, who joined the faculty in 1926, and Mrs. Maie Dolbee, associate professor of Germao and Spanish, who joined the faculty in 1941, and Miss Sadie Young, professor of economics, who came here in 1928.

BEGINS 6.30

All speaking participants in the dinner program are for 6.30 in the Suwannee Room, took part in the major division of Florida State College for Women to FSU in 1947. They are expected to give humorous personal accounts of the transition era.

Patten Receives Onkin Award

Pi Beta Phi social anority recently awarded the Amy Onkin Award for outstanding service to the University and sorority to Charlotte and Phyllis Patten.

The award, which was established by L. G Balfour in honor of his wife is given annually. The twins won the award in competition with girls from seven Pi Beta Phi chapters in Georgia, Florida and Alabama, which make up the Theta Phi province.

Due to the close identity and equal degree of accomplishments, an exception to the usual rule of a single award was made in order that both Charlotte and Phyllis could receive the honor. They are now eligible for the National Award

On Getting A Suntan . . .

By MARGARET McLEAN

Now that summer and sun are becoming the most obvious topic in suntans, delighted to transform the winter classroom pallor to shades Floridian, but there's more here than meets the eye. There is an art to getting and keeping a tan. Here are some pointers to meditate.

SUNTANNING is a process in which one literally cooks one's epidermis. This brings up the question of how do you like yours—rare, medium, or well done? If after years of futile efforts a tan has never been the result of constant exposure to the sun, forget it! Very fair complexions were never intended to be otherwise. White skins simply do not have the proper amount of pigmenting conducive to tan.

Overdoses of sun on fair skin can only blistered the skin. Any traces of burn will simply render the unfortunate victim unbearably discomfited and for the whole affair peels away with ever sadder results. The outcome?—once more white. There's no need for labelling summer sports as poison merely because participation means comfort. Each successive dose can be increased by ten minutes until the skin begins to show signs of a tan, then longer periods of exposure are less apt to give the kind of tan that will later peel. This gradual technique is universally the best one dull and long.

WITH CLOSE similarity to Damon Runyon characters, the N. Y. Mirror's flashing sports writer Dan Parker and New York hall Life in general; the movie makers out a prick to sophisticated or slapstick comedy.

The story has sports writer Greg Peck and Audrey Hepburn united before you can say Mickey Mantle. Thus having got Mary Grey holding the hat, or in this case the ratrish which he polishes off with a nod from Greg's boss.

ON TOP OF this Mr. Peck is found in a lady's boudoir by his new wife. To add to his woe, half the underworld in the east are after him for his racketeering days. The real fun starts when the stars foil meet the sports crowd because as a general rule never the twain shall meet.

Will bad boy Peck cater to the theatrical world? Will he be found to an alley due to his tricksters exposes? It's all for you to observe in the best comedy that has come along this way in several months.

Falany Refutes IDC Criticism

Criticism of the Inter-Dormitory Council that it is "politically minded" is unjust, Phyllis Falany, acting chairman, declared recently.

He said he had been told some misunderstandings arose at the purposes and duties of Council.

Falany said the three-point Council is still in its infancy being organized.

He said there "seems to be a need" for such a Council that exact goals are undefined.

It has its task, as the group's purpose and duty the promotion of coordination between dormitories of Florida State University.

"As acting chairman, I," Falany, who is governor of Westhall, "would say that the events as the Pan-Hellenic and Inter-Fraternity dances have been discussed by the Council and hear future the Council will remain non-political the strict purpose of promoting good coordination between dormitories.

He said this will consist of getting each knew what the others are doing.

The meetings have been held this year, he said.

All mens and women's residence halls have been represented, he said.

Peck, Bacall Have A Ball

By ALAN KASS

A miniature trend has been occurring of late on the silver screen here's proof. For the past several days, beautiful dress models paraded for the VistaVia into cameras in the splendid musical "Funny Face."

Fashions again take the spotlight in yet another sardonic spectacular smartly titled "Designing Woman."

THIS IS where the comparisons ends. "Funny Face" is a big musical with a small story while "Designing Woman" is a minute musical with a large dose of laughter and story.

Acting on a suggestion by Helen Rose, Don Richard and Gregory Mimelli have neatly combined the unrelated fields of sports and fashions to produce a very pleasing of entertainment, which in less hands would have been dull and long.

FSU's 'Oedipus' Okay, Dumb Wife' Delightful

By DAVE WARD-STEINMAN

The Speech Department's final production of the season—a double-bill consisting of Sophocles' Oedipus the King and Jean Anouilh's France's medieval farce The Man who Married a Dumb Wife—closed last night after the usual four performances.

The innovations employed by Director Robert E. Orr in staging this double play's fourth performance of the season. The first was the use of Greek terms derived from movies fifteen to eighteen years ago, when there was no Orchestra pit and the Chorus appeared on the same level as the principals instead of in front and apart from them. There was an attempt to choreograph the movements of the Chorus, but we were not always motivated by dramatic reasons, and neither the music of Claude Debussy whatever it may have been was pleasing.

THERE IS really not much point in attempting to restage Sophocles' tragedy in exactly the same way it was done in fourth-century Athens, and portals of the theatre are being unrealistic. The fact that the actors wore masks originally wore high-heeled shoes, and long speaking trumpets formed out from any seashore consideration, but from the point of dramatic difficulty of presenting in an open-air theatre to an audience of up to 5,000.

Therefore, in any modern presentation, one must-choose according to the exigencies of the modern theatre if the play is to be made available to a contemporary audience. Here on our campus is a matter of taste. THE ACTORS in Oedipus all did very creditably to the point of monotony; there was no attempt at stylization except perhaps in movement. We found the Chorus very successful as a small body, carefully rehearsed. But as he implied before, the movements of the Chorus seemed inconsistent with the otherwise realistic approach to the staging.

Eli Ash was a violent, quick-tempered Oedipus, whose lines were frequently lost in his outpourings of emotion. Above all, he was a believable and motivated Oedipus, but we couldn't help thinking his histrionics seemed more suitable for a Shakespearean tragedy than an Attic one.

CRAIG MONROE as Creon turned in a performance we thought entirely suitable to the character and play. Ron McCall made a convincing Tiresias—pompous and sensitive. Jocasta playing by Estell Gulbis had a disturbing accent, perhaps an affectation, which we did not like. Barry Lavers and Stan DeHart provided good support in small, but key roles.

One thing that was not lost, in translation and adaptation, permutation; the undeniable dramatic skill that was Sophocles' and the unforgettable impact he can make.

THE ANATOLE France play was produced as half, stylized farce. Many of the production ideas we are sure must have been Director Orr's, because the French play did not imply infrequent directions for the various stage business that was done on but there was nothing that was not in the character of the play or at least hinted at by France. The entire production, as a result, seemed very consistent.

Ron McCall was excellent as the jester who married the dumb wife, and Kibel Clifford as Catherine, the wife who regains her speech to the regret of all was Sevastianoff. Sumbo Ramsee orchestral piece Scored for piccolo, flute, two marimbas, two bells tom-tom and unitoned timpani, the piece possessed much native charm. Despite its age, it was highly characteristic of what we today associate with oriental music. The delicately tickling percussive scale, the general effect of which may be obtained by playing only upon the black keys of the piano. Fascinating complementary rhythms characterized the next number, Three Brothers, by Michael Colgrass. The percussionists' last offering was Carlos Chavez' Toccata, a study, literally, of sound effects.

IT WAS HIGHLY revealing to hear this program. We had not before heard enough percussion ensemble music to formulate any

GOPS 'Progressive'

TO THE EDITOR:

Perhaps the writer of your editorial in the May 7th edition has forgotten that the term "progressive" which he uses in regard to the Northern Democrat Party is essentially a Republican term used even before the 1912's.

HOWEVER IT is interesting to note how the writer of your editorial has managed to find fault with the SOUTHERN Democrat Party. thereby implying that there is a vast split within that party and that it can no longer be considered a truly national organization.

Still I find it amusing that the Flambeau has editorially decided that a few of the Northern Yankees clustered under the banner of the Northern Democratic Party is right and the rest of the country, Republican and Democrat alike are so wrong. How foolish can you get?

THE REPUBLICAN Party is the party of YOUTH, having all of their ideals. LOOK AT THE RECORD.

Nearly twice as many Young Republicans were elected to Congress since 1952 as Young Democrats under 35. In 1954, 28 Republicans under 39 were elected to Congress These included Jr. Senator Bill Cramer from Florida's first district and 29 year old Bruce Alger from Texas 5th district where in 1952 the youngest Democrat had polled a plurality of 173,000. Among the 1956 Republican Governors today are 4 who were 39 or under when elected 8 Republican State Chairmen are 39 or under.

Over 80 top Ike Administration positions in the Federal Govt are now held by outstanding young men and women including 10 White House assistants under 39 and 2 assistant Cabinet heads.

HERE'S HOW. 82nd Congress efforts to lower the voting age to 18 were killed in the Senate by 24 votes—all Democrats. Democrat 84th Congress refused even to schedule a vote on it.

Young voters 21-29 favored the Republican standard by 53-37% over the Democrat Gallup 5-28-56; teen-agers 2-1 (Gilbert Poll 8-2-56).

The Republicans of today still stand with Lincoln for the preservation and progress of America.

Yours for a two party Florida,
DAN GORHAM

A Review

Brass, Percussion Had Vitality

By DALE JENSEN

A disappointingly small audience was present Tuesday for the joint concert of the Brass Choir and the Percussion Ensemble However, they were warmly appreciative of the enthusiasm and virtuosity conveyed by both groups.

WILLIAM CRAMER, director of the Brass Choir, was fascinating to watch. His approach to the music and performers seemed detached to the point of indifference but he treated the baton like a living thing, conveying its movement and thereby increasing the meaning of every note. The well-trained performers responded precisely to the baton, displaying subtleties of phrasing and dynamics not usually found in a brass ensemble Intonation was excellent, except for some high trombone parts in Hartmeister's Nearer, and individual solos were the best we have yet heard in the Brass Choir.

The lower music of the 16th century brass choir was represented by the opening number Johann Pezel's Sonata No. 38. Johann Hermann Schein's Padoana and Giovanni Gabrieli's Canzona per sonare. No. 1 followed. Each displays the polyphonic style of writing of the late 16th and early 17th centuries. The Gabrieli was a treble delight than we are accustomed to hearing it, but it suited some of the intricacies of the rest of the program. The first portion of the program was rounded out by two 20th century compositions. Neger, which was a programmatic prediction of the recent Tiny Johnson Brass Composition Contest and Robert Bradella's Introduction and Allegro.

THESE COMPOSITIONS, blending the neo-classical trend established in the 1920's, are attempts to revive the composition and performance of brass ensemble literature. Although thoroughly enjoyable writing, they have to combat the small range of tone-color inherent in any group of instruments as closely related as the brass family. The effectiveness of these and other recent brass compositions can only be judged by later generations. Let it suffice to say that the audience, after hearing them, wanted to hear more.

The Percussion Ensemble, directed by Ramon Meyer, opened the second portion with Meyer's own transcription of Khan Hem, an ancient, highly cacophonous dismissal', the report said.

The committee said evidence did not prove that Vance ever refused to teach courses, caused the resignation of a former Journalism dean, or "ridiculed the professional curriculum and made disparaging remarks about other professors on the faculty of the School."

It also concluded he had not been derelict in doing research assigned to him during the past three years, when he was given no classes to teach.

AROSE IN DECEMBER

Vance was notified in December by President Campbell that the president, on behalf of Dr. Laurence Campbell, journalism dean, would ask the Board of Control to dismiss him.

He announced the case to the press and said he would not ask for a faculty committee hearing until "specific charges were given him. The hearing was held behind closed doors last month after considerable publicity.

The committee criticized Vance, however, for the publicity.

'GOOD OFFICES'

"The committee can be most effective when it can use good offices," said the report. "Public airing of the issues before every effort has been made to obtain some reasonable resolution impairs the usefulness of the Committee," it said.

The report was signed by Drs. Dorothy L. Hoffman, Mildred Morgan, Kellog Hunt, Henry Becker, Mary Noka Hood, Lewis Killian, Herman Frick, Meyer Kimball, and Marion Irish. Chairman It was a unanimous vote.

VANCE STATEMENT

Vance yesterday told the Florida Flambeau he thought the decision was wise.

Quote apart from any personal interest, in mercy for the sake of the university, I think it's dearly everybody else of the faculty certainly hope the committee's decision will now be accepted before there is further harm to the university morale."

Student String Quartet To Give Coffee Concert

The student chapter of the Music Teachers' National Association will sponsor the Student Art String Quartet in a Coffee Concert at 4 p.m. Sunday in Longmire Lounge. Dixon Redditt will be clarinet soloist.

The concert will include the "Great" Furue in G minor of Bach, originally written for organ, and transcribed for strings by John McLean, violist of the quartet; Mozart's "Clarinet Quintet" in A major, in which Redditt will join the group. Beethoven's C major quartet, opus 18, no. 4, and the Quartet in D major of Bordoni, which includes the famous "Nocturne."

The Student Art String Quartet is an extracurricular activity for its four members: Carl Gorodetzky and Dorothea James, violinists, John McLean, violist, and David Everhart, cellist. Because they are devotees of chamber music, they find time in their busy schedules to rehearse on Saturdays.

Midway during the concert, coffee and tea will be served.

Senate

ported NSA, pleaded with the Senators to obtain more information before voting and not to base their decision on the report of one person.

REPARTEE

"Mine was not the only report," Soles countered.

"According to the files it was," said Miss Close.

"Then you have not read all the files!" Soles said.

Miss Close retained the floor, pleading with the senators to vote against the motion to withdraw consideration of NSA.

Another move to table the motion at this point failed.

Senator Fred Roberts, speaking in favor of joining said, "One of the main arguments against NSA has been that they do not support the state policies of Florida on the segregation issue. I'd like to remind you that neither do the Democratic Party, the Republican Party, the Methodist Church, the Baptist Church, nor the Supreme Court of the United States. There are many better fits to be gained from membership in NSA."

'WHY JOIN"

Senator Gerry Gordon queried Roberts, "Why are we going to participate in the convention and other activities that are open to us as we have been doing without joining up officially?"

"That would be similar to kissing a girl through a screen door," Roberts answered. "It would lack that personal touch that is necessary."

SOLES SPEAKS

After further discussion, Soles yielded the chair to newly elected Men's vice-president Bob Murray and gave his personal opinion on membership in the organization.

"The NSA has swung so far to the liberal side," Soles said, "that it does not bar admitted Communists from holding office. Communists may also circulate their petitions freely on the campuses. They do not discuss campus issues, but rather issues about which the student attendance is not well informed."

AVOID POLITICS

"I don't think we can speak for the student body of FSU on national political issues. Soles went on. "If NSA concerned itself with student government problems it would be alright but in the convention I attended only one campus issue came up."

Miss Close again took the floor called Soles' remarks "fallacious," and contended that "Soles says we should speak for the students, but I would like to remind him that our entire system of state and national government is on a representative basis it just don't think Soles' reasoning holds water."

After another brief flurry of discussion on both sides of the issue, a roll call vote was taken on the original motion. The motion, which was to withdraw consideration of membership in NSA, was passed by a 13-10 margin.

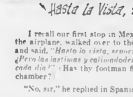
LANGUAGE MADE SIMPLE: No. 2

Exams loom closer and closer. The sands run out; the ships are down. This, you will agree, is no time for levity.



Accordingly, I have asked the makers of Philip Morris whether I might not dispense with jesting in today's column and instead devote it to a exam course in languages.

Their consent was cheerfully given, for they are fine, great-hearted men, the makers of Philip Morris, just as full of natural goodness as the cigarettes they turn out, just as friendly, just as jolly, just as regular, just as unfiltered, just as agreeable. "Why, bless you, child," cried the makers, "Of course!" Then they rumpled my chestnut curls and somebody cried "Vet it!" and before you could say flip-top box, a game of Squat Tag was on, and we played 'til the moon was over the yardarm, and then, pink and tousled, we all went inside and had flagons of temperance punch and Philip Morris cigarettes and fell into our trundle beds and slept the clock around.

But I digress. Today let us turn our attention to the study of languages.

Do you realize how important languages are? I must confess that, until recently, I did not. "What good will Spanish ever do me?" I kept asking.

Well sir, I found out. Recently I took a trip to Latin America, and every day I thanked my lucky stars for having learned Spanish in college. While my fellow tourists stumbled and bumbled, I was perfectly at home.

"Hasta la Vista, Señorita!

I recall our first stop in Mexico City. I stepped from the airplane, walked over to the nearest colorful native, and said, "Hasta la vista, señorita. (Good morning, sir.) ¿Pero las instrumentalidades negociadoras nos ynos cede dio?" Has thy footman finished sweeping out thy chamber?"

"No, sir," he replied in Spanish. "He is an idle rogue."

"How is thy footman called?" I asked.

"He is called Diego," replied my friend, "and the little daughter of his fat sister is called Juanita. She has two small books, one gray car, three black dogs, 24 red chickens, one fat pig, eight pewter mugs, and a partridge in a pear tree."

"Wilt thou have a Philip Morris cigarette?" I asked.

"Gracious," he said thankfully.

We lit Philip Morrises and smoked contentedly the better part of the day.

"Perhaps by now my footman shall have finished sweeping my chamber," he said. "Wilt thou not come to my house?"

"Gracious," I said.

Arm in arm we walked to his house, but, alas, his footman had not yet swept out his chamber. So we each took a barrel stave and beat the impudent scamp until it was time for my airplane to take off.

Aloha, Mexico, brooding land of enchantment!

Coffee Hour Topic Is Bible

The Bible as great literature will be discussed this afternoon at the Ehalah Coffee Hour when Miss Martha Chapman of the English faculty reviews a recent historical novel, Daughter of Jerusalem, by Robert Claiborne Pitzer. The literary program is scheduled for 4 p.m. in the Westminister House.

In Miss Chapman's first review of the book last fall, which was published in the national periodical, The English Journal, she discussed the mood of the book, the way the author caught the spirit of the times, and the language of the Prophet Jeremiah, 626-586 B. C. The book concerns a bond maiden, a young Jewess, who is shuffled around from one captivity into another.

Miss Chapman will point out the comparisons between international problems of that age with those of the present. Caryee, Egypt and the city of Babylon were the places particularly involved in strife in the days of Jeremiah.

dies of what is to come. This ensemble, newly-formed, suffered slightly from over-lenseness which marred some of their entrances but compensated for it by their meticulous observation of the minutest dynamic and rhythmic variations. The performers are all quite competent and need only to spend a little more time gaining ensemble perfection to be a really top-notch performing group.

Cramer and Meyer are to be highly commended for a program of this caliber. It is this sort of program with its contrasts in other fields that can distinguish our University from just another state university" and raise it to the level of the best. It is hoped that the next performance of these group will command an audience of a size large enough to be just recompense the time and talents of the performers.

ELECTION RUNOFFS SET TODAY

24 Seeking Posts Today In Runoff Vote

Twenty-four student positions will be seeking student government posts in today's Student Body final election.

Only one position, Sophomore Men's Judiciary, was contested in the Tuesday's primary and it will be repeated in today's election. Those running for the three jobs are Bill Smith, Sheldon Sewell, John Grimsley and Paul Stone.

Competing for Senior Class honors are Adria Ann Whittle and Barbara McCartney.

Junior Class Vice Presidency pits the pair of Bill Bunker and Gina Taylor.

Mary Ann Cooley and Ken Pressley are thrown their hats into the political ring for the Sophomore Vice Presidency.

Three seats in Sophomore Women's Judiciary will be sought by Connie Jane Garrett, Mainy Lou Jordan, Helen Moore and Cynthia Woolson.

Seniors Elect 'Outstanding Boy And Girl'

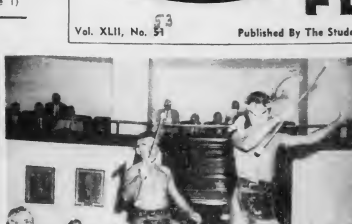
The "Outstanding Boy and Girl" in the Senior Class will be voted on today along with student government run-off elections.

Seniors only may vote on the two winners.

The winners will be announced at the annual Junior-Senior Ball Saturday which is to be held in the Men's Gym from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Ralph Marterie and his orchestra will provide the music for the formal occasion.

For the first time this year all seniors may attend the dance which formerly was limited to senior members and their dates, according to Bill Bunker, class president.



The dance will be given by the Junior Class in honor of the Senior Class, but because of a shortage of financing it is likely to obtain a name band, Bunker said. It will be allowed to charge $4.50. Weaver said tickets sales close Friday at 5 p.m. in the Westcott Ticket Booth. The tickets cost three dollars to students other than Juniors and seniors.

Seniors were mailed invitations early this month. They may also secure theirs at Westcott by presenting their ID cards at the ticket window.

TV Director

Dick John, news director of Tampa's television station WCTV will be the feature speaker at the Theatre Forum on a Television-Radio Workshop meet.

Students interested in the television industry are urged to attend and a workshop scheduled for Thursday. The meeting is scheduled for 7:15 p.m. in room 107 of the Journalism building.

SHADES OF OSCEOLA—The Flying Seminoles have invaded Florida's Legislative chambers. Actually, it was just part of a stunt prior to a special preview of the movie, "Naked In The Sun" last week. The movie is one of the first to be put out by a Florida studio and tells the story of the Chieftain, Osceola. Ed Franklin and Dick Puckett, as FSU's Flying Seminoles, were a logical choice to storm the Senate chambers.

GOP's Demos Debating, Not On Political Issues

By Staff Writer

It looks as if the proposed debate between the Young Republicans and the Young Democrats is finally becoming a reality.

But if you think the two parties are discussing political issues, you're wrong—for the subject of the debate is one subject—the time. Should the Young Republicans debate the Young Democrats? Spokesmen for the two parties have spent more time and effort debating that question than they ever could in an actual debate.

FIRING AWAY

Witness the most recent exchange the Young Demos fire away with, "As of yet the Young Republicans have not been willing to back up their 'challenge' with a time, a debaters to represent them."

The GOP reply: We thought the Young Democrats had dropped the idea. They were supposed to arrange a time and place for the debate."

As originally proposed some months back the Young Democrats were invited to debate with the Young GOPs over "What The Two Parties Can Do For Florida." Then the Democrats accepted the "challenge" and announced their debaters, including debate team captain Andrew Greenfield, and Sam Sloman as a possible second debater.

THE PROBLEM WORLD

Then a meeting was held by representatives of the two parties at which Republican President Dan Gorham says the Democrats agreed to arrange a time and place. That was a year ago.

Recently Gorham was asked about the Democratic claim that the Republicans are backing out. At that point the unofficial debate really began.

We thought they had dropped the idea," Gorham stated. He added that he does not think the Republicans will be willing to debate as the situation now stands. "We don't approve of all the Democrat debaters," he said, is because of "personalities involved—campus politics."

On individual he said, "nuff said." Gorham refused to elaborate further.

He said the Republicans' purpose in suggesting the debate was to allow the parties to "discuss their views without incurring hard feelings" and this would be impossible with the "subject of undesirable individual."

GOP HEAD ASKS OFFICE

Dean of Students
Florida State University
Tallahassee, Florida
Dear Sir:

In order to aid the university to more nearly achieve its goal of providing a well rounded education for young men and women we urge you to obtain for both the Young Republican Club and the Young Democrats an office from which each may work.

The result would provide the university, the State and the Community with well informed students with a deepened interest and an increased understanding in practical politics. The community would reap the benefits of a revived and experienced individual active in governmental and business affairs—an individual at all times alert to the need for political and social progress of the community.

The Young Republicans and Young Democrats of Florida State University can help provide these individuals and should be given every encouragement. Therefore we urge you to provide space for each organization, which would be possible if thought is given to the matter.

Yours,
DANIEL GORHAM
President
Young Republican Club of FSU

Men Strut On Bermuda Day While Shortsless Coeds Yearn

By NANCY GENE BROWN

Florida State University can proudly claim to have the knobbiest collection of knees of any American institution of higher education.

That is, if the institution cares to boast of such a title.

The fact was "proved" Friday beyond a shadow of a doubt when a large portion of the male students appeared on campus attired in their best Sunday-go-to-meeting finery as part of the first Flambeau-sponsored Bermuda Day.

BOYS ONLY

Resembling over-grown Little Lord Fauntleroys, the males were the envy of the fair sex all that day, as they flaunted the privilege denied to women students of appearing bare-kneed on campus.

Ranging in style from dark conservatives to brilliant flashy finds, the Bermudas exposed a variety of masculine sams of all shapes and sizes, with a wide selection of matching, contrasting, or clashing socks and shirts.

PROFS INDIFFERENT

Some instructors registered about indifference to the new style in student attire. Others enthusiastically accepted it. Some were infuriated at the sight. Others were overheard to wonder, "When will their mommies let them have long trousers?"

Other faculty members bestowed, who collectively represented 180 years of service to the University, were Dr. Erda Deviney, professor of zoology; Miss Myrtle Dolbee, associate professor of German; Dr. Venita Shores, professor of history; Miss Mary Tracy, professor of Hotel and Restaurant Management and assistant director; food services and Miss Sadie Young, professor of economics.

Miss Deviney and Miss Tracy, who retired earlier in the year were not present and sent letters to the banquet.

Dean Coyle E. Moore served as toastmaster, and the invocation was given by Dr. Samuel Proctor. Special music numbers entertained the gathering with instrumental and vocal music.

Dean Karl Kumpf presented a citation to President Campbell and presented it to him. Citations were also awarded and presented to the five retiring faculty members. Several speakers recounted personal incidents related to the honorees, depicting the change during their years at FSU from a girls' school of 1000 to a University of 7000.

Approximately 300 persons attended the banquets to honor the six retiring members of Florida State University faculty and staff.

Final Concert Set In Starlight Series

The last presentation of Starlight Serenades in the concert area soon is scheduled tomorrow evening at 8:15 in the Music Building Amphitheatre.

The concluding concert will feature the 50-m. basic Band made up of over 80 top instrumentalists. Eugene Crabb of the music faculty as guest conductor and Richard Reis, a senior from Columbus, Ga. as clarinet soloist.

Crabb will conduct the opening three numbers: Toccata Marziale by Ralph Vaughn Williams, Elsa's Procession to the Cathedral from "Lohengrin" by Wagner and Second Suite for Military Band in F by Major, Op. 28, No. 2 by Gustav Holst.

Whitcomb will then take over the baton for the final four selections: Concerto for Clarinet and Band by Rimski-Korsakov with Reis on the clarinet, Suite for Band, Op. 26 Burnet Tuthill, Cuban Fantasy by Fred Kepner and The Man with the Golden Arm is a symphonic paraphrase by Sylvia Fine and Elmer Bernstein, arranged by Alfred Reed.

RECITAL DATE

The doctorate recital of Frederic Kortchegarr, pianist, will not take place Thursday evening as announced in the "This Week" bulletin, according to Mrs. Frances Pemberton of the School of Music.

No new date for the recital was set.

School Seeking Over 4 Million In State Funds

Suggested appropriations for Florida State University amounting to $4,264,931 will be among the $13.5 billion general appropriations bills to be considered in House and Senate compromise discussions this week.

The $95 million Senate appropriations bill contains that amount in proposed projects on the first and second priority lists. The $562 million House appropriations bill does not spell out specific projects involving state facilities.

On the first priority list for FSU, totaling $3,621,086, are: a mathematics and meteorology classroom building, $1,065,528; social sciences classroom building, $898,000; students' dormitories, $595,900.

FSU second priority projects are completion of education building, $230,505; two classrooms (Keen) building, $21,000; add fourth floor education building, $87,000; remodel social science building, $12,000; remodel old science building, $43,500; air conditioning home economics building, $70,100; air conditioning (Conrad) theater, $27,000; air conditioning school of business, $13,200; increase in faculty office building, $24,640; extension of pipe, $5,000; and laboratory expansion, $50,000; equipment, $150,000; stadium addition, $100,000.

Baum Named Research Head, Will Retain Present Duties

Florida State University last week established the position of director of university research, and President Doak S. Campbell designated Dr. Werner A. Baum to hold the job beginning June 1.

Dr. Baum, professor of meteorology, will devote half of his time to his present duties as head of the Department of Meteorology and half to the new job, Dr. Campbell said.

"It is believed that this administrative arrangement will lead to better coordination of, more expeditious development of, and more adequate support for research as one of the university's major functions," said Dr. Campbell.

DUTIES LISTED

He said Dr. Baum's specific duties will be:

1. To maintain and further develop, by all appropriate means, the research programs of the University in conferences and in negotiations dealing with the research interests of the University.

2. To develop, in consultation with the Research Director, administrative policies governing acceptance and conduct of externally sponsored research programs.

3. To represent the University in conferences and negotiations with scholarly research with the Federal Government and other agencies.

4. To perform such additional duties as the academic head of the University may from time to time assign him."

A native of Gessen, Germany, Dr. Baum has headed the Meteorology Department since 1948.

Senate Gives Approval; House Action Expected This Week

Final legislative action on the bill which would make Florida State University a center for basic nuclear research is expected in the Florida House this week.

The measure has already received the Senate's stamp of approval and needs only passage of the lower house and Gov. LeRoy Collins' signature to become law.

The bill is a key part of Gov. Collins' nuclear development program, making his signature a certainty.

The measure carries a $2,300,000 appropriations for construction and equipping a building to house nuclear equipment and laboratories for basic research at FSU.

It also carries an appropriation of $2,800,000 for making the University of Florida center of practical and applied nuclear research.

The disposition of other legislative bills directly affected Florida State University:

The measure to set up a closed circuit, instructional television hookup to be used by state universities and junior colleges is on the Senate Calendar and has been approved by one house committee.

The administration plan for a Chancellor system for the state universities is on the Senate Calendar and will most likely be acted upon this week.

COLLINS' SIGNATURE needed for FSU nuclear research bill.

Prexy Names 57-58 Cabinet

Arnold Greenfield, student body president, has announced his cabinet for the coming year.

Priscilla Moss, Secretary of State; Sylvia Kratzen, Secretary of Student Events; Joan Harmon, Secretary of Elections; Joyce Weybrecht, Secretary of Honor; Pat Furay, Secretary of Interior; Ari Moore, Attorney General; Jack Taylor, Secretary of Finance; Bob Johnson, Secretary of Organizations; are the new members.

These names will be put before Senate this week for its approval.

Little Housing Remains For Grad Weekend

Graduating seniors who have not made housing arrangements for their parents who intend to attend graduation ceremonies may have considerable difficulty finding accommodations.

The Florida Legislature is scheduled to adjourn May 31, but if a special session is called the housing shortage will be even more acute that weekend.

The Flambeau yesterday made a random sample of the motels and hotels to check accommodations for graduation weekend.

Of five motels called, only one—in north Tallahassee—had vacancies for commencement weekend.

Of the three largest downtown hotels two had a full report by graduation. Another still has a limited number of rooms available.

New 'Signals Due Shortly

Another edition of Smoke Signals will appear on campus today or tomorrow, according to Editor Marcelle Truzzi.

The controversial issue, which was put away for printing over a week ago, will be a literary issue, in compliance with a Board of Publications decision of over a month ago. It will contain poetry, prose and a section of fine art, Truzzi said.

Asked about the reason for the reception of the literary magazine on campus, Truzzi declined to comment.

Another issue the final Smoke Signals for the year will probably be distributed before the end of the semester declared Truzzi, who is also a senior. This year's and next year's staffs are working together on the final issue, according to publications advisor Dr. Reid Montgomery. Both are submitting materials, in an attempt to "strike a happy medium" between humor and literature and Miss Rios. It will contain pictures, features, humor, cartoons, and jokes.

"In general, selection for material for the last issue will be more effective than in the past," said Miss Rios. "It will represent a good cross-section of campus talent."

Voice Recital On Tap Friday

Denise McLachlan, a graduate student in the School of Music, will give her voice recital Friday at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. A mezzo-soprano, Miss Lawhon is in the studio of Miss Betty Lou Lee Bond. Ward Stoltman will be the piano accompanist.

Selections on the program are representative of works by composers of the 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th centuries.

A group of 17th and 18th century songs will open the program. Arias Leading by Johann Georg Ahl, Prayer Thyself Dost Give by J. S. Bach and Verse Found of Love also Dance O Dance, Madrigal by Francesco Durante, Pur Dicesti by Antonio Lotti, Liebe und Leben and Moderne Minnesinger's Songs and Dances of Death will be the 19th century works included.

Twentieth century selections will include Samuel Barber's Bone on The Shores Night and A Nun Takes the Veil, Ralph Vaughn Williams' The Truth's Proof and The Water Mill and Gian Carlo Menotti's arie, Am I Afraid, from The Medium.

Summer Jobs

A number of summer jobs are available to those interested, according to Mrs. Mina Mullins of the office of vocational guidance and placement.

To be available for the student assistant jobs, the student must carry 12 hours of courses during the summer session. Most of the openings are in office work, including typing, library and receptionist positions, Mrs. Mullins said.

Applications can be filed in the Westcott.

ROTC Awards Day Set For Thursday

The annual Army and Air Force ROTC Awards Day will be held Thursday in Doak S. Campbell Stadium.

During the ceremonies which will begin at 10:15 p.m., 47 outstanding cadets from both corps will be presented with awards of excellence by the unit commanding officers.

"And With The One That Can Blow Up The Entire World We Get Trading Stamps"

Almost Four Years Not Enough Time For SG Officials To Decide On NSA

We would like to take issue with the letter printed today on this page by Student Body President-elect Arnold Greenfield which we urge students to read carefully.

The question of FSU's joining the National Student Association is of importance and Mr. Greenfield's letter represents the opinion of one whose position may in the end be determinant—for next year, at least.

Regarding Mr. Greenfield's exemplary desire that "we ought not to act until adequate information is available to form a rational opinion," we would like to offer this formation:

That NSA has been a subject of debate at Florida State University for at least four years. This seems adequate time to examine the pertinent factors.

That in March Student Senate was addressed by the national vice-president of NSA. The Flambeau, present at the meeting, noted the speaker offered pertinent facts about NSA, but the Senate seemed disinclined to query him on matters not included in his talk.

That later the same month women's vice-president Carr, in Close on return from a convention where she talked to the NSA national president, reported to senators that membership would be beneficial.

That a Student Senate committee took more than a month gathering information about NSA. Its recent report should have some of some value, whether for or against our joining.

However, since Mr. Greenfield believes more information must sometime be obtained, FSU students have more chance but to resign themselves to the prospect.

Nuclear Energy Appropriation Bill Shows Clear Thinking On 'Duplication'

Buried amongst the many pages of Florida's statute books is a clause that reads something like this:

"... There shall be no unreasonable duplication" at the University of Florida and Florida State University.

That law went into the books back in 1947 when FSU was established as a separate co-educational institution. It has caused several legislative conflicts in the past; it'll probably cause many more in the future. Eventually, it may be removed.

However, it is that provision that's the piece of legislation passed for final action this week like the measure pertaining to nuclear development at Florida and FSU.

It shows good, clear thinking.

The measure—and we commend the lawmakers and hope for quick passage—

Tally-Ho's Promptness Credited To Editor

Rose Printing Co. permitting, it appears at this date that the Tally-Ho will be delivered to students before the end of the semester. If so, it will be the first time the yearbook has come out on time in three years.

A number of technical difficulties have plagued Tally-Ho staffs, lack of photographers, missed deadlines, and numerous other reasons of the same type.

We are glad to hear that this year students may not have to pick up their annual at the beginning of the summer for graduating seniors have to wait until that time for it to be mailed to them.

When the situation has received previous comment of the annual "controversy" Bonie has been criticized like an ostrich in the year's accusations.

According to members of the Tally-Ho staff, credit for the improvement is Bonie's alone. The staff has also to Editor Barbara Arnow for her knack in organizing and administering her staff.

We think so too. Miss Arnow is to be commended. She and the staff have done their parts, and only May 27 will be the outcome.

A Letter, A Statistic, And A Juan Lopez

The letter so decisively penned by Juan Lopez which appeared in the upper right hand corner of this page last Friday probably meant little to those who didn't know the writer personally. To those who knew him, it was accepted with a feeling tainted of near reverence.

We shared that feeling.

One fact so often ignored by students entering Florida State University is that less than 50 per cent of them will never complete their college education. The majority will drop out before their third year.

The reasons are varied. Some weren't of college caliber in the first place; others just didn't like the drive or the persistence it takes to fight the four year grind. Some didn't come to study, but to have a good time; the women students dropped out to get married.

It's only when the Juan Lopez' falter and drop out that we see in some small measure the value of these years we spend gaining moral and mental worth.

Then it strikes home—deeply.

Juan was one of those persons who had to work and study to get his education. Being a native Cuban he was easier for women to laugh at as a good looking boy his mannerisms were unusual in spots, affected in others, but always sincere.

Juan's desire was far more than his physical abilities could satisfy. He did the only thing he could—he became a statistic to be quoted to incoming freshmen classes. There is one consolation, however.

The Juan Lopez' satisfied with compensate ability to feel for their fellow beings, so possessed with genuine desire to make the world a better place in which to live—need not fear for want of success.

Such is success in itself.

NSA Editorial Contrary To Facts

TO THE EDITOR:

The Flambeau's editorial treatment of the NSA question in last Friday's edition established itself as campaign for effort. It was often and publicized by my opponents that I was connected with the editorial policies of the Flambeau. This charge has now been refuted.

SINCE THE question of membership in the National Student Association has once again become a political and editorial issue on our campus, I feel that I ought to explain my position in regard to this matter and do what I can to clarify the question on the basis of the information on which I have been exposed.

Initially, I did not oppose membership in NSA per se, but my opinion must be that no editorial position should assume a position in regard to NSA is contrary to the facts as more than one issue. Fund I do not believe that a faithful study and consideration of last November's issue of the Flambeau could have come to the conclusion that no such disagreement existed between Dave Bachman and I. Actually as was often stated repeatedly our positions regarding NSA are virtually identical.

SECONDLY THE editorial mentioned that my position was not expressed since my election to office. Nothing can be further from the truth. Also the editorial neglected to mention that I spoke objectively against NSA in my campaign speeches. I categorically state for the record that I was not for, as an editorial statement of the facts. All those who were present at the Student Senate meeting when the matter has been made available to the Senate and to the students at large. Somehow to me this seems to be a rational basis for decision—to get the facts before committing ourselves to any definite course of action.

Next the editorial did state that my reason for not attending the immediate membership in NSA was not the question of discrimination which, I believe, was correct but the statement that I was opposed because of the supposed advantages not being worth the money was in no way stated or implied by anything I said at Wednesday's Senate meeting.

BEFORE DRAWING, and after much thought and help from many students and faculty members, I attended Wednesday's Senate meeting my position in regard to the National Student Association or in regard to the question of responsible government. The concept of responsibility would also be extend to the press.

Yours truly,
ARNOLD GREENFIELD

Thank You

FELLOW STUDENTS,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for electing me to Honor Court. I promise you that I will do my best to be a good Justice. It is my personal opinion that the most successful year the court would have is one in which no cases would come before it. This would mean that the Honor System is a complete success. However, I realize that in a University as large as FSU there will be people who violate the system and that they must be dealt with. This is the duty of the Honor Court and I promise you that I will do my best to see that the people brought before the court get a fair trial and a deserved sentence.

Thank you again for electing me. I humbly and sincerely appreciate it.

Sincerely,
BUCK BRYAN

Bestor Exposes Education

TO THE EDITOR:

I am sure that at least a few of the hierarchy in the FSU School of Education are painfully aware of Professor Arthur Bestor's two very learned books exposing the inadequacies of U.S. Education and the Educational philosophy of "adjustment" which is responsible for these inadequacies.

Bestor's two books are: Educational Wastelands (1953) and Restoration of Learning (1956). Happily for seekers of truth, both are in the FSU Library. Unhappily for certain others.

A RECENT review of Bestor's latest book gives a good idea of the contents: "It has new volume by Bestor, serves moderate and dispassionately the present status of public education from the kindergarten to the graduate school. It is a dismal and frightening story. Although, he reminds us, there is no evidence whatsoever that anyone ever became a better teacher by subjecting himself to the tedium and hypocrisy of courses in the "science" of "education," the damage done by these pseudoscientific brainwashers of every state into actually making the entire profession over the elementary and secondary schools. They then proceeded to terrorize competent teachers and befuddling the public with their own brand of jargon, jargon, to eliminate intellectual discipline from the established subjects of study, thus degrading them to suit the mentality of mindcompoops and the taste of louts.

By this process the minds of the children of our country, already backed and crippled, and the respect in that formerly enjoyed as Bestor puts it, "the elementary and secondary schools are with devastating success, lifted off every budding intellectual interest.

"WHAT PURPOSE can be served by systematically instilling into the adolescents and contempt for the traditional culture of western man? What results would a man expect to produce by inculcating the brutal doctrine that the primary function of public and moral values which have always been the objectives of learning are now the "snobbish relics" of a dead past, and that the true function of society is to satisfy the animal appetites of the individual? "The adjustment," I believe it's called.

For the answer to these questions we may turn to the Boob-Breeders themselves Education-ists, to you!

"Truth," said a noted educationist, must be social truth." "And what," was asked, "is social truth?" "It is," he said quite simply (for once) "what it is expedient for a society to tell its members."

Thank You

TO OUR FELLOW STUDENTS,

I was successful in the primary race for Sophomore Judiciary this. I image the run-offs I was certainly pleased and once again I am asking you to give a full consideration for this office. To list my activities this far, I have tagged for Sophomore Council, worked with the Wesley Foundation, Freshman Pinnakes, Theatre Drive Group, dorm committees and am now Corresponding Secretary of the Student Party. Perhaps most important of all is the fact that I am a student interested in working in the Judiciary. I will appreciate your consideration.

Sincerely,

Dear Coach—

The following was re-printed in the best AAUP Journal of the American Association of University Professors. Originality, it came from the University of Wisconsin Alumni Association football bulletin:

Dear Coach Brandshoddera:

Remembering our discussion of your football men who were having trouble in English, I have decided to ask you, in turn, for help.

WE FEEL that Paul Spindleshanks, one of our most promising scholars, has a chance for a Rhodes Scholarship, which would be a great thing for him and for our college.

Paul has the academic record for this award, but we feel that the asparitis is also required to have some excellence as an athletic attributes. Paul is a wiry little lad, but he has troubles in athletics. But he does try hard.

WE PROPOSE that you give some special consideration to Paul as a varsity player, putting him in the best possible in the backfield of the football team. In this way, we can show a broad college record to the committee deciding on Rhodes Scholarships.

We realize that Paul will be a problem on the field, because as you have often said—cooperation between our department and yours is hardly desirable, and we do expect Paul to have very hard of course.

DURING INTERVALS of study we shall coach him as much as we can. His work in the English club and on the debating team will force him to use many participles, but we think that if we are that he carries an old football around to bounce or whatever one does with a football during intervals in his work.

We expect Paul to show entire good will in his work for you, and though he will not be able to begin football practice till late in the season, he will push the season with good attendance.

Sincerely
J. Ivorytower

U of F Debate Team Owes Wins To FSU

By JIM McINTYRE

The University of Florida may have one of the best debate teams in the country, but they owe at least some of their success to the team from FSU.

IT WAS at the recent Tau Kappa national tournament in Indianapolis that this fact became most apparent. Florida won the tournament, being the only team to go through the entire tournament undefeated.

But the Florida debaters had their hats off to the Seminole senators that were in Indianapolis, for without them, the Gators would have easily been beaten by FSU.

The team from Western Michigan had one loss — that to FSU. But that was not the only contribution to the success cause made by FSU.

The other leading team at the tournament was the team from West Point. Four stalwart lads from Florida attracted attention wherever they went. Three lost only two debates of the twelve.

THE INTERESTING thing about the West Point team was that they occurred the evening after the girls on the FSU debate team had left town. Obviously, they were in a state of depression throughout the rest of the tournament.

It was an interesting sight. On the night before the cocktail party was in full swing, I noticed the three West Pointers seated in conversation with three obviously non-military men. It so happened that the night about that time the militia strutted by the party supposedly happened. I'll never know exactly what, but one of the West Pointers suddenly stopped and put his little gray bonnet, and some of the poor boys without memories and forms had been pushed to the inner circle.

OUR THREE young ladies spent a delightful evening with the straight-backed lads and left them obviously pleased with the acquaintances that FSU debate has ever made with such a gradiate hole as the U. S. Military Academy.

I did happen to stumble into a party in which this noble enterprise was participated. The four chaps were all about things in general but especially had a profound effect on the young men of the Hudson. They were quite effete, erect with a glassy inhabiting each eyeball. Later that I learned that the West Point men sit that way. Evidently force of habit.

The debating as officials as it must have been evident that I had a disastrous effect on the composure of the summer. For it was after the contest was period that they met their only debates.

ALTHOUGH THERE is no possibility of it ever happening, the West Pointers remained in their barracks with no ambition—to flunk out of the Point and cause a FSU spread no one snaps to attention for an officer, but everyone does a double take.

Oh, yes, girls, in case you like to sign up for the debate team, the office is in 108 History.

And if you'd like to know if all this really did happen with Point, you check around with Jean Brickner, Leah Reetz, or Ruby Combs. I'm sure you can fill you in on all the details.

The Threepenny Critic

Suggests FSU Opera Workshop

By RYAN EDWARDS

Recently, a friend of ours remarked that, on the subject of opera, FSU seems to be "lacking in culture." At first it seemed to us a curious thing for him to say, especially concerning the school which Carlotta Floyd, a member of its faculty, and which year after year turns out still more polished, performances of such difficult stage works as South Pacific, Carmen, and most recently, The Bartered Bride.

But, upon applying a critical frame of mind to this latest production of ours, our friend had a point. We usually found the production was not of quality, and which year after year turns out still more polished, performances of such difficult stage works as South Pacific, Carmen, and most recently, The Bartered Bride.

But, upon applying a critical frame of mind to this latest

A Letter

'Democrat' Club Doesn't Exist

TO THE EDITOR

It has come to my attention that several individuals are claiming to represent the Young Democrats. Federation have accepted our invitation to a debate however, we find that the Young Democrat Federation does not have any knowledge of the existence of such a club on their campus. We feel it impossible for the Young Republican Federation to carry on a debate with several individuals who have no possible within the Democratic Party and would have no authority to speak for that organization. Perhaps in the future when the Young Democrats organize on this campus and are recognized by the national organization we can carry on a debate that would be more than private opinion on the part of a few to the greater advantage of the many. Such a debate would be of real two party government in Florida.

Yours for a Two Party Florida,
DAN GORHAM.

Spikers Do It Again

It's been a long successful season for Florida State athletic ...ms and this past Thursday, a Seminole team chalked up the ...first national crown.

...ach Bill Odenwal's volleyballers, who usually have to fight ...ut the pubilcity that other squads get, took their second ...traight crown, winning at Memphis, Tenn.

Seminole teams have two more reasonable chances for ...ational titles this year, in baseball and golf.

...oach Danny Litwhiler's baseballers are still sweating out a ...ot in the NCAA regionals at Gastonia, N.C. The bid seems very ...lose, and should they get it they have a good chance ...ctory all the way to the finals at Omaha Neb.

...oach Don Veller's golfers finished fifth last year in the ...ational collegiate, and this year can be considered a dark ...orse to go all the way.

Getting back to Odenwal's volleyballers, they have turned ...n a winning record during the last eight years that any coach ...ver apart would envy.

...heir first national title came in 1955, after they had placed ...ourth twice and third once in the four previous years.

...hen after winning their first national title they finished ...ast year. This year they came on with a rush again.

FIRST THREE TIMES

...he Seminole spikers were beaten just three times this ...ear, all by a crack Nashville team. They made up for the ...oss at Memphis.

...s further example of their winning ways, they have never ...een the Florida AAU title, winning it this year for the ninth ...traight year.

1954 was their most profitable season from the point of ...ournament championships, when they won the Florida AAU, ...outhern Intercollegiate, the St. Petersburg and Knoxville ...ocker Mt. invitationals and finished second in the Crescent ...ournament in New Orleans.

...o top this season, they have tied eight first team all-American ...nd this year a couple more seem certain.

...f the current team, Bernie McCann is the big gun, a two-...ime All-America who will probably have been named for the ...hird time when this column reaches print.

...ohnny Zebo, a sophomore, also made first team all-America ...onors as a freshman and will probably repeat this year.

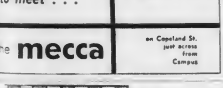
...he other All-American who returned this season was Junior ...ave Lewis who made the second team last year, may make ...he squad this year.

GOOD PROSPECTS

...he Seminoles' fresh baseball team finished its season here ...ast with an 8-3 mark. While not many people took notice ...rom this year, next season they'll make their share of head-...ines.

...utside of a fine pitching staff, the man who is most likely ...o go on the varsity as first sacker Charley Rogers.

...Rogers, who also starred online on the baseball court ...his past winter, hit nearly .500 for the frosh. He may well ...ake a spot in Danny Litwhiler's batting order next season.



...he pitching staff was one of the outstanding features of ...oach Ralston's frosh. Guys like Chuck Collier, Paul Beeson, and ...ohn Hulme may well help out Litwhiler's mound corps next ...ear.

...Other good prospects from this standpoint appear to be out-...ielder Ned Martin, shortstop Gene McCormick and infielder Ernie ...ossing.

Linksters Defeat Tigers

Florida State University's golf team ended their 1957 season Saturday by defeating Auburn 20½-6½ to post a final mark of nine wins as against one loss.

By winning, the linksters extended their win streak to eight straight and 26 out of their last 27 matches.

The Seminoles played without captain Ed Jenkins, who shot a 71 in exhibition.

Three FSU players tied for medalists honors with a 73. They were Bunk Berry, Bob Shave and Harry Shoemaker. Don Smith and Jack Dedmond both turned in a 74 for the Tigers.

Berry and Shave defeated John Gross and Lewis Ray, 9-0 Smith and Dedmond downed FSU's Shuman and Jack Veghte, 3½ to 3½. Shoemaker and Billy Shelton stopped Charles Mahoney and Roy Abel, 8-1.

The lone match remaining on the schedule is the NCAA tournament in Colorado Springs, Colo., on June 12 to 15.

This season the Tribe defeated Auburn twice, Rollins twice, Georgia Tech, Georgia, Alabama, Miami and Florida. Their streak was broken by Florida in a close one, 14½-12½.

They also won the Florida Intercollegiate at Ocala held early in the season.

SC Tops SAE In Key Upset

The SC's upset the SAE's last Thursday, 2-0, to go into the finals in the intramural playoffs Thursday.

The SAE s play the PDT's this afternoon and the winner will play SC on Thursday. This will be the first loss of the season for the SAE's as they were held to one hit and did not get a man past second base.

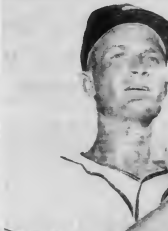
Joe Davis and Sam Skogstead saw action on the mound for SC

FANS 14.

Bob Nellums' SAE pitcher, struck out 14 SC batters and allowed only two hits. In the other division the Psychology Club whipped the Feds 6-3

Nat Gersten, Psy. Club pitcher, surrendered six hits. The Psychologists collected four hits but made them all count. The Freshwaters and Psychology Club met in the dorm finals yesterday.

In the loser's bracket the SN's fell apart in the sixth inning and allowed the PDT's seven runs. The PDT's combined three hits and three walks with an error for the seven runs.



Hugh Durham, scattered four hits to the SN's and was the winner. Darrell Mahoney was the losing hurler.

PROFS BOW

Last Wednesday, Wayne Kriring of the Penthouse gave up only three hits and two runs as his mates blasted 13 runs to defeat the Psychology Club

In the fraternity division the SN's knocked out the DTD's out of the playoffs by beating them 15-8.

Also knocked out of the playoffs last Wednesday were the ATO's who lost 7-1 to the PDT's. Durham pitched four hit ball for the PDT's while Bill Chalker gave up seven for the ATO's.

DIAMOND CAPTAIN—Carlee Hendrix, captain of the 1957 FSU baseball team, had his best season as he hit 321 and led the team in home runs and stolen bases. If the Seminoles go to the playoffs he will not be able to play as he is ineligible under NCAA rules.

Hits .321

Hendrix Ends Career With Excellent Season

By BESS WELLER
Flambeau Sports Writer

Baseball captain Carlee Hendrix made his last year of varsity play his best one.

The flashy second baseman, a veteran of four years of competition, finished up the 1957 season with a batting average of 321, third highest among the regulars.

His 37 hits were good for 44 total bases and led the terminals in homers with four and stolen bases with 13.

Hendrix also did all right for himself in the runs batted in department as 21 men across home plate, tieing with Lee Corso for second place.

JUNE GRADUATE

When he graduates in June the 21 year old senior plans on playing pro ball until called to other service.

Hendrix made a good impression on several of the major league scouts who attended the Florida State Baseball Tournament earlier this year and some have talked to Coach Danny Litwhiler about signing him upon graduation.

Carlee Hendrix made his last year of varsity

The slender second baseman is a native of Fort Lauderdale where he starred in baseball and was chosen captain in his senior year.

Hendrix has played every inning this season with the exception of first base. He originally was a shortstop who batted .375 but was moved to third his first two years here and divided his time between third and second during the '56 season.

SEMI PRO BALL

Last summer he played semi-pro ball in South Dakota under manager Ferguson Krimmi. Wahl and credits the former Cincinnati shortstop and Litwhiler "for really teaching me the finer points of the game."

Litwhiler says that Carlee "is a fast runner, has a good arm and is a pretty good hitter. He's a fine baseball player."

A management major, he intends to go into some kind of business in Florida after his base ball career is ended.

Frosh Nine Blanks Jacksonville, 2-0

The Florida State frosh baseball team ended it's season with a 8-3 mark by beating Jacksonville University here last Saturday, 2-0.

The game was called after 4½ innings because of rain Paul Benson, right-hander, gained his seventh win of the year as he allowed four hits.

He has lost only one game, that was to the University of Florida freshman team.

The Baby Seminoles scored both runs in the bottom of the first inning. Neil Martin singled and Jon pitcher, George Truitt, hit Gene McCormick with a wild pitch.

Buddy Cash then hit into a force play, Charlie Rogers, who is the team's leading hitter, then singled for one run.

With the bases loaded, Truitt balked and Cash was allowed to score the final tally for the FSU frosh.

The Baby Seminoles other loss this season came at the hands of the same Jax team, 3-1. Chuck Collar, had a 7-0 mark and Jim Sewell was 1-6 to lead the Tribe pitching staff.

Rogers had the top batting average for the Baby Seminoles hitting .461. McCormick, freshman shortstop, led the team in homers.

Baseballers Await NCAA Tourney Bid

Litwhiler Sure Of Invitation

By PHIL ROYCE
Flambeau Sports Writer

No official word regarding the possibility of Florida State's baseball team competing in the NCAA district III playoffs has been heard from the district committee.

The regional playoffs are set for Gastonia, North Carolina starting on May 31, with the winner going to the national championships to be held at Omaha Nebraska.

Champions of the Atlantic Coast, Southeastern and Ohio Valley Conferences are awarded a place in the tournaments. The fourth spot goes to the top independent team in the district which comprises the area from Virginia to Florida.

EXPECT BID

Coach Litwhiler feels certain that his Seminoles will receive the independent bid. The selection, expected this week, will be made by an NCAA district committee.

A college's over-all record, caliber of competition faced, and number of capable pitchers on its staff are considered, according to Litwhiler.

Litwhiler is confident his team cannot be bettered on any of the counts by the other independent powers, such as Wichita, Hofstra, and Georgia Teachers.

The Tribe coach commander stressed his strong pitching staff as a deciding factor in the team's favor. "A team can have only one or two good pitchers such as Bernie and Jim 16 games during the regular season But in a tournament you need pitchers to win and we've got it," Litwhiler said.

PITCHING DEPTH

Behind Jerry Boxer (6-2) and Jack Bristol (6-1 we can send Frank Shuford (7-1) Tommy Garcia (3-0) and Fred Kenney (1-2), all good pitchers.

Coach Litwhiler, who acquired every trick in the trade during 16 seasons as a player in the major leagues, has a stronger to add even more power to his pitching corps.

We're working Bob Waits out now getting him ready for the eighth He'll give us a second pitcher behind Bristol," he explained.

Waits appeared in nine games at first base during the season, during 16 seasons as a player in the major leagues, has a stronger to add even more power to his pitching corps.

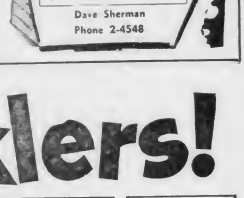
Alabama of the SEC and an undetermined team from the SC. Duke split its two games with FSU

SLOW START

Despite a slow start when hits were as scarce as girls wearing shorts on campus, the Tribe will carry a .297 team average into the regionals. A .250 average is considered good." Litwhiler explained.

Two of the team's leading hitters will not make the journey to Gastonia Lee Corso (.211) and Carlee Hendrix (.321) are ineligible under NCAA rules.

Jerry Couch, who hit 500 in nine games or Riley Severn, sports a .238 mark in 18 games, will replace Corso in the outfield.



Dale Koch, holder of a .342 average in eight games will play third, and Phil Hunt will move to second in place of Hendrix.

Litwhiler feels that his team's chances of winning the district title are "real good." Last year the Tribe dropped Duke in their opening game and then were eliminated by the same nine, losing two close games.

But with the competition in the national championships awaiting the winner, the comforting saying comes to mind "history need not repeat itself."

Novel Idea In 'Shoot-Em-Ups' Offered In 'Fort Petticoat'

By ALAN KASS

A novel idea in giddyap pictures is used in "Guns of Fort Petticoat" by three experienced movie-makers in western filmfare.

Directed by Harry Joe Brown, starring Audie Murphy and produced by George Marshall, who has worked many such grippe chases into the west the movie formula have based a fairly hairy western around some Texas belles, make shooting of many redskins.

Miss Murphy, co-star Murphy, as usual, is likeable as the Texas who returns to the Lone Star State to command the poor defenseless Texas womenfolk while the murderin fight that famous war against those nasty old Yankees.

If the picture sometimes lags it picks up when the injuns invade and of course we all know who comes out second best. In fact those pretty Texas belles make like a thousand Carrie Nations, confusing the invaders' Indians.

LOST TO TALLY?

Since the films this week have not been particularly impressive we would like to say a few words about a fine American picture the Biblical in Tallahassee will never see.

Edge Of The City adapted from a television production of Drama entitled "A Man Is Two Men." This has been unanimous great praise in other parts of the country.

This picture has been shut-out of the South since it is considered too hot to handle by Dixie audiences.

The reason—it has a slight interracial theme. This theme "I am told is not hammered home, nor does it give any vital message or solution to the problem. It is just a worthy picture and deserves to be shown for entertainment sake.

The picture shows a normal social relationship between a Negro and a white man. Since we have other "race" pictures as well as condemned pictures playing here in the past, we are at a reason why in a University town as well as a state capital a movie cannot be shown while others have been.

Since the handling of races is not one of the prime issues of our time, I see no reason why it should be skirted in the cinema.

SECOND THOUGHTS

Since comedies unlike westerns have been indeed quite scarce the film "Designing Women" deserves some further comment.

Judging from public opinion, the real scene-stealer was Mickey Shaughnessy rather than the pretty Miss Gene. Portraying Maxie Slicker, Mr. Shaughnessy had some of the funniest moments with Gregory Peck when they were holding in a New York hotel room. He is extremely mobile as a comic.

Many of the high spots in comedy slipped by while people were waiting for the broad slap-stick farce comedy.

time and energy to devote to "fine himself" concentrated and involved business of staging an opera, nor can a violinist, teacher, and conductor be expected to whip a performance into shape with only three or four rehearsals.

INDEED, PROFESSORS Grimm, Chatten, and Bellere deserve the highest praise especially when we realize that if they did not attempt the impossible in face of the imminent, there would be no opera at FSU. That there is no full-time opera workshop here is a disgraceful, ridiculous, inscrutable and horrifying.

The point is even more penetrating when one considers the talent evident in this production. In Mary Jane Manifold, as Magic, we were conscious as never before that here is a young lady who walks beneath the terrible responsibility of possessing a major vocal gift. The scrupulously beautiful sound she produces, combined with her native ability to display emotion, charm on stage, demands the kind of concentrated operatic education that could turn her into a major star.

PETER PEEK'S Kenzi was also imbued with talent of singular degree. His dramatic gifts are forthright and rare, and the musical difficulties he experiences are precisely the kind that a qualified teacher of opera could enable him to overcome on the dramatic stage as well as he does in the recital hall.

There were other outstanding members of the cast. Ralph Nolen, who was both funny and appealing as the mysterious Vasilek. Martin Lee, who in his first FSU appearance displayed an attractive vocalism and Norman Turner, Lonnie Keene, and Joe Paul, among the several bit players who made the most of their parts.

But talent and good intentions are not enough. The Barbered Bride is not an opera which can stand on its own feet. It needs an almost Mozartian perfection of desk, and also the stylistic consistency and verve that is part and parcel of the perfection. This is

The summer's football slate will also be highlighted by some of the tall names in the coaching field headed by Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson. Earnie Crain, Kentucky; Bowden Wyatt, Tennessee; Bobby Dodd, Georgia Tech; FSU's Tom Nugent, and Florida's high school best Nick Kotys, of Coral Gables.

Outstanding Seniors To Be Named At Prom

Dance Slated Tomorrow Night, Marterie Band Provides Music

By SANDRA GIPSON AND JOHN HULL
Flambeau Staff Writers

"The Outstanding Senior Boy and Girl" award will be presented to two persons, selected from six finalists, tomorrow evening at the Junior-Senior Prom.

The six finalists, according to Kate Ramsey, chairman of the contest, are: Margaret Ann Ballinger, Pat Rooney, Evelyn Moll, Dave Bachman, Lee Corso, and Bobby Temple.

The winners of the award will be announced during intermission at 10 p.m. The Prom is scheduled from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Men's Gymnasium with Ralph Marterie and his aggregation providing the music.

All of the male finalists are members of Who's Who, Gold Key, and Omicron Delta Kappa. In addition, Temple and Bachman are members of the FSU Hall of Fame. Bachman is also the president of the Student Government Association and a member of Sigma Chi while Temple is the president of Sigma Chi. Corso was a star quarterback on the FSU football team and is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

The three female finalists are members of Garnet Key. Margaret Ann Ballinger was Homecoming queen, cheerleader, and has served on student government. She is a member of Delta Gamma.

Pat Rooney is a former president of the University Recreational Association and of the Women's "F" Club. Evelyn Moll is a member of Mortar Board, serves as the president of Wesley Foundation, and is Secretary of Finance in student government. She is also a member of Alpha Gamma Delta.

TICKETS ON SALE

Tickets for the dance will remain on sale at Westcott Ticket Booth until this afternoon, announced Bill Weaver, Senior Class President.

Weaver declared his feeling that "this year's prom will be more successful than previous ones due to excellent Junior Class participation and a more popular band."

Sue Shaves is serving as overall chairman for this year's Junior-Senior Prom. Other chairmen are: Joan Harmon, ticket sales; Kate Ramsey, Outstanding Senior Boy and Girl; [illegible] Pruvale, Music; and [illegible] Pottevant, publicity; Bill Rooney, arrangements; Dick Crawford, room decorations; Allison Templeman, pictures; and Jo Ann Smith, bandstand decorations.

FSU, U of F Journalism Schools Face Investigation By State Board

A LITTLE NIGHT MUSIC BEFORE THE RAIN. The University's symphonic band under the direction of Manley Whitcomb gave its final starlight concert Wednesday evening, which unfortunately was shortened by showers.

Member Wants Survey Made On Colleges' Effectiveness

By JIM McINTYRE
Flambeau Associate Editor

The Schools of Journalism at FSU and the University of Florida became the objects of discussion and pending investigation by the Board of Control yesterday.

In a short discussion brought about by the presence of U of F President J. Wayne Reitz, Board member James Love of Quincy expressed a desire to have a survey made of the Journalism Schools for the purpose of obtaining statistical data on their effectiveness.

"We have a very small enrollment in both schools," Love said, "and I would like to have our staff make a survey of them.

"I do not mean this as a condemnation of either school but there are less than 77 students in both institutions," Love went on.

Gradution lists show that 14 students will graduate from the FSU School of Journalism, 33 from the U. of F School of Journalism and Communications.

"I think the survey should furnish us with adequate information to determine whether we need both of these schools or either of them," Love said.

In other actions the Board requested the U of F administration to make a survey of extraneous courses, much as FSU has done in the past year. Dr. A. B. Martin, FSU vice President, had earlier reported to the Board the dropping of 314 non-essential courses for the next term.

Dr. Reitz informed the Board that such a study was in progress and would be finished soon.

A move to buy some 17th century furniture for the Ringling Art Museum from the estate of a former employee of the museum for an "upset" price far below market value was approved after considerable jesting on the part of the Board.

"As I see it," said Board Chairman Ralph Miller, referring to the furniture as "antique," "antique furniture is what didn't get worn out during the period it was in use."

As the repartee came to a close, Love once again spoke up, this time with the observation that "it looks to me like we're paying $4,600 for a bunch of second hand furniture."

The motion was passed unanimously.

Only 1425 Ballot In Runoff Election

A [illegible] turnout of only 1,425 voters balloted for 13 positions in [illegible]day's special runoff elections.

[illegible] 246 seniors-to-be balloted [illegible] one position remaining in [illegible] Class office positions. [illegible] McCartney was elected [illegible] Treasurer, 140 to 108 [illegible] Ann Whittle.

SMITH PROTESTED

John Gramling, Paul Ramsey and Bill Smith were voted into the three Sophomore Men's Judiciary seats in an election contested last week. Smith protested on the grounds his name was obscured on the ballot.

Joyce Combs, Monty Gillham and Jill Jordan were elected in the bitterly contested Sophomore Women's Judiciary race. Six candidates were competing for the judicial seats in Tuesday's elections.

Judy Ramsey was elected to the single Sophomore Traffic position.

Resolution Ok'd For Naming University Gym

In a rapid surprise move this week the Florida Legislature gave its stamp of approval to a resolution naming Florida State University's Men's gymnasium in honor of a former late FSU student.

The measure dedicates the gymnasium to the memory of Robert "Bob" Tully, one of the first male students to attend FSU. Tully graduated in 1952 and died of cancer in 1954.

Introduced in the House Tuesday by Reps. Horne and Mitchell of Tallahassee and Rep. Vocelle of Indian River, the resolution skipped through the lower house without any expressed opposition.

Sen. Carraway of Tallahassee steered it through the Senate the following morning.

Tully graduated from Leon High School in 1947 where he competed in basketball, football, track and swimming.

At Florida State, he was a member of Gold Key, vice president of the Inter Fraternity Council, a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and played football and golf.

He was the son of Mrs. W. C. Tully of Tallahassee.

Coffee Hour Features Freshman Awards

By WARREN GERARD
Flambeau Staff Writer

Dr. Hazel Stevenson, guest speaker, and the presentation of freshman writing awards will highlight this afternoon's English Coffee Hour.

Dr. Stevenson, who retired from the FSU English department last June and taught courses in short-story writing for [illegible] years, will be the speaker at this meeting, scheduled for [illegible] in Westminster House.

In discussing short story technique Dr. Stevenson will [illegible] attention to what she calls "the hidden clue." Freshman writing awards sponsored by the FSU chapter of Sigma Delta Tau, national professional English honorary, will be presented for works in freshman English classes, according to Dawn Sharp, Sigma Tau Delta spokesman.

Miss Sharp emphasized that actual solicitations for [illegible] were not made but that students were informed that [an] award would be made at the end of the school year and [that] creative work would be considered as possible entries. [Sel]ection of winners of the award, an inscribed gold medal, [was made] by a committee chairmaned by Miss Sharp and composed of Dr. Sarah Herndon and Dr. William Hudson Rogers of the English Department, and Donna Hardy.

Roberts Elected Veep

Dayton Roberts was recently elected as national Vice President of Kappa Alpha Mu, photojournalistic honorary, at the fraternity's national convention held in Miami.

Other Florida State KAM members attending the convention were Dr. Reid Montgomery, Tom Sawyer, Bill Watkins, Bob Simmons, Alan David, and Warren Gerard.

S T D Prexy Named

Mary Katherin McKeown has been elected president of Sigma [Tau Delta], English fraternity, it was announced yesterday.

Other newly elected officers to serve during 1957-58 are Robert Jones, vice president; Julia Cenking, secretary; Barbara Johnson, treasurer; and Nancy Jo Bowers, social chairman.

Patten Twins Slate Double Wedding Following Graduation

Being identical twins is no easy life, but graduation may open a less perplexing path to FSU's [illegible] twins, Charlotte and Phyllis.

The 22-year-old twins, who [will re]ceive their BS degrees [June] 1, will both become [brides si]x days later in a double [wedding] ceremony to be held [in the] [illegible] Chapel on the University of Chattanooga (Tennessee) campus. The chapel was named for their grandfather.

MET MEN AT FSU

The twins met their men at [FSU]. Mike Whelchel of Sanford, [a ju]nior with another year ahead [at] the university, will marry [Char]lotte. Read Hardin of Pompano Beach, a 1956 graduate of [FSU], will marry Phyllis.

[Mar]riage promises adjustment [chall]enges for the girls. Identical [twins], they look alike, dress [alike], talk alike, act alike, and [think] alike. Even sorority sisters [who] have lived with them four [years get] them mixed up.

[Pr]obably the girls' father is [more] responsible than anyone [for their] closeness. When they [were] young he advised them [to] make up their minds about [their] relationship, to decide once [and] for all, "to compete, or work together." It was their decision [to ac]t as one, and never at cross [purp]oses.

[A]ny minor difference between [the t]wins has been strictly between themselves, sort of like an [inner] conflict in a person. Any [triu]mph or loss by one has been [felt] by both.

PATHS PARALLEL

[C]ertainly their four years at [FSU] adds up to almost duplicate [recor]ds. They have excelled together in scholarship and numerous campus activities. Successful in being in all classes together they have both achieved a high B average. Last year they were co-winners of a Danforth home economic scholarship award. This year Phyllis won the Borden Home Economics Scholarship Award of $300. Charlotte was her close runner-up for the prize. They are splitting the money.

Both girls have been elected to Mortar Board, Who's Who and Hall of Fame on campus. They were co-featured in the student circus, Flying High, for three years. In various campus elections, they have insisted on being considered one, and elected to the same office. Students have gone along with the popular twins to the extent of elec-

Rogers Is First Distingushed Prof

FSU's newly created "Distinguished Professor of the Year" award was presented this week to Dr. William Hudson Rogers of the English Department.

The award was presented to Dr. Rogers, a member of the faculty since 1922, at a special convocation. At the same time President Doak S. Campbell designated as professor emeritus 20 retiring or retired members of the FSU faculty.

At the convocation, which Dr. Campbell indicated may become an anual event, other members of the faculty were singled out for distinctions received during the past year.

Dr. Campbell said of Dr. Rogers, who was selected by a committee from nominees submitted by vote of departmental faculties:

WELL-KNOWN ON CAMPUS

"His achievements during the thirty-five years he has served the Florida State College for Women and the Florida State University are well known on this campus. In addition to his teaching he has served for a year as Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and for nine years as Head of the English Department. He was Dean during the first year of the great transition and his contribution to the institution in that difficult period was great. As Head of the English Department he was responsible for the initiation of a Ph.D program and directed the expansion of the graduate program of the department. He has been chairman of numerous important faculty and administrative committees and has served on many more. An active member of Phi Beta Kappa, he has served as president of the local chapter.

OUTSTANDING HUMANIST

"His superb scholarship has been evident in his text, The Best of Browning, which has been used for years by many colleges and universities, and in his numerous articles and reviews. Throughout the years he has been unusually active in community affairs and in Church and civic organizations but above all, Dr. Rogers stands out as a humanist and scholar-teacher. Although he has taught at one time or another most of the courses in the English Department, he is best known and loved by hundreds of alumni for his courses in Shakespeare, Browning, and Victorian poetry. Public recognition of his greatness as a teacher would be warmly applauded by a host of alumni of the last thirty-five years. What he has given in the classroom has been far more than the facts covered on the final examination: he has given a sense of the power of great literature read aloud and discussed with understanding and sympathy, a comprehension of our Christian-humanistic heritage and its bearing upon everyday life, the friendship of a sincere and noble gentlemen."

Before the designation of the 20 retiring or retired faculty members as professor emeritus or emerita only three persons held this honor. Two were present—Dr. William G. Dodd, dean emeritus of the College of Arts and Sciences, and Miss Ella Opperman, dean emerita of the School of Music. The other professor emeritus is Dr. R. S. Cotterill, professor emeritus of history.

PROFESSORS HONORED

Faculty given the emeritus status and the period of their actual service on the faculty:

Elizabeth Gordon Andrews (1929-1949), Professor of Psychology; Raymond F. Bellamy (1918-1956), Professor of Sociology; Margie Burks (1932-1948), Professor of Spanish; Walter Ruel Cowles (1930-1951), Professor of Theory of Music; Ezda May Deviney (1924-1957), Professor of Zoology; Olivia Nelson Dorman (1924-1956), Professor of Classics; Ralph Lee Eyman (1928-1956), Dean, School of Education; Paul Frederick Finner (1922-1954), Professor Psychology; Viola Graham (1929-1951), Professor of Psychology; Herman Kurz (1922-1956), Professor of Botany.

Lucy Lester (1927-1948), Professor of French; Leland Judson Lewis (1932-1951), Professor of Chemistry; Harold Frederic Richards (1925-1956), Professor of Physics; Etta Lucille Robertson (1924-1955), Professor of Music; Venila Lovina Shores (1922-1957), Professor of History; Elmer Riggs Smith (1903-1942), Professor of Mathematics; Hazel Allison Stevenson (1920-1956), Professor of English; Jennie Tilt (1932-1949), Professor of Physiological Chemistry and Nutrition; Anna May Tracy (1922-1956), Professor of Restaurant and Hotel Management; Sadie Gertrude Young (1926-1957), Professor of Economics.

University Singers Slate Concert

University Singers has announced its spring concert, scheduled for Wednesday evening at 8:15 in Westcott Auditorium.

The program will include early sacred music, contemporary secular music, and various folk songs, according to a University Singers spokesman.

Also on the agenda is an arrangement by David Ward-Steinman, and a medley of tunes from the Broadway production "Roberta."

Beverly Brown, Sheldon Torn and Chris Bryan are listed among the soloists.

Herman Gunter, Jr. will direct and David Ward-Steinman will be the accompanist.

Flambo Banquet Slated Wednesday

The annual Florida Flambeau banquet will be held Wednesday May 22 at Joe's Spaghetti House from 6:30 to 8 p.m., announced former editor Oscar Johnson.

"All members of the staff who intend to go to this banquet must sign their names at the office," Johnson said. Full information is posted on the office bulletin board in Longmire Building.

Senior Class Day Set For May 23

Senior Class Day activities have been tentatively scheduled to begin at 4:30 p.m. May 23 in Westcott Auditorium, according to Ray Wagner, vice president of the Senior Class.

Plans may be changed to move the events to the Music Building amphitheatre. Any changes will be announced in Tuesday's Flambeau.

Class Day is the day when Juniors exchange caps and gowns with the Seniors and are officially recognized as incoming Seniors.

The Hall of Fame announcements and a poem by Dawn Sharp are a part of the program, said Wagner.

As in tradition, the President, Doak S. Campbell, will be present and black tassels with informal academic regalia will be worn.

Wagner added that the Seniors are giving a 100 foot flag pole with a 10 by 15 flag as the Senior gift to the school. It will be placed between Westcott building and the Westcott pool. They also will give another gift which has not been decided.

Wexler To Speak At S Psi Banquet

Dr. Harry Wexler, director of meteorological research for the U. S. Weather Bureau, will speak on "Scientific Research in the Antarctic" tonight.

The speech will be given at the annual banquet and initiation of the FSU chapter of Sigma Psi Society in the Suwanee Room. It will follow the banquet at 8 p.m.

Dr. Wexler has been on the meteorology faculties at both M. I. T. and the University of Chicago. He directed meteorological research for the Air Force during World War II and since then has been a civilian advisor to the Air Force.

Dr. Mary Noka Hood, professor of bacteriology and Sigma Psi president, will preside at the meeting.

Music Prof Declares Need For Opera Workshop Here

A prominent Florida State assistant professor of music has taken a stand for a University opera workshop.

Miss Betty Jane Grimm, voice teacher, announced Wednesday her tentative decision to withdraw from all productions of opera and musical comedy at FSU "unless certain conditions are alleviated."

Miss Grimm has served as stage director and musical coach for all Light Opera Guild and Choral Union productions, except "See the Wind" and "Susannah", since the two music groups' inception.

MISS GRIMM AGREES

Referring to Flambeau music columnist Ryan Edwards' review of "The Bartered Bride," which pointed the need for an opera workshop, she said "I agree that we have reached a point where I feel personnel should be acquired to divide the duties of the three producers."

The reference was to Herman Gunter, Choral Union director, Robert Sedore, conductor of the orchestra for the performances, and to herself as stage director.

Under the present setup, opera is an extracurricular activity for which no credit is given. Time for productions donated by the faculty and students involved.

MUSICAL HOBBIES

Miss Grimm calls this "opera off-the-cuff" and feels that "we are being musical hoboes in asking for handouts of time and to extend already overloaded schedules."

She pointed out, however, that her probable decision was not motivated by unwillingness to devote extra time to musical productions and that the present situation taxes the abilities of the students and production heads, limiting the quality of the presentations.

'POORER PERFORMERS'

When questioned as to the direct value to students of the operatic experiences now offered by the school, Miss Grimm exclaimed: "We are turning out poorer performers than we should simply because of the poor arrangements of time.

"When we began these productions, our purposes were to attract better voices, afford experience in singing with orchestra and provide stage experience. We have done that. Can we offer no more now than five years ago?"

WORKSHOP NEEDED

Choral Union director Herman Gunter, Jr. hailed the proposed opera workshop as "what we have needed a long time."

"Establishment of such a field of study would fill a definite need," explained Gunter.

"It would mean that the University would have a full-time opera workshop activity instead of the divided time arrangement now in existance, be continued," Gunter noted that founding a workshop could possibly lead to a new major field of study in the school of music.

STUDENTS DECIDE

"Students are the ones that will have to tell us whether we need it," Gunter declared. "We have had great interest in the past five years. Judging by student interest, I believe that we would have their support for the workshop."

The Choral Union director explained that he would support the proposed workshop but emphasized that the chief problem in establishing one would be that of obtaining administrative approval and financial sponsorship.

Opera Needs More Important Place In Curriculum Of School Of Music

OPERA, to be good, must have devoted to it a great deal of time and attention in the way of preparation. It needs a type of approach that will allow those interested to give concentrated effort to its success.

The operate tradition at FSU has not progressed measurably in the past six years. Some excellent operas and musical comedies have been presented during this time, but represented the efforts of a few dedicated people who, through no fault of their own, only had time to rehearse at the end of a busy day. The faculty members received no pay for it and the students got no credit in academic terms.

AND YET, for a School of Music to provide the all inclusive program the student needs, opera must have a place of importance in the curriculum. It needs attention in the same way the instrumental and other vocal activities do.

As an extra-curricular activity, FSU opera will remain in a static condition, knowing progress neither in production and in student experience.

MISS BETTY JANE Grimm, who has been primarily responsible for opera at FSU during the past few years has announced her intention to withdraw from participation in the production of some kind of permanent Opera Workshop is not set up to improve persent conditions. She has indicated a willingness to step aside even if such a program is implemented in order to give the person responsible for the program a free hand.

We commend Miss Grimm for her stand and hope that it will reap some lasting results within the University. If opera is to grow here, it must become a part of the family and not remain a stepchild.

Junior-Senior Prom Should Become Major Social Occasion Of Spring

Thanks to the foresightedness of student government members last year, the Junior-Senior Prom has emerged from a relatively insignificant occasion to one of prominence among Florida State University social events.

With the $3,000 appropriated for the dance, the Junior Class was able to bring the popular Ralph Marterie and his orchestra to the campus tomorrow night. Because of this and the fact it is being held in the spacious Men's Gym, the juniors were also able to invite all classes to attend the dance.

This year's Junior-Senior Prom will probably set a tradition at FSU that will be followed each year. The Student Senate has approved continuous funds for each classe's budget which is intended to make future Proms important events.

While other universities, such as our neighbor, the University of Florida, sponsor two big dances during the year, one in the Spring and one in the Fall, FSU only has Homecoming. True, name bands play for JPC weekend and the Military Ball, but all students can not reap the benefits of such occasions.

The Junior-Senior Prom should keep its main purpose in mind—to honor FSU's graduating seniors. But in addition, it can provide entertainment for the entire student body.

Legislature's Surprise Action Names Men's Gym Without Notice To Students

Somewhat like rolling thunder, a resolution moved out of the Florida House and into the Senate Tuesday morning naming FSU's new men's gymnasium for a former FSU student now deceased.

It came as a surprise to nearly everyone. And we're willing to wager that the first many FSU students heard of it was when they picked up this paper today.

This is not to criticize the dedication of the gymnasium to "Bob" Tulin—we're in no position to do that. Certainly, his record shows he was a person of high character.

But we can't help but question the way it all came about.

With no obvious warning, the resolution popped up in the House and was passed as being non-controversial. The Senate handled it the same way.

And the million dollar structure has an official name tagged on it as long as it may stand.

For all logical reasoning, it would seem Florida State University's gymnasium should have been named and dedicated by Florida State University students.

Quorum Missing At U of F Too

By RICKY CANON

THE FSU Student Senate isn't alone on its problems of trying to gather in a quorum with which to conduct business. Our nearest neighbor, the University of Florida, has an Executive Council which meets to set the tone from a similar problem. It is noted, however, that they enforce their attendance rules by automatic suspension of absent members missing meetings.

In one recent meeting at which they did have a quorum, the U of F Executive Council passed a civil service bill. Seems that all cabinet members and other presidential appointments will have to pass an examination before being allowed to take office.

THE OHIO University Post interviewed readers on the subject of sleep during final exams. Their findings seems to indicate that students sleep more than usual during pre-exam time to ease tension. And "A students sleep the least."

Various recommendations made by students on the subject of sleep and finals were:

Take a cat nap during the afternoon to revive from the tension of exams . . . . Have three free days to revive before exams.

One coed suggested that taking easy courses "was the best solution."

Another student explained that he sets the clock for early morning final week study but his big mistake is that he forgets to pull the alarm lever.

AN ENTIRE college newspaper staff closed up shop and quit one day last month at Stanford University when California Appeal said the newspaper staff was a bit pigsied at the student body president becoming so arrogant that a petition of only five per cent of the student body was necessary to recall the editor of the University Daily. So, after the walkout, the legislators calmly and coolly proceeded to run the paper out themselves.

ITEMS OF interest from campuses across America . . . University of Oklahoma officials recently have allowed coeds to wear bermuda shorts to breakfast . . . Editors and staffers of the Wheaton Illinois Record have come to the conclusion, after conducting a campus survey, that participating in "bull sessions" are of great value to students. They are almost unanimous enough to suggest that credit be given for "bull sessions," but this they say "would ruin the custom of its spontaneity" and eliminate that.

Edwards' Recital Is Best Reviewer Has Heard At FSU

By DAVE WARD-STEINMAN

The recital that follows is not really a review; it is more in the nature of basic reporting. Because this time there is no need to bandy words, make excuses, or be kind.

THE SENIOR Recital of Ryan Edwards Monday night was, to our ears, one of the most remarkable evenings of piano-playing we have heard in some four years here. We remember commenting in a recent column about the super-abundance of recitals that the one thing most of the performers had in common was the cause for playing one or two things on the program extremely well then the rest of the program not so well, or at least not up to the peak that that particular musician was able to reach elsewhere in the program.

But Edwards reached the peak in the opening Mozart sonata and maintained it at a very high level throughout the entire program. Now Mozart and small piano is a way there any legitimate of music anywhere and ever . . . .

THE PROGRAM of Monday night's recital was the Mozart Sonata in D Major, K. 311 (or Köchel 311 as the audience calls it); B Minor Sonata; Camille Pavo's unrelieved by difficult new Sonata, 1957; came next after a brief intermission. Closing the program was, surprisingly, Beethoven's E Minor Sonata, Op. 90. Wagner perhaps could have been more effective placed elsewhere in the program.

The unusual thing about Edwards' playing was that he was able to bring out like artistic brilliance to each of the pieces although they represented four diametrically opposed if that is possible viewpoints and periods in music history. Each piece received to create a little world of its own that had its own personality unique upon its others.

It is always worth mentioning that Edwards had more than ample technique and control for the pieces he played. Scarcely, because the most important thing was the inherent musicianship and vitality that he brought to each of these sonatas. Here is a pianist who really loves to play the piano and is more than you think and is determined to make the audience experience what he is experiencing. That his is a unique talent goes without saying.

Ryan's Sonata showed a big growth in harmonic vocabulary and technique since his Sonata. Actually the only "Sonata" in the new piece occurs in the second subject of the first movement; but the devices and the overall impression the sonata makes bear the indelible stamp of Floyd's personality.

THE ENTIRE sonata was dramatically conceived on a large scale and generates a tremendous amount of excitement. In fact Floyd's concern over the dramatic effect of a piece on its audience is one thing that sets him off from most composers of the day.

For us the 1st movement was the most exciting and satisfying. The slow movement builds to a big climax, acquiring a very thick texture in the process; but the texture of the toccata-like last movement was actually the clearest of atmosphere. Now this may have been what Mr. Floyd intended but we felt rather like an unwilling passenger on a roller coaster. A longer release from the climax in the 2nd movement would have put us in a much better frame of mind to enjoy the brilliant last movement.

There is no denying the impact the sonata makes, and we liked it very much. It will undoubtedly be very successful when done in New York next season.

For the record, the largest crowd we have ever seen at a music event in this area was on hand for the proceedings.

To The Freshmen:

DEAR FRESHMEN:

I would sincerely like to thank you for the vote and support you gave me on Tuesday's primary. I hope that I may be worthy of the confidence you have placed in me.

In serving as your senator, I hope that I may represent the best interests of our class.

A friend always,
MATTOX HAIR

DEAR FRESHMEN:

I have enjoyed serving you in the Senate this past year. It was a wonderful experience representing our Freshmen class. I only hope I may continue to serve you next year in other phases of student government.

I am taking this opportunity to thank each and every one of you as the "Jones-Williams-Van" in the last two elections. Your confidence in my ability has inspired me to keep on working for good government.

Let me also express my thanks to the unknown gentleman who helped me tear down my campaign posters. Unfortunately it was a little early.

I wish Nelson and Ronnie good luck in next year's Senate. I know they will do a fine job.

Sincerely,
CHARLES "VAN" VAN DELINDER

DEAR JUNIORS:

Thank you for your support during the last election. I will work hard and do my best in the Senate in an effort to show my appreciation for the confidence you have placed in me.

Sincerely,
KATE RAMSEY

DEAR FRESHMEN:

Now that the furor of campaigning has gone more died down, the campus has again assumed its usual serenity. To us, the Freshmen officers, it seems unbelievable that our term of office has at last come to an end. As we began serving as your officers we first chose three wonderful sponsors—Miss McPhail, Smith, Dr. Winter—who showed great interest in our plans and projects.

Though we met with only a few times, your interest was apparent in enthusiastic response to projects. The executive was proud to represent such spirited and loyal group. Our newly elected senators were often repeated to us had been made by the faculty concerning our part in the annual. Your interest resulted a very successful Thanksgiving Dance and Freshmen Picnic. We have the honor of being the first Freshman class to have 2 projects during a year!

It is impossible to express our thanks to the faculty and students for their support and cooperation during the past year. We wish to express our appreciation to the Flambeau staff for their fine coverage of our activities.

Sincerely,
FRED ROBERTS
JIM McINTYRE

More Debate?

TO THE EDITOR:

The heated debate going on between the Young Republicans and the Young Democrats as to whether or not there was a hate like made in Peel and Tallahassee recently has been being left out.

We would like to challenge either or both sides to a debate or simultaneously to a three cornered affair. We, the two parties can be found in Florida on behalf of the Young Socialists.

Socially,
FRED ROBERTS
JIM McINTYRE

wards the feeling we have you. We accepted you as the Class of 1960 will attempt to uphold its fine reputation. Best wishes to the future officers and many thanks to our loyal supporters.

Calling The Card

Writer Recalls Events Of Year; Football, Homecoming, 'Signals'

As you sit confronting your typewriter for the last column of the year, a host of thoughts run through your mind. Some are glad, some sad, but all are important.

You remember coming back to school early to assist in Orientation Week and the influx of Freshmen who turned out pretty well after all.

There was the fall class and dorm elections in which Dominus Fredwith made from the Metropolis of Live Oak defeated an opponenta in the first primary for the Presidency.

And then there was football, and for all you have said about it, you still have to admit you enjoyed every minute of it. You recall the fine moments in the Georgia game, the Frank Merwell finish of the Mississippi Southern fiasco, and the inspirational performance of the entire team against Auburn in a squeaker that could have gone either way.

And Homecoming. No one will forget the bright, sunshiny week end that made the occasion an enjoyable. It makes you thankful that you live in Florida when you think that there are other places that don't have weather like that for Homecoming.

And then, along in November, the Smoke Signals became a live wire once again. A Literary group wanted to print a literary issue and a funny group wanted to print all funny issues or something like that. After reading the literary issue that just came out, it looks to you like the literary group tried not to be funny and failed.

Then, after Christmas, action began in earnest to bring a Humorian refugee to the FSU campus as a student. For a few weeks you saw your friends and professors in a way that made you proud to be a student of the University.

And Louis Armstrong's stint on the campus seemed some very successful affair.

There was the Student Government's "football department" that aroused some eye-brushes etc. And Tom Nugent's "football department" that aroused some eye-brushes etc.

Then there was the Earl Vance case that was brought to light at about that time and a still hanging fire.

You remember being called into the chairman's office shortly after the Intelligent Faith Week culmination and hearing about a little girl who was going to be married whose father was an FSU student. And you wrote something about it and hope it has reached others of you see people grin willingly and be as good.

Sophia Tops Greece

By ALAN KASS

Beauty is a lovely woman
Where pure white and crimson meet,
Joined with flavor of the face . . .

The ads for Tuo Tho It's "enchantingly filmed in the beautiful tradition of "These Come in Flocks" . . . amidst the world wonders and sensuous splendor of Greece"

This is certainly true. We first go to a revealing tour of three related Grecian islands, displaying the variety of the land of Aristotle's birth.

We also see a great deal of the Parthenon, but not as many as you—the bold sun emblazoned ruins of the Acropolis. The traditional music and folk dancing is fairly good, but not overly important, we get the first cinemascope look at the newest Italian import, Sophia Loren.

Even in the scenes next to the famed Parthenon, the camera runs a poor second to our Sophia, providing a beautiful woman of more rewarding than a masterpiece in stone.

By the way, besides this fine female, another upcoming star, Jorge Mistral seems to be an equally exciting as the many Latins now on the silver screen.

The plot story boils down to another cloak and dagger-intrigue and romance, male and female, man story, and in between, the wet clothes changes of Miss Loren.

The name 'man title is Touch of Sin, holds little water, highest bidder by Miss Loren. Will be all American boy Archaeological Ann Ladd or shy, sinister and often wiry Clifton Webb?

Well it's a big surprise to see at fade-out time Sophia and Alan Ladd in each others arms since Mr. Ladd, except acting sinister in his trenchcoat, did completely nothing but get outsmarted every turn by Mr. Webb. As a matter of fact, for the story was a much above nothing.

Incidentally, Dr. Arthur Bestor is president of the Council.

Yours for better schools,
A STUDENT

Regardless of the terminology inferred in the "Edge Of City" than in the South it should be classified as movie exploitation of the infernal fires.

It is understandable that a movie company should be proud of having a film entirely filmed and employed in many areas in a large section of the world. However, "Too Hot To Handle" label has not moved you to run across or protest the denied the wrath of Darryl Zanuck, producer of the controversial cinema. Mention of the picture "Island In The Sun" has not aroused you to write angrily or boycottingly and ignore the terrible freeze-out of this half-hour picture in Dixie L. than a South Carolina legislative committee advised the area theatre owners not to show film.

Mr. Zanuck stated "I will demonstrably any United States film be filmed or permitted to be shown in any area of the world where the burning of books by Nazis is permitted."

The state's legislature is not a bill that would levy a $1,000 fine on any theatre showing the picture.

Enter the scene a third picture along the same racial lines titled "Something Of Value" starring Robert C. Ruark's novel.

This Rock Hudson-Sidney Poitier starrer deals with an inevitable conflict between friends in Africa, one black and the other White and together with this picture will be seeing to find out.

Looking Back

As Florida State's various athletic units wrap up the 1957 season and put away their togs for another season, it might be appropriate to look back and hit the high spots of another successful campaign.

In that first of two columns on the subject, we'll attempt to cite the high spots on team performances and outstanding individual efforts.

In the second column in the last issue of the year, we'll name our choices for the outstanding individuals in each sport.

In football, Coach Tom Nugent's athletes started at the finish to turn in another successful campaign, with a 5-4-1 mark.

Best individual effort: Lee Corso, for being named INS "Back of the Week" and later for becoming the first honorable mention all-America in the school's history.

Best team effort: A thrilling 20-19 victory over strong Mississippi Southern, which also rates as the year's biggest thrill.

In basketball, it was a long, cold season for Bud Kennedy, but an outstanding one for sophomore Hugh Durham, which makes next season a prospects rosy.

NEW SCHOOL RECORD

Best individual effort: Hugh Durham, with 808 points in a season best for a soph, and with a new school record of 42 points in a game.

Best team effort: Even though they lost their best effort came against Florida when they dropped a heart-breaking 67-65 decision.

For Hartley Price's gymnasts a slightly disappointing season despite the fact that they went unbeaten. It was the first time in a Price-coached team had ever gone to straight years without winning a national title.

Best individual effort: Though he failed to defend his NAAU one-mile title, Chris Cocoris came the nod for his consistent high record. He's only a soph also.

Best team effort: Third place in the NCAA, though they didn't rate that high at pre-meet time.

Coach Bum Stults' swimmers had another successful season, topped with victory in the Florida AAU. They had a 6-2 mark and a medley relay squad to the nationals.

Best individual effort: Co-praises to Jim Julian, who set a record in the 100 yard freestyle and Mike Tschirrett, who were voted co-captains at the end of the season.

Best team effort: A convincing victory over Florida in the Florida AAU after the Gators had split the season series by storming FSU 51-35 in Gainesville.

CHIPS WERE DOWN

The baseballers ran up a 18-4 mark but the best may be still to come as they wait for a bid to the NCAA regionals in Gastonia, N. C.

Best individual effort: Senior Jerry Boxer for two one-hitters though almost the whole team had a sensational day at the time of another.

Best team effort: Two straight victories over Georgia Teachers when the chips were down and a possible NCAA bid possibly hanging in the balance.

Coach Don Veller's golfers also plan to stir up some fireworks in the NCAA tourney, though they lose Buzz Berry and Jack Taylor. They had a 9-1 mark for the year.

Best individual effort: Buzz Berry's victory in the Florida golf tournament, where he won the individual title with a new record for four rounds.

Best team effort: A 26-stroke victory over Florida in the Florida Intercollegiate, after the Gators had upset the Tribe in Tallahassee.

For Coach Keith Pitchford's netters a rebuilding season with a 4-3 mark and a team composed mainly of sophomores.

Best individual effort: Hard to say but both sophs Les Posey and Fred Berrett have looked well, and figure strong next year.

Best team effort. They lost to the Gators 7-2 but finished ahead of them in the Florida AAU. Several records hit the dust, and new ones were established.

The trackstars had a successful season, despite loses to Florida and Miami in the Florida AAU. Several records hit the dust, and new ones were established.

Best individual effort: Mike Conley for setting school marks in both the mile and two-mile in the Florida AAU. He also held both previous records.

Best team effort: A team title in the non-conference division of the Atlantic Coast Relays and two close flubs with Florida.

And finally to volleyball where the school's only national title of that fav was brought home. Bill Odenkal had his usual successful season.

Best individual effort: Bernie McCann for his third straight all-America honors. Bopb Fenimi Zeko also made it for the second straight time.

Best team effort: The national title of course.

Penthouse Wins Dorm Softball Title

The Penthouse Gang of West Hall won the Dormitory Independent softball title this week when they defeated the Psychology "Profs" 12-0.

Two big innings helped the winners as they picked up six runs in the 2nd and five in the 8th. Ron Green, pitching for the winner, allowed only 1 hit, struck out seven, walked six, and received errorless support.

The Penthouse had previously beaten the Feds in the first round 6-4 and taken the Pay boys 12-2.

This completed an undefeated season for Penthouse with an 11-0 record.

The Vets had won two games in the playoffs but lost their both games when it was discovered they were using a player under an assumed name who had played for another team.

The Psychology Club had won their way into the finals by beating the Pros 8-3.

FSU FINAL DELAYED

A deluge of rain on Tuesday night washed out the fraternity final softball game, between SC and SAE.

SC moved into the finals of the playoffs by beating PDT 3-1 and upsetting SAE 3-0. Sam Skogstad allowed SAE only three hits and walked four.

SC got the one run needed in the 8th when Don Davis singled, went to 2nd on a sacrifice and scored on a single hit by McKimmey.

SC hosed out PDT 2-1 be the help of walks. Hugh Durham walked three men in the 4th and stole by 2 Davis and Bill Kauffman produced the winning run.

ATO beat DTD 6-3 in the first round of play and PDT beat BSU 3-1 in another close game. SAE then won a close contest from ATO 3-2. SN eliminated DTD 13-8 and PDT took out ATO 7-1.

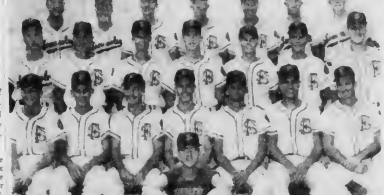
Durham buried tight ball to short out and stimulate SN 6-0.

SAE beat PDT 5-1 when Bob Lollins struck out 13, allowing two hits and walking only three.

PDT lodged a protest on an interference play in the 2nd innings but after getting beaten 5-1 the team stood by Lindsay the protest.

HORSESHOERS

Intramural horseshoes got started in the men's gym "horseshoe" this week.



The semi-finals are booked for this afternoon and the finals on Monday at 4 on the court's near the men's gym.

In the fraternity division IT began the defense of their title by whaming their first two matches. Shuman and Veahe of IT beat Hoeun and Brown of PAT 21-18, 21-18.

Their second win was a three game match over SN 21-19, 18-21 21-10 SN had previously beaten PKP 4-21, 31-16 21-14. Thomas and Hayes were the SN boys.

In the fraternity division Sig Ep beat Kappa Sig 21-10 21-16 and previously beaten PKP 21-19 21-19. Sig Ep's Bob Lang and Jim Bell were the winners.

The semi-finals are booked for this afternoon and the finals on Monday at 4 on the court's near the men's gym.

BY TOM HALF
Flambeau Sports Writer

After posting a 5-1 record this year, Coach Mike Long's tracksters will be facing much the same schedule next year with only seven lettermen being lost and four record holders coming back to form the nucleus for next year's team.

Skeets Rollins will be Joe Davis' captain of this year's team and high point man for the year.

Davis edged out by two points Junior Jack Terwilliger, who won the mile last year.

Also graduating are Tenny Reese, Jim Harrell, Pete Frasche, Lloyd Lassen, Ken Segare, and Charles Watson.

Lanky Bob Bolla, the school high jump record and Segner held the 880 record until sophomore Doyle Ruff broke it with a 1:57.1 clocking in the Florida AAU's.

GOOD FRESH

Outstanding freshmen prospects who will be joining the varsity next year are Tom Keeler, who won four events against the Florida frosh; Tom Kenny, a distance man who placed second in the State AAU mile, Gary Bulmer, a 100 and 220 yd dash man, and Charley Nee who runs the middle distances along with Ben George and Claude Grizzard.

Next year's schedule remains virtually the same according to Long, as the Seminoles meet Miami, Mississippi Southern, and Florida in dual meets, while participating in the Montgomery Sta. relays and the Atlantic Coast Conference championships.

Long also stated that there may also be the team title.

In the Southern Intercollegiates the Tracksters finished sixth a team standings six strokes behind the champion Bo Shuler ending the seventh in individual play.

Berry Tops Tribe Golfers With 71.8 Mark; Jenkins 2nd

Two-tenths of a point gave Buzz Berry the best overall average as Florida State's golfers ended a successful season.

Berry, winner of the Florida Intercollegiate Tournament, finished with a 71.8 average just beating out captain Ed Jenkins' 72.

Bob Shuman, next year's lone returnee of the starting six, rounded with a 73.2 average followed closely by Jack Vegliye with a 73.5.

National lefthanded champion Harry Shoemaker ended the year with 74.1. The other golfers that saw action were Bob Shuman with 74.5, Dave Morris with 74.7 and Billy Shelton who played only the dual meets with an 80 and a 76.

Bob Shuman posted the year's only hole in one against Rollins.

The linksmen have won 27 out of 36 with the only loss coming at the hands of Florida which snapped its 18 match shein that FSU had built up.

The match with Georgia was called after nine holes and was the furnish in the Bob statistics.

Berry was the first Seminole to win the state tourney since Sonny Tenney turned the trick in 1948. His winning rounds were 66-67-68. To be a 16 under par new record for the Ocala course.

The tournament was an outstanding success for the Tribe as Jack Vegliye was second with seven under par and Bob Shave third with three under par. FSU also won the team title.

FSU, 'Unknown' NCAA Prospects

By PHIL ROYCE
Flambeau Sports Writer

Florida State will be obscure Louisiana college that holds a 21-1 season's record are the two teams left in the running to represent the independent colleges of District III in the NCAA regional championships.

Seminole Coach Dan Litwhiler learned this news Tuesday when the chairman of the District III committee, Wade Rabb and another member of the committee, Jim Watley visited Tallahassee.

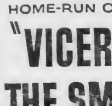
The two committeemen told Litwhiler that they were pleased with the seasons that State would receive the bid.

However, they cautioned that they were speaking only for themselves and not for the entire committee.

Chairman Rabb said the names of the teams to compete in the regionals will be announced officially May 21.

The tournament is scheduled to begin 10 days later in Gastonia, North Carolina.

The name of the Louisiana college remains undecided, nonymous in this neck of the woods.



Rabb told me its name," said Litwhiler, but I'm forgotten it. I seen them in Louisiana but I'd never even heard of the college."

Equally unfamiliar, according to Litwhiler, are the teams that placed 1'd never heard of them either," he explained

Seminole skeptical that the whole thing was pinochle a hoax pulled off on FSU by Duke to worry the Seminoles and reduce their effectiveness.

"On the basis of the teams we've played, we should get the bid. Still, it could go either way," stated the tribe mentor.

Lensen To Complete Russian-Jap History

Dr George A Lensen, associate professor of history, has been awarded a grant by the Social Science Research Council to complete the first volume of a pioneer two-volume history of Russo-Japanese relations.

The faculty member, director of the Asian Studies program at FSU, said he expects to have a manuscript for the first volume of the work in the hands of a publisher by the end of the year. It is the fruit of 10 years of research.

The first volume covers Japanese and Russian relations from 1697 to 1875 and a second volume, which will require much additional research, will bring the history up to the present. There does not exist as yet an overall history of Russo-Japanese relations in English.

SPEAKS TWO LANGUAGES

During World War II as an intelligence officer for the Army in the Pacific area Dr Lensen picked up a command of Japanese. This was added to a grasp of Russian and the two language skills enabled him to translate and analyze many source materials in the two languages.

A personal library of materials, which includes several hundred printed volumes, has been supplemented by notes, microfilms and other records obtained in Japan as a Fulbright research scholar in 1953-54 and from several American libraries.

The new grant will free Dr Lensen of teaching duties during the summer and fall. His work will be done here except for a few weeks in New York [illegible] check some source [illegible]

"Business and pleasure do mix..."

ROBERT H. WENTORF, JR., Ph.D., University of Wisconsin, 1951

"Until I joined General Electric's Research Laboratory in 1951, I never realized science could be such a challenge — or so much fun. My job involves research in physical chemistry — the investigation of new ideas which can lead to new and better products people can use. In a company of this size, I have the unique advantage of having the tools and facilities I need and the experience of others close at hand. And in return, of course, I'm expected to apply myself to the best of my ability in each new job. As I see it, if a big company like General Electric invests time, money and faith in my creative ability, and if I respond by creating, then we both benefit. To me, at General Electric business and pleasure do mix."

The achievements of 31-year-old Robert Wentorf speak well of his ability to make the most of the opportunities offered at General Electric. He recently created borazon — a completely new, diamond-hard substance which promises far-reaching effect on industrial processes and everyday living.

There are more than 27,000 college graduates at General Electric. Each is provided the opportunity for self-development in the hope that his creative ability will bring forth new ideas. As General Electric sees it, these new ideas, stemming from man's native curiosity, will lead to the development of countless products as yet undreamed of for our nation's defense, industries, and homes.

A physical chemist at General Electric conducts studies of the atomic structure of matter, and of the way atoms and molecules interact under a wide variety of conditions.

Campus Takes Last Fling

By RUTH FRITCHIE

Dead Week is just around the corner and campus extracurricular activities will come to a temporary halt after a last fling this weekend.

The Sigma Chi's wind up their year this weekend with a combination pledge-active softball game Saturday morning and the skiing and dancing that follows and evening at Myers Lake. Music in the "Rhythm Rioters" style will be played by Deviliaires.

Pi Sigs were entertained by Tri Delts during the past week with a backwards party at the Deli house. The girls did everything backwards, including serving the Sigs up, going in the back door, and asking them to dance.

Later in the week the Sigma Chi's visited the Zeta Tau Alphas with a Chinese party at the latter's house. There were decorations of China including a Tree of the Autumn Moon. A few gifts were presented by the hosts.

Twenty Alpha Chi Omega's will, on Sunday, University Dames Club will entertain the Delta Zeta's over for a tea and get-together.

Another tea Sunday will be given by the Zeta Tau Alphas for the new Zeta Tau Alpha pledges.

Pi Kappa Alpha's will be entertained with a Chinese party at the house Saturday night.

Phi Mus will be entertained by the Delta Zeta's over for a tea Sunday afternoon.

Alpha Chi Omega's will entertain Sigma Kappas with a tea Sunday afternoon.

Delta Gammas are having a softball game with their pledges on Sunday.

Kappa Sigma brought to a close another series of social activities with an informal banquet held during the past week. Each table was serenaded and presented with a dozen red roses.

The final "class" for the Pi Kappa Alphas will be this weekend when it is already planned to have a party with the pledges at a dance that comes Saturday night.

Delta Tau Delta's and their sweethearts had a Mardi Gras dinner party and supper dance at the Deli Wednesday. At the Ramona Ball, Miss Ann Pierce was named Deli queen. Trophies for the actives and pledge of the year were awarded to actie Jodie Ward and pledge Buddy Elliott.

Sunday featured a softball game between brothers and other fraternal dance. The weekend was climaxed with a trip to Panama City Sunday morning.

Mortar Board entertained the TEP's last Sunday. The affair was a buffet supper and get-together with bridge and dancing.

Saturday afternoon the TEP's and the Gamma Phi's had a picnic. The evening was highlighted by a Lavender Ball dance. During the intermission the Beaches-of-the-year queen was given to Donald Schwartz, president.

Sunday was the weekend come to a close with a coast party at Alligator Point.

AD Pis Tribute Founders At Tea

Last Wednesday was a red letter day in two ways for the members of Alpha Delta Pi. This day marked one hundred and [illegible] years since the sorority was founded.

The chapter paid tribute to the founders of the sorority with a [illegible] Founder's Day tea.

The tea's tea was in special honor of the chapter's [illegible] Mrs. S. D. Barret who is retiring at the end of the school year.

Alumnae university personnel guests of the sorority, Tallahassee citizens, personal friends of Mrs. Barret, and other out-of-town guests attended the affair.

Mother Barret was initiated into Alpha Delta Pi on Monday evening preceding the tea. Active members and former members were of course chapter attending the ceremony.

Religious News

Church Activities Are Ending

By ANNETTE McINTOSH

The approaching close of the school year has brought corresponding final activities in many of the [illegible] religious groups.

The First Presbyterian Church, Tallahassee, is holding its last student communion service at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, at which the following new executive officers will be installed: Sarah Jane Griffin, president; Al Godwin, vice-president; and Frank Butterfield, secretary-treasurer.

This will be preceded by supper at 6:30 and Bach Sacred Cantata, "Come Time Is Ever-best," which will be given by the Westminster Choir under the direction of Karl Mohr.

Have you noticed any changes at the Baptist Student Union House? Does it resemble the handiwork of giant termites? Never fear, the [illegible] are happy about the whole thing, for it is a sign of progress. An increased enrollment and an expanded program have required better facilities, so the entire BSU House is being remodeled and a new addition constructed. If all goes as planned, the house will be ready for use in September.

The Senior Outing is being held Saturday at Alligator Point from 3 to 8 p.m. Transportation will be provided from the BSU at 1 p.m.

A Rosary and a Benediction will be presented at the Newman House on Sunday at 7:30 p.m. to provide a spiritual lift for exams.

Last week the Christian Science Organization elected these new officers for next year: Rosemary Starr, president; Sue Lowell, vice-president; Arabel Johnson, corresponding secretary; Phyllis Harvey, recording secretary; and Jill Jordan, treasurer.

I'd like to close by thanking those afterfarth representatives, publicity directors, and other workers responsible for turning in weekly religious news.

I sincerely hope that their help, which has made this column possible, will be available next year.

This medium of relating important religious events to FSU's students through the Flambeau is one which I hope to make even more complete in the future.

No Bermudas At The Prom

Ivy league clothing will be left at home by coeds and the transformed cinderella will have appealing glances at the Junior-Senior Prom this week end.

In spite of the popular trend toward informal wear at semi-formal and skirt formal occasions on campus, the attire at the prom is expected to be "as formal as possible", according to Sue Shinea, junior class social chairman.

"Boys are not supposed to wear bermuda suits, although suits will be appropriate" says Miss Shinea, "since guests for the week end may not have brought a tuxedo."

As for the coeds, it's hard to draw a line between cocktail dresses and short formals today, and as usual, there will be a variety of styles, long and short, boos and ahesitas.

Since this is the last chance of the year to look your best, cover those bare knees suntan and get out your finest dresses, gals. Formal is the last word for the prom.

Veterans Club Honors Softballers

The veterans club will have a buffet dinner in honor of the Vets softball team, Sunday at 5 p.m. at the Tallahassee dining room on North Monroe.

The dinner will be free to all members of the club. There is a 50c charge for each additional guest.

All club members who plan to attend are asked to sign the list at the Westcott information booth prior to noon tomorrow.

Earmarks $2,300,000 For FSU

Nuclear Research Program Gets House Endorsement

Florida State University's $2,300,000 proposed nuclear research program was given a vote of approval by the House yesterday.

The nuclear bill must return to the Senate, however, for consideration of an amendment which gives the Board of Control authority to coordinate the programs at the state universities.

The Senate approved the bill earlier to grant a total of $5,200,000 to FSU, Florida A and M and the University of Florida.

The measure, which was a major part of Governor Collins' program, passed the Senate earlier with the amendment. The House vote was 56-21 but few opponents took the floor against it.

The atomic energy program will provide Florida State University with $2,300,000 for "basic" research; $2,800,000 to the University of Florida for "applied" research; $65,000 to Florida A and M for a laboratory, and $35,000 to the Board of Control for its supervision.

Rep Musselman of Broward told opponents of the bill that supervision by the Board of Control will prevent any possible "duplication" of efforts between the universities.

According to university officials FSU's goal in the program is to train nuclear scientists. They said such a program will not hinder the establishment of a nuclear reactor at the University of Florida.

With a nuclear accelerator, FSU will be able to enter a pioneer area of nuclear research.

Called a "swindletron," the accelerator is a specialized tool through which scientists can learn more about the atom.

FSU scientists said by having such a center, the University will be able to retain faculty members who already have gained extensive recognition in the nuclear field and attract additional ones.

It will also attract an increasing number of students who will become Florida's future nuclear scientists and technologists.

FSU already has contractors totaling more than $100,000 from governmental and private research institutions interested in various applications of nuclear energy.

Tentative location for the nuclear center is in the playing field near the women's gymnasium. This site is adjacent to most of the existing scientific classrooms and facilities.

The "swindletron" can be completed by 1960 if contracts are let by July 1. Rep. Musselman said the program envisioned another appropriation of $3,920,000, probably by the 1959 legislature.

He said FSU would get $1,570,000 to complete its research and that the University of Florida would get $2,350,000 to wind up its planned program.

Students are not permitted to change sections for examinations.

In unavoidable circumstances where a student must be absent from an examination, the student may request permission from his academic dean to take the examination late. No examination is to be given early in such cases.

Night classes will have their examinations at the first regular class period time during the examination week except those having group examinations. Classes meeting on Saturday morning will have their examination Saturday May 25 10:30 am to 12:30 pm.

Students who have more than three examinations scheduled for one day contact Mrs. Tharp, 102A Westcott Building. In case of four examinations in one day the third examination in the student's schedule will be changed. A candidate for graduation may be excused by his instructor from taking the final examination of a course in which he has maintained without question a [illegible] average when the examination is scheduled. Candidates for degrees who are required to take examinations will have them scheduled with their instructors not later than Monday May 27, 1957. Grades for degree candidates must be in the Registrar's Office by 12:00 noon, Tuesday May 28, 1957.

The lecture period of a laboratory course will determine the examination time.

Arrangements for room assignments should be made with Mrs. Tharp in the Registrar's Office. Ext. 7-4301.

The examination schedule is prepared by the Faculty Senate Committee on Examinations.

Magnolia Slates Dance

Magnolia Hall's annual Awards Dance starts tonight at 8:30. Guest of honor will be the dorm's newly acquired banner, a genuine Outer Mongolian Flag.

Speech Department To Offer Theatre-Television Course

The Department of Speech has announced plans for a special summer course in Theatre and Television. The course is designed for students interested in careers in educational or commercial theatre and television.

Students will produce two full-length plays for stage, and four television shows. They will perform all of the principal tasks involved in theatre and television production.

The course will be offered in both six and eight weeks sessions. Either six or nine semester hours of credit may be earned. The course is open to any student with appropriate background.

Interested students should contact the secretary in Room 121, History building, for application forms.

VALEDICTORY

With this column I complete my third year of writing for Philip Morris.

It has been my custom in the final column of each year to forego any attempts at humor, because you, dear readers, have had your funnybones so frozen by the cold wind of impending final exams that it is futile to try to get a laugh out of you; and because in this last column of the year we are saying goodbye, and goodbyes are occasions for sweet solemnity, not slapdash foolery.

Today my heart is full. I am grateful, first of all, to the Philip Morris Company who make this column possible. They have given me a completely free hand in the choice of subject matter; they have not tampered in any way with my copy; they have been unfailingly courteous and helpful. I wish to take this occasion to extend heartfelt thanks to the makers of Philip Morris for their most touching kindness, and to notify them that if we renew our association for another year, I shall require a substantial increase in salary.

Second, I should like to tender my thanks to you, dear readers. A writer's life is not an easy one. There are an appalling number of hazards—a drought of ideas, for one; catching your necktie in the roller of your typewriter, for another—and when a writer is blessed, as I have been, with an audience as alert, as bright, as intelligent as you, dear readers, then he must take his hat in his hand and his necktie out of the typewriter and humbly give thanks.

"Thank you for being dear. Thank you for being readers."

This, dear readers, I now do. Thanks for being dear. Thanks for being readers.

Finally, I wish to thank the tobacconists of America who make it possible for us to buy our Philip Morris Cigarettes by the pack. If there were no tobacconists, we should have to buy our Philip Morrises direct from the factory in boxcar lots. This would present grave storage problems to those of us who live in dormitories and other substandard dwellings.

I hope, by the way, that you have been to your tobacconist's lately and bought some Philip Morris Cigarettes. I have been trying to beguile you into smoking Philip Morris Cigarettes by means of what advertising men call the "soft sell." Indeed, I have occasionally gone beyond the soft sell into the "limp" or "flabby" sell. I hope my pulpy merchandising has had its effect, for here is an enchanting cigarette, pure, natural pleasure, a joy, a jewel, a haven to the storm-tossed, a bower to the weary. And in addition to being a haven, a bower, and all like that, Philip Morris is a boon to the absent minded. No matter which end you light, you're right!

And so goodbye. Go in peace, go in content. May good fortune attend your ventures, may love and laughter brighten the corners where you are. See you, hey.

© Max Shulman, 1957

It's been a great pleasure for us, the makers of Philip Morris, to bring you this monument to the soft sell each week. Till next year, goodbye, good luck, and good smoking—with natural Philip Morris, of corris!

Passage Of Nuclear Bill Tabbed Progress Milestone By Collins

Gov. LeRoy Collins said this week passage of the $4½ million dollar nuclear energy program for state universities "is a milestone in the scientific and industrial progress of Florida" and that "the broad foundation for this program will be laid by Florida State University."

Collins' exclusive statement to the Flambeau came as the bill granting FSU a $2,300,000 appropriation for "basic nuclear research" was completing its trek through the legislature.

The bill also provides a $2,800,000 appropriation for the University of Florida to set up a program of "applied nuclear research" in cooperation with FSU. It grants Florida A&M $65,000 for nuclear studies.

Collins said the program is one which has been "developed not only by our own scientists and educators but also in conjunction with some of the leading nuclear authorities in America.

"Even before final action by the legislature, the scientific circles in this nation were watching the Florida developments with interest and excitement."

The governor noted this interest has been "stimulated not only by the sums of money involved, which alone puts the Florida program in the front ranks of research and development, but also by the well-planned and coordinated nature of the entire program which is divided among the three state universities.

"The broad foundation of this program is to be laid at Florida State University, which will concentrate in basic research in chemistry and physics, without which future development is impossible."

He said the central tool for FSU's part of the program will be a large particle accelerator, and "this will be one of the few universities in the world to have such an advanced research facility."

The University of Florida's role, the governor explained, will be a continuation of "its fine program for the development of practical applications, especially in the area of nuclear engineering and also in agriculture, medicine and other fields."

He said the State Board of Control has been given $35,000 with which to engage the "continuing services of the very finest consultants" and to "ensure sound future evolvement of the nuclear programs at our state universities."

House, Senate Bills Differ By One Million

The joint House and Senate appropriations committee which began work on the state's record breaking budget requests this weekend, will have over a million dollar compromise to make on the Florida State University budget.

The House proposes $18,434,158 for FSU, while the Senate bill would give the University a generous $19,742,150.

Separate from the total budget figures is the $2,300,000 nuclear research grant which passed both bodies last week.

The greatest difference between the House and Senate figures lines in proposed salaries for the next bienium. Included in the House appropriations is $16,000 for the president's annual salary and $13,000 for the vice-president's salary. The Senate proposes $15,000 for the president, and $12,500 for the vice-president.

The House cuts $313,585 from the Senate's $13,219,609 Salary figure which may mean, if the bill is accepted, professors will not receive any substantial pay increase.

EXPENSE GRANTS DIFFER

The House and Senate bills differ by $50,000 on granting funds for "expenses". The item includes the purchase of materials such as paper, blue books, etc.

Both groups propose $119,400 to establish an Engineering Science program at FSU.

For buildings and improvements at the University, the houses propose that the same amounts be appropriated, but they differ as to which projects should be first and second priority.

While the Senate proposes the addition of a mathematics and meteorology classroom building, a social science building and a men's dormitory as projects of primary importance, the House includes in its first priority projects several additions to buildings, remodeling, and air conditioning.

The Senate lists these as "second priority" projects and adds to that list an oceanographic building pier extension and laboratory for the Oceanographic Institute aquisition of land, and addition to Doak S. Campbell Stadium.

Vance Status Still Doubtful As Term Ends

The status of Professor Earl Vance remains in doubt as the term draws to a close.

Professor Vance who has taught no classes during the past three years, has been the object of considerable controversy during the past months as a result of President Doak S Campbell's announcement that he would be fired.

Dr. Campbell announced in the May 10 issue of the Florida Flambeau that he would "announce no further action until after the Board of Control meeting." The Board of Control met Thursday and the Vance case was not mentioned by either the Board or Dr Campbell.

FSU's president reported to the Flambeau yesterday that "there have been no developments" on the Vance matter. "The report of the faculty committee has, of course, been made and is under consideration. That's as far as the matter has gotten at this time."

Professor Vance contacted at his home, said "We are going to follow up on the matter, but we can't do anything until we find out what the president is going to do."

The Board of Control meets again on June 27 almost one month after the end of the Spring Session.

Campbell Pens Final Letter

May 20, 1957

To the Editor:

Since this is the final issue of the Flambeau for the year and also the last to be published during my administration, I should like to express for Mrs. Campbell and myself our deep appreciation for the many wonderful people with whom we have been privileged to work during the past 15½ years.

The students have been an inspiration at all times. Thousands have become our warm personal friends, friends whom we shall always cherish.

The faculty have given loyal, devoted service to the University. They and their families have been kind and friendly to us. It has been wonderful to be on the "team" with them.

The members of the staffs of all departments; instructional, administrative, and maintenance, have shown unusual loyalty to the University. We are glad we can consider them to be our enduring friends.

To all of those with whom we have been associated, along with the great army of alumni and hosts of supporters of the University, we express our thanks and good wishes. We firmly believe that great days lie ahead.

Since we shall continue to live in Tallahassee, we hope we may have the privilege of seeing you. Your successes will always be in our minds and hearts.

'Rock 'N' Roll Primitive'

U.S. Femmes Old-Fashioned; Bermudas Too Long - Hungarian

By NANCY GENE BROWN
Flambeau Asst. News Editor

There's a lot to learn about living in America.

It's quite a challenge to Hungarian-born Levente Osvath, who was a student in Budapest when the recent revolution began.

Arriving at FSU after a variety of hardships, Lev (as he's called) found an entirely different world. And he likes it here.

A Senior Hall resident, Lev works for a short time during the morning at the Student Center. Preparing for a pre-medical major he is currently studying English and Math 117-118 (algebra and trig).

FINDS MATH DIFFICULT

"Math is a little hard," he says "because of all the expressions and terms used that I am not familiar with." He doesn't get grades yet—that will begin next semester.

Lev is finding conversation comes easier now than when he came here several months ago. He spoke little English upon arrival. He confided he's dating a lot, and will probably pledge a fraternity in the fall.

"I think American girls are a little old-fashioned," he asserted "but very nice." He likes to take his dates dancing at the Student Center, or to a movie which he seldom did in Budapest.

Lev is also finding a lot of fun in sports at FSU. With a group of about ten friends he has formed a soccer team that plays each weekend, and hopes to eventually become a part of Florida intercollegiate soccer competition. He recently learned that a Florida soccer league has been formed.

BERMUDAS TOO LONG

Commenting on the current Bermuda fad on campus, Lev was a little sarcastic.

"If you're going to wear shorts, why not make them really short?" he asked. "In Europe, everybody wears bikinis on the beach, and walking shorts are like bathing suits here."

"Bermudas are just too long."

Lev is quickly becoming adapted to American fads (or is it a permanent fixture?) in music—namely, Elvis Presley.

"I like the music, but not Elvis' personality," Lev said. "But I like Debussy too. Rock and roll is too primitive,"—a gleam came to his eye—"but the beat is good." In Budapest, he was accustomed to hearing Louis Armstrong, George Gershwin, or Dave Brubeck — but not Bill Haley.

Part of Lev's re-adjustment involves his constant companion—a Hungarian-English dictionary. When talking to him, use reasonable words that he can look up in a jiffy!

Rovetta, Anderson Initiated Into ODK

Dean Charles A Rovetta of the School of Business and Laird Anderson a junior in the School of Arts and Sciences, were initiated into Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership honorary for men, Thursday night.

Officers elected for next year were Bill Cullom, President; Hank McCann, Vice-President; J. M Plant, Secretary; and Arnold Greenfield, Treasurer.

Garnet Key Elects Weatherup Prexy

Garnet Key, women's leadership honorary, Thursday night initiated 10 new members and elected Joyce Weatherup as 1957-58 president.

Coeds initiated in the candlelight ceremony were Barbara McCartney, Barbara Burkhardt, Linda Broderick, Barbara Hendrix, Ada Leigh Wall, Lois Charlesworth, Sandra Rosenburg, Evie Morris, Nancy Worrall, and Pat Finlay.

Other officers elected at the closing meet of the semester were Priscilla Moss, vice president; Barbara McCartney, secretary; Barbara Chambers, treasurer; Linda Broderick, social chairman; Linda Briscoe, ritual chairman; Lois Charlesworth, publicity; and Gayle Gardner, historian.

Final Testimonial Dinner Set Saturday For Campbell, Wife

President and Mrs Doak S. Campbell will be honored at a Testimonial Dinner Saturday evening at 7 p.m. in the Suwannee Room.

Students may still purchase tickets in the Alumni Office, Longmire, according to Carmine Ranieri, student planning committee representative.

Dr Joe Hall, member of the FSU Board of Directors and Alumni Association, will act as master of ceremonies. Dr Hall is Superintendent of Schools of Dade County, Miami.

Governor LeRoy Collins will be among the distinguished personages making speeches. The honorable W A Shands President of Senate; The Honorable Elwyn Thomas, Justice of the Supreme Court of Florida; The Honorable James J. Love, Vice Chairman, of the Board of Control; and Mr. R Spencer Burress are the other speakers.

Other speakers — including students, faculty members and alumni—are: Mrs. Hugo Dichtenmoeller, President of the FSU Alumni Association; Miss Luella Richey, Professor of Accounting, Dave Bachman, Student Body President; 2-Lt Robert Crenshaw, 1956 Senior Class President.

The invocation will be given by Dr Harold Sanders, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Herman Gunter, Jr., assistant Professor of Music will sing and lead singing. Dr. A. B. Martin, Vice President of FSU will give the benediction.

BEVERLY BROWN (center) won the Miss Tallahassee contest held last Friday at Leon High School. Second place went to Paula Parsons (left) and Ruth Shuman was third. All three are FSU students.

A Farewell Editorial

About seven months ago, when the 1957 Flambeau was just a vision in the minds of myself and a few other enthusiasts, I wrote a somewhat whimsical column announcing that before the year was over the paper would be warned to "keep its nose clean."

That happened. It was a subtle warning; the kind that is more implied than stated, and it had to do with the Flambeau's right to state its feelings in the racial discussion of the Fall semester.

That was the only instance of attempted censorship in a school year that was otherwise made up of effort, concern, and, in a large extent, fulfillment. The one instance, however, was vastly important—for, to slightly change an oft-repeated quotation, a little censorship is like a little pregnancy.

To me, the question of whether the Flambeau has the right to state an opinion in an area where it hurts is the only really important test of its freedom. But further, the question of the Flambeau's freedom is only a minor part of a much larger question—that of freedom of thought at Florida State University.

AS A STATE UNIVERSITY, FSU is in the position of depending for its support upon a political institution, the State Legislature. In turn, the Legislature is susceptible to the pressures of the public, Florida's voters. This would be fine except for the fact that the representation is not democratic—the Legislature is more or less controlled by a minority, and the kind of minority that wants its representatives to "watch out" for evil thoughts at the state universities.

At best, such a situation is just tolerable. At worst, student newspapers become propaganda organs of the administration, professors must "avoid" discussing certain topics or opinions, and students are "protected" from hearing what they shouldn't.

This, to me, is not education, and it should not exist at Florida State University. But it is always often just plain rewarding and thus is ever an adevant threat.

THERE IS little to be done about the situation right now in Florida, since only the Legislature has the power to re-apportion itself, so the easiest thing to do is to ignore the problem of controlled thought. There aren't, after all, too many surface manifestations of pressure — classes go on as scheduled, nobody seems to be really worried about not getting to hear particular viewpoints . . .

Imagine, though, what would happen if, say, it were to be suggested that the known Communist speak at FSU. It's not too hard to picture the reaction—a swift clampdown would be put into effect, the advocates of such a crime would be asked to forget about it, and a full-blown, sneaky silence would descend. The students would again have been "protected".

I'm not suggesting that a Communist should speak at FSU. I am just using a hypothetical situation to point up the fact that "competition of the marketplace" as a means of discovering truth is not quite the system used at a state university. In most cases, the truth is defined, if not refined, before being handed down to the student. Truth must be limited to "the facts"—as stated by The University—and you've got to be careful how you state The Facts.

THE MOST deleterious effect of this hidden but intimidation is the distracting, lurking consciousness of it in the back of the mind of each student. You know you must not do or say certain things. But in my four years here I have become convinced that the only way to learn, and be sure of your learning, is to study all the pertinent facts before reaching a conclusion—and this means no "protection."

In the last analysis, when the double-talk and fancy explanations are swept away, pre-digested knowledge means one of two things: (1) the students are gullible enough to accept a pack of lies, or (2) the state's conception of "Truth" cannot stand the test of opposing viewpoint.

If the former possibility is the case the students should not be at a university, and if the latter is true the institution should not be called a university at all. In neither case is it justified that the state prescribe censorship, or pre-digestion of the facts, for learning's alleged weaknesses.

THIS CONCEPT OF impartiality in learning takes on greater meaning when it is recognized that if those enrolled at a university are too gullible to be exposed to all opinion, what institution is available for those "true students" who are intelligent enough to be trusted with all the facts? If there is none—if higher education becomes hand-me-down education — someday the last "protector" will die, leaving behind no one who understands why he believes as he does. Surely then this country will be fit for conquest.

For my part, I should prefer that my beliefs be based on knowledge of the facts. It is not enough that: I dislike Communists—or Republicans, or McCarthyites, or demagogues—I must know the reasons why these things are not good, and this means, above all, studying them.

If demagoguery has job, certainly they will be exposed under light of inquiry. So who hide the subject under a bunch of old linens labeled "dangerous" and "controversial"?

PROFESSORS who have recognized this have meant to me much more than those who were content to follow "book" outlines without question. Looking back over four years of attending classes, I can think of have been truly convinced on a point unless the professor was willing to state the facts as he saw them and let the chips fall where they may.

I believe I must speak for most of the students here in saying that students do not like to be "led by the hand" on the path toward knowledge. Students realize that if the depend on others for substantiation of their opinions rather than depending on what they have learned themselves (to be facts) they will falter when they must step out on their own. I further feel that if the people of Florida knew the effect of censorship on a student's mind, they would never again write their legislators to "look out" FSU. They would entrust regulation of what is studied to the discretion of faculty members who qualify to teach by virtue of experience, capability and extent of knowledge.

IN MY ROLE as Flambeau Editor I have experienced much that would be dealt upon here. But rather than betray the newsman's reputed cynicism, let me just say that I tried to let this paper reflect the true mandate as the staff and I were able to preceive it.

If this effort was not of value to the FSU students, then I failed in what I feel my own philosophy as outlined above. But I do not regret what I have said. I shall only regret leaving things unsaid.

OSCAR JOHNSON

Following what has become a Flambeau custom, 1956-57 Editor Oscar Johnson here presents a "farewell editorial" discussing an issue which affects all students at the University.

"Don't Worry, I Don't Think There's Anything In There"

Graduation Invitations Not In Says Bookstore

ALTHOUGH THE practice of sending invitations to attend graduation is often likened to a direct request on the part of the sender for a gift, there is still much to be said in favor of them.

They serve to let friends, relatives, and acquaintances know of one's academic progress and pending completion of the college curriculum.

They are worthwhile mementos of an occasion which, at FSU anyway, has little enough tradition connected with it and is often thought of as only a minor production that makes your degree final.

BUT IN order for the invitations to be effective at all, they must be sent out by the graduate at a time far enough in advance of the date of graduation to allow the recipient to respond with either a communication or a gift.

This year, it seems, someone connected with the ordering of the invitations has erred. Graduation is less than two weeks away and the invitations have not arrived at the University Bookstore.

WE DO not know where the blame for the tardiness should lie, but we do feel that those who will have to deal with this matter in the future should be aware of the situation as it exists now in order to avoid it in later years.

We suspect that the actual fault rests with the officers of the Senior Class as has been indicated by the administration of the bookstore. If this is the case, the officers for next year should take notice.

Seminole Credo

I'll Be Proud Of FSU When . . .

By DON HEIDEL

An essential ingredient every diploma mill endeavors to instill in its yearly graduates is an element which might be called "institutional pride." On the undergraduate level it is called school spirit and freshmen are indoctrinated to this element via rat caps, etc.

The element is supposed to grow through the academic career at a university and become so infused into the student that upon graduation he is a walking, talking publicity agent for the university.

However, somewhere along the line I must have missed my dose of indoctrination for after my four years here at FSU I find myself unable to puff up with pride and spout off about the virtues of FSU. I just can't feel comfortable about saying I am an FSU graduate. There are reasons:

SOMEDAY

when professors earn at least half the amount the football coach earns . . .

when the administration is not politically bound to the state legislature . . .

when students are considered to have minds and morals of their own . . .

when the president does not indulge in personal prejudice by trying to oust faculty members . . .

when a student may do more to merit a diploma than just show up for class occasionally and complete a minimum of work . . .

when creative effort is decried more valuable than serving as a "yes-man" for student government . . .

when a student can earn his grade without having to realize it was bestowed by another who got the test from the fraternity file . . .

when reasonable priced but wholesome, edible, and digestible food is offered for student consumption . . .

when the leadership honors and shows some leadership . . .

when the administration has enough faith in student government to eliminate the faculty senate veto . . .

when fraternities and sororities practice brotherhood and not preach it . . .

when academic freedom is not just a mouthed slogan . . .

when there are more professors who strive to instill into their students the desire to seek knowledge for its own sake . . .

when students can get monetary and based on merit and achievement and not on whether they come from some high school or have certain ancestors . . .

when an "A" grade in Education equals an "A" grade in Chemistry . . .

when Negroes are allowed on campus for more than cleaning toilets . . .

when the library is more than just a place to meet your girl or to sleep . . .

when FSU has as president a young dynamic leader who will command the respect of the students . . .

when certain religious groups live up to their faiths and not follow the dictates of tradition . . .

when the honor system is based on honor . . .

when the student body comes out of its intellectual lethargy . . .

when the free expression of ideas is accepted as necessary . . .

when conformity of thought is detested as much as it is admired now . . .

when professors are allowed to use their own teaching methods and not those dictated by the Dean . . .

when learning is a challenge and not a burden . . .

when liberal arts training is more desired than a professional school training . . .

when the university system is administered by men who know a little about higher education . . .

when students who cannot read and write English properly after 12 years in grammar and high schools are not permitted to enter . . .

when FSU has something better to offer prospective students than just publicity, football, circus, the marching chiefs new buildings, and glib phrases . . .

THEN I believe I will be able to puff up with pride and say with little irritation of conscience, "I am a graduate of FSU!"

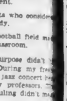
The Dissenter Concludes:

After Four Years At Florida State . . .



By MARTIN DYCKMAN

One didn't even dream of commencement that ... September evening almost four years ago.

A thousand of us freshmen sat, crouched and ... in the music amphitheater for the customary pre-collegiate ... doctrination.

We got the works. Honor system, student government ... dedication of a university, scholarship, school spirit, the Pep ... Song, and more.

Only we didn't think of it as orientation. It was something sacred. We sat there wide-eyed wondering, "Are we really here? In college?"

Commencement seemed a long way off. We didn't think about it and had no time to. The average newcomer was too apprehensive about the tough college work he'd heard about, concerned over tests, and afraid that the new regimen of study might be too hard for him.

NOT EVEN the exhaustion-and-brainwash pace of orientation week killed our enthusiasm. Well, maybe should speak for myself only. My enthusiasm.

But it didn't last. I saw and heard many things that ... me wonder whether all that had been said to me about ... sacredness of a university was in earnest, whether people ... came to college for learning and self-enrichment.

I FOUND out there were plenty of students who consider ... it a greater achievement to cheat than to study.

It became apparent that success on the football field ... one more famous than achievement in the classroom.

I found out that the university's noble purpose didn't ... it above the black cedar of racial prejudice. During my ... man year some Negro students who came to a jazz concert ... were asked to leave by university students, but by professors ... fact that this was due to a Board of Control ruling didn't ... it sensible.

ONE BECAME aware of petty jealousies among some ... ulty members.

The Student Body was discouraging in some respects. ... dent Senate seemed to be a society for the exaltation of ... student image. I found out that many students were ... at this institution of higher education thought relation ... background to be more important than friendship.

It seemed that a lot of students were here to have ... a good time and regarded studying as a necessary evil ... ant to graduation. What was worse, some of this attitude ... off on me and I found myself in my two years.

SO FOR a while I was disgusted and cynical and ... mouthed aloof it.

But now that commencement is at hand I'm frankly ... talgic about it. And not so critical.

Time and again, people have pointed out to me that it ... still possible to get an education at Florida State Univer... quite easy to realize value, that there is nothing sacrosanct ... individual development.

They were and are right. No one need judge himself ... his school by the Joe Colleges, the wastrels, and the perennial ... party boy the Dean . . . will show off on Parents' Day. The responsibility, and what others do should not distract him.

IF THERE were one word of advice I could leave behind, it would be, "Be Yourself."

I can't help feeling, however, that the university imposes some unjust restraints upon the students.

It assumes, from the start, they are immature, and thus hedges them in with impossible rules and well-meaning, should-misguided, services.

FOR INSTANCE, there is too much advice given in the planning of curriculum. Often the counselor plans the student's education, for example. Revenue is an incentive to laziness and complacency on the student's part.

Particularly unjust are the social rules governing the women students.

It is assumed their taste in dress is absurd, and so they are not allowed to wear shorts, although the intelligent coed will dress very tastefully and properly in shorts for the appropriate occasions.

SINCE THIS is the Twentieth Century, many girls can take an occasional drink and not suffer from it, either physically or mentally. Drinking is a part of the home environment. But at FSU it's an unpardonable sin to be dealt with by reprimand, the breaking of friendships, and drumhead trials. Courts whose members quite often are guilty of similar infractions.

Punishments for the breaking of residence hall rules are usually out of all proportion. A student out at the curfew at the wrong time suffers a worse penalty if she doesn't beg for mercy from House Council than if she retains her dignity and insists that she is in the right. Flagrant violators have been campused a coed for the rest of the semester for leaving her bed unmade three straight days.

IT HAS BEEN argued that the students must be controlled and regimented because many of them are immature. Quite so. Many are. But the reasoning is insufficient. Persons will not become mature and responsible through regimentation and the question of judgment is solved, not by them, but by someone in authority. At this stage of the game, denial of the right, a harsh rule, must be allowed to operate. A university can ... be geared to the lowest common denominator, because then ... who are mature, gifted and talented, and made to feel ... like they were once again in high school.

This is particularly true in learning itself. Many students are admitted who are not capable of doing college work. ... they do derive some benefit from the learning they are exposed to, the courses must, to some extent be set at their level. But ... this does to the potentially good students needs no elaboration.

IF THERE is one sentence I remember from these four years ... It is the statement of Dr. Marian Irish, head of the political ... science department, who said that the professor must stimulate ... the student; must torment him; must show him the way to ... great ideas and make him want to think them out for himself.

FLORIDA STATE University is still a young university ... has a future before it.

If, by being a student here, I have helped to anticipate that ... future, I am grateful. It has been both a discouraging and rewarding experience, a challenge and a challenge.

FSU's future has every potentiality of a great university. ... If some of the restraining ideas and customs can be shed ... an air of freedom and trust established between professors ... administrators, and not a few students, can be forgotten.

I hope I am not in dissent in this respect.

Cavaliers Initiate

Four new members were initiated at the final meeting of the Cavaliers, dancing organization, last Tuesday.

The initiates are Wayne Wright, Don Talmon, Arnold Abramson, and Bob Holloway, according to Wallace Yeager, Cavalier vice-president.

Jim Jullan, past Cavalier president, spoke at the initiation program on the subject of the purpose, origin, and proposed plans for the organization.

Class Day Begins

Senior Class Day activities will begin at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in Westcott Auditorium, according to Ray Wagner, vice president of the Senior Class.

Exchanging of caps and gowns from senior to juniors, and official recognition of Juniors as incoming seniors, will be the events of the day. Also on the program is the announcement of new Hall of Fame members.

Seminoles Receive NCAA Bid

Alan Whitmarsh

Corso Top Athlete

As is customary in the final column of the year we wish to present here our choices for the outstanding athlete in each Seminole sport.

There will naturally be dissenters, as in any arbitrary selection of this sort, but since nobody else has seen fit to make any guesses, we'll offer ours.

In football, I doubt if there will be any argument in the person of Lee Corso, the fiery Miami senior who closed out a brilliant four-year athletic career here this baseball season.

Corso was named the "Back of the Week" by the International News Service for his efforts in FSU's 14-0 victory over North Carolina State, and later became the first gridder in school's history to be named to the major-college all-America team, honorable mention.

In basketball, likewise, the choice seems to this corner cut and dried. A flashy soph named Hugh Durham from Louisville, Kentucky rose up with a bang at mid-season to almost singlehandedly spearhead the Tribe cagers.

Durham set a new single-game scoring mark with 43 points against Stetson, then went on to establish a new sophomore record with 569 points for the season.

In gymnastics, the nod goes to another soph, Chick Cicio of Brooklin, N.Y. Although failing to retain his national free exercise title, Cicio was a consistent high scorer throughout the season.

Certainly there were other standouts on the unbeaten gymnastics squad, such as Rafael Lecuona and Jamie Ashmore, but Cicio gets the nod for consistency.

TOUGH CHOICE IN SWIMMING

In swimming double honors to Jim Julian and Mike Tschirret with Tschirret gaining the individual nod because Julian was awarded the same honor last year.

Specializing in the breaststroke and butterfly Mike was a consistent scorer, and upset Florida's highly-touted Phil Drake in the former event in his season's high point.

The volleyball honors must again go to senior Bernie McCann, though Skakalis must be thrown in for a co-choice with Pevito Zeko.

McCann this year became the first Seminole spiker ever to name the first team all-America squad three years running. This incidentally may break that mark, now having made the first team two years in succession.

In baseball, again no awards after another highly successful season, this time with a 19-6 mark. Senior Jerry Boxer with a .342 mark and two one-hitters gets one and who could ignore the "lucky mist" again—Dick Howser?

Boxer is another phenomenon similar to last year's Tony Brizzolara—only one year of varsity greatness. Seeing little action in the first three years, Boxer this year became the big gun on a no-pitcher pitching staff.

Boxer after a miserable start, found himself hitting just .224 after 10 games. Over the stretch though, he hit .371 and was another team batting title with .364. Also settina a new mark of 38 hits with 29

BERRY TOP GOLFER

A victory in the Florida Intercollegiate earns senior Bunk Berry of Tallahassee the nod for top golfer. Berry set a new course mark with a 18-under-par total for four rounds.

In addition, Bunk was a consistent scorer for the Tribe golfers during the regular season. Should they compete in the Nationals however, he is ineligible due to the NCAA four-year rule.

A couple of sophomores stood out as Keith Pitchford's tennis team suffered its first losing season during the genial coach's ten-year

Les Hester and Fred Sevrell consistently showed promise and may garner some of the honors in the years to come.

Jo track a lanky junior from Gainesville, Mike Conley set two school records in the final meet of the season, the Florida AAU to earn top-notch honors.

Conley erased his own school marks in the mile and two-mile at one meet, and was the Tribe's only double-winner in a second-place effort.

And finally, athelete of the year? Lee Corso

ALL THE WAY?

Late yesterday afternoon Coach Danny Litwhiler received a telegram from Chapel Hill, North Carolina inviting Florida State's baseball team to compete in the regionals

It marks the second straight year that the honor has fallen to the Seminoles and naturally we agree with the committee's decision.

There 18-8 record this year against some of the toughest competition on the nation should make them a definite contender to go all the way to a national crown.

The Seminoles will probably have to face the Duke Blue Devils in the opening round a week we all saw here during the FSU Baseball Tournament and really impressed us.

But this time we believe it's Duke's turn to lose

Litwhiler To Nix 'Umpire Baiting'

By PHIL ROYCE

Florida State University's baseball team received their second consecutive NCAA bid to represent District III in the regional playoff late yesterday afternoon.

The athletic committee, which must approve all post season games, gave its official sanction at yesterday's meeting.

"We're very happy to receive the invitation and the team feels that we'll be able to represent the district more than adequately," said Coach Danny Litwhiler.

A one-hundred tradition, umpire baiting will be ruled out of order at the playoffs by Coach Litwhiler.

According to Litwhiler it was the tradition of bickering with the umpires that probably cost FSU the regional championship last year.

In the opening game of last year's tourney, the Seminoles were quite consistent and defeated Duke 21 behind the now departed Tony Amatulo

DROPPED TWO

During the next two games, however, they completely reversed themselves and started riding the men in blue with the result that Duke finished on the short end of 4-2 and -6 scores which eliminated them from the tournament

Duke's power apparently wasn't the only reason for the attitude about face showing of the Seminoles.

"Our bench was riding the umpires pretty hard," confessed Litwhiler, especially during the last two games. The umps got mad at us. I don't say they forgive the games, they just saw things in a different light afterwards."

The crafty coach, now a firm believer that umpire baiting is a virtue at least for players—remarked that his boys would receive specific instructions prior to the games requesting them to leave the umps alone.

COACH TO ARGUE

Litwhiler explained that the umpires are picked by the NCAA District III Committee and all are professionals

Despite the ill will that existed between the Tribe players and umpires last year, no Seminole was thrown out of the games. "They were waiting for a chance though," stated Litwhiler.

The Seminoles apparently learned their lesson well. The players fioned that although Joe can't be there with the Tribe's coach.

Amster Wins Stanton Award

Ronnie Amster was recently named recipient of the Scott Stanton Award given to the gymnast who is judged the most valuable team member by Coach Hartley Price.

The winner of the award should do an outstanding job in the NCAA meet be a good scorer during the year, and an inspiration to his team mates, according to Price

Amster is a graduating senior and winner of the 1957 Mid-West Intercollegiate horizontal bar championship.

Not only has he met the requirements of the award, but he was termed by Dr. Price as being "a great asset to his team members in helping them with the more advanced tricks, particularly on the horizontal bar."

Of his 1957-58 team Price felt that it is weak on paper, but that it has the potential to be great.

Much will depend on how well Larry Malmlin, Chick Cicio and Fernando Lecuona develop into all-a-round performers to take the places of such past FSU stars as Jack Miles, Don Holder, Bill Rotsharp, and to more recent years seniors Ronnie Amster, Rafael Lecuona, and Jamie Ashmore.

Price noted that "your all-a-round ability is stronger than ever at FSU with Leigh Andrews back, Andersen established a Florida State record at 3.8 this year and will be joined by Fernando Lecuona, Frank Tait and Bob Hicks."

In summing it all up Price said, on Cicio and Malmlin, and with Doo Preisker and Roger Webb, we should come up with an above average tumbling team

Free exercise is still strong with Cicio, Malmlin and Webb, and in trampoline we have Price-ner back with Don Powers to back him up.

Of his parallel bar specialist Joe Gusic, the gym mentor mentioned that although Joe can't be ed their lesson well. The players have been good all year," said the Tribe's coach.

SAE And Penthouse Win Intramural Titles

A special Flambeau unofficial tabulation (not counting the final meeting 5 points) shows that SAE clenched DPT, winner of the overall crown last 4 years, by defeating Penthouse 3rd and DTD 4th.

In the Dorm division the Penthouse Gang recaptured the overall point total from Methodists. The Peds were 2nd and Magnolia Hall 3rd.

Fraternity final standings:

1st	SAE	1185½
2nd	DPT	1125½
3rd	ATO	1057½

12th	Pyramid Club	136½
13th	Veterans Club	134½
14th	International Club	73½
15th	A.P.O.	73½

The official point standings will be announced at the final meeting of the Intramural Board Thursday in the men's gym at 4 p.m.

Penthouse won the horseshoe volleyball and softball titles and were runners-up in golf and track

Peds won the swimming, basketball and bowling and were runnerups in tennis doubles, and table tennis singles.

International Club won the tennis singles, Magnolia Hall won tennis doubles and golf and were runnerups in tennis singles

The Rebels won touch football, badminton and were runnerup in bowling and horseshoes.

Loiterans won table tennis singles and doubles and were runnerup in badminton.

Jocks won the track and were runnerup in volleyball.

SAE, in taking high point honors won the softball crown, the basketball title, tennis doubles, bowling, volleyball, and runnerup in horseshoes.

PDT won the swimming, track and were runnerup in volleyball, badminton and table tennis singles.

DTD won the horseshoes, tennis singles, table tennis doubles, and were runner up in swimming, and touch football.

SN won the touch football and golf and were runnerup in basketball

LCA won the table tennis singles, badminton and were runner up for table tennis doubles.

WINS 11-8

SAE had up the softball series with SC with an 11-0 win. SAE SC had earlier won them 2-0 Bob Nellums shut out SC with four hits. struck out five and allowed four.

SAE got nine hits but were aided by SC miscues. The 3rd and 4th when SAE only one legitimate single off Joe SC pitcher Hic- mates bobbles, mixed with his three walks apeiled five runs

The SC infield came apart at every point in the extra-frame game with SAE and as a result nine runs leaked across the plate on five hits with only one run being earned.

HORSESHOES

In fraternity horseshoes, DTD went into the finals of the winners' bracket of the tournament by beating TC the defending champs, 21-18, 17-21, 21-17. They beat SPE 21-6, 21-10, and ATO 21-18, 21-17.

SAE got stopped by TC 18-21, 21-20, 21-18 and went into the losers bracket, then beat PDT 21-19, 18-21, 21-13

ATO, after losing their first match to DTD, proceeded through the losers bracket, by beating PKA 21-4, 21-14, SN 21-6, 5-21, 21-8, KA 21-14, 21-11, 21-12 and SPE 21-8, 21-7.

PDT was beaten by SPE 13-21, 21-14 22-20, then went to the losers bracket and beat PKT 18-21, 21-15, 21-15. They also beat SC by 16-21, 21-8, 21-9 before dropping the match to SAE

DTD upset the dope by winning the horseshoes over the defending champions, and SAE and PDT, the favorites.

Lewis, Moore and Carter pitched DTD to the championship over Priest and Grimaldi in the final SAE was not in the first game and won 21-0. It looked easy, but the new champs won the neat 2 games 21-5, 21-13.

SAE had eliminated TC 21-13, 21-15 in the semi-finals. DTD had beaten TC to put them in the losers bracket 21-19, 17-21 21-17. SAE beat ATO 21-14 21-17.

Lee Corso, Versatile Senior, Leaves FSU Sports Scene

Lee Corso, versatile senior, is bowing out of FSU sports as his record is completed his fourth season on the Seminole's baseball team.

Although the 21-year-old outfielder is better known to most as the hard-running quarterback of the Florida State eleven, he has made a name for himself on the diamond as well.

During the past season, as the Tribe fought for their second straight NCAA playoff bid, Corso batted .311 and drove in 21 runs with his 23 hits which tied him with Carlee Hendrix for second in the RBI department.

HIGH MARK

His 27 bases on balls during the 1856 campaign still stands as the all-time high mark for free tickets to first base

Corso is ineligible to compete in this year's regional should the Tribe receive the bid under the NCAA four-year rule

In 1856 he batted 285 but still came through in the clutch to drive home 15 men and tie for the individual team leadership with Phil Hunt

Corso has lettered four years in football and three in baseball, his being named "1N8 Back of the Week" was the outstanding individual accomplishment of the gridiron season.

During his high school days at Miami Jackson where he lettered three years in football, baseball and basketball, he was named all-State in every sport his senior year.

He was also named to the all-Southern team and received honorable mention on the all-American High School team

PRO BALL OFFERS

Although Corso has been contacted by baseball scouts from the Dodgers, Cardinals and Braves, he doubts that he will accept any pro offers as he is looking for a future in education

Lee expects to enter graduate school in June to work on a master in physical education and administration and supervision, a branch of education.

Insight, Not Advice Helpful In Solving Marriage Woes

By ETHEL CALHOUN

Insight rather than advice helps men and women to solve their courtship and marriage problems through the Social Welfare Department's marriage counseling service, according to Dr. Albert Quade, one of the marriage counselors.

Counseling is provided free of charge to university students and residents of Tallahassee. Interested persons come from Moultrie, Thomasville and other surrounding towns to keep weekly appointments.

In order to benefit from counseling, Dr. Quade states, the person must first realize that he has a problem, and take the initiative to seek professional aid.

REVALUING PROBLEM

The first step in the counseling program is a preliminary interview to determine whether the person's problem can be handled through marriage counseling or whether it should be referred to psychiatric or child guidance centers, or some similar service.

Special features of the problem are also noted, so that the case may be designated to the counselor best qualified to handle it.

The counselee is given one standing appointment per week which he may or may not attend, as he sees fit. Counseling sessions Dr. Quade explained consist mainly of just talking - attempting to figure out what the real problem is and what the underlying causes are.

The objective of the sessions is not to prepare a ready-made solution to situations, but rather to help the person understand, so he can decide on his own course of action.

It should be emphasized, said the counselor, that all information divulged in counseling sessions is purely confidential, and is not to be released under any circumstances, except to transfer information to another counselor, which may be done only with written permission of the counselee.

The marriage counselor's purpose is not to decide or criticize a person's actions, he added.

Counseling takes four stages, Dr. Quade, explaining that problems brought to the marriage counselor have usually already become rather serious, and the more serious the problem, the harder it is to talk about. It is estimated that the average counselee makes 25 to 30 visits to the counseling clinic.

To be effective, marriage counseling must be taken seriously and the sessions must be attended faithfully. For those who stick to the program, "talking out" their problems is an estimated 90% effective in solving difficulties.

Premarital counseling is concerned with problems of dating and courtship, and deals with such questions as dating problems, personal objections to marriage, missed religious marriages, how to handle sex in dating and courtship and double wheels control engaged couples.

Students interested in taking advantage of the marriage counseling service should inquire at the counseling service's offices located in the old Demonstration School.

outstanding all-around performer, he could very easily add another trophy, and in that way add to the overall strength of the team.

Next year's gymnastics team will have a formidable record to try to add to. For in the last seven years under Dr. Price Seminole teams have won 33 team titles including two NCAA and three NAAU championships.

Stoakes Plans Mexico Tour

Dr. Paul Stoakes, FSU Professor of English, will attend six weeks in Mexico this summmer as an American specialist under the International Educational Exchange Program of the Department of State, it was announced last week.

Dr. Stoakes, who teaches also English as a foreign language, will spend the weeks at a "teachers" seminar sponsored by the Instituto Technologico de Monterrey. The seminar will be attended by approximately 100 Mexican teachers of English.

During the next eight weeks he will direct the revision of the English teaching program at the American cultural institute in Monterrey. The institute specializes in cooperated courses designed to teach English to Mexican adults. Dr. Stoakes is the author of a textbook widely used in South America in the study of English.

The professor will return to be at FSU in September.

KEEF CONGRATULATES Richard J. Wisch, assistant professor of business law at FSU (1) and his partner in law practice, Philip Barton, of Gainesville, on being admitted to practice law before the U. S. Supreme Court. Sen. Kefauver made the motion to admit the two lawyers.

The second annual Orientation week picnic honoring all new students has been scheduled for Saturday, September 14, according to Barbara Ensey, chairman of the picnic planning.

TENTATIVE PROGRAM

Tentative program plans include entertainment by the Marching Chiefs and cheerleaders, and the appearance of the FSU "Fighting Seminoles," who will wing the Garnet and the Gold.

Miss Ensey announced that a performance by members of Coach Hankies' Flying Hah circus troupe is also planned.

COMMITTEE HEADS LISTED

Working with Chairman Ensey are Assistant Chairman Mary Ann Bernhart; Program Chairman Jim Brownlee; Food, Ada Leah Wall; Transportation, Bill Cridland; Hospitality, Cynthia Lawrence; Grounds, Darlee Marshal; Tents, Ella Jo Blalock; Publicity and Promotion, Lee Calhoun Reeves; Music, Tom Tyler, and members of each committee.

A Letter
PDT Shows Sportsmanship

May 18, 1957

TO THE FLAMBEAU:

There are certain objectives that are enunciated by this university, and others spelled out more in detail by certain departments of the university. Unfortunately too few of these verbalization gets into action.

It is refreshing to observe a group of students who at some sacrifice to themselves put into a life situation the attributes most of us simply talk about.

PDT has won the overall team points the last four years in the intramural sports program. Up to the final events PDT and SAE were within 3½ points of each other on a gross total of some 1000 points.

In the softball game with SAE a play occurred in the 2nd inning in which they filed a protest and this protest was upheld by the Protest Committee. The players were asked to withdraw the protest on several counts, among which were the facts that they had been beaten by a 5-1 score a genuine defeat) that in protesting they were within their technical rights, but they felt they were morally wrong under the circumstances.

My point in writing the Flambeau is that I believe this kind of thoughtful, mature group action is highly unusual and certainly not too common.

Sincerely yours,
M. L. WALTERS.
Director of Intramurals.

Baseballers Place 5 Men On FIBC All-Star Squad

The Florida State Seminoles, who won the Florida Intercollegiate baseball crown, placed five men on the FIBC all-star team.

Jerry Boxer (6-2) and Jack Bristol (6-1) both pitchers, made the honor team for the Tribe. Third baseman Phil Hunt, shortstop Dick Howser, and outfielder Lee Corso also were voted on the all-star squad.

The formation of the poll of coaches in the FIBC, which selected the team, was announced last week by Warren C. Cowell, conference commissioner.

Sixteen players received ties, were named to the team. Boxer, a senior, and Bristol, a junior, were the top pitchers on the Seminole mound staff this season.

Hunt and Howser are only juniors and will return to the FSU team next year. Howser led the team in RBI's with 29, which was also a new school record. He was the best hitting regular as he blasted the ball at a .364 clip.

Hunt led the team in doubles with seven and finished the season with a .307 average.

Corso, one of the six graduating seniors, had one of the best years as he hit .311 and drove in 21 runs.

The FIBC all-star team:

Pitchers—Boxer and Bristol of FSU; Dick Sanders of Stetson; Jack Powell of Rollins.

Catchers—Boyd Coffee of Rollins, Jim Marshall of Tampa

Infielders — Hunt and Howser of FSU; Heath McInnis and Dick Laver of Stetson, Ed Contreras of Miami, Don Brennan of Florida State.

Outfielders—Corso of FSU, Ed Harrison of Miami, Al Pantuni and Elmer Lott of Rollins.

Films Program For 57-58 Se

FSU's Film Club has announced a program for 1957-58 including films from six countries at Cannes Film Festival prize winner.

Students Suggest Procedures For Creating Opera Workshop

TO THE EDITOR:

Because we feel that the establishment of an opera workshop at FSU is of vital importance, and because we realize that student suggestions concerning curriculum are often marked by much idealistic prattle and little practical thinking, we [illegible] with all respect, to the following thoughts on [illegible]

The importance of operatic [illegible] to voice students and [illegible] students is so [illegible] as to be beside the point. [illegible] is evidently one of [illegible]

It is not our place to [illegible] anything about this side of [illegible] School, nor is it our [illegible] to make suggestions about [illegible]. But here at the end [illegible] year, when certain posi[illegible] on the music faculty are [illegible] vacated, and when the [illegible] question of an opera work[illegible] much in the public con[illegible], we would like to express our thoughts on how a comparatively inexpensive but nonetheless effective opera department might be set up.

1. THE MOST important problem is obviously one of personnel. Actually, only two new positions would need to be created at first, and with intelligent scheduling one of these might be filled by our present faculty. One person could serve as musical director, combining the jobs of coach, accompanist, and conductor. The other necessary person would be a stage director. As an assistant to him to handle matters of production such as lighting, make-up, scenery, and costuming, which not use the present stage manager of Westcott, who is trained in Stagecraft. These three people could provide students with experience in every phase of operatic production, from the boards up.

2. As for a place for workshop classes, the music building's present facilities are certainly eminently suitable, though perhaps over-used. However, there is space in the basement underneath Opperman Hall which could easily be converted by means of simple partitioning into an opera studio.

3. "GROUND LEVEL" performances could be taken care of in the above-described studio. From there, the workshop could progress to performances every six weeks or so of individual scenes utilizing the Tuesday afternoon student recital set-up in Opperman. The third type of performance given would result in the combination of our present schedule of a musical comedy in the fall and a full-length opera in the spring. Such a plan would have the workshop open to music education people interested mainly in the production end of opera, and would supply the applied voice major with experience beyond the scenes in the pit as understudy in individual scenes from many operas, and eventually with the performance of a full-length role in Westcott. Other campus organizations (Chorale Union, the symphony) could participate in the major productions such as they do now.

4. The workshop's activities could be adequately scheduled from 4 to 6 o'clock each day, which would not interfere with any organizational rehearsals as they are now scheduled. One of these hours could constitute a lecture period, the other a laboratory period.

5. CREDIT given could vary with the different emphases for which different students would enroll. The number of hours participation in the 10-hour period each schedule constitutes would vary similarly. Eventually the plan could evolve into an opera major in the curriculum, with credit increasing as it progresses as it does now in the applied music curriculum—to be on with, maybe 2 hours credit for Freshman and Sophomores, and 3 hours for Juniors and seniors.

6. In the summers the workshop could operate full time, much as the speech department does now in its theatre and television workshops.

We feel such a plan would relieve the very impassible conditions under which opera is now produced at FSU, and would allow students a complete knowledge of opera from back stage inside out, as we've said before, from the boards up. This is what we need and what we see, so respectfully hope that the administration of the music school will carefully read and thoughtfully consider.

Letters To The Flambeau

Why Not Sponsor Coed Bermuda Day?

TO THE EDITOR:

After seeing the success of the recent Bermuda Shorts Day for men, we are moved to make the following suggestion. Why not a Bermuda Shorts Day (unsanctioned, of course), for women?

AN IMPRACTICAL suggestion, perhaps, due to the prejudice existing in certain circles which consider the exposure of feminine knees as barely short of immorality. Now, this attitude can prevail today as beyond us—especially in Florida where Bermudas have been accepted for the last few years as conventional attire for women (even before men dared to wear them), and where shorts and sportswear have been in vogue since the 1920's. Even at universities in the North, where dress is generally more formal than in Florida, coeds may be seen on campus in assorted Bermudas and slacks.

Bermudas have been the standard hot-weather issue on campus for several years and with no appreciable results other than that a sizeable number of coeds wear them in spite of admonitions from housemothers. The rainout is a good — best friend who not? This homely acronym enables her to be almost as cool and comfortable as he: bare-kneed and considerably less chic besides!

WE ADMIT that the issue of Bermuda shorts is small compared to those issues for which men have fought and died. But now that Tallahassee's present weather is upon us and half of the student population is in the dorms, shouldn't some haste be dealt the other half? If the coeds themselves would express their dissatisfactions with the present ban on Bermudas publicly and with conviction rather than just complaining to each other, the sentiment produced might be sufficient to oil the wheels of progress at FSU.

Sincerely,
TWO COLDS

One of the most enjoyable evenings I have had the privilege to take part in was at the Senior-Junior Prom Saturday night. The music of Ralph Marterie was smooth, the floor programmed, and the High Society mural designed by Joseph Weatherup lended greatly to the atmosphere.

GOPs Mixed Up

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE STUDENT BODY:

I am writing this in reference to a letter by Dan Cram which was published in the Florida Flambeau of May 14.

In the letter, Mr.Gorham not only falsified the facts, but drew conclusions which were not valid. Mr. Gorham, inform Mr. Gorham that, contrary to information he might have, the Young Democratic Club has not been recognized by the student senate, but is a sponsor of the national organization. Our purpose is to create an interest in both state and national politics. During the 1955-56 school year, at this time I served as president, we brought to the campus the Democratic nominee Adlai E. Stevenson. It is unfortunate that the republican party was not represented.

In this recent issue, in which you challenged us to a debate, we accepted and chose two of our most able members as representatives. Immediately, you dropped the challenge, stating they were disqualified because of their past experience. Really, Mr. Gorham, and you deny us the right to select these members because you have none of such caliber at your disposal?

The Young Democrats extend to the republicans on campus a sincere wish that, as organizations will arise, not one that will hesitate itself with untrue accusations, but one that will stand solidly behind the question of the party.

And to you, Mr. Gorham, with your naive and childlike attitude, I express the hope that the future will select a leader with a little more finesse and political foresight.

Sincerely yours,
GUY W. MILLNER

We Need Workshop

TO THE EDITOR:

An opera workshop would unquestionably help to place the music department on an equal level with other departments within the School of Music. As the situation exists now, the freshman and dedicated music teachers on our faculty are failing to give their students a sound professional training simply because there is too few of them.

WITH THE number of voice students studying [illegible] plus many others far on the waiting list for [illegible] this could in a short [illegible] be the finest vocal department in the South. All that is needed is the addition of [illegible] qualified teachers.

To the more specialized field of opera, this is an area of professional training for the [illegible]-be singer which has almost totally neglected [illegible] with the exception of the [illegible] experiences afforded the vocal major by the two major student productions presented annually. This situation would be alleviated by the formation of an opera workshop, which would provide students the opportunity to study all phases of opera production and to perform with professional bearing.

Sincerely yours,
SHELDON TORN

'Part-Time' Basis Out

DEAR EDITOR:

I sincerely praise you on your articles and interviews concerning an Opera Workshop at FSU.

I CAN'T believe that opera on a "part time basis" can possibly train adequately a singer who has devoted his entire life to possible operatic career.

The inner conflict and confusion of this type of production can only tend to confuse and misinform all concerned as to the "necessities" for a professional career.

A FULL TIME Opera Workshop is the only thing that can lift these productions to a caliber that would be of value in training not only the voice but the attitudes, the dramatics and a knowledge of a back stage life, all of which are necessary possessions of the rising professional if he is to use it at all.

MARTIN LIES

Vets Club 'Secrecy' Distorted

DEAR FLAMBEAU SPORTS STAFF AND ALL WHO READ THEIR NOBLE EFFORTS:

I shall hope that this letter will serve to clear up a misconception clouding the Veteran's Club withdrawal from the playoffs of the Intramural Softball League.

THE VET'S CLUB got off to a good start in the playoffs by winning their first two games. The second game, with the Psychology Profs, was darkened by a proposed protest of these same Profs over the familiar looks of the Vet's shortstop, Joe Pierce. The Profs thought they had seen him play for another team during the regular season. This was true, but here is where a criticism of the administration and rules of the intramural softball program is needed. On the two instances that the Vet's shortstop committed this seemingly unpardonable sin, he did so in a true effort of sportsmanship.

In both of the cases one of the teams scheduled to play lacked the necessary minimum number of players to officially start the game. Through mutual consent of both teams it was agreed that the team lacking full playing strength be allowed to pick up a player from the spectators. Had this not been agreed to, the team lacking sufficient players would then even have been played. It is always a great fun to win a game, but it is also just as great fun to be able to play a game rather than go out prepared to play and then not be able to. The two teams concerned in both instances displayed exceedingly good sportsmanship in placing their desire to play over a desire to pick up an easy victory by forfeit. This practice is carried out in countless softball leagues throughout the country but the local intramural board did not see fit to condone such a practice at FSU.

WE, THE VET'S Club softball team, did not get caught. The fact of our shortstop's filling in for another team was fairly generally known throughout the league, and there was no attempt to disguise this fact by using an assumed name. The allegation "it was discovered they were using a player under an assumed name" on the sports page of the Flameoau of 17 May '27 is basically unfounded. A check of the names on the score cards for the games concerned will show not an assumed name but a misspelling of the individual's given name. The misspelling of this name is understandable, for the name is not spelled as it is pronounced, which is a common mistake often made by most everyone.

We of the Vet's Club softball team would like it known that there was no attempts to fool anyone or try to get away with something. The individual who precipitated the controversy had played for the Vet's all season and was one of our most consistent both in the field and at bat. He did not see any harm, nor do any of his teammates, in helping out another team With this in mind, the Vet's, rather than be party to such a petty gripe, having won the first two games of the playoff, decided to withdraw and take a moral victory. Though the Vet's did not win the official title, the entire club is understandably proud of their record and effort and believe that they will not be alone in their respect now that the facts concerning this controversy are more clear.

Frosh English Writing Award Given To William Lindsey

Friday's English Coffee Hour attendants saw the annual Freshman Writing Award go to William H. Lindsey.

The award, annually given by Sigma Tau Delta, honorary English fraternity, went to Lindsey for his theme "The Sewing Machine Salesman and His Job."

Lindsey exposed a thorough knowledge of the sewing machine selling business in his humorous treatise and portrayed the lot of the salesman as a thankless one.

Miss Dawn Sharp, Chairman of the Judging Committee, said that "there was a general high standard of excellence in the material turned in to the committee this year. Mr. Lindsey's humor and semantical usage made him the obvious choice, however."

Honorable Mention in the contest went to Robert Randall, Nancy Fraser, Melanie Drew, Nancy Gross, and George R. Kevall.

The Judging Committee consisted of faculty members Sarah Herndon and W. H. Rogers and students Dawn Sharp and Donna Hardy.

Arty 'Signals Too Obscure

Ode to the Young Poets of Smoke Signals, or,
From Obscurity to Longmire

O, they were young and Arty.
Ideals they did disperse;
They got they Die Board to listen
While Truzzi got the curse.

They said they could do better,
Their writings were sublime
SMOKE SIGNALS was to prove it
With story and with rhyme.

BUT . . .

The stories are from hunger,
The poems are from lust,
And Truzzi has been bested—

To anchronistic verse,
They labored to obscure them—
If understood, they're worse.

The Arty Party's done it,
The Muses they did rout
Europe's in the gutter,
And Polybynna is out.

They violated Culture,
Put "Literature" to shame,
And they they send abstracts,
On Truzzi cannot blame.

We've witnessed Truzzi's triumph,
He's published all their tripe,
Their foolish mumbo-jumbo
Has caused a bigger gripe.

The vice-president, Jackie Pittman, was not present for the picture.

Threatens Enterprise System

Reduce Arms Spending—Prothro

The system of free enterprise may be seriously affected if some measure is not taken to reduce military spending, declared Dr. James W. Prothro, associate professor of Political Science.

"There are two angles on this business," said Dr. Prothro. "One of them is the superior manpower of the East, the other is the cost of large standing armies and conventional weapons."

MUST REDUCE SPENDING

"The arms burden is becoming harder and harder to take in democratic countries," he said. "Unless something is done to reduce spending, the system of free enterprise will be seriously affected. And that would be very pleasing to the Russians."

Dr. Prothro pointed out a possible solution in disarmament. "More and more countries, more and more leaders are thinking of cruse decisions that will have to be made. Weapons have been developed to such a point that some limitations will have to be imposed," he asserted.

RACE TO DESTRUCTION

"The only alternative would be a race to world destruction," Dr. Prothro declared.

According to the instructor, Western policy makers have held this view for quite some time. There is some indication that the Soviet leadership is beginning to grasp the awesome meaning of it all.

"I consider the Russian proposal for a swap on aerial inspection made at the disarmament conference in London a step in the right direction granted that they didn't prove themselves on that step and that it was totally undesirable," he said.

SOVIETS ARE CONCERNED

"The Soviets are jockeying, but they have shown a degree of concern."

Prothro continued. "The matter has been discussed at length at the past North Atlantic Treaty Organization council meetings in Bonn, Germany. Some members of the organization have expressed misgivings about too much concentration on atomic weapons.

FRANCE OBJECTS

Several North Atlantic Treaty Organization members, with France leading said at the Bonn conference that the NATO powers should never waver to limit disarmament to atomic weapons, Dr. Prothro explained.

The argument is that if atomic weapons are banned, the West will be confronted with the overwhelming manpower of the Soviet Union.

The instructor foresees a future overall streamlining of military planning for Western nations and their allies. Guided missiles will account for much of this streamlining, he said.

University Singers' Concert Tomorrow Night In Westcott

Fifty three University Singers will present a pre-exam concert for the University Knights and Dames Wednesday night at 8:15 p. m. in Westcott auditorium.

Directed by Herman Ginter, Jr. the University Singers will give their ninth Annual spring concert in which Ginter has especially invited the FSU student body.

The program on which the chorus has been working all semester will include selection from early church literature to contemporary secular literature, according to Ginter.

Included in the program will be Bach's "Gloria in Excelsis Deo" and Caldara's "Crucifixus," both in Latin. Soloists Beverly Brown, pianist Harriette Morris, Pat Nagley, and Steve Kleid will be accompanied by the chorus in Ravel's "Trois Chansons", which will be sung in French.

Contemporary music will include "Somebody's Coming" from "The Kentuckian," the spirituals "Lonesome Valley," "Rock-a My Soul" and "I'll Make Me a Man," which has been especially arranged for the Singers by David Ward-Steinman.

The program will be concluded by the medley from Roberta," by Jerome Kern.

Ward-Steinman is accompanist, and Paul Perry is assistant accompanist.

Tough To Sleep

Cawthon Residents Howl But 'Northern Lights' Burn

The Northern Lights are burning over the FSU campus.

Northern Cawthon, that is. And the residents of that woman's dormitory are in arms over it.

Since the installation of large floodlights over the North Cawthon parking lot, rumblings of discontent have been heard from the girls and their dates.

"It don't like 'em," is the almost unanimous complaint from North Cawthon residents. Objections run like this, according to interviews with several residents.

"BAD ON SLEEP"

"The lights are so bright they keep me awake at night."

"If they're trying to prevent auto accidents in the lot, it would be a better idea to pave it."

"They're defeating their own purpose."

The last argument demands clarification. Ostensibly, the lights were placed there to thwart or discourage theft in parked cars. But the common thought is that the lights were installed for less socially - rewarding purposes.

"But if you'll notice" said an indignant coed, "very few people "park" in the lot any more. This indicates the lights are driving them to the woods! Now which is safer, "parking" in the woods, all alone, or in the lot, where more people are?

WE'RE NORMAL!

"After all, we're normal! Everybody 'parks' somewhere."

This seems to be the consensus of opinion. The girls feel the lights are a reflection on their "trustworthiness," and that the lights are there to "protect them."

One girl registered no objection to the lights. "We usually like—" don't park—in the parking area she said.

For the most part, the girls willing to "live with the lights" but think it would be nice if could be a bit "let off" evening closing hours, or 10 minutes before closing hours warning.

"If the only purpose is to encourage petty larceny, okay," say the ladies of Cawthon. "But we think it's cruel to us. That's what we

A Letter

Cawthon Now Car Lot!

TO THE EDITOR:

We see that the university has passed a big and earnest campaign recently to save money, especially on electricity.

We, as interested students, would like to offer a helpful suggestion. Wednesday 11 o clock main street lights were installed in the North Cawthon parking lot. Certainly if the maintenance department is interested in economy it could dispose with them.

Furthermore, if the purpose of these gigantic lights which, incidentally, are the size of locomotive headlights, is to enable drivers to detect the huge furrows and ruts in the lot, why not pave the lot? This would make for smoother drives both in and out, and eliminate the purpose of these new, monstrous additions.

The lights also have another inconvenience which we would like to point out.

First, they are irrelevant in so unflattering a complexion.

Secondly, summer is approaching and the heat during their glare is almost suffocating nothing of the mosquitoes and other insects they draw.

Then we must take into consideration the girls which suffer from the glare.

That's a complete list, most of our complaints but really we're just trying to be helpful. We hope something will be done about this problem soon. Until then we are, for you at the NORTH CAWTHON USED CAR LOT!

Sincerely,
NORTH CAWTHON
Coeds.

Rich's Needs Girls For College Board

Rich's Department Store of Atlanta, Georgia has announced that women students at FSU will have an opportunity to become a part of the Rich's College Board. Serving as the Vocational Guidance and Placement Office.

Sixteen girls from universities across the nation will be chosen on the basis of interviews to be held in June. They will receive instruction in fashion, modeling grooming, and merchandising.

Interviews will be held at Rich's on June 13, 14, 17, 18 and 19. Appointments can be made by contacting Rich's Public Relations Office, Atlanta.

Floyd Initiated Into Honorary

Carlisle Floyd, assistant professor of music at FSU and composer was initiated Sunday night into the local chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia.

Floyd, who won the New York Music Critics' Circle opera award for his opera "Susannah," which had its premiere last Spring at FSU, came here from the University on a Guggenheim Fellowship.

Recently completing a piano sonata, presented last week in a student recital Floyd is now working on a music drama based on Father Forbes' novel, A Mirror for Witches.

Gets Fellowship

Dr. Earl Frieden, associate professor of chemistry at Florida State University, has been awarded a special U. S. Public Health Fellowship for 15 months of biochemical research in Copenhagen, Denmark.

Dr. Frieden, his wife and their two children will leave for the assignment next month. He will work in the Carlsberg Laboratories, privately supported research agency of the Carlsberg Foundation.

In addition to the Copenhagen research Dr. Frieden will visit leading research laboratories in London, Paris, Rome, and Stockholm.

Collins Signs Bill For Nuclear Center

Becomes Effective July 1; Makes FSU Atomic Center

After g delay of several weeks, Gov. LeRoy Collins has signed the bill which establishes Florida State University as a site for basic nuclear research.

The measure becomes effective July 1 and gives FSU $2,300,000 to be spent on construction of a plant and development of g program of studies into basic atomic energy.

It also grants the University of Florida $2,800,000 for "applied nuclear research" and gives Florida A&M University $65,000 for nuclear studies.

Collins was expected to sign the measure several weeks ago but fear the legislature had not provided enough money to pay for the program caused the governor to postpone action on appropriations measures.

After detailed study of the expected income from alcohol during the next two years by the Comptroller and State Budget Director, Collins began signing the bills.

The nuclear energy program was one of the first to receive his signature, illustrating his regard for its importance.

At the time the bill was being passed by the legislature some weeks ago, Gov. Collins said the program was an exclusive Flambeau interview as "a milestone in the scientific and industrial progress of Florida" and said that "the broad foundation for this program will be laid by Florida State University, which will concentrate its basic research in chemistry and physics without which nuclear development is impossible."

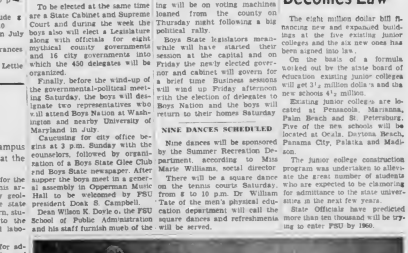
He said the central tool for FSU's part of the program will be a large particle accelerator, and "this will be one of the few universities in the world to have such an advanced research facility."

The University of Florida's role the governor explained, will be a continuation of "its fine program for the development of practical applications, especially in the area of nuclear engineering and also in agriculture, medicine and other fields."

In the same interview, Gov. Collins said the State Board of Control has been given $25,000 with which to engage the "continuing services of the very finest consultants" and to "ensure sound future development of the nuclear programs at our state universities."

Jr. College Bill Becomes Law

The eight million dollar bill financing new and expanded buildings at the five existing junior colleges and the two new ones has been signed into law.



The bill, of a formula worked out by the state board of education, existing junior colleges will get $1 million dollar while the new schools 4½ million.

The four junior college are located at Pensacola, Marianna, Perry and St. Petersburg.

Five of the new schools will be located at Ocala, Daytona Beach, Orlando, Cocoa Palatka and Sarasota.

The junior college construction program was undertaken to alleviate the great number of students who are expected to be clamoring for admittance to the state universities in the near few years.

State Officials have predicted more than ten thousand will be trying to enter FSU by 1960.

Board To Talk Of Successor To Campbell

Appointment of a successor to Dr. Doak S. Campbell retiring FSU president, may be discussed tomorrow at the Board of Control meeting in Jacksonville.

Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, executive secretary of the Board, said this week "it would be assumed I presume, that if a new president has not been named by the time Dr. Campbell departs, Dr. A. B. Martin, vice president, would serve in the capacity of acting president."

Dr. Culpepper said that progress is being made toward replacement of Dr. Campbell, who retires July 1. The Board of Control has been interviewing applicants for the past seven months. After the Board makes its selection, the new president must still be approved by the Board of Education

Returned of three other university faculty members has also been announced. They are Dr. Enda Devaney, professor of sociology, who was a member of the faculty from 1946 to the present time; Dr. Venila Shores, professor of history since 1922; and Dr. Sadie Tyndall, professor of economics since 1928.

No Parking Rules During Summer

Parking rules and regulations will not be enforced during the summer term," according to Dr. Harry Day, assistant business manager.

"We can't bear down on the students because a large part of them are only here for a short time and don't have time to get acquainted with the rules and regulations," said Dr. Day.

Dr. Day is relying on the cooperation of the students to preserve parking regulations with out the usual enforcement.

Warning tickets will be given to students who park in loading zones, next to fire plugs or in faculty or other designated parking areas.

No tickets will be issued during the summer term

450 Delegates

Florida Boys State To Arrive Sunday

Florida Boys State organizes on the campus of Florida State University Sunday afternoon and its 450 delegates will get out immediately to prove that politics still is a man's art.

Meeting a day after the adjournment of Girls State, the American Legion-sponsored assembage will start its carousel of political offices immediately following registration Sunday.

Principal political game during the one meeting is the office of Boys State governor, to be filled Wednesday night when the campaign between nominees for two political parties, the Nationalists and Federalists.

TO PICK OFFICIALS

To be elected at the same time are a the state Cabinet and Supreme Court and during the week the party chairmen will select a Legislature along with officials for eight counties, the county governments and 16 city governments into which the 450 delegates will be organized.

Finally, before the wind-up of the governmental machinery Saturday, the boys will also nominate two representatives who will attend Boys Nation at Washington and nearby University of Maryland in July.

Caucusing for city office begins at 3 p.m. Sunday with the counselors, followed by organization of a Boys State Glee Club and Boys State newspaper. After supper the boys meet in a general assembly in Opperman Music Hall to be welcomed by FSU president Doak S. Campbell.

Dean Wilson Dorie is the FSU School of Public Administration and his staff furnish much of the instruction in governmental procedures which the boys will begin receiving Monday morning.

The first elections, for city office, will be held Monday, followed by election of county officials. Legislators also will be elected and on Tuesday night the two political parties hold conventions to begin hearing nominating speeches for governor.

Party candidates and platforms are agreed upon by the conventions on Wednesday. Voting will be by ballots machines loaned from the county on Thursday night following a big political rally.

Boys State legislators meanwhile will have started their session at the capital and on Friday the newly elected governor and cabinet will govern for a brief time Business sessions will wind up Friday afternoon with the election of delegates to Boys Nation and the boys will return to their homes Saturday

NINE DANCES SCHEDULED

Nine dances will be sponsored by the Summer Recreation Department, according to Miss Marie Williams, social director

There will be a square dance on the tennis courts Saturday from 8 to 10 p.m. Dr William Tate of the state's physical education department will call the square dances and refreshments will be served.

4,400 Attend

Short Courses Draw Heavily

In addition to an estimated 3100 regular summer session students, approximately 4400 short course students are expected to visit the FSU campus this summer.

Various conferences, short courses, institutes, and workshops to conduct their studies here. Several groups have already enrolled their work. With their enrollments, they are: the Cheerleaders Clinic (200), American Medical Association short course (100), Southeastern Music Workshop (200), and Football Clinic (600). Also a 4-H Club Short Course (350).

Also in progress are Girls State (450), Summer Science Camp (94), Southern School Press Institute (22), Music Camp for High School Students (300), Music Camp (30), and Crafts Camp (50), and Junior High School Education Workshop (100).

Coming to come are Boys State (450), Twirling Camps (250), and Football Coach personnel group (50).

The expected summer school enrollment compares with an enrollment of 2839 last summer. About 40 per cent of this number will be graduate and Sc-

Science Camp Experiments

High school students talented in science are on campus attending the Fifth Annual Science Camp which opened June 16 for a two-week period.

The 94 students were selected on the recommendation of their scholastic aptitude for science.

At FSU, under the direction of professors from 12 different science departments, they will study and experiment in laboratories, hear lectures and participate in discussion.

"It is hoped that the experiences these high school students get here will stimulate their interest in science and that some of the students may decide definitely upon science careers perhaps in a particular field of their choice," said the director, Dr. Stephen S. Winters of the Geology Department.

FSU, beginning in 1953, pioneered with the use of the science camp as a means of recruiting scientists. Since then several other institutions in the nation have utilized the same technique.

The Science campers — most of them high school sophomores, juniors and seniors — attended an orientation program Sunday at which time their faculty advisers. The serious work began the next day, interspersed with their studies are outings, dances and field trips.

Most of the students are from Florida schools but Dr. Winters said that in some instances students of unusual aptitude have been chosen from out of state.

Art Students Exhibit Work

Sculpture, ceramics, blueprinting, cast pewter jewelry and hand glass will be exhibited by students attending the Summer Arts and Crafts camp in a final show in Room 101 of the Education building today at 1:30 p.m.

Thirty-one girls and 10 boys from Alabama, Georgia and Florida to attend the fifth annual camp, following up intensive arts and crafts or because they wish to develop special aptitude in the work.

Fred Metzke, of the arts education department, directs the camp for the third consecutive year. A frequent watercolor exhibitor in Illinois, New York and Florida and known throughout the states for his ceramic work, Mike Jewelry, he is assisted by a group of graduate students in art education: Bill Stalnaker of Bradenton, Emma Ashley of Orlando, Carolyn Grimsley of Stuart and George Price of West Palm Beach.

During the two-week duration of the camp, the group visited points of interest around Tallahassee. Among these were St. Marks where the group gained harbour subjects in watercolor; the state capitol building and the "Grove", home of Governor and Mrs. Leroy Collins. Millpond Plantation, where they sketched farm landscape and animals, and Wakulla Springs.

Cuban Prof Enroll Here

Eleven vocational professors from Cuba are currently enrolled in a six weeks course in business vocational subjects.

During their visit here, Cuba, three men will in turn teach others what they have learned.

"The program," stated Dr. Edward Hankins, of the School of Education, "is in connection with the International Cooperation Administration program of the United States government."

The professors arrived June 16 and will return July 25 in a Cuban Air Force transport plane.

Music Camp Plans Concert

The 16th annual Music Camp at Florida State University which opened Tuesday for a five-week session has an enrollment of 233 students, a still present in that of a previous years.

There will be four consecutive Sunday concerts, all scheduled for 4:15 p.m. in the auditorium and all free and open to the public.

Band concerts, directed by Manley Whitcomb and Oliver Hobbs, and orchestra numbers directed by Jack Bowen will make up the opening program. Choral works will be added to later concerts.

Other presentations by the camp open to the public will be a band concerts, choral concert and a solo concert on the closing day of camp, July 19. The other dates will be announced.

All members of the camp are qualified junior and senior high school musicians selected from all parts of Florida, Georgia and Alabama. They also come from South and North Carolina, Tennessee, Louisiana and as far away as Oak Ridge.

Over 30 members of the FSU music faculty will be on the faculty for the camp. Faculty recitals are a regular Tuesday night feature during the camp, as well as an all Brahms program presented by the faculty trio made up of Mary Winslow Robert Sedore and Owen Sellers, also by Edith Kaup and Dr. John Boda.

Final Series Features Group In Amphitheater

The summer Artist Series program at Florida State University will offer two contrasting entertainments Tuesday—Dr. Chamberlain in a male quartet concert June 26 and Marcia Rosar in organ and character interpretations July 21

The concert, scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in the University's music amphitheater will be free and open to the public.

Non on a coast-to-coast concert tour, the quartet is made up of William Durell, Barlow Wrinkle, Raymond Kraut and James Malonade who have a rich background in opera, radio, television, concert, Broadway shows and choral work.

Accompanist for the quartet is Jerald Stone, and musical arranger and director is Donald Smith who composed the number which will open the FSU program. Smith also arranged several of the numbers on this program.

Included will be a Bach selection, "Sheep May Safely Graze," from Cantata No. 208, for medrigal; "Now is the Month of May" by Thomas Morley; "Dance, Gentles Day to the Song that I Sing" by Durante and a "Pirate" fantasy by Gilbert and Sullivan

There will be a varied group of selections from the musical folklore of Ireland and America— "Kerry Dancers," Johnson "Shenendoah," "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" and "Mechamara's Band."

A group of selections from Broadway shows on the program will include "You Call the Wind Maria" from Paint Your Wagon, "Economics" from Love Life, "Come to Me, Bend to Me" from Brigadoon and "Great Day" from the show of the same name.

RED CROSS

Class in Senior life saving starting Wed. June 26 at 5 p.m. Classes Mon., Wed., Thurs.—1½ hour class. Will complete class by end of 8 week session.

PLANNING BOOK CLUBS IS KEYNOTE OF REVIEW

Planning and establishing book clubs and personal libraries will be the key thought in Mrs. Cross' book review on Wednesday.

Mrs. Cross' review is second of a series held every Wednesday at 5 p.m. in the student lounge in Lonemire. These reviews feature prominent figures in the English department.

Before the review an informal reception is held at 4:30 p.m. in the same building

Other programs planned for future weeks will inclule g reading from Browning by Dr. W. Hudson Rogers on July 10

Boy on a Dolphin, by David Divine, will be reviewed on July 17 by Dr. Wm. Hamlett.

Dr. Sarah Herndon will review The Blue Camella, by Frances Parkinson Keyes, on July 27.

The last review on July 31 will be on Butterbirk, by Lettie Hamlett Rogers. Dr. James Prea is to be the speaker.

Three New Buildings To Be Finished In June

Three new buildings now going up on the FSU campus will be ready for use by next June, or by February at the latest.

The School of Education and the School of Business, both million dollar projects are being built on Tennessee Street a few blocks west of campus. The new geology building is also being built on Tennessee Street for the state of Florida. With this arrangement, the University geology faculty will help the state geology department. In turn, students will have access to the state geology library and laboratory.

Plans are being made for additional wings on Florida and West Halls, which will cost $935,000. The University will borrow money from the federal government to build and furnish them.

Three other major buildings are being planned. One will have class rooms for mathematics and meteorology, and will cost $1,065,000. A million dollar building will be erected for Social Welfare and a building to house the nuclear accelerator, which will be used for research, will cost from eight to twelve thousand dollars.

Other scheduled construction includes two class rooms to be added to the ROTC building, an arts and education wing to be added to the education building, the remodeling of the present education building, and parts of the science building vacated by home economics. Three small buildings at Alligator Harbor will be built for research purposes. Air conditioning will be installed in the new home economics building, the Conrad Theater, and the new school of business.

LIBRARY HOURS

June 18-August 10, Main Library. Monday-Friday, 8:00 a.m.-10:00 p.m.; Saturday, 8:00 a.m.-5:00p.m.; Sunday, 2:00p.m.-6:00 p.m.

National Ad Groups Elect Joel, Ray

BY ARTHUR ALBRECHT

Two members of the School of Journalism were elected to high national offices in advertising associations during the past week.

Richard Joel, professor of advertising, was elected national president of Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional advertising fraternity, at the close of the fraternity's biennial convention held last year in Dallas, Texas.

Several days earlier Dr. Royal E. Ray, head of the advertising department, was elected vice-president of the Advertising Federation of America at the AFA's Miami convention.

JOEL ON TOUR

Joel's election by delegates representing over sixty colleges and universities came as somewhat of an upset since he is currently conducting a three-months tour of Europe. His opposing candidate was Dr. Bill E. Moeckel of Ohio State University

The popular FSU professor succeeds Phillip Ward Burton of Syracuse University for a two-year term of office.

As president of the national organization, Joel will direct its activities, deliver talks in various sections of the country and serve as a member of the advisory council of the Advertising Federation of America.

For the past two years he has been southeastern regional vice-president of ADS and was instrumental in establishing the Elon Easton chapter of that Fraternity at this university.

Prior to coming to FSU in 1953, he was head of the advertising sequence at Emory University.

Before entering the teaching profession Joel held a number of positions in advertising including general promotion manager of the Atlanta Journal and public relations consultant of Rich's, Inc., at Atlanta. He also founded and served as director of the Advertising Institute in that city.

FIRST EDUCATOR

In being named vice-president of the Advertising Federation of America, Dr. Royal H. Ray became the first resident of the Southeast and the first educator to hold this office

The AFA is made up of approximately 125 advertising clubs and 17 affiliated groups with a total membership exceeding 30,000 members

Dr. Ray, who has been head of the advertising department at FSU since 1952, has been active in advertising club work for more than 10 years.

He recently completed a term as governor of the Fourth District of the AFA and was formerly president of the Advertising and Sales Executives in that city of Syracuse where he also headed the advertising department at Syracuse University.

Dr. Ray, who holds the rank of Lt. Col. in the Air Force Reserves, was at one time business manager of the Gainesville Sun and Dispatch and more recently has served as a research associate for consumer relations in advertising.

He received his Ph.D. at Columbia University and has written a number of articles for Journalism Quarterly.

In his capacity as vice-president of AFA his principal job will be to organize a national foundation to be devoted to the advancement of advertising instruction and education.

Boys' State, Girls' State Indicate Worth Of Youth In Government

Tomorrow a group of high school seniors will leave Florida State University. They came here from the East Coast, the "Sun Coast" and the Big Bend. They were somewhat obscure among the many other high schoolers here for summer camps, but while walking through the halls one could distinguish Girls' State from all the rest by their numerous campaign posters lining the walls.

THEY CAME here to learn and experiment in government; to elect an entire slate of state officers with a governor as the head. They set up a model state in order to learn how our state operates.

With their departure, their brother organization will arrive for a week of the same educational procedures. As every year, we expect to see Boys' Staters marching around the campus in their white stenciled T-shirts.

SELDOM IN Florida do we have such an opportunity to witness youth in government in action. We week spent here participating directly in political caucuses, party nominations and elections, and finally, carrying out the democratic process will enable the Girls' Staters and Boys' Staters to return home more informed than most adults in the state.

Along with Boys' State and Girls' State, high school seniors all over Florida are enthusiastic about politics. What is more, their enthusiasm is informed and intelligent as a result of taking courses in government which is required of all students.

THESE ARE the young men and women who would help compose the electorate if 18 year olds were allowed to vote. Perhaps the state legislature will some day gain enough faith and confidence in our youth to grant them this privilege.

They deserve it.

Signing Of Nuclear Bill Starts New Era At FSU

The signing of an important appropriations bill by Governor Collins has placed Florida State University and the state in a leading role in nuclear research.

This will be the beginning of a new era for Florida. Deprived by nature of the more common sources of energy, such as coal, natural gas, and rivers suitable for damming, nuclear energy can provide us with an alternate source of power. This will prove a boon to the state's industrial status.

This should be only a beginning. Future sessions of the legislature will, in all probability, come through with further appropriations to extend the program.

Florida State will not, of course, be alone in the project. With the University of Florida's portion of the appropriation being used in the development of practical applications of atomic energy, FSU will specialize in the training of future scientists and physicists, using the tandem style nuclear accelerator to be purchased with the $2,300,000 alloted FSU.

We can well be proud to be one of the first universities to experiment with a unit of this type.

Governor Collins proved his confidence in the value of the establishment of a nuclear research program for Florida by making it one of the first of many appropriations bills to receive his signature after the adjournment of the legislature.

Since this venture into the nuclear research field is highly regarded by the state's highest officials, and since it is a greatly needed asset to the state, as well as to the nation, it is quite possible that Florida State University will soon find itself in a nationwide scientific spotlight.

Dust Covered Flambeaux Reveal Old FSU Tales

By RAY HEMANN

Whilst browsing through the dust covered archives of ye ol' Flambeau, yours truly came across some interesting stories of old which will be passed on to you for better or for worse.

DID YOU know that on Wednesday October 1, 1924, a brand new library was opened on the campus of F.S.C. which was described: . . . ". . interior of the splendid new building is no less attractive than the exterior. The high ceiling promotes an equal breadth of thought, the many windows afford the proper air and light, and the cushioned floors insure quiet. The only picture to be found in the room is a painting of Dr. Edward Conradi, president of F.S.C.W. which hangs on the south wall."

This is an extremely older story than I thought, but in the October 4, 1924, issue there appears a story on "Why Freshmen Are Not Prepared for College." It seems that some old boy was basing this conclusion on the fact that out of 1160 high school students, only 322 know who the governor of Tennessee was.

THE JOKE column yields some real gassers: "It's all over the school."

"What?"

"The roof."

or:

Carmen: I'll never get over what I saw last night.

Clarence: What's that?

Carmen: The moon.

Time has improved some things.

FOR ENTERTAINMENT and culture in those days, F.S.C.W. was bringing personalities like Count Ilya Tolstoy (the son of Leo Tolstoy) to speak to the students. "Let the whole college, eleven hundred strong, turn out to do honor to an ambassador of old world culture!"

Coming to something more recent, just twenty years ago the State Theatre was playing "Mary of Scotland" starring Frederic March and Katherine Hepburn. Isn't she in something that's playing downtown this weekend?

SPEAKING OF entertainers who have returned, in January 1937, Cornelia Otis Skinner was brought to the campus for the Artists Series. How many of you saw her in 1956 when she was here for Artist e Series? Maybe things haven't changed much after all.

We have evolved one new problem, however, they didn't need blue and black stickers to park in those days. Ah, progress. . . .

(ACP)—Foreign student Hubert Marel-Seytoux wrote the following criticism of America and Americans for the ROCKY MOUNTAIN COLLEGIAN, newspaper at Colorado A & M College, Fort Collins, Colo., where he attends classes.

Hardly was I landed and maybe my two feet were not yet on the American land, that one asked me, "How do you like it here?" My first thought I must say, was "What a silly question!" This experience repeated again and again during my first week . . . At that time I understood that the answer was, "I like it very much," and then conversation goes on about a completely different subject.

THAT MUST be the first problem of a student from abroad, I guess, to find out when conversation is carried on a traditionally polite basis or a really meaningful one. Most of us coming here thought the U. S. was a country without any tradition. To my amazement, I discovered that the social structure of American society was heavily loaded with conformity.

What is the real meaning of the so-much used, "Come and see us sometime?" Should it be translated, "Go to hell if you want," or "We do really love to have you come." I must say since my arrival I have not found yet which way it should be understood. Some told me when people say it they mean it, and some agreed they had said it already to people they did not at all envy to see. You, who have invited foreign students in that way, don't be surprised if they never come and don't conclude they are not interested by your friendly approach.

WHEN AMERICANS ask you, "How do you like it here?" is it pure formalism or are they expecting an objective and positively critical lecture on the United States? Critical—here is the difficulty. Most people don't understand why foreign students seem to express more criticism than adhesion to the American way of life. Is it so difficult to understand? When I see something which seems to me good, I accept it and forget about it. When something appears wrong, it keeps my attention. I give a thought to it and communicate it around. Don't worry when I criticize, I give you the best opportunity to prove me wrong.

On the contrary, be happy if a foreign student openly expresses his criticisms. The more he criticises here, by your guiding action, the less he will when back to his country, where then he will remember your good points in comparison with what he finds on his own land . . .

Tallahassee Bus Boycott Reflects The South's Action

By JEROME BERNSTEIN
First in a Series

Current newspapers and magazines are hurling stories and headlines to the American public concerning civil rights and how the south refuses to change its stand on segregation.

The Tallahassee bus boycott can by its very history show what the south thinks and will do to meet the United States Supreme Court ruling "equally between the races."

On May 26, 1956 two Florida A & M students were arrested after sitting next to a white woman on a city bus. They were charged with "placing themselves in a position to cause a riot."

The two students were later released on twenty-five dollar bail, at which time Tallahassee Police Chief Frank Stoutamire announced the case was being turned over to A & M officials. Shortly thereafter a student body bus boycott started which became city-wide.

An Inter-Civic Council was formed with the Rev. C. K. Steele, local President of the NAACP chapter, chosen President. The council asked for three points. (1) The right to be seated on a first come, first served basis; (2) More courtesy on the part of bus drivers and the "ceasing of intimidation of patrons;" (3) The hiring of negro bus drivers on runs where passengers were predominately negro.

The City Commission replied on the first item that seats would not have to be given up if occupied by either race, but that the two races could not sit side by side in the same seat.

The Commission added that it expected the bus company to enforce the laws requiring drivers to treat all passengers courteously and that it be understood the company would be willing to take and consider applications from negroes.

Fifteen members of the Inter-Civic Council voted to accept the offer made by the City Commission as a basis for negotiation, but the majority of the Council voted it down. As a result the bus company required permission to stop service on the Florida A & M-Frenchtown run, which is primarily negro. The request was granted.

In Montgomery, Alabama a three-judge federal court ruled that Montgomery's bus segregation laws were unconstitutional, but delayed a formal order to carry out the decision.

On June 30th the Tallahassee City Commission offered to amend the Bus Company's franchise, permitting open-seating on predominantly negro lines except for a three passenger seat in front, which would be reserved for white patrons.

Under the proposal, seats would have been filled on a first come, first served basis on other routes, with whites seating from the front to the rear and negroes from the rear to the front. When all seats were filled whichever race occupied the other seats would establish priority.

In a meeting between the City Commission and the Inter-Civic Council the Council stuck to a previous demand of full integration. Twelve days later the City Commission announced it had "washed its hands" of further negotiations.

After negotiations had broken down the City Commission turned to the negro car-pool in an effort to end the boycott. Mayor John Humphress announced that in an opinion handed down by Atty Gen. Ervin, cars operating in a car-pool similar to the one operating in Tallahassee were subject to a state law requiring "For Hire" tags.

Citing a Kentucky Supreme Court ruling, Ervin said that the guide to whether a car must bear such tags was a determination of whether picking up riders was incidental to the main purpose of the operation. A distinction was made between car-pools operated by groups of people going to and from work and a pool-transportation-system used by Tallahassee negroes.

Ervin quoted the state law in part: "For hire vehicles include all motor vehicles . . . which offered or used to provide persons solicited through personal contact or advertised on a share-expense basis."

Summer Servitude?

TO THE EDITOR:

"More than 100,000 persons in the U.S. are at this season entering upon involuntary servitude. They are teachers. There are more than 1,000,000 teachers in America, and a large proportion of them attend summer schools at teachers' colleges and universities. Of those who so enroll, probably the majority do so reluctantly. They enroll or else. Or else what? Or else they are denied advancement, increases in salary, and administrative approval at their schools, and, increasingly, the educationists' hierarchy in several states is forcing the teachers to become perpetual college kids merely to retain their teaching certificates. (Under the proposed new certification code of Michigan, for instance, the teacher would be kept in unending insecurity, his tenure dependent upon his perennial return for retooling to what David Riesman calls 'the patronage network of Teachers' College, Columbia.')

"Ours is an age of cant. We are obsessed with tenure and social security, and yet make the teacher into a chameleon on an aspen leaf, trembling, changing, forever dependent on the whim of the professional educationist. We give the teacher a little more money, and exhort him to "teach democratic living" and to "encourage the development of personality"—and then subject him to the domination of an inquisitorial educationist oligarchy. . . . Our teachers, in short, are the victims of a shameful racket. If bricklayers (who could better afford it) were compelled, every summer, to pay heavy dues for the privilege of listening to dull lectures on the theory of bricklaying by a tight little knot of building contractors; if physicians were ordered, annually, to devote what leisure they have to sitting about classrooms dozing through a rehash of what they learned as undergraduates—why, such a racket would not endure for a month. But years of subjugation have broken the spirit of most teachers, apparently, and some even pretend to love their chains."

These words were written by a noted author and former professor of History at Michigan State University. I say "former," because they fired him. I wonder why? Couldn't they allow him the academic freedom to criticize? Was that "democratic"? Shades of McCarthy!

The Reactionary

U.S. Socialists Aid Communist Cause

By CHARLES MAYO

"Whether you like it or not, history is on our side. We will bury you."—Krushchev.

On CBS television recently, an actor appeared who combined in himself the sanguine, the sinister, and the absurd: in short, everything to attract the viewer. Stained with the blood of Hungary, this man can lay claim to more slaughter than Wyatt Earp. His demeanor and his remarks, calculated to clothe the Russian bear in sheep's clothing, had all the skilled and assured evasiveness of the most sinister spy. And though he was absurd only to a few, he was nevertheless absurd. For what he said was just what was needed to alert those whom he so confidently set out to fool.

THIS MAN was N. S. Krushchev, Party boss of International Communism. Here is part of what he said:

"The Soviet Union will prevail because it is a younger system, the most healthy system. If you are acquainted with history, and know how one social system was changed and another system took its place, you know how the old capitalist system in our country has been replaced by the Socialist system and I can prophesy that your grandchildren in America will live under Socialism."

THAT IS correct. He said "Socialist," not "Communist." That was cruel. As anyone knows, there are thousands of Socialists in the United States. Many of them are ardent anti-Communists, who believe that human justice exists and flourishes only under Socialism. And when they work night and day to further their ideals, they do not consider themselves to be working against the United States. Krushchev knows them to be allies.

Walter Reuther is an example. Although no one could challenge that Socialism is the abiding passion of his life, neither could it be charged that he is consciously an enemy of America. He envisions the day of U.S. socialization as the coming of a new era for the people. He also knows that he will then if he is not the President, be more powerful than the President. And he rejoices in this, for his is the fanaticism of the pure reformer.

IN 1935, fresh from a tour of Russia, he ushered in the birth of American labor. In 1945, he received from FDR the title "our social engineer," while his UAW rank-and-file sang the class-struggle anthem, "Solidarity Forever." And in 1955 he stood at the helm of the 16,000,000 member AFL-CIO, deplored inflation while demanding yearly inflation-causing wage increases, and euphemistically led his workers in "Work With Me, Henry" (Ford).

He has learned to live quietly with his idealism, and not to push his ideas on the public. He knows that no one in America gets anywhere by shouting, that to succeed in making his dream of state socialism real, he has only to be quiet, as the public neither understands nor cares what he is so subtly promoting.

YES, KRUSHCHEV knows his America. He knows that principles and ideologies are important to its inner conquest by Socialism, and he knows that the American people do not care enough or know enough to recognize these principles and ideologies as they guide certain events of today. He draws a sharp line between Capitalism and Socialism, between America and Russia, between (as he says) loser and winner.

But in doing so he wounds his friends, the Liberals. For Liberalism, by definition, is an expedient hypothesis which draws no lines. Liberalism is not a fighting philosophy but an evolving, "progressive" one. To fight for something, you have to draw a line. Let us hope for our grandchildren that someone "draws a line" soon, so that Americans may fight Krushchev and Socialism both within and without.

Parade Of Opinion

Impasse In Education

(ACP)—With a roundup of ideas from many sources Syracuse DAILY ORANGE writer Bill Janes brings together this column (here condensed) on some of the problems in education.

Education and problems that surround the securing of a sound background in universities has been the subject of national controversy.

THIS DISCUSSION has reached The Daily Orange through letters to the editor attacking Syracuse as not even a university, but a machine in many ways.

We would like to contend that the fault for our lack of education and so called "intellectualism" is primarily the responsibility of the individual student, not his university.

Intellectual revolution was the subject of a recent editorial in the University of North Caroline Tar-Heel.

"WHY ARE WE, as students and the proverbial leaders of tomorrow, content to sit on our comfortable rear-end in class all morning and stir not a cell of our brains? Why do we search for the memorized fact, for the already digested and neatly-outlined opinion, instead of the truth?"

"The status quo is one of the most terrible threats to modern politics, to modern living," observes the newspaper.

Of course with the conformity of the modern world, why should students be different? It is much more comfortable to be like everybody else.

WHERE ARE the leaders, the thinkers, the ivory-tower people of this or any other university? For the most part they are members of the faculty. They certainly aren't evident in the student body. There are the "pseudo-intellectuals" who think they are, but actually they aren't at all.

Maybe the university's standards should be raised. At Oregon for instance, new entrance requirements are designed to "raise academic standards at the University."

BY RAISING requirements though, another problem is created. If the number of students is decreased, income decreases. Tuition must rise to meet the continued financial demands of a large school . . .

Periodicals are full of articles proclaiming the impasse being reached in education. From Harper's to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, from the Columbia University Spectator to the Western Maryland College Gold Bug, the question of what's happened to our higher education is being asked.

Increased enrollments, higher maintenance costs, inadequate teaching and facilities are popular manifestations of the problem.

A PROFESSOR at Oberlin commented thus: "At first it may not seem essential that liberal arts colleges do anything to meet this crisis.

"One could argue that by limiting enrollment the schools' standards of excellence would rise with selectivity . . . (but) It takes more than a talented freshman class to insure continued excellence in an institution.

"Aside from these essential,

FSU's Dick Howser Named As NCAA All-American

By BOBBY BYRD
Press Institute Staffer

Seminole shortstop Dick Howser has been named to the National Collegiate Athletic Association's first team All-American squad.

The 5' 7", 145-pound slugger is the first FSU athlete to be named to the first team of a major All-American squad. Football Quarterback Lee Corso received honorable mention as an Associated Press All-American earlier this year.

The announcement came from Marty Kerow of Ohio State University, chairman of the NCAA's All American selection committee.

A hitter with a year of eligibility remaining, Howser was described as a major reason FSU won the District Three NCAA Playoff and reached the College World Series two weeks ago.

Although Florida lost to Penn State and Connecticut in the series, Howser was named one of the meet's outstanding player's. In the district playoffs, he was a unanimous choice for the outstanding defensive player.

The West Palm Beach native boasted one of the highest batting averages in the nation, .364. He is now playing semi-pro ball in Watertown, South Dakota.

ALL AMERICAN DICK HOWSER—FSU's outstanding short stop Dick Howser was named to the NCAA's first team All America squad this week. A junior with a year of eligibility remaining, the West Palm Beach native hit .364 and was the NCAA District Three's most outstanding defensive player.

Swim Club Calls For 78 Officials

The Tallahassee Swim Club issued a call today for up to 78 student officials to handle three swimming meets to be held in this city in July and August.

A spokesman for the club said a clinic will be held to train the swimming officials.

He said those interested should be in the city council room at 7:30 P.M. next Tuesday, June 25.

The clinic will be conducted by Ted Blondi, coach of the Tallahassee swimming team.

Spelunkers Tour Set For Sunday

Campus spelunkers will tour Marianna Caverns this Sunday, getting the program of summer recreation underway.

Nine more trips remain, including a deep sea fishing trip a canoe trip, and attending a tobacco auction.

Miss Marie Williams, social director, says that registration for the Marianna tour will be in Room 19, Lorenzini, and a bus will leave from behind Westcott at 12:30 p.m.

Three deep sea fishing trips are planned, for June 29, July 13, and July 27. A fee of six dollars must be paid on Thursday for reservations before the Saturday trips.

A canoe trip down the Wakulla and St. Marks Rivers on July 20 will include a stop at Shield's Restaurant in St Marks. Instructions and canoeing tests will be given to all who plan to go on the trip.

The Stephen Foster Memorial is on the agenda for June 30 and a tour of Tallahassee and Killearn Gardens is slated for July.

The feature July 26 will be a tobacco auction in Moultrie, Ga. and the trip August 4 will be to Wakulla Springs.

Colorado Bound

Golf Team Leaves For NCAA Tourney

Five Florida State University golfers left there homes from around the country yesterday for Colorado Springs.

The NCAA tournament begins Sunday over the spacious Broadmoor Country Club in Colorado Springs and continues through Tuesday of the following week.

Ed Jenkins of Jacksonville, Bob Shave of Cleveland, Jr. Harris Shoemaker of Signal Mountain, Tenn., Billy Shelton of Anniston, Ala., and Dave Morris of Tallahassee comprise the FSU team.

Two other Seminole golfers—Bunk Berry of Tallahassee and Jack Veghte of Gloversville, N.Y. were forced to sit out the meet this year because of an NCAA regulation which restricts players to three years of competition.

Last year, Florida State finished fifth only five strokes behind winning Houston. Houston is returning to defend its title this year.

Jenkins, the Seminoles' captain, will represent FSU on the East team in the annual East-West team match Sunday.

The NCAA meet will write finis to the coaching career of Dr. Don Veller, who has guided the FSU golfers to two successive state titles. He is resigning to devote full time to his academic work.

Bill Odencal, former Volleyball coach, will replace him next spring.

Summer Basketball

Plans are being made for the formation of a summer basketball league, according to summer recreations officials.

Anyone interested in playing may contact Tom Weightman in 19 Longmire, or go to Coach Kennedy's office in the men's gymnasium on Monday at 3 p.m. to discuss plans.

For University Personnel

Pay Raises To Be Approved By Board

BY ROBERT FAIRCLOTH
Press Institute Staffer

Pay increases for university personnel are included in Florida State University's budget to be submitted to the Board of Control in Jacksonville Thursday.

"A total university budget of $11,429,844 will include salaries, expenses, equipment, and building repairs," said George Fortin, University comptroller.

The salary appropriations permit the following scale for teaching personnel; on the 10-months plan for the fiscal year of 1957-58: Professor, $7,800, associate professor, $6,400; assistant professor, $5,300; instructor, $4,750.

In general, members of the instructional staff employed on the 12-months plan will receive 20 per cent more than those on the 10-months plan.

Raising salaries to the average established by the Board of Control policy will involve average increases of 10 per cent. Individual raises exceed 10 per cent in cases of exceptional merit. In other cases, little or no raises are budgeted.

STAFF INCREASES

Persons in the non-teaching staff positions in general will receive pay increases of 5 per cent. However staff pay will still be lower than the merit system for the State of Florida.

The total request for equipment during the biennium is $1,140,538, exclusive of research contracts, grants and donations. Of the amount, approximately $100,000 is for replacements of existing units. The formula replacement is of only 6½ per cent of the university's equipment each year. Only $400,000 will be spent for additional equipment to accommodate a 20 per cent increase in enrollment.

In estimating funds required for expenses, the current biennium could not be used as a basis necessary to postpone many maintenance expenditures, for instance, educational supplies have been so small sive of research contracts, grants and donations. The fall enrollment in 1954 was 5,246 full-time equivalent students, thus the expense expense funds per student was $.33. This was 10-45/5, during which a total was used as a basis for the initial ol $760,280 was expended, exclu- requests.

54 High School Teachers Attend Summer Institute

Fifty-four high school teachers are attending an eight-week Summer Institute in science and mathematics here.

Supported by the National Science Foundation, 47 have received stipends offered by the Foundation.

"The specific objectives of the Institute are to improve the competence of the teachers, build their capacity in helping students consider careers in the field of science and mathematics, and to stimulate new interest by increasing their professional prestige through close contact with FSU scientists," said Dr. Paul Reynolds, Associate Dean, College of Arts and Sciences.

Classes in which the teachers enroll are biology, chemistry, education, mathematics, and physics.

Monday night dinner meetings feature different speakers each week. Last week's speaker was Dr. Ray Sheline, who does research for the Theoretical Institute at Copenhagen, Denmark. His subject was science education in Europe.

Dr. Reynolds defined the National Science Foundation as "an agency of the government created to promote research in science and mathematics."

Those teachers who received stipends were selected by a committee of FSU scientists. Selection was based on past experience and on comments of their superiors and former pupils.

LATEST ADDITION to the rare books collection in the university Library is a two-volume first edition of Dr. Samuel Johnson's Dictionary, published in 1755. Here Dr. Francis Townsend, head of the English Department, and Stewart P. Smith, assistant librarian in charge of acquisitions, have a chuckle over Dr. Johnson's famous definition of oats. "A grain, which in England is generally given to horses, but in Scotland supports the people." The volumes were presented to FSU by Walter J. Johnson, New York rare books dealer. The book is on display in the rare books room of the Library.

Press Instituters Help Edit Flambeau

Carol Lupo, Southern Scholastic Press Instituter from Columbus, Ga. acted as editor-in-chief of institute work on this issue of the Florida Flambeau. Charlet Pettevint, regular editor supervised the work of Miss Lupo and her workshop staff.

The high school press conference was divided into two sections. The 'X' group elected Jan Lethrop of Bradenton to assist Editor Lupo. All members of the group helped prepare the paper for publication. Next week class 'Z' will edit the paper.

Betty Windham, Panama City; Pat Stamps, Shreveport, La.; Eleanor Krutlinski, Miami; and Dottie Little, Mobile, Ala. worked on page makeup and headlines. Copy and proof readers were Carolyn White, Indianapolis, Ind.; Elaine Towns, Charleston, S.C., and Janet Krier, Tampa.

but not ultimate considerations, lies the main issue: the providing of the best possible preparation for the students."

HE PROPOSES a unique and promising system: Have a four-quarter year. The first and third would be spent in regular study. The student would spend the second quarter off-campus, but—it would be a fully-academic one and not a work program . . . a program of independent study. The fourth quarter would be a regular vacation, such as the present summer system.

"Stimuli often lacking in more routine, supervised, study might emerge in the independent program. Whereas some may see danger of submitting students to a less-mapped program of study when they do not work to capacity in the present program, the program would hope to develop the student's ability and willingness to work and study on his own. . . ."

Boys' Staters Pick Governor, State Officers

Boys' State — 445 strong — voted their ballots and selected their 1957-58 governor, Cabinet members and a Supreme Court in the night but election results are unavailable for the Flambeau deadline.

James R. Gray of Marianna, candidate for the Nationalist Party, and Jack R. Weber, Federalist candidate of Miami Beach, opposed each other for the gubernatorial election.

Heated campaign slogans, issues and promises, the two candidates, following their nominations last Wednesday, put in many hours working in conjunction with their parties to win this election.

Earlier this week, Boys State elected other officers including two senators, councilmen, a sanitation chief, county officials, a 40 member senate and a 76 member house.

Every half of the high school boys attending the annual Boys State affair completed a course of study in law and legislature and climaxed their industries by taking "bar examinations."

Those who passed the examination hung their shingles in their residence halls and proceeded to "practice" before Kangaroo Courts.

According to Circuit Judge Homer Stephenson of Winter Park, chief instructor of the legislative school, "over three-fourths of the boys who took the comprehensive exams passed them and were admitted to the bar."

Tuesday the delegates were met by W. H. Casey, a former Tallahassee mayor, that automobiles and traffic were taking disproportionate part of the time of municipal governments. Practically all the functions of city government have been reduced to take care of traffic of the automobile," Mr. Casey Tallahassee about one-third the police force is devoted exclusively to controlling traffic," he said.

Following a week of considerable activity concerning all phases of Boys State work, the annual assembly will adjourn after 1957 session tomorrow.

CONGRATULATING EACH other warmly after their nomination, these two opposing candidates for governor of Boys State later battled for the most votes in an election Thursday night on the Florida State University campus. Left is James Russell Gray, 17, of Marianna, who plans eventual ltu to go into the ministry or law, and Jack Russell Weber, 16, of Miami Springs, who plans to become a nuclear physicist. Jack is the candidate of the Federalists and James of the Nationalists.

'Atom And You'

'No Localized Nuclear War,' FSU Prof. Warns In Lecture

BY CHARLES GORDON

There can be no such thing as a localized nuclear war, Dr. Gortner Schaars, Florida State University physics professor, said Tuesday.

"The Atom and You" was the subject of Dr. Schaar's talk. The second of the lecture series sponsored by the School of Education, Phi Delta Kappa and Kappa Delta Pi educational fraternities.

He asserted that any of the three powers now having nuclear weapons could probably destroy most of the world if atomic war broke out.

Beginning with the discovery of radium and the X-ray, Dr. Schaars gave a brief history of the atom. He said in 1938 a German scientist first split the atom. In the following year over 200 scientific papers were written verifying this finding.

After 1940 publicity of this discovery was suppressed because scientists found that a tremendous amount of energy was released by the splitting of the atom.

No more was heard of the atomic experiments until the bombing of Hiroshima which resulted from the United States' famous "Manhattan Project." He said this was a "most unfortunate beginning for the atomic era. This caused the world "atomic power." It became ominous in the eyes of the public.

"There are many, many peaceful uses for the atom," he explained. Diagnostic and therapeutic medicine, agriculture and electrical power are just a few of the ways in which atomic materials are used. Atomic research is now saving industry between 100 million and 200 million dollars a year, Dr. Schaars said.

In the future, Dr. Schaars commented, it may be possible to build an submarine plant in the middle of the desert. This plant could distill and pump sea water for irrigation. Since enough fuel for a month's operation could be placed in a small satchel, an atomic plant could be placed almost anywhere.

One drawback is the amount of shielding material it takes in using atomic reactors. He cited that a car using atomic power would need 20 tons of lead and cement for protection.

Dr. Schaars has been at FSU since 1948. He received his Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins University, after receiving his Masters at Berlin Technical College.

A lecture will not be held next Tuesday night.

Education School, University School Officials Named

Dr. Eugene M. Boyce, now principal of the University School, will become assistant dean of the School of Education here July 1.

Dr. Harry P. Day will become principal of the School.

As assistant dean, Dr. Boyce, working under Dean Mode L. Stone, will be responsible principally for the undergraduate program. He will be assisted in this by Dr. Raymond E. Schultz, who has been incharge of the intern program.

Dr. Boyce has been principal of the University School since 1950. From 1942 to 1950, except for service with the Navy, he was principal of the Columbus, Ga., high school. He is a graduate of Erskine College with a Master's degree from Emory University and a Doctor's degree from George

Sun Swim Suits And Studies

Bathing suits and bare feet are the fashion for one class a Florida State University this summer.

Sailing in the sun however, isn't on the classroom program.

The twelve students at the Oceanographic Institute's annual summer course, "Survey on Marine Science Biology 439", are devoted to individual research projects.

The six weeks course which began June 16, is being conducted on the Institute's 14 acre Pelican Laboratory, 43 miles south of Tallahassee on the Gulf Coast.

Dr. Harold J. Humm, founding director of the Institute, has returned to the classes as supervising instructor for the summer course.

Dr. Humm, now professor of botany at Duke University is an internationally known authority on marine algae.

Students representing Duke, Vanderbilt, Purdah, and Florida State Universities along with three high school science teachers are receiving training in marine bacteriology, research, plankton, physical oceanography, marine fishes, and the conservation of marine resources.

The students who are living on the site in addition to activities and academic preparation must be able to cook. All meals are prepared on a cooperative basis by the students.

Those taking the course are: Margaret McLean and Joseph K. Haburay from Duke University; Lucy E. Wilkerson, Vanderbilt University; Lucy Wilkerson of Birmingham (Vanderbilt); Edith Witherspoon of Daytona Beach (FSU); Ramesh Bhatnagar (Punjab University in India); Kit McLean of Glen Ridge, N. J. (Duke); D. F. Batier of Rome, Ga. a high school biology teacher; Bill Talbert of Tallahassee (FSU); and Peter Hoogland of Sommerville, N. J. (FSU).

Peter D. Hoogland of Tallahassee, Anatole B. Kowalchuk, Miami Beach; William H. Tolbert, Panama City, and Dwayne N. Kruse, all P. S. U. students; D. E. Butler, Rome, Georgia, a high school biology teacher; and Ramesh Bhatnager, Punjab University in India.

DURING A LULL IN A class discussion of marine sciences seven summer school students at Florida State University look on as an eighth shucks oysters. The annual summer course is being conducted at the Oceanographic Institute's marine laboratory at Alligator Harbor on the Gulf. Clockwise, the students are Joseph E. Haburay of Westboro, Mass. (a student at Duke University); Lucy Wilkerson of Birmingham (Vanderbilt); Edith Witherspoon of Daytona Beach (FSU); Ramesh Bhatnagar (Punjab University in India); Kit McLean of Glen Ridge, N. J. (Duke); D. F. Batier of Rome, Ga. a high school biology teacher; Bill Talbert of Tallahassee (FSU); and Peter Hoogland of Sommerville, N. J. (FSU).

Martin Serves As President During Interim

Dr. Albert B. Martin, Florida State University vice president for six years, will serve as Acting President until the State Board of Education approves the appointment of Dr. Robert M. Strozier.

Dr. Strozier, dean of students at the University of Chicago, was named by the Board of Control yesterday to succeed Dr. Doak S Campbell. See story.)

Dr. Campbell will end his official duties Monday after serving almost six years as president of the first Florida State College for Women, and now, Florida State University.

ANNOUNCED RETIREMENT

Late last November the presidable position was announced his intentions of retiring this June. He said a decision was arrived at independently, many months ago.

"It is in line with a long time concept I have had," he said then. "I do not believe an administrative should spend more than half the use of compulsory retirement arrives."

NEW FSU ERA

At this time he also predicted a new epoch for higher education at FSU. "With the likelihood that the state will establish additional institutions of higher education it becomes apparent that we are entering upon a new era in education in Florida," he remarked.

Dr. Campbell plans to remain active as a consultant in higher educational circles—his ca'city for 10 years as Director of Surveys and Field Studies at George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.

He and Mrs. Campbell are moving to their new residence this weekend built on a hill similar to the president's official residence. It is located west of the campus between Buena Vista St. and High Road.

MARTIN FIRST VEEP

Dr. Martin came to FSU in 1951 as the university's first vice president, an office created because of the multiplying duties of the growing institution.

The son of a Methodist missionary, Martin was born in Wanna, British East Africa. He grew up in Texas and received his bachelor of arts at Southwest Texas College at San Marcos.

He then received his master's degree in education and his doctoral

Proxy Tells Gov't Plans

Student government plans for the 1957-1958 school year include selling of business and financial problems, reorganization of the University Recreation Association, and the addition of students to the infirmary faculty, according to Arnold Greenfield, next year's student body president.

"My reason for establishing a committee for solving business and financial problems is to allow students to take problems directly to the heads of the business departments instead of losing time in finding out where to go," Greenfield explained.

"These are just a few of the first steps. But I hope to have a university student faculty in the infirmary to help make improvements and to mediate between students and infirmary administrators," he said. Greenfield said plans for next year are now in a state of reorganization and some are already being established.

At the close of summer school Greenfield will represent FSU at the National Student Body President Conference held at the University of Michigan. He also plans to attend the National Student Association conference held the following week.

Chicago Dean Takes Over Sept. 1

Dr. Robert M. Stromer, dean of students at the University of Chicago, was nominated yesterday by the Board of Control for the presidency of Florida State University.

The nomination, made at the Board's Jacksonville meeting yesterday, must be approved by the State Board of Education before it becomes official. Until Strozier takes over next fall, succeeding retiring president Doak S. Campbell, vice president A. B. Martin will serve as acting president. (See story.)

In a telephone conversation yesterday with the Tallahassee Democrat, Dr. Strozier said he hopes to be in Tallahassee by September 1, if the Board of Education approves his appointment.

While in Tallahassee two weeks ago for a Board of Control interview, Dr. Strozier met Governor LeRoy Collins, whom he referred to as a "wonderful man."

Dr. Strozier had a "very, very favorable impression" of Tallahassee at that time, he told the Democrat. He said the first college girl he ever dated was a Florida State College for Women student, in 1916. He visited Tallahassee occasionally several years ago, while his mother and brother lived here.

Secretary of State R. A. Gray, member of the State Board of Education which must approve the nomination, expressed satisfaction with the choice of Strozier. He said, "Dr Stromer told me he thought Florida State University would be a challenge to him because it was an up-and-coming institution with a bright future."

Gray reported that Dr. Stromer had turned down several other attractive offers to take the FSU position.

Besides Gray, members of the Board of Education are Gov. Collins, Atty. General Dick Ervin, Treasurer Edens Larson, and State School Supt. Thomas D. Bailey.

Dr Stromer's salary as president of FSU will be $17,500 a year, including an increase of $2,500 made by the 1957 legislature. When Dr. Campbell came to FSU as president in 1941, his salary was $6,000 a year.

Born in McRae, Georgia, Dr. Stromer graduated from Mondurin, Georgia high school. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Emory University, Atlanta, and his doctorate from University of Chicago in 1946.

Dr Stromer was professor of romance languages at Georgia State College for Men in Tifton from 1930 to 1933. He was dean of men and professor of French at West Georgia College from 1933 to 1940. He went to the University of Georgia in 1940 as associate dean of students and associate professor of romance languages, and stayed until 1945 when he went to the University of Chicago as associate dean of students. He became dean of students in 1946.

He is married and has three children.

The presidential nominee is a member of the advisory council of the National Student Association, which FSU Senators have been contemplating joining for four years.

Campbell Speeches Text Of New Book

Thirty-four addresses delivered by Florida State University President Doak S. Campbell compose a book published this week

"Higher Education in Florida" — 1945, The State of the University" in 1956, and "Looking Backward or Forward" of 1957 are included in Selected Addresses by Dr. Campbell.

Florida State University students publishes this special issue as a tribute to President Campbell. The editorial committee selected the addresses it believed to have lasting importance

The library will receive 250 copies of the book which will be exchanged with other colleges and universities. Over 750 copies will be put on sale at the Book Store.

Deep Sea Fishing Slated Tomorrow; Foster Trip Sunday

Deep sea fishing at Panacea tops the summer recreation program for tomorrow, July 13, and July 27.

Students interested in the trips should register in Room 19, Longmire, by Thursday from before the Saturday trips, announced Miss Marie Williams, director of social activities.

Tomorrow a fishing party will leave Bryan Hall for Carabelle at 8 a.m. and return by dark, aboard the Georgia Boy, 40 miles out in the Gulf. The fishermen will return around 6 p.m.

The fee of $6 per person includes transportation to and from the Gulf with the boat furnishing all food, bait and reel.

"We always get some fish," Miss Williams guaranteed. She cracked up her statement with statistics from last year's trips. One group of 17 fishermen brought in over 700 pounds of fish. The fish can be cleaned at the dock.

Miss Williams advised that prospective fishermen eat a good breakfast before leaving the campus, and take along a light lunch.

TO TOUR MEMORIAL

Approximately 80 students will journey 25 miles to White Springs Sunday to tour the Stephen Foster Memorial.

Anyone wishing to make the trip may register in Room 19 Longmire. A bus will leave from behind Westcott at 10 a.m. Sunday and return at 7:30 p.m., according to Miss Marie Williams, social director.

Students Appear On Welk Show

Two FSU students appeared June 17 on a televised Lawrence Welk talent show in Hollywood, California.

Dennis Smith and Dick Mitchell, noted campus songsters, were accompanied by Welk during their recordings, and were invited to be on the show.

Foreign Student Advisor To Leave

"Advising foreign students has been the most exciting, ebbyable, and thought provoking period of my life," asserts Frank E. Bean, FSU foreign student advisor.

Bean, who will leave tomorrow to accept a new position in New York City, has advised over 500 students from foreign countries. He has individually and through the International Club, as guidance director.

"In my position, you see people who are confused and in an unfamiliar environment and suddenly they change from an alien group outside the university, to an integral part of it," Bean said.

"It's really a thrill to see people from different countries cooperate and work together in the International Club," he said.

"Just before school was out in May," he related, "we had a party out at the reservation, Dr. Tail, (photog. ed. dept.) was there and taught them how to square dance. It was exciting to see all those people from different countries square dancing together. They were like kids with a new toy— they really enjoyed themselves, particularly on the Virginia Reel!"

"I'll never forget this great group of people who are more appreciative," Bean said, "not even the smallest favor goes unnoticed, with them."

Bean thought they keep their allegiance to their own countries," he said. "They become a loyal part of FSU. It's fun to help them work out their problems."

"I'll always remember the day when we went down to meet the new Hungarian students and when he arrived in Tallahassee. Bringing him to campus was a big occasion for all of us." Bean revealed.

But the biggest thrill of all was receiving a letter in a Greek professor of English in a university in Greece. The letter began, "It gives me pleasure to inform you of your acceptance by the Florida State University as the 11 time student."

"I like to see people get to do what they want to do. I wish we could accept them all," Bean concluded.

Bean, who obtained his BS degree in business and banking science at FSU, will leave tomorrow to become assistant to the manager in the Railway Service department of Standard Brands, Inc., New York City.

The position he leaves vacant has not yet been filled officially, but will be soon. It is temporarily handled by the dean of men's office.

Red China 'Bug' Threatening UN

By JAN LATHROP
Press Institute Staffer

Mr. Ramond Chou, exchange teacher from Nationalist China, told Press Institutors last Sunday his reason Red China should not be admitted to the United Nations.

Red China would be like a bug in a sack of potatoes, creating a havoc around it, he said, speaking in an informal interview in the home of Dr. Reid Moran, faculty journalism professor and press coordinator. The discussion was preceded by a picnic supper.

Mr. Chou is supervisor of the Department of Education in Formosa. He is here studying communism, school education and America's customs. He outlined the three social systems and said it was similar to that in the U. S. by group quizzed Mr. Chou on their governmental versus communism and the Formosan way of life with this problem. "The Communists on the island are reluctant if possible to be useful to the Nationalists," he said. When asked about the horrors from Siberia, he said it was terrible as rumors pictured, but received a laugh with "It is cold there."

Mr Chou said education is compulsory only to age 12. About 60 per cent of graduating elementary pupils go on through high school. The subjects taught are much the same as in American schools. High school graduates are subject to two years of compulsory military service at 18; college may vote at age 20", he said.

Women, said Mr. Chou, are not independent, although they do take part in education and social life. Most elementary and high schools are headed by women", the editor said.

Democracy is being made part of the Chinese life, he emphasized, and pointed out several changes in government and in the attitude since these lines.

Mr. Chou told of transportation and communication on the island of Formosa, and the problems of dealing with their large, concentrated population.

It is inevitable that the Chinese Nationalists someday return to the mainland. It will be done by the full knowledge of the United States," Mr. Chou concluded.

Frosh Grades Highest Ever

Freshmen class grades for the past year were higher than any previous frosh class.

Dr. W. Hugh Stickler, of the Research Department, revealed this information in a report showing the relationship of the twelfth grade tests and achievement at the University.

These students scored higher on the twelfth grade tests and on the American Council on Education Psychological Examinations and made better grades during their first semester at the University.

Dr. Stickler explained that this was a selected class. Students in addition must have a high school diploma had to make a score of 200 or better on the 12th grade test to be admitted by special action of the committee of admissions counselors.

According to Dr. Stickler, there are exceptions, but those who score high on these tests do well in college while those who score low do poorly.

Porpoises' Sound Waves Studied

Psychological experiments on the sound waves produced and transmitted by porpoises have recently been completed by the Psychology Department at FSU.

This sound-wave method, used by the porpoise to locate objects in its path, is known as echolocation or echo-ranging. The same principle has been put to use by man in the form of naval sonar.

The project, conducted for the last five or six years, was financed by FSU, the Office of Naval Research, and the National Science Foundation. The results received international recognition.

Merit Plan Instills Incentive In Both Teachers, Students

AT THE National Governors' Conference in Williamsburg, Va., earlier this week, Florida Governor Leroy Collins put over some points in a panel discussion which should take hold.

Collins described the new career incentive feature of the teacher pay program recently enacted by the state legislature as "one of the finest advancements in the country in recent years."

And we agree.

FLORIDA. LIKE many other states, the governor said, always has given extra financial reward to teachers for additional education. But, he added, "we need a plan which will take into account more subjective factors in evaluating teachers."

". . . I will never be convinced that quality cannot be recognized and detected in teachers. And once recognized, it should be rewarded just as excellence of attainment is rewarded in other fields."

UNDER THE merit plan Collins was speaking of, local school officials are to detect this "quality" and provide the financial "incentive" accordingly.

Objectors of merit pay cry there is no adequate method of determining which teachers rightly deserve raises and any method used would lead to favoritism of some sort.

TRUE. THIS is a difficulty which must be worked out but as Collins said, "any plan administered by human beings presupposes the possibilities of abuse and failures."

The question then seems to be, whether or not the merit compensation plan is workable? Could it be that opponents of merit pay are the teachers who, unconsciously, believe they would not qualify under it.

UNDER THE old system of paying according to the number of degrees a teacher held, many fine teachers didn't receive rewards they rightfully earned.

It's our belief the measure of a teacher's ability to educate and his desire to perform his task is not simply an additional degree.

FOR, as Collins told the conference—"a teacher who lacks incentive himself cannot, and will not, instill in students a proper incentive to excel . . ."

Poll Indicates Morrison's Food May Be Improving

CUSTOMERS OF the much criticized Morrison's food services, particularly the Seminole Club, expressed "mixed emotions" this week concerning the quality of food being served.

With advance comments coming this way, we decided to conduct a small scale survey of the students who are eating in the Seminole Club this summer. The results were 50-50. That is, 50 per cent of those polled gave favorable comments and 50 per cent gave unfavorable ones.

ANSWERS RAN from "the food is lousy" to "the food is good, especially the salads." However those making favorable remarks did not do so with superlatives; rather, they qualified it with "huts" and "ifs".

Of course, other factors enter into the overall performance of the university's food service, such as service and cleanliness. Today's letter-to-the-editor notes that many improvements are being made in beautifying the surroundings in which Seminole customers eat; although the writer says there is no change in the price taste or amount of food.

WE ARE, THEREFORE, glad to hear student people are concerning the quality of Morrison's food. Perhaps things are looking up for the captive Florida State University students. If indications of the poll are valid, that is, if as many people are satisfied as are dissatisfied, Morrison's may cease to be the conversational hot spot of the campus.

Singers Prayed For Rain; Battled Theater Noises

By DALE JENSEN

The good-sized crowd was forced to be pleased, but found it extremely difficult to hear the performers.

The occasion was the concert of the Chanticleers, the first presentation of the summer Artist Series, given Wednesday nights in the Amphitheater.

The performers had prayed for rain, so that the concert might be held indoors, and they could take advantage of the excellent acoustics of either of our pleasantly air-conditioned auditoriums. Unfashionable weather being what it is, they sang outdoors, and suffered for it.

They had a marvelous blend of voices and at times, remarkable balance But too much of the time they had to over-sing to be heard, and the balance and quality, the prime attractions of a male quartet, were lost.

THAT THEY ARE capable is well attested to their experience. They have sunk together for the past four years, touring most of the United States and last season spending six weeks in Europe. And, aside not singing as a quartet, they were soloists with the now-de-unct Robert Shaw Chorale.

They recently took time out from their tour to attend the last recording session of that group in New York. Mr. Shaw is serving as Assistant Conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra for the coming season, and his famous Chorale is disbanded indefinitely.

AS SOLOISTS as this concert, they were all of uniformly high ability showing much charm as well as well-trained voices. As a quartet, they were most exemplary in their diction They had the most success in their lighter selections, all of which were arranged for them by Donald Smith.

Here they sparkled

The clever staging and musical originality were matched by their wit and the excitement they radiated to the audience. Much talked for bigger and better training was evident in the precision of their performance.

This is one of the most difficult things for an ensemble to achieve, and for a comedy, could not be marred by the regular session, in Westcott.

brass band acoustics of the Amphitheater When they return so FSU, we hope to hear them in their unstrained, relaxed best in a theater or auditorium.

A Letter

Morrisons In Retrospect

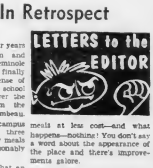
TO THE EDITOR:

After going through four years at this lovely institution and staying loyal to the Seminole Club all that time, I must finally say a few words in defense of the treatment that the school cafeteria has received over the years—particularly from the editorial pages of the Flambeau.

When I came to this campus on the hill I suffered three times a day from hunger pains —but they were reasonably priced lousy meals!

Then, the word came that an outside profit-making organization was going to take over the cafeteria. And to think that I had mistakenly believed the old cafeteria routine to be one of the profit-making variety.

And then it was out. Morrison's was coming! Morrison—one of the most prominent names in fine eating in the South. Happy, tummy-filling days were to be here at last.



But, alas, the tummy wasn't filled and the wallet got thinner everyday. Admittedly the food was occasionally better but the prices, and the size of the portions, and the lack of variety and the long lines, and . . .

And now summer school. Big changes in the air. New wallpaper, fresh paint, seats recovered, new robert lie floors laid and many other improvements Oh improvements in the price, taste or amount of food, but, the place sure looks pretty!

Now I was complain. In the past the Flambeau has editorialized for bigger and better meals at less cost—and what happens—nothing! You don't see a word about the appearance of the place and there's improvements galore.

So—how about keeping quiet about the food for awhile and maybe improvements will also evolve in that direction. We can hope anyway!

Tallahasseans Used Moderation, Logic, Reason During Bus Boycott Crises

By JEROME BERNSTEIN
Second In a series

In studying the approach Tallahassee citizens took toward the Negro bus boycott of last year, one not only sees "moderation" but an example of reason and logic in action.

GOVERNOR LeRoy Collins told newsmen last January that a great majority of white and Negro citizens in Tallahassee are willing to abide by the law when it is determined by the courts.

In following this path, the Tallahassee City Commission, after first efforts of negotiation failed, turned to the courts. In doing this they sought to end the boycott by showing that the Negro car-pool in use was violating state laws.

ON AUGUST 22, 1956 four Negro car-pool drivers were arrested. Five days later the Rev. C. K. Steele, President of the Council, and his transportation chairman Dan Speed, were arrested. The charges: operating a car-pool vehicle without a "for hire" tag.

The attorney for the Inter-Civic Council argued that the city did not have jurisdiction over the car-pool since the Negroes detained were arrested under a state law City Attorney Messer responded by arguing that jurisdiction was granted under a Tallahassee ordinance which adopts all state laws governing misdemeanors as City Laws.

CIRCUIT COURT Judge Hugh M. Taylor issued a perpetual injunction that he had "serious and grave doubts about the propriety and legality of a city ordinance which adopts state law by reference." He added that the State Supreme Court, however, had upheld similar ordinances in Miami and Tampa.

On October 4, the City Commission ordered and approved the hiring of a special prosecutor for the car-pool case City Solicitor Howard J. Hall said the scope of the case, which would be significance in the amount of required someone who could devote fulltime to the prosecution.

He said, in his opinion, the special prosecutor is the one to decide whether any private group could operate a transportation system without control of governmental agencies, and did not involve race questions.

A MOTION to dismiss the charges against the Inter-Civic Council was filed on October 10 in City Court. A memorandum filed in support of the dismissal motion said the car-pool was not a business, subject to city licensing and regulation, but incidental to the main purpose of picketing or boycotting the city transit system.

Judge John A. Rudd decided the motion. He said that after studying the briefs submitted, he could not connect the cases and arguments cited with the charges tried by the court. He continued, "Integration and segregation has nothing to do with it." When the case came up for trial later the charges to be united to restrict argumente to whether the car-pool was legal or illegal and not open the case to race arguments.

ON THE DAY the car-pool began, court officials announced that about seventy-five witnesses would be called to testify, of which twenty-one were defendants.

The first witness Charles L. Carter, manager of the Bus Company, testified revenue from bus fares had dropped from an average of about $18,000 a month to $4,000 a month since the bus boycott began. On daily records, Carter said that fares from the Florida A&M-Frenchtown run, predominantly Negro, dropped from $180 a day to $18 a day.

IT WAS LATER shown from photomosted Inter-Civic Council records that the number of cars registered in the pool increased steadily. It was also shown that fines of the car-pool drivers accumulated were paid by the Inter-Civic Council.

On the second day of the trial, Mark R. Hawes, special city prosecutor, attempted to prove a commercial aspect of the car-pool. He questioned Carter on indirect payments through contributions at mass meetings in trying to establish the commercial aspect.

The Reactionary

State's Rights Not What It Used To Be

BY CHARLES MAYO

In Des Moines, Iowa, in 1852, Mr. Eisenhower, then campaigning for the office he now holds, delivered the following words in support for his candidacy: "The National Government did not create the States. The truth is the States created the Federal Government. The creature should not supersede the creator. For if the States lose their meaning our entire system of government would be meaning, and the next step is the rise of the centralized national state in which the seeds of autocracy can take root and grow."

In 1952, he saw both the trouble to label this as a "States' Rights" viewpoint. Sister Kenzie was a dead issue then, because the people of American were not yet aware of what had been done and what was being done to increase the size and power of the Federal Government at the States' and the people's expense.

There was, as yet, no 72 billion-dollar budget.

There was as yet, no desegregation decision.

There was no Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

There was, as yet, no Supreme Court decision outlawing the Pennsylvania State Sedition Act as applied to Communists.

There was, as yet, no talk of Federal Aid to Education

The people at that time did not realize in 1952 the gains made by this Federal Government under F. D. R. and Truman. But when the Republican Party, always a so-called "conservative" party of opposition, found in Eisenhower the leader of a new "New Deal"; when the people finally began to realize that something was being "put over" on them, when Madgwickian as a political conservatism began to make headlines; then, and only then, did the "States' Rights" begin to mean more the "manifest destiny" or any other such outmoded term.

It means something to Florida and other Southern States, through Interposition.

It evidently means something to the National Association for Colored Peoples General, who recently released a statement critical of the Supreme Court's latest decisions in it, four steps were recommended to the U. S. Supreme Court continues with the type of decisions that has been handed down of late."

1) Challenge of the 10th Amendment" to protect steel" reserved powers in more certain terms."

2) More stete participation in confirmation of appointmente to the Supreme Court."

3) Enactment of laws "to inforce lawful rights of individuals in derogation of state sovereignty."

4) Preparation of legislation "designed to undo as great a portion of these recent decisions as is possible short of constitutional amendments."

It is to be noted that the membership of this organization is composed of the elected Attorneys General of the 48 States.!

Air Force Grants FSU Real, Live Jet Aircraft

By RAY HEMANN

THE BOLT OUT OF THE BLUE DEPARTMENT

About a month or so ago a telephone rang up on the big of Westcott and the school official answering the call was confronted with a conversation similar to this:

"I have your airplane out here at the airport."

"What airplane?"

"The jet plane the Air Force is giving FSU."

"The what?" "What on earth is FSU going to do with a jet?"

"I don't know, but it's pointed now."

"Well take it back. we don't want it."

"I can't, it requires 10 000 feet of runway to get off the ground and the nearest one Tallahassee has is 5300 feet. It's yours now. I'm going back to Texas, Arizona, right now, Goodby."

With that, the telephone connection ended and Florida State became owner of one 18,000 lb. $400,000.00 P-84 E regconlaissance type jet aircraft complete with loaded ejector seat, canopy and new paint.

After all the smoke had settled and the school had time to check into the why's and wherefores of the deal it was found that the Air Force was assisting the sons of its obselete aircraft to certain APROTC units as a courtesy for training such. Just why our school was honored with this event on the 4th of July is not certain, but if you go down to the ROTC building there are signs that the Air Force is sending members down here to remove the engine unload the canopy and seat ejector and reduce the wing tanks and electronic gizmos. We are left with a vertical shell now, but it sure makes an impressive looking lawn decoration for the front of the ROTC building.

The P-84-K is a modification of the old P-84 series aircraft manufactured by Republic Aviation and fondly called the Thunderjet Seems by the Republic Public Relation Office

The P-84-K was an attempt to make a reconnaissance plane which could be carried into enemy territory by the belly of a B-36, dropped to perform its mission and then picked up by the fleets home bound. Explains the extreme reserve which results in fame for the airplane. This sounds like a good idea, but for some reason it never got too well and just a very few of these models were built.

It is gratifying to know the government is putting its obsolete equipment to use rather than scrap and lend leave even though this one may seem small in comparison. It is being used in some way to help train and influence our future pilots and our country's free world. Perhaps the government will give the Army ROTC something

Calling The Card

Social Reform Advocated By Liberals Is Not Compatible With Communism

By ARNOLD GREENFIELD

Among the items which may unwisingly be included in the liberal platform is the concept of the belief that the international communist movement is so antithetical to the best interests of the United States. Thus every liberal who supports any of the Kremlin's goals must be thwarted.

TAKING THIS assumption into the day to day political spectrum we must also assume that reactionaries, moderates, liberals, and leftists are operating as no method when they are not about to handle communism. A rational approach demands the assumption of basic loyalty of all these elements. Obviously otherwise it would be impossible to engage in meaningful discussion.

The critical area for testing this necessity for the assumption of mutual loyalty purpose comes in the controversy over social reform. It is true politics, weapon by those who criticizes the status quo and demands change. It is also quite true that so called "liberals" have a tendency to do the same thing

IT IS unfortunate that some observers, including one whose thoughts were included in the last issue of the Flambeau, makes the mistake of identifying the liberal with the cause of communism. The average person who is not politically active which are from time to time loosely lumped together under the title socialism, is in all respect, entirely innocent of any

INDIRECT connection with the goals or aims of international communism. To assume otherwise is to impugn the integrity not only of prominent labor leaders, but also of a good many reasonable public officials in this FSU. First place, as everyone knows, it is extremely difficult to draw the line between good progressive measures and admittedly dangerous encroachments of socialism. Thus, the emotionally charged word "socialism" may be used as a political weapon by those who admit themselves to be opposed to the particular measure in question.

Next, in a critical area of the national well being, where reforms seem to be in order. It is pointless to oppose change simply because of the connotation of the words involved. In countries other than the United States, where communism may be a real immediate danger, the title socialism for social reform is more desirable than continued unrest—leading inevitably to Russian assimilation.

FINALLY, here at home the developments of the last twenty-five years seem an indication of the fact that the gradual change is preferable to violent reform. Perhaps the liberals habits—political or economic. One might even go so far as to suggest that the liberal movement, by mitigating the evils of the American system, has done more to stave off actual communism than have the "anti-communist" Neanderthals who insist that all labor leaders and liberal politicians are fuzz-headed friends of the communist cause.

Screen Test

Wayward Bus Boasts Mansfield— Face In Crowd Best Film

By MARSHALL LaCOMBE

The Wayward Bus runs in the 20th Century-Fox-Cinemascope-see-what-they-do films such as The High and the Mighty, Bus Stop, and the original, Perrified Forest.

Filmed in CinemaScope (less is none other than Bausell and Lomb) and gorgeous black and white, Wayward is taken from the Steinbeck story of the same name Other Steinbeck books-to-the-screen have been Of Mice and Men, and Grapes of Wrath. I think Wayward can be counted as the least of the three.

The action centers around Johnny Dickey's (Rich Jason) bus, "Sweetheart," and his bus stop, "Rebel Corners," which is somewhere in the wide Alice Loop Collins'. Alice seems to be a bit of a bitch, and has a acting career in her. Both of these questionable attributes are capitalized upon by Steinbeck. The marital problems resulting Alice happen to be jealous of her hubby) form one of the plots

Plot number two brings Jayne Mansfield, a B-girl of sorts, and Dan Dailey together. Dailey is a traveling novelty salesman and supplies what humor there is to be found in the picture. Actually, Mr. Dailey's appearances were few and far apart but his acting surpassed the others.

Other remaining plots involve a pair of adolescents, one movie-struck and the other class conscious adolescent Also a troubled mother and a half-troubled father and their daughter. The daughter is old enough to write a decision on the birds and the bees but she has to prove it to her mother. She does

Of course there's the grouch who has to get to San Juan right quick. He got there, according to him at the end t a wife).

Add all these characters plus a highway patrol whirlybird, and you have a movie that will take the bus on a 60 mile trip across hell and high water and you've got Cinemascope.

There are some really good scenic scenes with the bus twisting and turning across mountain passes, rivers, mesdowns through valleys and landslides. If you like bus rides and Jayne Mansfield, the Director, Dr. Frankenstein-behind - the - monster part.

A new face Tony Francisco, is Lonesome's agent in the story, and the two complement each other well. They play a boy who always has an angle, a man who is proud of the strings and winds up owning them.

The story desia with a mo-tivated saddle-bum, his only weapons in life being his Arkansas drawl and his "Momma Bible-lar

He's discovered in the local Calaboose by the sheriff and taping a program called "A Face In The Crowd." Also one of the suits in his own show, which results in a TV appearance, much publicity in fame for the press.

He eventually makes New York and national fame But Dr. Frankenstein (Patricia Neal) suddenly realizes that her monster has gotten out of hand. He is made monster-conscious.

She finally turns off his motor when his tastes run to pellets, and the elevator of public opinion goes down to ground floor where he gets out.

The trip up . . . and down . . . is very exciting, especially since you're let in on the "real" Lonesome Rhodes I paid a buck of my hard earned for this picture and I don't see how you can do so wrong for four bite.

Patricia Neal absent from the screen for a while, has made a triumphant return. She might get a "best supporting actress" for her portrayal of a sort of

Andy Griffith as Lonesome Rhodes carried the film with powerful character, but she di-

...With Pierce Lehmbeck

'. . . Just Five Strokes' From An NCAA Title

His voice came clear from almost 2,000 miles away.

"We did alright, Pierce. We almost won the dog-gone thing. Just five strokes . . . "

Dr. Don Veller was excited but he had a reason. Seminole golf team for the second year in a row just come within five strokes of winning a national

And, once again, it was a powerful Houston team that an aggregate score just five strokes under FSU.

Veller continued.

"We had to go with a patched-up team, too. (Ed) Jenkins just couldn't fight those bent grass greens and couldn't qualify. That hurt us more than anything."

Jenkins is the team captain and was regarded a one contender for the national individual title before tournney. He holds the course record on the local rse here with a 62.

"Bob Shave was our hero today. eH had two out-anding rounds—a 75 and a 71. And I mean to tell you t's excellent scoring on the course they're got here . . .

"(Harry) Shoemaker did alright, too. Had a 75 and 1. We wouldn finished in third place easily but he two putts that rimmed the final hole and wouldn't "People here said they'd never seen anything like it.

". . . As things stand now, we've qualified three layers for the individual match play — Shave, Shoe-aker and Billy Shelton. Dave Morris missed qualifying by one stroke.

"Shave's got a good chance of winning and we're put-ng our hopes on his shoulders. He's impressed a lot of ple out here and if he can stay steady he can win . . . "

To spoke Don Veller from the lovely and famous unmoor Country Club in Colorado Springs, Colo. He xpected but by tomorrow, it's possible he may be even ore excited.

It's not outlandish that one of the three Seminole ders remaining in the individual playoff might come e a winner. FSU's Bobby Dunn went all the way to e final round before bowing last year.

And, like Veller said, Shave is probably the best bet. He's cool and consistant — the way a golfer has to be when he's in match-play competition where he plays for the hole rather than the high score.

Regardless, it's one nice way for a gentleman like Dr. Veller to bow out of coaching. He's already announced his intention to resign after this tourney and devote full time to academic work.

The measure of his success, we'll know tomorrow.

A FEW IDLE THOUGHTS—

Tom Nugent, FSU's imaginative football director, is homecoming in Delray Beach after that successful coaching clinic last week. He might be soaking up a bit of sun, but it's hard to imagine him not thinking football and planning what opener this fall.

Vaughn Mancha, line coach under Nugent these past two years, left Florida State to join the Columbia staff this week. It's a definite loss for FSU — definite gain for Columbia. Mancha had that intangible something that doesn't show until you get to know him well.

FSU Linksters Post 607 Team Total To Place Fourth In NCAA Tourney

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—Battling strong winds and even stronger opposition, Florida State's golf team finished in fourth place in the National Collegiate tourney here this week.

But three of the Seminole golfers are still in contention for the national individual championship.

Florida State posted a team total of 607 to finish five strokes behind winning Houston for the

Odneal Favors Houston Match

After hearing Houston had won the NCAA golf championship for the second year in a row earlier this week, the coach who will guide the Seminole golfers next year said "every effort will be made to schedule them."

Bill Odneal, former Volleyball coach who will replace resigning golf coach Don Veller, said "I'd like to see how we would fare against Houston in dual competition."

When Houston won the tournament last summer, the Seminoles were just five strokes behind in fifth place. FSU finished in fourth place this year—had still five strokes behind Houston

Odneal said there are "many things to be considered in making up a schedule but if we can get Veller's 4th Houston we'll be glad to play them" second year in a row. Second place Stanford had 603 and North Texas State barely edged FSU for third with 606.

Bob Shave of Cleveland, O., had the low Seminole score for the tourney with rounds of 75-71—146. The junior from Cleveland, O., is a prime contender for the national individual title.

The other FSU scores in team play were Harry Shoemaker, 75-75—146; Billy Shelton, 77-78—155 and Dave Morris, 77-80—157.

FUTT RIMS HOLE

Shoemaker, the national left handed champion, had two putts on the final hole which would have given FSU an easy third place in the team rankings.

Shave, Shoemaker and Shelton all qualified for the individual match play but of the tourney which winds up tomorrow Morris missed qualifying by a single stroke.

According to FSU golf coach Don Veller, the Seminoles would have won the tournament "hands down" if all the players had been up to par.

JENKINS OFF

For instance, he said team captain Ed Jenkins—regarded as a favorite to win the national honors—slipped to rounds of 82 and 75. Veller said Jenkins hadn't gone to Colorado had he entered FSU."

But on the whole, I couldn't be prouder," Veller said. "We came within five strokes of winning a national championship. That's pretty darn close."

The coach-to-be-Nugent is the last for Veller, who has resigned his position effective after this meet to devote his time to his academic work.

Bill Odneal, former Volleyball coach, will replace him.

HARRY SHOEMAKER, the national left-handed champion the past two years, is in excellent position to win the national individual NCAA title at Colorado Springs Today. The Signal Mountain, Tenn., senior had one of the lowest qualifying scores of the tourney.

Summer Basketball Underway

The summer basketball league got off to a big start Tuesday night in the men's gym with the first game of the season between the Giants in a scorching debut of the Lions McCullough and Sharkey proved to be the big guns in the victory.

Charlie Ward and Bob Gregory led the Dead Beats to an easy victory of 45-27 over the over-powered Demons of Coach Bob Albertson.

In the final game of the evening Lee Corso, Bob Ward, and Woodard teamed together to give the Olde Tymers a 47-31 triumph over the Left Overs. John Tillman and John Bowe played a fine game for the losers.

Summer league games are played on Tuesday and Thursday nights with games starting at 7:30 and 9:00. The gym opens at 7:00 and closes at 10:30.

Polio Shots Suspended

Due to a lack of vaccine, polio shots are not being administered by the University Infirmary at the present time, according to Mr. Hinton Bevis, hospital administrator and pharmacist.

"Our suppliers have not been able to furnish us with the needed serum, therefore we have temporarily discontinued giving the shots." Mr. Bevis said

"But we expect a shipment soon, and the regular routine will be resumed then," he added.

A limited number of shots can be obtained at the infirmary now, but are available only to regular summer school registrants.

However, the Leon County Health Unit provides free shots to all under 20 and pregnant women. Clinic hours are from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday and from 5 to 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays.

Free Press Still Exists Journalism Panelists Say

By REVA BEST

Press and public relations panelists at Florida State University concurred that freedom of the press exists and is firmly entrenched in the minds of the reading public, despite legitimate news barriers.

The panel discussion was given before Southern School Press Institute.

Major Ben T. Griffin, Public Relations Officer of Orlando Air Base, declared, "Air Force policy dictates a rigid control over news concerning national security, matters of good taste, and accidents, especially those resulting in fatalities. Otherwise the full record is available to the public. Many press releases relate to spending of funds, a vital issue to the American people, and we have a right to know how their money is spent."

Major Griffin illustrated the importance of maintaining good public relations with the press and society.

"No good newspaper man has any quarrel with a good public relations man," he said. Tallahassee Democrat city editor Mike Beaudoin, a newspaper man, have obligations to the public. Public business," he emphasized, "when citing the 'sun shine law,' "should be open to the public unless there are legitimate reasons for secrecy. Reporters sometimes find doors closed, but we have enlisted many years of press freedom since Peter Zenger's struggles."

Mr. Beaudoin advocates publishing as many accident pictures as possible to make people more safety conscious.

Freedom of the press and responsibility of the press are two different concepts advised former Air Force public relations director Calvin Wilson.

"Freedom of the press qualifies newsmen to print all information concerning citizenry that is in good taste and within the bounds of national security, ample of an arrogant tale bearer Students can help perpetuate democracy," Mr. Wilson added, "by presenting controversial issues thoughtfully and fairly."

The fourth speaker was debate counselor Malcolm Longstreth of Leon High School faculty. Frankly expressing his liberal view toward the press, he said more publicity should be given juvenile offenders, especially repeaters. He warned, however, of exceptions. Citing a striking parade, he used Joseph as an ex-who grew up to be a great man.

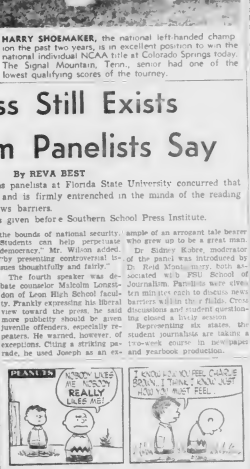
Dr. Sidney Kobre, moderator of the panel was introduced by Dr. Reid Montgomery, both associated with FSU School of Journalism. Panelists were given ten minutes each to discuss news barriers within their fields. Group discussions and student questioning closed a lively session.



Representing six states, the student journalists are taking a two-week course in newspaper and yearbook production.

Museum Display Depicts Indian Life

Several hundred years ago, an open field, similar to a football field of today, but provided by nature rather than leveled by man, the American Indian turned his thoughts from the continuous work he had done for so long and began to play.

In the Southeastern part of the United States, the Creek and other muskhogean tribes developed a game called ball with a crosstick and two netted sticks. Only moderate social units of 500 to 1000 could participate and it provided a memorable event for the people involved. Feasting and dancing, prayers and rituals accompanied these social events, now only fragments of history to remind us of one of the final stages in the development of the true and original American.

The story leading to these events is millions of years old, but in the FSU Museum one may trace the early growth of man from his first steps on this hemisphere to the time when he could afford to relax. Through relics and artefacts, cultural progress is effectively shown with little need for explanation.

The museum displays the growth of man divided into four sections shown in the first part, the pre-pottery age, are hand carved weapons, utensils, and beads.

Progressing down the aisle of historic collections, one finds bone carvings, the first crude pottery, bone harpins inlaid with copper, shell beads, shark teeth, and a written explanation that these things date from 2000 B. C. or the first pottery period.

Improved pottery and evidence of more skilled artisans are the burial mound age. Relics in this section date from the time it was around 100 A. D.

Similar items mark the final historic period, the temple-mound, improvements in quality and quantity of pottery, jewelry and ceramics are now shown. It is in this group also that gaints appear for the first time.

Florida Indian life is presented with both Apalachee and Seminole contributions. The Apalachee tribe was merely an outshirt of the highly civilized Aztec, Mexican, and Yucatan Peninsula natives. A display of the type of life, agriculture, and skills of this group is presented, though actual, material works are limited. While the Seminoles didn't arrive in the state until around 1750, a life-size exhibition of their dress is given. The elaborate, hand-sewn sight presents a striking picture.

This is but a part of the historical story told in the university museum. These details and more are available in a fascinating, well arranged and orderly exhibit of rare items.

Science Activities Close Today For High School Boys

Ninety-seven high school boys ending two weeks of study of various scientific fields at Florida State University, today and the Fifth Annual Science Camp will come to a close with a luncheon today.

During the two weeks the young students selected for their scholastic aptitude, studied in FSU laboratories of a dozen sciences and made practical trips to study geology, oceanography and archaeology. FSU science faculty members, headed by Dr. Stephen B. Weeks, camp director, supervised the studies.

Science Campers heard an address by Dr. Alvin M. Weinberg, director of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Tuesday night. During the years of World War II he worked with Dr. Eugene Wigner at the Metallurgical Laboratory on the design of the Hanford plutonium reactors. Since that time he has been concerned with the development of nuclear power.

Interested for years in the field of science education and recruiting of scientists, Dr. Weinberg last year was asked to judge an examination in which almost 40,000 attending the 1956 Science Camps spoke on the subject: How To Alleviate the Shortage of Scientists in America."

Off The Cuff

By GEORGE GOLDSTEIN

Welcome to Off-The-Cuff, now one year old summer Flambeau column. Our aim, for the next few weeks is to keep you posted on the latest in amusements-radio, television, drama, other activities and occasionally to make comments on entertainers currently in the limelight.

Our format is simple and our style is informal, so just relax and swing along. We'll do our best to provide you with interesting reading.

ALL ALONE BY THE . . .

Suddenly classes are done for the day. Reading assignments, "homework" and library research are put aside for "The Break!" But what to your wondering eyes do appear? No It's not Santa and reindeer but to go where? where?

Look around and what do you find? Car. This three letter word can take you to such places where you can ski and go boating. If you have your own boat there go to Killearn Gardens or if you want to rent one Wakulla River is the place.

Swimming? There's the coast, Alligator Point, Wakulla Springs, two swimming pools in the Tallahassee area that can be reached by car or bus or for an hour's dip at the FSU pool in the women's gym can provide you with pleasure. At Silver Lake you can combine swimming, dancein, and picnicing.

For those who like more activity there's the Armory where roller skating can be enjoyed. If you're not in the mood for strenuous activity Killearn Gardens provides nature lovers with some beautiful scenes. So does the "Garden of Eden" at Bristol, Florida, which isn't too far from here.

CLAP YOUR HANDS . . .

One way to meet people you'd like to go with on some of these trips is to square dance. Every other Saturday night at the tennis courts you can dance for the asking.

It's not so hard and you don't even have to be a Fred Astaire or Gene Kelly. Dr. William Tait, not only does a terrific job of calling, but he goes over the steps before you dance. It's easy and a lot of fun.

Saturday night needn't be the loneliest night in the week if you trot down to the Student Center where fox-trots, rock 'n roll, or other types of dancers are held.

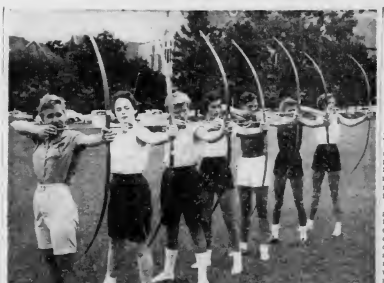
REMEMBER: HYSTERIA '56"

Sometime ago in the dark ages of "rock 'n roll," a young throbbing baritone beat out a crude melody with an animated bump and grind routine that would stop sister Kate from trying to shimmy but for his time. Of course you remember Elvis (-l-lu-hu-ve-lu-hi-ee) Presley, one of the top golden boys of rhythm and blues.

It seems this wiggling mass of protoplasm created "teen" hysteria and his records rated high, even in jolly old England People used to compare almost singers who "sound like Presley." A few years ago "Who was Presley?"



Others have come close and are up at the same level of popularity. Is he here to stay or can someone be best him to the draw . . . Teddy Bear and all?

Only comment: Other singers are just as much of a "Boone" to the record industry, if not more so. We guess they deserve a "Pat" on the back.

ARCHERY IS JUST one of the new sports learned by these girls at Florida State University's annual sports camp for high school girls. The camp, sponsored by the women's physical education department under the direction of Dr. Katherine W. Montgomery, brought 29 girls from 12 schools here for two weeks of activities ending Saturday, June 29. Drawing a bead on the target in this picture are, left to right: Virginia Van Kessel of Hialeah High; Barbara Pilkinton of Pensacola High; Sandra Foucart of Paxon High, Jacksonville, Bebe Higdon of Quincy High; Nancy Smith of Hialeah High, Liz Carter of Paxon, Jacksonville, and Judy Hollingsworth of Quincy High.

On The Riviera Highlights Music

Minnie the Moocher,' 'Amtele of Paris,'" and the old standard, "Ballin' the Jack," are a few of the musical strains breezing through the technicolor movie, "On the Riviera," starring Danny Kaye and Gene Tierney.

The humorous picnic will be shown again this evening in the amphitheatre at 8 p.m. This is one in a series of pictures offered by the Recreation Dept. under the F.S.U. to the general public. The film will be viewed in the Conner Building in case of rain.

Henry Duran, a dashing, debonair French aviator, and Jack Martin, a nondescript American night-club entertainer, are both cleverly portrayed by Danny Kaye.

Jack Martin, finding that he is a dead ringer for the like-a-Frenchman, decides at impersonate him. The ensuing activities are confusing to Gene Tierney, the Frenchman's wife, Corinne Calvet, the American girl friend, and the audience. At last, in the viewers relief, the situation is straightened out pleasantly.

Lavish sets, skillful dance routines, and good-looking girls, plus Danny Kaye's mimicry adds up to an enjoyable musical comedy.

lists.

And finally, it means something to Eisenhower. At the Annual Governors' Conference, July 24, 1957, Eisenhower stated that he wanted to explore the possibilities of shifting tax burdens from the Federal to the State system of government. It meant something special to the them because the Governors didn't fall for it. They knew that it was a thinly disguised case of "passing the buck."

Americans just don't seem to care for high taxes and big government inefficiencies, be they State or Federal. For a long time they have not made this known. Now, it seems that public opinion has turned States' Rights, that latter-day synonym for Freedom & Rights, seems to be a phrase to watch in America's political future.

"MOST INTERESTING AMONG the many book clubs is the Heritage Club," Mrs. Olive Cross told persons attending the weekly book review program on Wednesday.

Here she discusses her talk with Dr. Griffith Pugh, English professor and editor of the book review section of the National English Journal.

Mrs. Cross said there are two outstanding values of book clubs—membership is inexpensive and the books are regularly delivered.

She said the most popular of the clubs is the Reader's Digest Condensed Book Club which sends four books every three months.

She also gave tips on storing and shipping books in wooden crates.

For Summer
Cool, Casual Clothes
And Fink Lemonade

By CAROLYN WILSON
Press Institute Staffer

With a laughing sun blazing down at what seems a degree hot enough to parch roasted the Floridians, word comes from the weathermen that no breeze in sight. It may even get hotter.

If money and time for an airplane trip to Alaska presents no problem — keep it to yourself. For those that must spend the summer in the sunshine state here are some tips on how to be comfortable during the long scorching days.

First, dress casually and lightly. Informal sports wear can be very much in style and you can appreciate the comfort they afford. Bermuda shorts and straw "beanies" constitute a basic and light wardrobe.

Golf during the noon hours is a thing of the past. And, summer brings with it as it makes its yearly visit, populated swimming pools, speed boats, and water skis. So the athlete that tires of his regular schedule can always "follow the crowd" to the nearest lake, pool, or river.

They say that summer's the time for reading. Nothing is cooler than a shady spot, good book, and hours spent relaxing leisurely. A pink lemonade can be sipped slowly and will produce amazing results, which leads this "cooled" writer to say: Choose your foods carefully. Select green salads, sherbets, and light dishes in general. A lighter diet usually brings more comfort, and along with it a shimmed figure for the interested ladies.

Journalism Prof. Publishes Book

The newspaper plays an important role in the operation of democracy. Newsmen and newswomen are on the front line providing a supply of news, the essential food of our nation and they are generally doing an effective job."

These statements are made in a new book, "Press and Contemporary Affairs," written by Dr. Sidney Kobre, professor of journalism and director of the Bureau of Media Research at Florida State University.

"In our democracy to be a good citizen is to be a well-informed citizen," the former newspaper executive declared. "To make decisions we have intelligently on men, parties and issues. John and Mary Smith have to keep abreast of the current news and understand its significance and meaning. In other lands, where dictatorships or small cliques operate the government, as in the Soviet Union, such understanding by the public is not essential. For the making of decisions is left to the inner circle."

"Nor so in a democracy. On election day John Citizen and Mary Citizen march to the polls and register their approval of a school bond issue, or decide whether one party or another takes over the reins of the politice government." Dr. Kobre notes.

"Surveys of opinion have shown, however, that we have a long stretch to travel before we get a generally well-informed citizenry," he asserts.

"Although the newspaper reading public is vast, and a knowledge of current news is obtained by millions, only a small percentage of the public has an essential understanding of national and international developments and local issues. Gallup surveys have shown a large number do not have any opinions."

"The world of tomorrow will be even more complex than it is today. International news has become, practically, local news. The newsmen of tomorrow will have to be able to understand better the stories that break on the national and local scene. The reporters must give the spot news depth and explain its meaning more fully."

All through the book the newsman is urged to dig for the significant facts of a story and bring them to the surface. "The public wants a third dimension in its news — meaning and significance," the former managing editor says.

Kobre asserts in his book, which is distributed through the Florida State University bookstore, that newsmen and future newsmen should have a broader background in the social sciences—history, political science and economics.

The volume, which has 32 graphic vignettes and charts to make it interesting, is a constructive approach to modern journalism.

Pact For Nuclear Accelerator Signed In Governor's Office This Week

Contract Calls For Delivery In 30 Months

The Summer Flambeau

Vol. XLIII, No. 3 | FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY | Friday, July 12, 1957

The contract calling for delivery of a 10 million volt atomic accelerator to Florida State University was signed early this week at a brief ceremony in the governor's office.

The one million dollar agreement calls for delivery of the accelerator in 30 months. Officials of the High Voltage Corp. which will build the machine said it would be ready for delivery in "24 to 26 months."

The accelerator is the first major piece of equipment to be purchased under Florida's new multi-million dollar nuclear research program.

The University of Florida is presently negotiating to buy a 100,000 watt reactor, or atomic pile, to bombard substances under study with the products of atomic fission.

The purchases come under the $2,700,000 nuclear program urged by Gov. Leroy Collins and passed by the recent legislature.

FSU GETS $2,100,000

The University of Florida was given $2,300,000 and FSU $2,100,000 The Board of Control, with overall supervision of the University system, has control of the program.

The FSU accelerator will consist essentially of a 3-foot cylinder surrounded by a vacuum. Protons, which are nuclei of hydrogen atoms, will be injected through the tube and accelerated to atom-smashing velocities by high voltage electrical fields. The stream of particles will be directed onto substances under study.

FSU will buy a smaller accelerator later, in addition to the large one.

The research is expected to put Florida far ahead as a leading state in the production of atomic energy.

The University of Wisconsin will be the only other University to have a reactor of the type FSU is purchasing. It is known as a tandem type Van De Graff accelerator.

Dr. Strozier To Study FSU Before Making Changes

Prexy Intends To Continue 'Status Quo'

Florida State president-elect Dr Robert M Strozier, on a 24-hour Tallahassee visit to meet university administrative officers said he still accept the "status quo for 1957-58."

Dr. Strozier said in a press conference yesterday that he intends to spend his first months as president studying the university and he does not intend to make any changes until he has had time to study the situation.

"The university already has a fine staff," he remarked.

The 31-year-old dean of students at the University of Chicago said he is impressed most by the enormous potentiality of FSU.

"It is a challenge that I look forward in," he declared. "We can make the university anything we want to make it—we need only to find the right blueprint with which to attain greatness."

He said he is still studying the question of which areas the university should be strengthened academically. "I have been reading the catalog, but I am still in the process of unwinding my duties at the University of Chicago after 13 years there."

I am turning completely on Dr. Martin until September, he remarked. Dr. A B. Martin, FSU vice president, was appointed acting president by the Board of Control until Dr. Strozier takes over duties officially on September 1.

Asked his attitude concerning football and other inter-collegiate sports, he said football fulfills a certain need in a university and is a "rallying point" for the student body, especially in the fall when new student s enroll.

The University of Chicago deemphasized football 18 years ago, but Dr. Strozier said he believes it's gradually regaining prestige there at the present time.

He said he also realization a loss while ago that there is not a substitute for football in the minds of the American people and that "irrational, but real," he declared.

"Football does not have to be corrupt, nor does it have to be more important than the academic program," he said.

Dr. Strozier indicated he does not think the size of a university is important. "Numbers are not the real answer to whether a university should be large or small. It is all according to how it is organized."

"If classes are not too big, and there is adequate counseling, and dormitory room, a thoughtful personnel program and a well planned academic curriculum are all not important," he said.

The Chicago dean said he is aware of the integration problem all over the country. However he believes it is not a unilateral agent; rather, he said, "it is a part of a trend along with the other Florida university presidents, the Board of Control and the legislature.

"And I hope to be a good member of the team," he said.

Concerning the nuclear program FSU is committed upon, Strozier

A Comedy-Drama

'Claudia' Set Tonight As First Speech Production

By Staff Writer

A happily married mother to be who is unable to grow intellectually and emotionally due to over-affection for her mother, keynotes the theme of "Claudia", Speech Department production.

This "domestic comedy-drama" was written by Rose Franklin and is under the direction of Dr. Paul W. Davee.

Portraying the title role is Diane Kazan, who brought humor and understanding, finally reaches what she is seeking in the play. Her husband David -J. Morgan Sherwood- is caught between his wife's plaintiveness and the seriousness of his mother-in-law's Thelma Richmond- illness.

Adding to the dilemma as a British wolf with motor trouble is Steve Kidd. The situation provoking Claudia a role a 'femme-fatale', is quite myth-provoking.

Tieing subs in this mirthful situation is Madame Darushka, enacted by Jane Seymour, who is an opera singer and future buyer of Claudia and David's farm house.

Backbone of the family are Frits and Bertha -Lee Hilaman and Betty Sue Wrenn-, the butler and cook of the household. They also add trouble with their illustrious past, or rather, Frits's. They, staunch characters as they are, give some sound advice to Claudia.

Perhaps the only one not taken in by any troubles, except a tea-year engagement, is Julia, David's sister, performed by Sue Mahorner.

"Claudia" with its serious problems does not fulfill the true heavy drama role because it has undercurrents of very witty humor and comedy.

School Work Too

The production is put on by members of Speech 444, the summer workshop class in all phases of Drama Production.

Students in the morning on the set take care of the props work on the costumes, and do other phases of technical work around the theater.

After this, they usually work on the television productions in which they participate. The various members of this group have been working on a series on "parliamentary procedure". Next appearance on the local television station will be on a Monday at 10:30 p.m.

This phase is under the direction of Dr. Ernest G. Borman, who has written a three-act play, "The Bigger They Come", which was produced here and directed by Dr. Paul D. Davee.

Six to nine hours of credit is given to these students, even though they work much more than that a week. In addition to technical duties in the morning and television rehearsals in the mid-afternoon, the students also rehearse the play they are working on.

Mrs. Ike Cast . . .

Diane Kazan had her taste of the theater through modern dance here on the campus. Miss Kazan has appeared in several Theater Dance performances during the school seasons.

Five Appointed By Greenfield

Five students have been appointed by Student Body President Arnold Greenfield to conduct the Summer Honor Court.

They are Bill Strickland, chief justice, Karl Edwards, Cynthia Lawrence, Buck Byrds, and Jo Bradfield, associate justices. All have had experience on Honor Court during the regular school year.

No cases have been tried yet this summer, but any violations should be reported to Bill Strickland in care of Student Government, Longmire Building, or to any of the other Justices.

Honor court violations consist of cheating, stealing or lying to FSU University official.

Books Must Be Returned Aug. 7

All students, including graduate students, must return library books on or before Wednesday, August 7, according to Charles H. Walker, Registrar.

An additional fee of twenty-five cents per book will be charged after August 7. Students are urged to check with the library to make sure their records are clear, according to the registrar.

Hathaway, Briggs Leave Florida State

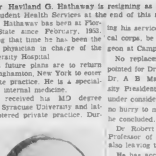
Dr Haviland G. Hathaway is resigning as University Director of Student Health Services at the end of this month.

Dr Hathaway has been at Florida State since February, 1953. During that time he has been the chief physician in charge of the University Hospital.

His future plans are to return to Binghamton, New York to enter private practice. He is a specialist in internal medicine.

He received his MD degree from Syracuse University and later entered private practice. During his service in the army medical corps, he served as post surgeon at Camp Barner, N. C.

No replacement has been appointed for Dr. Hathaway yet, and Dr. A B Martin, acting University President. "We have several under consideration but we are in no hurry to make up our minds," he concluded.



Dr. Robert L. Briggs, Assistant Professor of Music Education is also leaving the University.

Dr. Briggs has accepted the position of Dean of the School of Music at the University of Oklahoma.

Originally from Oklahoma, Dr. Briggs received his PHD from the University of Kansas. He worked at Haskell Institute in Kansas before joining the Marine Corps.

Dr. Briggs has written a book for the Florida State University Studies and several magazine articles. He is known for his work in the field of musical therapy for the aged.

Other University personnel who are leaving are Doris Beer, School of Music; Dr. Enda Devivney, Professor of Zoology, and Dr. Claudia Sally, Assistant Professor of History.

Dance Slated For Tomorrow

An orchestra and 4 male quartet will provide dance music at the Candlelight dance tomorrow night at the Student Center.

The dance will last from 8 till 12 The quartet, the "Tally-Ho's," are FSU graduates, will entertain during the intermission.

Closed Circuit

New TV Station Begins Operation

A closed circuit television station started operation Monday on the FSU campus.

The circuit will be in operation through July 25 for the audio-visual seminar on educational television.

Two out-of-state authorities in the field were brought in to help conduct the seminar, according to Dr Ova McBride, director of the FSU Audio-Visual Center.

Dr. Harold Wagley, of Houston U. serves as director. He is director of audio-visual education for Houston schools, which have pioneered in the use of T-V through station KUHT, kindly operated by the schools and the University of Houston.

Here for the first week of the two and one-half week seminar is Dr Philip Lewis, professor of education at Chicago Teachers College television editor of Educational Screen and Audio-Visual World and television consultant to Chicago public schools and WTTW educational television station WTTW

Other personnel who will be involved in the seminar include Roy Flynn, director of radio and television for FSU; Harold Moore land and William Quinly of the Library School; Raymond Cheydleur and William Rasdale of the University Broadcastic Service

SPEECH DEPT HOSTS

The FSU Department of Speech which is holding a Dramatics Workshop in which television appearances are planned and produced, also will co-operate.

The seminar is designed to give the teacher or librarian a better working knowledge of television and to provide insight into production techniques for those who wish to make use of the medium for public purposes," said Dr McBride. "The students will be introduced to studio equipment, will evaluate and develop program content and will be given an opportunity to gain skill in production techniques."

A truckload of electronic equipment has been set up in the Library lecture hall for daily class sessions between 8 a. m. and 4 p.m.

Eight television receiving sets have been set up on the campus circuit in lounges of the Library and Longmire Building and in a residence hall.

A grant of $1300 to FSU from the National Association of Educational Broadcasters is helping to pay for the cost of the seminar.

Student Center Closes During Last 2 Weeks

The Student Center will be closed for the last two weeks of the eight week session.

News of the closing of the Center was confirmed by Mr. Dennis Dennis, administrative of Morrison's Food Services.

He explained that the closing is due to the lack of customers. "If people would patronize the place, I'd keep it open the whole summer". Dennis continued, but "we would lose money if we stayed open now"

He disclaimed any knowledge of efforts to keep the Center open for dancing and social gatherings. "It could be arranged, I suppose," he admitted, but said he one had mentioned it to him.

Dr. A. B. Martin, acting University President, said he was unaware of any plans to close the Student Center. He is not in favor of closing the recreational facilities since there is no other place to dance here.

Mrs. D. W Balcomsd, Social Counselor for the Student Center, could not be reached for comment on the action.

The Seminole Club is scheduled to remain open until Aug. 10, the date of graduation.

The Longmire Soda Shop will not close at all during the summer.

Dennis also claimed the early closing of the Student Center on the need for time to give staff and cooks a vacation as well as on the poor attendance.

IT'S ALL A MATTER of eggs and such, points out Lee Hildman to J. Morgan Sherwood and Diane Kagan, performers in tonight's speech play "Claudia." Tickets can be obtained at the door tonight for 75 cents (adult price) and 40 cents with I. d. card for campus students.

Fishing And Movie Slated

Fishing trips, a reception, book review and out-door movie are featured summer recreation activities this week.

Last Saturday's deep-sea fishing trip was "a huge success", according to Miss Marie Williams, social director. "The lack of fish was compensated for by the fun that was had", she said.

Another trip is planned for tomorrow, as well as one for the Seminole Saturday. Those planning to so may sign up in the Office of Social Activities, Room 19, Lonsmire, by Wednesday noon. Boats will leave from Panacea with Capitol Cruise Service. This trip will replace the one scheduled for July 26 which was cancelled because of exams being given that day.

The canoe trip scheduled for July 21 has been cancelled, due to a lack of available staff members.

The Graduate Club will have a reception honoring the Graduate Council Monday evening at 8 p.m. in the Lonsmire lounge.

The weekly book review will feature Dr. William Randel Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. in the Longmire student lounge. Dr. Randel will review Boy on a Dolphin. Refreshments will be served before the review in the first floor lounge.

"Gas Light", starring Ingrid Bergman and Joseph Cotten, will be the featured attraction of the movie of the week, playing tonight at the Seminole at 8 p.m. The showing will take place in 120 Geology in case of rain.

Miss Salisbury, Nursing Prof, Gets Certificate

Miss Agnes E. Salisbury, professor in the department of public nurse program at Florida State University, has received a certificate of appreciation from President Eisenhower for three years of advisory work with Selective Service.

The only woman member of the Florida Advisory Committee to Selective Service for Medical Personnel Miss Salisbury served this period. Miss Salisbury was cited for "outstanding service that you have contributed to the nation."

Summer Group Gives Oratorio

The FSU Summer Chorus will present Felix Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah" Sunday, July 21, at 4:30 p.m. The program will take place in the Oppermus Music Hall.

The choral group of 50 voices will be under the direction of Walter Jemes, Associate Professor of Music on the School of Music faculty, and the piano accompanist for the program will be Jerrald McCollum.

The soloists are Norman Turner, as Elijah; Ewen Setterlind, Obadiah, Rae James, the widow, Joan James, the youth, Pat Crotty, the Queen, and William Moore, Ahab.

Carolyn Glenn and Barbara Rogers will sing a duet, while Betty Lou Grimes will be a soloist, along with Kay McGee

Singing in ensemble groups consisting of the quintet and double quartets will be Carolyn Glean, Barbara Rogers, Jo Ann Turner, Dorothy Wamble, Jack Meader, Lomax Graham, Archie Sharretta, William Moore, Jo-Jo James, Adrian Ketcham, Pat Crotty, and Ann Duncan.

The entire oratorio will be performed, with a break during which refreshments will be served by the Summer Recreation Committee to all those in attendance.

Parking Violators Receive Warnings

Warning parking tickets issued in certain critical areas on campus have not been effective. Therefore regular traffic tickets are now being issued, according to Mr. Harry Day.

Warnings will be continued in Blue Zones (two hour areas); however, students are not expected to park there for extended periods of time. Traffic tickets will be issued in fire plug yellow line and faculty only areas. Only warning tickets explaining the reason for the ticket to new students, Mr. Day said.

Board Made Wise Choice In Selecting Dr. Strozier As New FSU President

WHEN GOVERNOR LeRoy Collins issued a statement earlier this year indicating the type of man he thought should be appointed to the presidency to be vacated by retiring Dr. Doak S. Campbell, faculty members and students were probably dubious as to whether the man chosen for the job would possess such attributes.

The new president should be a "young man with a future . . . one with a deep abiding love for scholarship . . . with a keen understanding of the services a university can render . . . he must command the respect of the leaders of his profession," Collins said.

EVERYONE PROBABLY had their own ideas as to the type of person who should be hired for the most important job—some wanted a big name, some wanted a change in personality and make up, and some wanted a person who would maintain the status quo. But Collins' statement seemed to be the best.

With such a man as he described, Florida State University sounded destained to know no bounds in greatness. It is an institution with many strong points that needs a wise guide, a steady hand to keep it on going in the right direction.

WE THINK the Board of Control and the State Board of Education has chosen wisely. Dr. Robert H. Strozier, while not a "name" in the education profession perhaps, has an impressive background of scholarship, leadership, and competence in administration.

He is a scholar of romance languages, having received his Ph.D. in the subject at the University of Chicago where he has been dean of students since 1946. He is consultant to the State Department on the educational exchange of students, including the Fulbright program; is president of the International House Association and on the board of other noted academic organizations.

HE ALSO has served as president of the University of Chicago Settlement, and of the Chicago Musical College, and as president of the National Association of Personnel Administration.

Dr. Strozier, in addition to having such experience, is not strange to the ways of the South. Although he has worked in Chicago many years he was born, reared and educated in Georgia and understands fully the customs and problems familiar to this area.

AND IN addition, Dr. Strozier seems to be very fond of FSU. In recent interviews he expressed a desire to meet the challenge that FSU offers. "Florida State University has great potentialities," he said. "We can make it anything we want to."

The secret, he said, is in finding the proper way in which to attain greatness. And we think Dr. Strozier, is a man that can do it.

Morrison's Should Leave Recreation Area Open During Last Weeks Of Session

Morrison's Food Services says it will close the Student Center the last two weeks of the summer session. The administration says no official action has been taken on the matter.

Both Morrison's and the administration have expressed a willingness for the recreational facilities of the Student Center to remain open if the food division can not.

The center is the only place students has go to dance and take a much needed coke or coffee break. If Morrison's closes through its present plan to close the Student Center at the end of the six-week session, those enrolled for the eight-week session will be deprived of their haven during the exams and intense work of the last two weeks of school.

Student Center officials have voiced willingness to keep the snack bar and entertainment facilities open and available during those final two weeks. With the regular serving line closed, this would not appear to involve too great an expense.

Since both the administration and Morrison's officials admit that an arrangement "could be made" to keep the Student Center open, why not go ahead and do it?

It would be greatly appreciated by the students.

Screen Test

Females Go For Bernadine

By MARSHALL LACOMBE

BERNARDINE is dominating the screen at the Florida Theater until next Wednesday when Elvis Presley will replace Pat Boone with his second Paramount classic. I'll have more to say about the "boy next door" next week; right now let's examine Pat's first film.

I was fortunate to have three stereotyped high school girls sitting in front of me throughout the picture. These semi-enchanting, potential females all but fell into my lap each time and everytime Patrick Van Boone began vibrating his vocal chords.

WITH THIS basis, I can confidently state that all females, potential or otherwise, should find our picture quite stimulating.

I found it entertaining, amusing, and technicolored.

Pat Boone portrayed a high school lad, but looked more post-college. He was too smooth, too handsome, too suave for the part he played. He's a great living advertisement for saxquitiser pills.

PERFORMANCE WISE, Richard Sargent topped the billing. This is Dick's first big part. I venture to say not his last.

The story (formerly a Broadway play) centers around Dick, his puberty-ridden love life and scholastic misdemeanors. It's speckled with "hep" hiah school phrases such as'O.T.L. (Out To Lunch) and "Hey Bob scram."

THE CLIMAX IS reached with a heavy moral tone, which rather chances the character of the picture from a light comedy to a hellish-heavy drama.

Janet Gaynor, Richard Sargent's movie-mother, returns to the lights' camera's action! world after a nineteen-year leave of absence In case you've forgotten, she won the first Academy Award back in 1928 for the same you can't miss this year, that was before the Eisenhower administration.

ALL TOLLED, Pat Boone far surpassed Elvis Presley in the battle of film debuts.

Dick Sargent and Pat Boone for the girls, but the appearances of "Miss Mink Stoling Miss of the 20th Century" "Terry Moore" is scattered throughout leaving the forgotten sex ignore forgotten.

THE SCENES were made of dynamite you couldn't blow your hand off. All right, triple time, you steal-footed fox who watches Faster, Faster! FASTER!!!

'I'M YOUR D.I., you burrheads, you had your last laugh the first time you spit over my pants Straighten up there. Knowledge, knowledge, knowledge." T Sgt. Jim Moore's fighting titers. If any of you little girls get sand in my starch you will ride the swamp!"

It seems all Jack Webb wants in his latest, The D.I. is the facts; just the facts! And, to be the facts, and the facts only, produced, directed, and starred in this rollicked baby of his, and stamped it with his seal of approval: A MARK VII LTD. Stamp.

DI is O.K.

THE STORY is the overtaxed "this - boy-will-never-make-a-Marine-but-he-does" story of the rough, toughest fighting force in the world.

It's about the Marines, stars and Marines, and the story centers in Marine-land -Parris Island, South Carolina filmed in Hollywood.

Sergeant Moore's every step is accompanied with a drum roll and a theatrical flash of lightning. The story is explosive, or I should say is told with explosives.

Yank Teaches Texans Rebel Yell

By BOB SIMMONS

SINCE GUY Lombardo was not in around during the period of the Civil War, Stonewall Jackson had his own interpretation of the sweetest music this side of heaven. To him, it wasn't the tinkle of the rim jackets, but a nerve shattering Rebel yell.

Of course, in recent years, the art of producing a proper, blood curdling Rebel yell has almost become extinct. The entitlement of Texas are not content, however, to let the tradition be totally forgotten.

THEY DECIDED that to have authenticity in the first Civil War Between the States Centennial this fall in Kountze, Texas is a necessity. So they set out to learn the Rebel yell.

The most embarrassing thing about the whole matter is that the modern day southerners had to go to a Yankee to learn to yell like Rebels.

IT SEEMS that Richard Bales, a Yankeeland composer, is the present authority on Rebel yells. While it is doubtful that a Northerner could ever savor the full satisfaction of the Johnny Reb cry, he was responsible for producing the Rebel yell in his album "The Confederacy."

Generally, there's a great deal of dissent concerning the facts for the yell. But it seems it sounded something like "Y-yo Yo-wo-wo." "Hi-a Yeasay-ee" "Way-Who-ey." "Y-a-a-a Y-e-e-e-i-o-i-i."

OBVIOUSLY, this could easily have been the beginning of Rock 'n' Roll, but it served a more useful purpose. The Southern boys, who did quite a bit of hunting with their hounds, used the yell to encourage the dogs to keep on the trail, or to call them in.

And in a sense, it served the same purpose in war. The cornfed Dixie soldiers were hunting again—Yankees!

FOR THOSE who haven't heard the Rebel yell in the record album "The Confederacy" we might say it sounds more like a lovesick bachelor from County Cork or a World War II air raid alarm gone agitated sealing. The company, however, announced that it would assist in federal court in defense if state and city segregation statutes are still in effect in the case now pending before the Supreme Court.

The City Police then announced they would not interfere with the integration movement until a final decision on the legality of the local bus segregation ordinance.

ON JANUARY 1, 1957 Governor Collins declared an emergency and suspended operation of Tallahassee's buses following several rock-throwing and shooting incidents. In proclaiming the emergency Collins criticized leaders of the integration drive as radical pro-segregationists who, he said "have engaged in intimidation . . . for the purpose" of what was a "temporary one."

Shortly thereafter the segregation clause in the bus franchise was repealed and a new bus ordinance was passed. The new ordinance called for seating according to what a passenger weighs in order to insure proper weight and stress distribution in the vehicle, and thus cut down on wear and tear which results in serious safety factors.

IN CONCLUSION, this editorial would like to state that while most Tallahassee citizens, black and white, behaved like "adults" in this awkward period, the handful of "Alabama" and "Mississippi" what evolved did not solve anything.

To say the car-pool was not a significant victory for the racial issue is only fooling oneself and no one else.

A similar aspect can be seen in Congress' failure to consider any civil rights bill.

SUPPORTERS of the bill do not fear an "invasion of divine Right and a "breach of the Constitution," but the real purpose behind the jury proposal is the bill.

With a jury needed for the trial of certain civil right cases it would almost be impossible to keep the Negro away from the polls in the South without facing federal punishment.

Legislators who come from districts with Negro majorities might face defeat. Those who come from districts where Negroes form less than a majority might have to alter their approach to political campaigns and racial issues.

The same holds true in Tallahassee with the bus boycott.

Calling The Card

Send Station Cards To Keep Elvis Away

By ARNOLD GREENFIELD

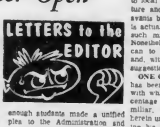
SURVEYING THE news-world wide, national, and local—since the last issue of this publication yields much food for comment. Some tremendously serious and significant developments have transpired—realignment of the heads of the Kremlin, new bomb tests, a threatening Chinese war cloud, congressional decree over civil rights, and the Elvis Presley craze.

However, none of these is the real issue of primary importance to local college students. The future and complexity of world affairs being what they are it is actually little we can do about such matters of grave concern. Nonetheless, there is one thing we can to make the world better; and with this in mind, I have a suggestion.

ONE OF THE local disc jockeys has come up with a new gimmick with which I assume a happy medium between the two extremes of Elvis familiar. He, who shall remain herein unnamed, has been budgeting his broadcasts to send in post cards urging that Elvis Presley be banned from Talahassee.

Preposterously enough he now claims that a real multitude have actually thrown the cultural access of western civilization to the winds and are ready in order to obtain this result the radio station in question kept babbling about Elvis ad nauseum, until, naturally many people sent in post cards in the hope of getting rid of him.

WHATEVER THE motives of this station's campaign—regardless of helping the broadcasters in the first stage of their scheme the end of the fiasco has come for all concerned; decree over civil rights, terrible flood in Europe, and so on.



For the prevention of cruelty to humans in this area by a very few local college students—enough said.

While the perpetrators of the "Bring Elvis To Tallahassee" movement are seeking the answer to the question, they can strike a blow for civic pride by sending in post cards in the number of post cards to the station urging that everything possible be done to keep Elvis away from this city.

If this is done and the plot is foiled, the students who have proved that their exposure to college has not been in vain. Moreover we will be able to tell that although we could do nothing about Russian politics World Integration arguments, or natural catastrophies, we had nevertheless done something to reduce the quantity of human misery in the world. Such is the essence of Truiism.

I Declare

Keep Center Open

TO THE EDITOR:

During a discussion this evening with Miss Bateman, Social Director of the Student Center, it was brought to my attention that the Administration of the University intends to close the Student Center at the end of the six week session rather than the end of the eight week session.

As an organization would deny the eight week students the recreational facilities during the last two weeks of summer school. I feel that this is no small way to offset the many facilities which have been paid for in advance by these students, and would work a hardship on students without the benefits of personal ownership of automobiles.

Miss Bateman has expressed a willingness and desire to keep the Student Center open if recreational facilities open, and feels that if enough students made a unified plea to the Administration and to Morrison's Food Service, an arrangement to keep the Student Center open during those last two weeks could be made. I would like to suggest that your paper use its facilities to bring this issue before the students and effect such a spirit as may be needed to prompt the Administration to meet our needs.

A Better Measure

Civil Rights Bill Is Like Car Pool Trial

By JEROME BERNSTEIN
(Last in Series)

IN TRYING to prove that the car-pool used by Tallahassee Negroes in their boycott of city buses was violating state law, the statement was made to the effect that the case did not involve racial issues.

Instead was involved a transportation system without control or governmental agencies.

Special city prosecutor Mark R. Hawes, in attempting to prove the commercial aspect of the carpool evidently rested on the statement made by the defense that: "The drivers and riders of the automobiles in the bus protest are the mitigated an arrangement in Council assisted whereby they, through the Council would have the expense of the gasoline used."

CITY ATTORNEY JOHN A. RUDD found the Inter-Civic Council and the defendants guilty of operating an illegal transportation system. He fined each defendant $500 or 60 days, and suspended the mandatory sentence of 60 days, with each being put on a one year probation.

On November 13, 1956 the United States Supreme Court upheld a decision holding unconstitutional Alabama and Montgomery, Alabama laws requiring racial segregation on buses. Ten days later the Tallahassee ordinance was voided to end their seven-monthsold boycott and to ride buses on an integrated basis.

COUNCIL MEMBERS warned against violence when Rev. C. K. Humphreys appealed to both whites and Negroes to cooperate in maintaining segregation on the buses.

The Rev. C. K. Steele said, "If segregation is unlawful in Alabama as the Supreme Court has ruled, it is unlawful in Tallahassee."

The city commission voted a few days later to suspend the franchise of the Cities Transit Co. because of "efforts of the Negroes to integrate" the bus system. City Manager Fred Drake said the action was taken because the bus company a franchise was being violated. He said the franchise specifically provided for segregation of the races.

PRIOR TO THE commission's action, the city had ordered the bus company to remove its segregated seating. The company, however, announced that it would assist in federal court in defense if state and city segregation statutes are still in effect in the case now pending before the Supreme Court.

The City Police then announced they would not interfere with the integration movement until a final decision on the legality of the local bus segregation ordinance.

ON JANUARY 1, 1957 Governor Collins declared an emergency and suspended operation of Tallahassee's buses following several rock-throwing and shooting incidents. In proclaiming the emergency Collins criticized leaders of the integration drive as radical pro-segregationists who, he said "have engaged in intimidation . . . for the purpose" of what was a "temporary one."

Promises To Disarm A Russian Stall

By RAY HEMANN

THE UNITED STATES Government, under the Eisenhower administration, as well as the Truman administration, has taken the position that disarmament is a necessary goal and that the withholding of the use and testing of nuclear weapons without the same restriction on all weapons is imprudent and dangerous.

The Soviet Government, on the other hand, has maintained somewhat with this proposition has since switched to the idea of a demand that nuclear tests be stopped without reference to any other phase of the general armament program. In fact, Andrei A. Sobolev, Soviet delegate to the United Nations said that Russia is willing to agree to halt the tests of all nuclear weapons "without conditions."

AMONG THE NATIONS which have no atomic weapons, there is a genuine fear of the possible dangers from radioactive fallout from the world's nuclear arsenals carrying radioactive particles from test sites in areas above their countries. Russia has done what it can to capitalize on this fear, at the same time expressing its own willingness to take the chance of fallout on itself. In fact, just the other day when President Eisenhower announced the Atomic Energy Commission has come up with a "clean" H-Bomb, the Russian Government, in the form of Nikita Khrushchev, answered with a statement to the effect, "Don't believe it, World, it's impossible."

IT WOULD, of course, be fine if Russia and the tests, both to prevent theoretical danger to human future date and to calm the world's fears. But how? On Russia's promise not to set off any more of her own H-Bombs?

Some people argue that even if Russia did violate her pledge and set off some bombs for purposes we would very quickly learn about it from our long-range detection stations.

The Reactionary

'Great Unwashea Are Taken In By TV Miltown

By CHARLES MAYO

It is not long since a local movie screen bore the self-acclaimed title of "A Place in the Crowd", which, having had the highest praise of the Flambeau, was of a certainty seen by all at FSU. Though it was frightening to a few, it is safe to say that it pleased the many. Its charm, it can be said in a word such, is derived from the same spirit of garish exposure which brings charlatans to the hearts of the three million readers of Confidential.

Its power, (and this is undeniably had) is however, independent of such gutter connotations; it comes from Elia Kazan, producer-artist, Maxwell-Messages, and one of the best directors in Hollywood or the New York stage, Sidney Sheldern, a third-rate novelist and a first-rate producer.

ASIDE FROM its orisins and dirnenaor, the film has since exhibited a certain quality. On the view it represents of the American public. Another is the position it occupies in the curious form of motion pictures which were designed by film makers to influence the attitude of the American moviegoer toward the South.

The first is open to speculation. It may be said that the issues of Lonesome Rhodes is merely the search for fame and a great American Custom, TV The interference of the political element in the film does not. Curly Fuller, "big business", and the TV world do not combine to try-to-big-men - not - big governments" philosophy, tied up with demagogery and country (Southern) politicksl, could be taken as a slam. So as widely varied a pair as ex-General Eisenhower and/or ex-Governor Talmadge

HOWEVER, in my own view, these are only the side-shows. To what theme could all of these elements contribute?

The answer is simple.

What is largely expressed by the film is the contempt for the sensibilities of those who raised Lonesome upon his pedestal. In short, that great democratization of fools, the American people Kazan and his colleagues know them as "the Great Unwashed"—And the 50 per cent of the people—the 60 million whom Lonesome sought to sway by Curly Fuller.

They constitute the majority of the voting public in the U S Perhaps this is straining at an imaginary zeal, but it is the sad fact that the apathy of Lonesome's viewers, their gullibility and ignorance, all fair to become fact in tomorrow's USA "Mass man" is already here, and TV may be the Mellum that puts the "man" to sleep, and leaves only "mass".

Of Summertime Football And A Year-Round Task

e a walk across the campus on any given day after that un sun has climbed up there real high and you'll wonder ulents can talk football.

ow blamed fools are doing it, though.

ctic out at the Sports Publicity Department they're so ked up in football they hardly have time to notice the ir sun and 90-plus degree temperatures.

it right or wrong, the business of publicizing the guys l over the Garnet and Gold this fall has developed into ar 'round task.

Here's how it's done.

MAGAZINES COME FIRST—

Almost immediately after the spring game winds up in late the magazines around the country start filling mail boxes requests for materials on the fall season.

They want rosters, pictures, ratings of your team and of the you'll meet as well as teams in your area you won't meet; ing that'll be of interest to the sunburned fellow who'll a football craze the first time he sniffs an autumn wind This is the time All Americans are made, too.

It's been observed many, many times that to know the Americans for a given season all you have to do is check football mags at the beginning of that season.

The publicity directors start pushing the big fullback or rapped end early; and once they've got him a little notice, and on like the storied bulldog.

Take our own Ron Schomburger.

When you slide your coin across the counter in September purchase that football magazine you're almost certain to flip page which'll list Ron as a potential All American.

It's a—and in almost every way. But if it wasn't for a lot ance long time in advance of a season, chances are Ron ld be just another end.

AND THEN BROCHURES—

One magazine calls have been answered, the publicity effort ntensified on the writing and publication of what might be a pocket-sized dictionary for the football team in question. ll sit there, from A to Z.

FSU has been rather lucky with its brochures. Last year booklet was judged the second best in the nation by the Sports Magazine College Publicists Association.

This 1956 book carried a cover girl for the first time and ge quite a bit. So much so that a cover girl contest was ng the spring game to select the girl who'll decorate ll this year.

The girl selected was Barbara Bishop, an 18-year-old sopho- of Orlando. The book is expected off the presses the latter of this month when it'll be sent into every nook and corner ne country.

SEASONS ARE ROUTINE—

There are several other points which have to be taken care before the season gets under way such as "picture days" when ospectors come to campus to meet and take pictures of the boys.

And then there are the pre-season trips and conventions the sports publicity director has to take and attend. These just consume the better part of a month.

By the time the season begins things get pretty routine and ery Each game is a new challenge for the publicity outfit as for the team. And both can fumble the ball and lose.

As one sports publicity man once said:

"The toughest thing about my job is deciding the right time take my vacation. There just isn't one."

It's a year-round game.

A CLOSING NOTE—

Writing in the NCAA Football Guide, which is the first issue of sorts to get out before the football season, Morris Bonner summed FSU up this way:

Florida State doubtless will field its best team to date Tom Nugent counting heavily upon junior college grads- ns and an undefeated freshman team. Tony Romeo is a star ing rising razz and Bill Manning is back from the Army." Bonner said some nice things in the package but he missed mark on a couple of shots. The only junior college grad figure for this year is Pete Fleming, a JC All America who played in the Junior Rose Bowl game last year.

And Romeo doubtless would have been an outstanding per- mer this fall but he's sitting out the season. He'll be back in for that clash against Florida.

No Swimming Yet

Heavy Rains Refill Lake Bradford

Long-empty Lake Bradford, the site of the University Reservation, has water again.

For months a weed-filled marsh Lake Bradford's water supply has been replenished by heavy rainfall during the months of May and June, according to the United State Weather Bureau.

"Above-normal rainfall in North Florida has built up the water table considerably in recent months," said E. W. Bishop, state astrologist. "Periods of heavy rainfall run in cycles—it may happen again soon", he added.

During May, rainfall was nearly 4 inches above normal, and in June, almost three inches above average. This accretion of excess filled small lakes and sub-surface streams and the run-off caused the re-filling of larger lakes such as Lake Bradford.

However, rainfall to date in July has been only .73 inches — 1.47 inches below normal. More rain is needed to bring further increases in the level of Lake Bradford—for the level could see back down, according to the Weather Bureau.

Dr. Hilda Tinney associate professor of counseling and guidance, who is presently serving as camp director, has announced that the lake is not open for swimming at the Reservation at this time, and won't be for the rest of the summer. No life guard is on duty. One boat is available "at your own risk," Miss Tinney said.

The Leon County Health Department will check the water for bacteria content next week. After the test, a camp committee composed of students and administrative officials will meet to decide on a future camp program.

The camp is open now as usual for picknicking. For information or reservations, call Miss DeKalb at 2-2212. The camp is open Tuesday through Friday from 8 till 8 p. m. and Saturday and Sunday from 1 till 8 p. m.

LAKE BRADFORD, the site of the University camp, the Reservation, is filling up again after lack of rain left it dry for many months. Heavy rainfall during May and June raised the water table, causing the lake to begin to refill.

Florida Hall Sponsors Next Starlight Dance

A Starlight Dance for all undergraduate students will be the feature of the evening next Friday night from 9 till 12 at Florida Hall, under the sponsorship of the summer recreation program.

Admission is free. All undergraduate students, both on and off campus, are invited to attend.

The dance, an informal affair, will feature the Jerry Kohler orchestra. The Florida Hall patronesses will serve as a dancing floor and refreshments will be served.

Committees consisting of girls from Florida and North Cawthon Halls have been appointed to work on dance preparations. Committee heads are: refreshments, Lin Pryor and Lynn Brady; decorations, June Brunson and Marianne Schulz; hostesses, Leslie Fraiser and Marianna Reeves; and publicity, Sherry Bixler and Pat Sills McCarthy.

Overall preparations are under the direction of Mrs. Gertrude Cose, Florida Hall social director, and Mary Ann Bryant and Edith Wilkinson, social chairmen of North Cawthon and Florida.

remarked, "it is necessary for the university to take a lead in outer research. It is my goal to be left behind," he added.

Dr. Strozier and his wife made arrangements to move into the official president's residence while they were here and also arranged for their children, Charles, 13, and Ann, 10, to enroll in school. Another son, Robert, 17, will spend next year in India.

The Stroziers will spend a three week vacation in New Hampshire and an additional three weeks in Chicago before moving to Tallahassee. They expect to arrive the day after Labor Day.

This was Strozier's first trip to Tallahassee since his interview with the Board of Control a month ago. Previously, he had not visited here since 1938.

"The transition between FSCW and FSU is wonderfully successful," he remarked.

American Collegiates Work In European Summer Program

Ten American college students, scheduled to assist in conducting the U. S. Air Force in Europe's youth activities program this summer, arrived in Wiesbaden, Germany late in June.

Assistants in the youth activities program in the Wiesbaden area will be Richard R. Spaulding, a graduate of FSU, Lawrence P. Beckmann, another FSU graduate, is assigned at Sembach Air Base, and John Kleier, an FSU graduate student, will assist at Camp Mohawk, Shiefenbury, England.

Others in the program are Charles E. Geason and Mike Sullivan, U. of Minnesota; James Hartz, Wisconsin State; Herbert C. Stein, and Bryce Newman, U. of Georgia; Jerry P. Trimble, U. of Nebraska; and John B. MacKenzie, Springfield College.

The group, all majoring in the recreation field in college, will work for eight weeks as playground and sports leaders at installations in Germany and the United Kingdom. They arrived at Bremerhaven June 23.

This summer's program is a pilot operation with the students to be closely supervised and their work evaluated. If the plan is successful, efforts will be made to expand it next year.

Collins Names Husband As Board Member

Gov. Leroy Collins has appointed Dr. Richard W. Husband, Florida State University psychology professor, to a 5-man board of examiners of Psychology.

The board will examine and certify psychologists for practice in Florida. The law which sets it up prohibits any psychologist from practicing without certification.

Husband was the only member to be appointed to a three-year term.

Others appointed by Collins to the board:

Dr. Cyril Marquis of Miami, 2-year term; Dr. James L. Kirkpatrick of Tampa, 3-year term; Dr. James C. Dixon of the University, 1-year term, and Dr. Thelma Voorhis of St. Petersburg, 1-year term.

Thetas Lead Grades List

Kappa Alpha Theta lead the sororities this past spring semester with a grade average of 2.9017, Florida State University officials reported.

The previous semester, Alpha Gamma Delta topped the other sororities with a 2.832 grade average.

Taking second and third places are Zeta Tau Alpha with a 2.8703 and Alpha Gamma Delta with a 2.8498 over-all average.

Other sororities made these grades: Tri Delta, 2.8190; Delta Gamma, 2.8080; Alpha Xi Delta, 2.7780; Alpha Delta Pi, 2.7702; Kappa Delta, 2.6901; and Pi Beta Phi, 2.6653.

Also included are: Chi Omega, 2.6458; Phi Mu 2.6424; Alpha Omicron Pi, 2.6294; Alpha Chi Omega, 2.5907; Gamma Phi Beta, 2.5836; Sigma Kappa, 2.5219; and Delta Zeta, 2.5206.

Fall Counseling Begins July 15

Counseling for course work for the fall semester will begin July 15 and continue through July 18, according to Dr. Mel Hardee, Coordinator of Counseling.

Students entering FSU in June, 1957 are asked to see their faculty advisors between these dates to work out a trial schedule of courses for the fall semester.

The signed schedule is then taken to the Office of the Registrar where an appointment time for fall registration will be assigned.

To learn the name and location of assigned faculty advisors, students may call or visit the Office of the Coordinator of Counseling, 301 Westcott, Extension 7532-1 or 7533-1.

Evening Vespers Held For Students

Vesper services are being held at 7 p.m. each Tuesday night in the Longmire student lounge by the Baptist Student Union, according to the B. S. U.'s summer council.

All students are invited to attend, the council said.

Dr. Rogers Examines Browning At Lecture

By PAT ASHTON

Robert Browning, one of the finest writers of the dramatic monologue was the topic of interest at this week's Summer Lecture.

Dr. William Hodson Rogers, former head of the English department, entertained the audience with one of his "favorite things; reading and talk'ng about Browning."

Introduced by Miss Elizabeth Lunn, assistant Dean of Women, Dr. Rogers read and discussed eleven poems by the British author.

Although Robert Browning is usually thought of as an objective poet almost entirely, Dr. Rogers opened the program with his short lyric poem, "Such a Starved Bank of Moss". Only three stanzas long, the lyric shows that Browning could handle the pure description in which Wordsworth and other English poets excelled.

RELIGIOUS PSYCHOLOGY

"A study in religious psychology" followed on the program. "Porphria's Lover" tells the story of a young man who tells his girl had come as near to heaven as she possibly could when she confessed her love for him. To ensure that she would have the best possible chance to get to heaven he tightly wrapped her golden hair three times around her neck. In Dr. Roger's words, "He needed his head examined."

DRIVING POWER

Dr. Rogers explained that one of Browning's theories was that "love is the most important driving power in the life of men and women". "Youth and Art" and the next poem, "Householder", illustrate this point.

Hatred between two men because of jealously is the theme of "Soliloquy of the Spanish Cloister". Written to show the thoughts of one man concerning one of his brothers, one gets a clear picture of both the speaker and the object of his hatred.

"My Last Duchess" probably one of the best known of Browning works, is considered by Dr. Rogers to be the "finest example of the dramatic monologue". Like the preceding poem, the speaker reveals his own character while telling of his first wife whom he had put to death because of her love for humanity in general. He felt that she should reserve both smiles for him alone.

Off The Cuff

By GEORGE GOLDSTEIN

Well, we're back for some comments about television programs, dotted around the campus, etc. Perhaps it would be best to "tee off" with the "battle of the century."

LEAPFROG BATTLE—VIA T.V.

It seems that any concept of loyalty between the television networks ends on Sunday night for faithful viewers. At least during the Sunday night hour of Sullivan-Allen programs.

You might say it's become a joke, when Ed Sullivan and Steve Allen appear and "battle" it out over the networks, while the audience plays "leap-frog" with their dials.

In one survey that was taken, a total of 14 switches to Sullivan from Allen and vice-versa was completed in one hour. It seems the "loyalty" average lasts a little more than four minutes!

If you want an "electronic midday" for a pastime here it is.

Fortunately for Tallahassee viewers, the programs come on at 6 p.m. for Sullivan and 7 p.m. for Steve Allen.

At least you avoid the name of "electronic leapfrog!"

ON RECORDS AND SUCH . . .

Why is there so much of "Rock and Roll"? Isn't there a comment about "having too, too much of everything"?

No, we're not against rock 'n roll' nor do we believe that it makes teen-agers fall into the category of juvenile delinquents. That department, authorities say, is up to the parent, not the record industry to curb.

If one notices the list of the "top ten" or any other way records are rated, it's nine to one they are "bop" or rock 'n roll.

About the only break we've had in months is "Around The World In 80 days." That is an accomplishment!

Such tunes as "Till" and "Tammy" are played fairly often in this and other varieties, but it's a shame they won't last! Why? The songs are too pretty.

We admit that "bop" and "jitterbug" are fun to dance, but how about the couples that can't girate themselves into these steps and like to "slow dance"?

We guess it's up to those who buy records and play them on the juke-box. Put which will it be? The "real hep tunes" or slow tunes or a good mixture of both?

It's up to you!

OF OTHER MEDIA . . .

CLAUDIA . . . For an enjoyable evening we recommend the first play given by the students of the Speech Department summer stock workshop.

In case you don't know, tickets are available at the door for $3 cents for adults and 40 cents for students with their I.D. cards. The place: Conradi Theater, History Building.

THE MIKADO . . . If Gilbert and Sullivan are your "meat" then we suggest seeing your production of "The Mikado" performed by the music camp students next Wednesday.

MOVIES . . . Somewhere in this paper, probably the second page, is a column called "Screen Test." If you're having problems deciding what motion picture to see, take a sander and you may be helped!

FUTURE EVENTS . . . Another review will appear in the Flambeau, for those who have seen or will see the play tonight. might find this interesting. One Mr. X will review it or has already.

To help Ed Sullivan, this paper will conduct a little survey to decide what should appear on a variety show.

AND . . . We still say the record indicates deserves a "Pat" on the back. Be the sincere "wiggling masses of protoplasm" "well"; or the "Bernadine" of records? The latter is quite a "Bone!"

'Flying High' Circus Now At Work

HANDBALANCING—is no simple trick, as this new team can tell you. Pete Hartz supports Joan Smith and Sally Beamer in the middle and Don Clark on top. They are coached by Jackie Fortune, versatile veteran who received the "Outstanding Circus Performer" award last year.

"The show must go on," at least as far as the circus is concerned. On these hot sultry afternoons when most of the campus has evacuated to the beaches, these conscientious performers can be seen diligently practicing their routines in preparation for the coming year.

Summer school in the past proved to be a good time for breaking in new performers as the learning of new acts by the older ones. Veteran performers Jackie Fortune, Faye Moses, and Jim Hayes are here this summer to aid Coach Haskin in the training of the new recruits. Just joining the famous Florida State University attraction, "Flying High."

Many excited new faces have appeared on the lot this summer. Mary and Helen Woodberry, Jill Zimmerman, Beverly Blalock, Jean Hartz, Bobby Sue Stoulamire, and Ivan Judy are among them.

A very promising-looking beginner is petite Jean Hartz, daughter of Florida State's Chaplain, Dr. Edwin R. Hartz.

Jean can be seen swinging from the bi-o-lane trapeze, performing around on a pair of roller skates, or balancing precariously on a rollaboard with her partner, Sam Beamer.

One of last year's star performers, Jackie Fortune, who plans to graduate in August, is spends his spare time breaking in a hand-balancing team consisting of Jackie Fortune, Sam Beamer, and Don Clark. The boys are practicing assiduously. "Coach" Fortune says.

Faye Moses and Pete Haggerty hope to add a new act to next year's show called "The Balancing Pencils." This consists of a long steel pole balanced by Pete with Faye on top going through a series of tricks ranging from hanging by one ankle to standing on her hands while Pete tries to keep the pole in balance.

Other performers working out this summer are Barbara Cummins, Marilyn Cubbage, B. J. Woodham, and Rachel Caldwell.

Journalists Feel They Need Access To Info

By ALFRED C. OLSSON JR.

There must be some occasions when exclusion of the press from government meetings is justifiable, but they are extremely rare. That is the belief of most Florida newsmen questioned in a recent survey of freedom of information conducted by the Florida State University School of Journalism.

Dr. Laurence R. Campbell, Dean of the Journalism School, reported on the survey in the June issue of THE QUILL, magazine for journalists. The study was a compilation of the views of newsmen on the staffs of seventy-two dailies, twenty-five weeklies, four radio stations, and three television stations in the state. Each newsman selected for the survey was asked to complete a two-page questionnaire.

SHOULD OPEN MEETINGS

To the question "Should reporters have free access to government meetings?" a large majority of the editors and other newsmen answered "yes". National security was a factor mentioned by those who answered "no".

Dr Campbell noted that many newspapermen were denied access to city and county commissioner's meetings. Three daily papers said they were denied admittance to county meetings before 1956, and one reported such difficulties in 1956. Improvement in gaining access to city meetings was noted since then.

SPECIAL MEETINGS

Karl J. Easton, of the Lake Worth HERALD, pointed out that sometimes there is no deliberate denial of access, instead, special meetings are called without the reporter's knowledge.

TV newsmen also said they sometimes met obstacles in covering meetings. For instance, WJNO-TV of Palm Beach said that some meetings of city and county commissions have been closed to reporters.

EXCEPTIONS CITED

The survey asked reporters if they thought they should have access to all government records. Most of the answers replied that they should have free access to records, but many specific exceptions were cited. Classified military information, police welfare rolls, and names of juvenile offenders were mentioned as exceptions to the rule.

NO TROUBLE FOR TV

No TV or radio stations reported difficulty in using public records, but it was pointed out by one news editor that such access was less important for radio and TV than for newspapers.

When newspaper men were asked what they do when refused access to meetings and government records Dr. Campbell reported that seven newsmen on dailies said they protested, seven made editorial comment, and three took legal steps. On the weekly papers, ten protested and four wrote editorials.

EDITORIALS SUCCESSFUL

Many papers stated that their editorial measures proved successful. A typical reply was from the POLK COUNTY DEMOCRAT:

"We simply reported: 'The city commission held another secret session following its regular meeting Monday night until it stopped doing so. And it didn't take long to get results—the public life gave the commissioners no peace until they ceased their secret meetings."

Nearly all media are almost unanimous in their belief that statements of policy and expressions of opinion by government officials must not be withheld from reporters. Dr. Campbell said.

One of the newsmen questioned, J. Marion Harmon, executive editor of the Sanford HERALD, replied that there should be no exceptions to this rule because it is through policy statements that the ability of a person to hold office becomes known.

In concluding his report on the FSU School of Journalism survey, Dr. Campbell says: "Responsible news sources as well as responsible newspapers are essential in responsible journalism. The status of freedom of information in Florida is good. But it could be better."

be too severe upon their errors but reclaim them by enlightening them if once they become inattentive to public affairs, you and I and Congress and Assemblies, judges and governors shall all become wolves."

I CAN hardly believe that Eisenhower is a wolf. But insofar as he has contradicted in act his stated principles, has made that long-cherished two party system a sham, a plaything of unprincipalities, and has generally been allowed by his doting public to act the buffoon at will, he does represent something horrible. For that matter, so does Ed Sullivan.

Also net new to FSU theater is Lee Hillman, who has appeared in such productions as "My Three Angels," "Mr. Pim Passes By," and "An Inspector Calls". He was fortunate enough to appear in all the title roles. Steve Kleid also has theater experience here with "The Skin Of Our Teeth, "The Bigger They Come", and sang one of the leads in "The Bartered Bride"

Jane Seymour, who hails from London, England, has appeared in such shows as "East Lynne" in the Tallahassee Little Theater production "Affair of State", and has done such radio roles as the Barbara Stanwyck role in "Stormy Wrong Number"

For Miss Thelma Richmond and Betty Jo Wrenn, this is their first show at Florida State in which they have worked. Miss Richmond has done mostly director's work at Sarasota Jr. High School for five years, while Miss Wrenn has done technical work around Florida State University.

Technical Points . . .

Set and lighting designer is Charles Reimer, technical director of the Drama Department. He has designed such sets as "Life Of Man", "The Cocktail Party", "Hamlet" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Designing costumes and making them, plus the job of make-up, is handled by Miss Patricia Clift, who holds a masters degree from University of Iowa. New to summer workshop this year, she has done "The Skin Of Our Teeth", "Oedipus Pex", "The Bigger They Come" in the realm of costumes and make-up.

Students working on the various aspects of technical work for this show are Tom King, controlboard operator; Lou Manzie, curtain, and Wayne Whitlesey, publicity.

Chorus Gives Elijah Sunday In Opperman

"Elijah", Mendelssohn's sacred oratorio, will be presented Sunday in Opperman Music Hall.

The University Summer Chorus has scheduled their performance for 4 p.m. About 50 summer school students are working on the production.

Walter James, director of the group, calls Elijah "the most dramatically written of all sacred oratorios". He compared it to something that Cecil B. DeMille would do in the movies. "It has everything, drama, mob scenes and a Biblical background."

Bible Story

Taken from the story of Elijah as found in the book of First Kings in the Bible, the oratorio tells the life of the prophet. Included are the drought that came to the Israelites, the breaking of the sick and the war with the priests of Baal.

Roles are Norman Turner as Elijah, Brown Setterlind, Obadiah; Rae James, the widow, and Pat Crosty, the queen.

Jean James, William Moore and Bill McGee along with Betty Jo Grimm of the music faculty will also solo.

Duet

Carolyn Glenn and Barbara Byers will be featured in a duet and will also sing in small ensemble groups as will Jo Ann Turner, Dorothy Wamble, Jack Brazel, Lorman Graham, Archie Harrell, Adrian Pfeiffer and Ann Duncan.

Mary McCollum is the piano accompanist.

The performance is in two acts with a fifteen minute intermission. During this break, the University Summer Recreation Committee will serve refreshments.

Understandable Elijah

Although most of the soloists are graduate students the title role of Elijah is taken by an undergraduate majoring in sacred music, commented James. Obadiah is also played by an undergraduate in sacred music.

Other of the soloists are doing their master's degree work in the field of sacred music, he observed.

The entire oratorio is being presented, he emphasized, although it is often cut.

There will be no admission charged for the production.

Frosh Make Higher Grades After Stiffer Entrance Rules

Freshmen entering Florida State University last fall —the first to enter FSU after stiffer entrance requirements were adopted — were "significantly more able" than the last previous freshman class, according to a new survey.

The entering class in 1956 outranked the corresponding one in 1955, according to the study, in the let average grade members made in the twelfth grade test given all high school seniors in the ACE psychological exam given at FSU and in grades.

The fall semester grade average of the 1160 class members for whom complete data was available 2.22, well over a C was higher than the grade point average for 1955 freshmen even though grading apparently was stiffer in the latter. The stiffer grading was indicated in a fallen off of the grades of the sophomore, junior and senior classes.

The findings are in a 27-page study by the FSU Office of Educational Research and Service under the direction of Dr. Hugh Stickler.

At the spring of 1956 the Board of Control raised entrance requirements so that Florida high school students who did not make a score of 200 or more on their Twelfth Grade Testing Program could not be admitted unless given special consideration. A committee was set up to screen applicants and that committee admitted only 65 with scores of less than 200 The mean score was 240.

56 FRESHMEN HIGHER

On the basis of scores on the PSTGTP test, the survey showed, 1956 freshmen ranked higher. In 1955 only 79.6 per cent stood in the top half of the scoring that is, had scores higher than 250 while in 1956 the percentage was 79. The median score in 1955 was 314 while in 1956 it was 345.

ACE examination scores also were higher in 1956 and the grade point average of 2.22 for freshmen in 1956 compared with 2.1 in 1955.

"This academic shift is probably more significant than it appears at first," the report said. "The 1956 Faculty Fall Conference was devoted to a consideration of grading practices in the University. The conference produced considerable evidence to the effect that grading practices prior to the fall semester, 1956-57, had been rather lenient.

GRADING TIGHTENED

"Presumably as a result of the conference, teachers in many quarters tightened up in their grading procedures. Whatever the reason, it is to be noted that from the fall semester, 1955-56, to the fall semester 1956-57, the mean GPA for sophomores fell from 2.46 to 2.26. Over this same period of time the mean junior GPA fell from 2.72 to 2.48 and the mean senior GAP fell from 3.01 to 2.8C. It is significant, therefore, that there should be any gain at all in the mean freshman GPA. This phenomenon is explained by the fact that the 1956-1957 freshman class was significantly more able than the 1955-1956 freshman class."

Generally, the survey found, students making a high grade on their Twelfth grade tests made higher grades at FSU. No students among the 68 admitted although scoring less than 200 made an overall grade average as high as B- 2.80. The survey showed, however, that 22.5 per cent of the low-scoring students made an average of 2.0 -C- or better.

Fourteen students scoring less than 200 but admitted later to administrative action did less well than the 68 the report said. "Two withdrew before the end of the fall semester; five others failed to register at the beginning of the spring semester," the report said "This only seven (50 per cent) remained in the University more than one semester. Of the 12 who completed the work of the fall semester not a single one made a satisfactory grade point average (that is, 2.0 or higher)."

Last Artist Series To Feature Impressionist Marcia Robie

MARCIA ROBIE

To Perform Wednesday In Westcott

Marcia Robie will appear in Wednesday's final Artist Series program with a series of character sketches and impressions.

The performance is scheduled for Westcott Auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

Miss Robie writes her sketches as well as performs them. She gives her impressions without the use of elaborate staging techniques or scenes.

Her portrayals range from "rock 'n roll" youngsters to crochety oldsters. By mastering many dialects and regional idiosyncrasies, she has delighted audiences throughout the country. She is said to have an outstanding gift for making people laugh.

Her program which is performed before clubs, colleges and lecture groups is entitled "Laughter with the Ladies."

Miss Robie has appeared in summer stock in the East and is widely known to radio and television audiences.

She is married and has one son, Cricket, now ten years old.

For each sketch Miss Robie knew that she wanted to be an actress, she accepted all opportunities to perform in amateur theatricals and church and school plays when growing up. She was active in dramatics at the University of Connecticut although her father, who is active in the educational field in Connecticut, wanted her to be a teacher.

After her graduation she got into radio work and soon had her own show. Writing her own skits and designing her own costumes, soon directed her to the broader stage of theater.

Board Raises FSU Salaries To Match UF

Salaries of personnel at the University of Florida and Florida State have been put on a nearly comparable basis as a result of pay raises authorized by the Legislature and Cabinet Budget Commission.

For years, FSU personnel and some legislators have crumbled at big differences in salaries paid at the University in Gainesville for similar work.

The new schedule still contains some differences but the pay scales are closer together than ever before, and probably as comparable as they ever will be in view of the fact the University of Florida has a large student body, bigger faculty and several graduate schools not carried at FSU in Tallahassee.

The president of the two universities will draw the top salary, $17,500 a year under the new increase, plus perquisites such as a residence and car which bring it up to $20,000

There is a wide difference in the salaries paid the football coaches at the two institutions. Coach Ray Woodruff gets $17,500 while FSU Coach Tom Nugent makes $13,500. However, the two coaches are not alone in the salaries they receive, no perquisites. Dean G. H. Harrell of the Medical College is paid $17,000.

Florida State has on campus 24 full professors at salary. Its highest paid faculty members are Dean C. S. Davies of Arts and Sciences and Dean Mod- L. Stone of Education who both draw $13,500.

University of Florida Dean of Education J. B. White and Arts and Sciences Dean J. E. Page each get $12,500.

The dean of the university at FSU is also to be named, will make $12,000 Dean W W L--ie of the university college at Florida makes $11,000

The business managers of the two institutions make the same salary, $11,000, and the vice presidents each get $13,000, and the deans of students get the same, $10,500.

Dean M W Carothers of the FSU graduate school is paid $11,600 while Dean L. E. Grimes in the same position at Gainesville draws $15,000.

Dr. Randal Compares Book, Motion Picture

Dr. William Randal compared a book, a motion picture and slides of the real thing at Wednesday's Summer Lecture Series.

The book was "Boy On a Dolphin by David Divine and the motion picture was the recently shown film of the same name.

Dr. Randal showed colored slides of places described in the book Set in the islands of Greece, the book dealt with many of the same sights that Dr. Randal saw when he was teaching in Greece on a Fulbright grant.

As he told the story of the book, Dr. Randal compared it to the movie version and showed how they differed. He described the film as "hardly recognizable as the same story", although it did have "splendid photography."

He explained the book as having two themes. One is the love story between Peri, the heroine and John Calder, a British Professor. The other concerns Greece's love of her antiquities and the desire to keep them in the country.

The action of the book revolves around the discovery of an ancient statue of a boy riding on a dolphin Pero and her Italian boy friend, Guido, find it on the bottom of the sea and each is determined to use it for his own purpose. In the end, however, justice and love triumph.

David Divine, the author, is a British journalist and the author of three other books, The Dolphin was published in the United States in 1955 by Macmillan.

Dr. Randal concluded with the advice to see the film, "but forget the story but remember the pictures as you read the book."

Showing the slides that he took in Greece, he read parts of the books to describe what the audience was seeing.

Dr. Randal came to Florida State in 1947 as a professor in the English department. He previously taught at the University of Minnesota and the Missouri School of Mines.

His undergraduate degree and his doctorate were obtained at Columbia University, with his Masters from the University of Michigan.

In addition to his year in Greece, Dr. Randal also was a visiting professor for the State Department in Helsenki, Finland in 1956.

Juvenile Court Study Made For Leon County

Juvenile court procedures are now being studied by Mr. Charles Newman for a report to the Leon County Commissioners.

Newman, Assistant Professor of social welfare, is making a survey of juvenile court procedures in other areas and, with the use of standards set up, will make recommendations for the local court.

Authorized by the legislature at the past session and approved by the county commissioners, a separate juvenile court is planned for Leon County.

Collins Names 2 Members To Control Board

Gov. Leroy Collins this week appointed two new members to the state Board of Control.

Named to the Board on separate days were J. J. Daniel of Jacksonville and Ed Price of Bradenton.

The Board supervises Florida's institutions of higher learning and also functions as the State Plant Board. Recent legislative action gave it supervision over the vast nuclear development program inaugurated at the state universities.

Daniel was named to replace Fred Kent, of Jacksonville whose term expired in July. Price replaces J. Lee Ballard of St. Petersburg.

Daniel is a member of the Manatee County Board of School Trustees and is Vice President of Food Industries, Inc. which has plants in Bradenton, Cocoa and New York.

He is secretary of the Florida Agricultural Council and a member of the executive committee of Citrus Mutual.

Daniel, a leading businessman in Jacksonville, was named by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of that city as the most outstanding young man several years ago.

All but one of the seven members of the Board of Control now serving are Collins' appointees.

Chairman Ralph L. Miller of Orlando was named to the Board by former Acting Gov. Charley E. Johns. James Love of Quincy, S. Kendrick Guernsey of Jacksonville and James D. Camp Jr. are Collins' appointees.

Hollis Rinehart of Miami first was named to the Board by former Gov. Millard Caldwell, but was appointed under a reappointment by Collins.

Final Music Camp Concert Set Tonight

Band, orchestra and chorus clinic students from the annual Music Camp will present their final concert on campus tonight.

Slated for Westcott Auditorium at 7:30, the program will conclude the two weeks work for the high school students.

Divided into seven parts, the concert includes both classical and popular selections.

The orchestra, directed by Mr Robert Sedore, will open the program with a Dvorak selection, the Symphony in E minor, No. 5, Op. 95. Wagner's prelude to Act I of "Lohengrin" will be included in this portion.

The Camp chorus will join the orchestra for the Rimsky-Korsakov "Glory."

Under the direction of Herman Genney of the School of Music, Neville and Marsha Parker, as conductor from Pensacola, the chorus will also both accord and modern selections.

George Gershwin medley will be the first selection from the Gold Band directed by Robert Brasfield. This group is made up of the summer Music Campers.

A group of baton twirlers under the instruction of Donna Kolia, will give a demonstration of three novelty routines between selections.

The Garnet Band, under the baton of Oliver Hobbs, are presenting the finale from Dvorak's "New World Symphony". These bands were made up the older group.

Dr. K. O Kartchner, Dean of the School of Music, and Mr. George Bookey, director of the concert, will present awards and diplomas to the campers at the closing of the concert.

The Summer Music Camp theme song, "Suwannee River" in a special arrangement by Charles Carter, also a member of the School of Music, will conclude the program.

The 16th annual music camp has been the largest in its history, explained Mr Booker. The students will leave campus tomorrow for their homes

FSU To Use Gas For Heat

The Florida State and Florida A and M Universities heating plants will be converted to gas instead of fuel oil, according to Tallahassee City Manager Arvah Hopkins.

Conversion will cost FSU $30,000 and will save $15,000 a year while A and M will save $27,000 a year by making the 213,000 conversion, Hopkins said.

Of the total cost, per 1,000 cubic feet of gas to be paid by FSU, four cents will be returned to the University to apply toward cost of the conversion until the amount is amortized.

Formal approval of the plan must come from the Board of Control, which has already indicated agreement, the City Manager said.

Last Square Dance At Tennis Courts

Tomorrow is one of the last nights that square dancing will be held in the lighted tennis courts behind Magnolia Hall.

Time for the dance is at 8 p.m. until 11 p m

Calling the dance is Dr. William Tait.

Refreshments will be served and the dance is free to all students on the campus.

Students do not have to have dates for this function because people "are usually mixed up." Informal attire can be worn to the dance.

Florida Hall Holds Starlight Dance

Undergraduates will dance "under the stars" on the Florida Hall veranda tonight from 9 to 12.

Sponsored by the summer recreation program with Florida and North Cavalion Halls, the Starlight Dance is open to all undergraduates, both on and off campus, and is free of charge.

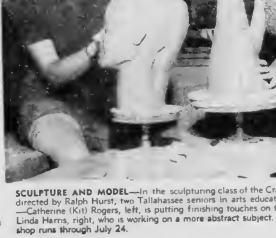
The dance, an informal affair, will feature the Jerry Kohler orchestra. Refreshments will be served.

In Crofts' Workshop

Output Surprises Students

The 17 mature students enrolled in a Crafts Workshop at Florida State University, July 8-24, are both surprised and enthusiastic about their output.

A majority of them are school teachers from representative parts of Florida, Georgia and Tennessee, placed so many craft areas before. They are working in pottery, ceramics, ceramic-sculpture, enamel glass, mosaics, weaving, fibre, printing, silversmithing, plastics and leather.



Dan Johnson, head of the University's arts education department and coordinator for the workshop, is also supervising over results of the experimental workshop because participants are experimenting "the thrill of creative self-expression, and at the same time learning the wide variety of applications of materials available for public school programs."

Three faculty members of the department are working with Florida art specialized fields, are directing individual work of participants — Fred Metze in pottery, Ralph Hurst in sculpture and Edwin Mayer in glass.

Each participant is required to put in a minimum of six hours a week in at least three craft areas, and may earn three hours of graduate credit. Each is required to create a finished work in a craft in his own medium, entirely on his own, instead of writing a term paper. The work will be presented at a seminar meeting at the end of the workshop, the individual explaining resources used and creative problems

Mrs. Clara Roeding, a high school art teacher in Springfield, Ill., is the only out-of-state participant. A husband and wife team enrolled in the workshop are Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cuesta, both elementary teachers in Tampa public schools.

Other participants are Mrs. Bill Daniel, Mrs. Catherine Kit Rogers, Mrs. Richard Brock and Miss Linda Harris, Tallahassee; Mrs. Lucille Harrell Boatwright, Bill Whiteside, Bradenton; Perry Kelly, Orlando; Miss Rumbley, Sanford. Miss Carolyn Grumbley, Stuart; George Fielder, Lake Park; Mrs. Laurel Laudadale, Mrs. Betty Jo Kovalenoff, Miami; Mrs. Margaret Earwood, Belle Glade; and Leroy Dubreu Pensacola.

SCULPTURE AND MODEL—In the sculpturing class of the Crafts Workshop at FSU, directed by Ralph Hurst, two Tallahassee seniors in arts education work side by side —Catherine (Kit) Rogers, left, is putting finishing touches on the sculptured head of Linda Harris, right, who is working on a more abstract subject. The three week workshop runs through July 24.

Longmire's Student Lounge Not Intended As Study Hall, But For Entertainment

THE FACT that a new television set is being placed in the student lounge of the Longmire building may be a source of alarm to some of the lounge's more frequent visitors.

The large and comfortable air conditioned lounge provided for many the opportunity to relax, meet friends, and for others, it offered a quiet nook in which to study.

AS IS pointed out by Miss Jane Adams, Longmire hostess, in the story on page one however, the lounge is not intended to be a haven for students who use it as a study hall; rather, the student lounge supposedly exists solely for the enjoyment of students wishing to relax between classes, play cards, chess, or checkers, or listen to music.

When the TV set is installed soon, we hope no one will hesitate to turn it on, sit back, relax and enjoy it. If this sort of revolution succeeds the "student" lounge's inner sanctum personality will surely change into one that provides hospitality for all students.

Senior Class' Fifty Year Plant Not Part Of Florida State's Fifty Year Plan

After long discussion and deliberation the 1957 senior class decided upon a gift to leave the university. The result of that decision—a flagpole and flag — now stands in front of the Westcott fountain.

The appropriateness of the gift should not be questioned—it could have made a definite addition to the entrance of the university—but the spot in which it was erected should be questioned.

Surely the senior class committee in charge of choosing the gift, while designating the flagpole's resting place, could have thought of putting it someplace better than the prominent one chosen.

Between the fountain and Westcott would have been a better place than between the fountain and the gate.

As it is, the flagpole is certainly "out in front" of other senior class gifts including the fountain and the bronze doors in Westcott.

The much publicized view of our alma mater has indeed been obstructed. Visitors to our campus will now see a silver lining dividing the attractive view of Westcott and the fountain as seen through the antiquated gates.

We doubt if architects of the 50 year plant would heartily approve of this.

Campus Still Needs Street Names, Signs

Now that campus buildings have bright new signs identifying them, perhaps the powers that be will investigate the idea of naming campus streets.

The streets were given names by the students in a contest a few years back, but street signs were never erected. As the campus expands, it becomes increasingly difficult for non oriented persons to find their way around, even with a map.

Identification of the buildings is a good beginning; naming the streets and labelling them would complete the project.

Gators Hanging Of Effigies Childish Joke

The news story out of Gainesville earlier this week which told of the burning in effigy of that institution's vice president and athletic director shows the apathetic character often found in student bodies.

THEY WILL point out problems, but they are not prepared to take the steps needed to correct them.

To bring readers up to date, Dr. J. S. Allen of our sister institution was burned in effigy for his actions in refusing freshmen and sophomores the privilege of bringing cars into Alachua County.

ALSO THE Gators' head football coach was taken to task for scheduling two games with the University of Miami in Jacksonville's Gator Bowl.

At FSU, we faced serious traffic problems which resulted in freshmen being prohibited to bring cars on campus. The frosh have been rather quiet about it here.

It would seem that if University of Florida students wanted their feelings and opinions heeded by officials, they would go about it in a more mature manner.

Elvis' Loving You Simply Stinks

BY MARSHALL LACOMBE

I have a confession to make: I abhore Elvis Presley. Well, I suppose I really don't hate him. He must be good—look at all the money he's making! I suppose I never really hated Lucky Luciano or Al Capone and they must be good—look at all the money they've made.

ALL THIS NOISE I'm making is about Elvis's latest addition to the Hall of Movies: LOVING YOU, now at the Florida Theatre. Actually, that's one Elvesse made the top-popular made a lot of noise about him.

Psychologists, sociologists, clergymen, and professors have all intelligently criticized Elvis's face, but it all seemed to be in more noise to boost Presley, and I have no wish to add to the Elvis bandwagon.

WE'RE ALL GOING to see this picture, at least most of us. Only the saving individualists who are still clinging to memories of Rudolph Valentino will remain home, and listen to their collection of Guy Lombardo records. Now it sounds like I'm working both ends toward the middle, but actually I want to attack this artist-shaped Cinderella with as much of an open mind as I can muster.

PRESLEY FANS, on the whole, admit he's not an artist. They accept him for what he is: a substitute for narcotics or alcohol. He's a common vice divided among his thousands of addicts. He's secretly an illegal commodity bootlegged or "pushed" to the under-aged hopped-up junkies here.

Now I mentioned above that we most of us will wind up seeing this celluloid sin. Of course: we all want to see if he can act yet. Well he can't. Honest! He had a few fuzzy dramatic scenes of "I Like Elvis" guts. I'm sure they were packed with members of the Animal Kingdom, members of Phyllis Parrish's training from fan girls, thin girls, tall girls, thin girls, young girls, and fellow girls. A few boy friends were dragged along for companion.

THEY SEEMED to feel that this was no obligation, like going to church on Sunday, or attending classes. No one but the usher (poor creature) stayed to see the thing over again.

It's impossible to take the show seriously, and I think very few did. I must admit it was—and is—a very rock and roll-able, if swallowed with tongue-in-cheek and have you ever tried swallowing that way?

HERE'S AN EXAMPLE of the dialogue: Dean Rivers (Elvis) is on stage wrestling with himself singing: his girl friend speaks to his manager, both in the wings. "Look at the wrestler. He is going to them!" (a faint good query) and the manager replies, "If I were a girl I'd go for him, young and pulsing down his hat. At title the audience obediently guffawed.

As far as hero-worship goes, Superman never had it so good. From Elvis' first appearance in denima (while driving his stripped hot rod—to his last appearance in denims, there is a circus-like bush throughout the movie).

Like politics, Elvis is a matter of opinion. I have expressed my opinion. You will have to form your own. Begrudgingly, I'll have to admit Elvis Presley is better than Rudy Vallee, but I'll not give him an inch more. Hell Elvis!

The Reactionary

Klein, Sacks Should Solve Inflation Problem

BY CHARLES MAYO

In the Communist Manifesto of 1848, Engels and Marx, caught up in the great tide of revolution then sweeping Europe, expressed their political philosophy: a form of socialism, called communism, which was to submit man to a godless social religion of equality.

IN THIS vision, they listed a and the doom of living rate, the number of reforms to take place in those "enlightened countries" why would gradual income tax, such progressivism find their way to the utopian vision of Marxist socialism. Among them were the graduated income tax, powerful organized labor, and a state credit system, such as our Federal Reserve.

Marx knew that these were the main elements in the downfall of capitalistic economies. Lenin is reported to have told Bernard Kreuss, one time banker of the British Welfare State, "We will destroy capitalism by undermining capitalism is through its currency."

IN AMERICA, in transition from capitalism to socialism since 1812, these American institutions are well entrenched in our social, economic and political life. In the year of 1913, the Constitution received its Sixteen Amendment, which gave Congress the power to levy the income tax. Until the second world war, the tax averaged about 10 per cent of income. In the middle 1940's, it came over the threshold and with him the Liberals of America.

Almost immediately, the two other great reforms of Marx hit America. The labor unions became increasingly more powerful, and the U.S. went off the gold standard. Now, since 1933, the value of the U.S. dollar has become the greatest effect on our economy of any American institution other than the housewife.

AND, SINCE labor unions, by setting a higher wage, make prices go up, and since by wage-price agreements, when prices go down, labor unions get an automatic wage increase, there is created the "wage-price spiral", which causes inflation. The variable credit system of our money system is by the planning of its designers perfectly set up to accomodate inflation.

The variable credit system of our money system is by the planning of its designers perfectly set up to accomodate inflation.

The Government, by taking in and the control of living rate, the national income, and, as in all bureaucracies, spending it inefficiently, devalues the money. The result is inflation, which everyone talks about but no one remedies. Authorities on the Right, such as secretary of the treasury George Humphrey, say that inflation will bring "a depression that will curl your hair."

SOME AUTHORITIES on the Left welcome this coming economic collapse, meaning as it will that Socialism will triumph again as it did in the days of F.D.R. But neither side seems to realize just what can be done.

Klein and Sacks, a firm of New York economic consultants, do know. They performed the operation recently on a whole foreign country. It was successful. They were called in by Chile, which has had much worse inflation than the U.S. Here are Klein and Sack's "reforms". (Atlantic, June 1957)

1. ADJUSTED THE wage increase to 50 per cent of the price-index increase. (In the U.S. it is 100 per cent.)

2. Continued up on credit and speculation.

3. Cut taxes and governments spending.

4 Let prices find their "natural levels".

The result of these measures is that the value of the Chilean peso increased in one year by 63 per cent, whereas since 1945 it had decreased by 270 per cent.

The lesson to be gained is that limited government expenditure, and therefore limited government, and government regulation, as opposed to the U.S. Government's expenditure and intervention) pay dividends in terms of stable currency. Let us hope that Ike calls in Klein and Sacks!

Mikado Delightful Comedy

BY DALE JENSEN

Wednesday night's Mikado was delightful! This was the final product of weeks of work for the Music Camp choral department. And their work will be proud of the result. The clever work of Gilbert and Sullivan combined with the vivacious cast of high school student . . . what could be more enjoyable!

EXPLANATIONS are due those who are never around the Music Building, for the past five weeks a summer music camp has been in session here at FSU. About five hundred high school students from Florida and surrounding states have been rehearsing in bands, orchestras, and vocal groups and studying music theory, composing and arranging, and conducting, with the regular faculty of the Music School and a group of FSU students acting as guiding lights.

IN ALL, some 400 of the junior and senior high school students have come back to FSU for the Mikado. Those selected among the most outstanding students in all of the State High School. We hope that some of these will be able to make the return trip to our beloved campus.

aiming for. The directors, accompanists, cast, all deserve a big pat on the back. Or perhaps Mr. Hodo would be more appropriate?

The final concert of this summer's camp will be tonight, at 7:30 p.m in Westcott. We think it will be well worth hearing.

A Letter

TO THE EDITOR:

We have just returned from the "campus movie which we enjoyed very much with one exception. Before the feature film was shown there was a short film entitled "Let The World Know" which we feel was inappropriate for the following reasons:

1. This film presented misleading propaganda as to the concepts of right and wrong which we appreciative of the efforts of the Radio Visual Department in scheduling for our entertainment e a p a movies. However, we hope that more discretion will be used in the future concerning the scheduling of short subjects.

What Gives With The Cigarette?

BY JEROME BERNSTEIN

Man has long pondered the whys and wherefores of various civilizations. For instance: What caused Rome to fall? Did it lack armaments? What happened to Greece? Was it Greek to their citizens? etc.

TODAY MAN has added a new question to the fray. Namely, Why do people smoke? Or to put it "mildly," What gives with the Cigarette?

Overheard the other day was the following conversation. . . . Say Joe, I thought you gave up smoking" . . . So did I, Tom . . . Well, what happened . . . I couldn't take the "gum treatment" any longer . . . Yeah, I know what you mean.

FOR THOSE readers who do not know what the "gum treatment" is, I shall enlighten you with the facts. It is to be assumed that when something is given up, something else must replace it or there will be a vacuum empty space. In this case, the cigarette is replaced by chewing gum.

Now chewing gum is fine and dandy. There is no such thing called "tobacco fatigue" or the testimonial that two out of every three doctors in a seven city with the exception N. Y. have proof that cigarettes give . . . you know what.

NO RARE THERE sloeans about "witch doctors" and "tobacco men." In fact there is nothing except "cheer." Well, that is if you don't count one item. Yep! You guessed it . . . . "Tired Jaw."

Segregation Is National Problem

BY ARNOLD GREENFIELD

Recently glancing over some old newspapers, I came across an article in a Chicago publication which pointed out that only one city in America has more children in segregated schools than Chicago. Interestingly enough that forerunner of school segregation is not Alabama, or New Orleans, or Houston, or Miami, or Memphis—or any of the other of the large Southern cities

"ONLY NEW YORK City has more segregated schools than Chicago" the article declared, and the source of this information was not a rabid Southerner but the president of the Chicago branch of the NAACP.

Further conclusions about Chicago segregation, offered by the same source, treat the school board in that city has no policy regarding true interation, that the board follows and reinforces segregation in the attendance and pupil assignment practices, that Negro teachers are concentrated in Negro schools that the percentage of inexperienced teachers is "shockingly higher" in Negro schools; and, that Negro children receive less educational expenditures per child than do white children.

THE WILL ANGER, the source of this information, concludes that, "The averear Negro child in Chicago is not getting an equal educa-

Daily Star Chronicle Says:

Today's Student Money Struck

BY ARTHUR ALBRECHT

An article appearing in the Daily Star Chronicle voiced the idea that today's college student is indifferent to the university community. The great bulk of students use the university simply as a tool to increase their economic good.

ACCORDING TO the article, the favored student position is one of being "outside looking in the university community."

There may be considerable truth in this. But let's look further at what unfolds in the Chronicle column.

"A few years ago the baldo of a college student was a crew cut, a don't-give-a-damn attitude and a checking account adequately filled by papa. Today, that has changed. The concept of college as a four-year post-high school playground is quickly losing favor. Trends in recent years have made college students more skeptical and prone to concentrate their thinking on serious pursuits.

"THIS CHANGE in student behavior is due to the presence of a military obligation, early marriages and the ever-increasing value of educational and international affairs. Such changes have brought about marked shifts in patterns of everyday behavior in school.

"The student spends more time thinking of his future. Coffee and beer sessions usually settle down after the run-of-the-mill small talk on job opportunities—the magical words to students everywhere.

"STUDENTS ALWAYS seem to be hunting for that 'good deal' that was picked up by another graduate. For most students, this good tional opportunity on a par with white kids."

He goes on further to say: "What we have in Chicago as in other Northern cities, is the problem of de facto segregation in housing education, employment and other aspects of community life."

THAT THE NAACP president in America's second largest city should make statements such as these points up the fact that segregation is not a personal problem. Those of us who live in the South are not the only Americans to suffer. The Negroes are separated by de segregated living.

The political meaning of these facts is that those Northern politicians who operate on the assumption that white Southerners are the exclusive proponents of racial prejudice had better examine their own relations more closely.

THERE IS no denying that discrimination is perhaps more intense in the South, but the sooner more in public office are willing to admit that it is a national problem the sooner the political battellines currently drawn along regional lines will disappear.

One might even cautiously suggest that a lessening of intra-Congressional tension will be more realistic approach to the problem might be the result in Washington. It is also conceivable that such a change on the part of extremists in all regions might be mitigated.

An Idle Sports Scene And A Few Comparisons

There comes a time during each year when sports activity in the University such as ours is practically nil and there's little or no offer than a few conversation pieces.

And since time is one of those items, we'll proceed to toss a few rarebits for the speculation of any who might linger for a moment.

FSU VS. FLORIDA

For the guy who likes to argue whether athletic teams at one school are superior to those turned out by the University of Florida, here are the comparisons:

FSU swimming teams have split in four dual meets with Gators, each winning a pair. The Seminoles won the natural meet here in 1956 by a rather lopsided, 66-18 score.

The FSU golfers have had the best luck against Florida with three of four of their dual matches and their conquering Florida to win the state intercollegiate title the two years.

The basketball team opened a series with the Gators at Gainesville last fall and fell victim, 67-65, when a last minute tip shot fell through the basket from several feet out.

FSU had met Florida in basketball once before in a postseason contest at the Cactus Bowl in Jacksonville. That was almost 20 years ago and the Gators won a close one after FSU had come up as much as 13 points behind.

Florida holds an edge over the Seminoles in baseball, too, this is probably an instance where comparative scores should be cast aside.

Florida won the opener of a two-game series at Gainesville last year, 5-3, a second game was rained out and FSU went on to represent this District in the NCAA Playoffs after the season. Florida platting far down in SEC standings.

The Gators came into Tallahassee for a two-game series last spring but the first contest didn't resemble baseball too much. One FSU player was laid out unconscious as Florida rudely scrambled to a win.

The following day the Seminoles mustered a good, clean game of effort and won while limiting the rather embarrassed Gators to four hits.

Track coach Mike Long has had plenty of reason to lament the fortunes of his outfit's record with the Gators. Florida just missed by the FSU squad last year at Gainesville and this spring came near beating it by edge of a single point. Only close call for Long. FSU had a perfect track record.

The only team that FSU has defeated, that Florida is the record. It's lost three dual meets to the Gainesville crew.

THE GATORS LEAD

By adding it all up, it would seem Florida has something of an edge in this point. The tally stands at 11 wins for Florida and nine for Seminoles.

But, again—while you're arguing, don't go too much by comparative scores. Remember points like the fact the baseball squad split with Florida and there's no win for them in all NCAA Playoffs, compete in the College World Series and place 8th shortstop, Dick Howser, on the first team selected by myself.

Remember, too, the golf team twice has come within five strokes of winning the Southern Conference title and remember that it happened to open its basketball series with the Gators season when the Seminoles were at their weakest point in six years. Finishing with a 9-17 record—and still almost won.

And be it as it may FSU won a national championship in football while the Gators didn't carry the sport; and, similarly, the cats can't point a few points of winning two national championships in gymnastics.

Nationalization? Perhaps, but it's good fussin' material.

PASSING THOUGHTS

It's interesting to note that in the appropriations measure set at the recent legislative session FSU is due to get some $1,000,000 with added to Doak Campbell Stadium.

Trouble is Tally is not too excited about it, though, because the lawmakers got tied up over taxes and didn't quite see enough money to pay for all their spending.

Which is the reason the FSU Athletic Department is watching with bated breath each meeting of the Cabinet Budget Commission and interesting to note, too, that in the Athletic Report filed recently it was recommended that the 1959 legislature be asked funds to build a new swimming pool.

If you've been here any time, you'll remember the squabble that resulted two years ago when this writer mentioned a pool as perhaps the No. 1 athletic need.

A pool originally had been planned for inclusion in the new Gymnasium but a lack of funds resulted in its being left out.

Grant Given For FSU Study Of Leukemia

Florida State University announced Sunday a grant of $5,000 from the Leucemia Society for a four-hour study of the mechanism involved in over-production of certain white blood cells.

Multiplication of white blood cells occurs in leukemia and also in certain infectious and, allergies. A study by Dr. Harry J. Lipner, assistant professor of physiology, involves one of the white cells, called the eosinophil.

Normally comprising only four per cent of the total number of white cells, the eosinophilia sometimes increase to as much as 30 per cent. The study will attempt to determine whether a communication exists for the appearance of the eosinophil when human beings are exposed to induced different causes.

The research, already under way on a limited scale, involves a microscopic examination of tissues of guinea pigs into whose bloodstream a white cell-producing irritant has been injected.

This irritant, said Dr. Lipner, is a starch produced by a worm living in the intestinal tract of pigs. The starch, called polysaccharide, is impregnated with radioactive hydrogen as a tracer so that its course through the tissues can be followed.

"At present there are many theories attempting to explain the role of eosinophil in the economy of the body but none is satisfactory," the scientist said. "One step before the understanding of what the cell does is the problem of how many diverse stimuli induce an increased bone marrow production and release of these cells.

"It is not known whether these stimuli act directly on the bone marrow or on intermediate structures which in turn secrete something into the blood which finally acts on the mother cells in the marrow. The radioactive hydrogen is labelled polysaccharide may enable us to determine the mechanism of eosinophil stimulation."

Theme For Show Business

By GEORGE GOLDSTEIN

It seems that the entertainment field is being flooded with different trends in various segments of show biz pleases.

Take it being Rodgers' with did ferent trends in various segments of show biz pleases.

Just mix the music half and half . . .

"NOTE ON THE MIKADO" For only three weeks of rehearsing, a good number of high school music singers put on a fairly good production of "The Mikado", thanks to Miss Gramm and Miss Glenn, directors.

The chorus did a good job of blending their voices together for a full house Friday afternoon blood and brown baur in Japan?

Ko-ko, Yum-Yum and Nanki-Poo proved their excellence in the top roles. Bill Altman, who played Ko-ko, did a good job of acting and was highly amusing.

In a quiet, slow, sort of way Faye Wright as Yum-Yum proved to be the highlight in the show. Miss Wright has a very "mature" voice for a high school student.

Her lover, Nanki-Poo, whose name I do not have, did a smooth job of singing his role. For a man who usually does most of his "doo-re-mi's" on the trumpet, he has a good tenor voice.

STAR TRAILS . . . .

Wondering . . . Will the movie "Island In The Sun" reach the city of Tallahassee? Or will its controversial theme prevent it from reaching here? It's a question that's a puzzlement to many movie execs. Sorry I don't have the answer.

LAURA . . . . "Somewhere in the misty night . . ." the speech dept. will present its second production "Laura." For those who love a good mystery-drama here is your vehicle! It should be interesting to note how some of the players of "Laura" become different people in this show.

THE END . . . At least that's what they'll be saying when the music campers give their final and last concert in Westcott auditorium this Friday night. Overheard by some of the college musicians: "They've been the best yet!"

LOVING YOU . . . Dolores Hart, the little gal on the latest Presley movie, is cute and we wish they'd let her sing more. Her voice is glowing brighter!

BEST YET . . . PRESLEY . . . that is the definition of the singer some "slow music" instead of "rock n' roll". Like too much dessert after a heavy meal, one could get sick, sick, sick!!

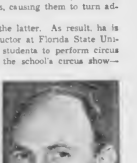
in the movie: "the guy with jumping beans in his pants".

FOR THE MEN . . . . You gals have had Boone and Presley, but look what's coming to the Florida—MARILYN MONROE! Her latest epic called "The Prince and the Showgirl". All we've got to say is, "Down, Prince, down!"

Depression Changed Chemist Into College Circus Coach

By MARION RUBINSTEIN

Reprinted from Success Unlimited Magazine



The depression brought failure to many. But it brought out the best in others, causing them to turn adversity into success.

Jack Haskin was one of the latter. As result, he is now a highly successful instructor at Florida State University. Tallahassee, teaching students to perform circus acts. He also is dire ctor of the school's circus show—"Flying High."

Haskin started out to be a chemist and took a bachelor's degree in that subject But because of the depression, he couldn't find a job. When he finally landed one, it was as a physical education instructor at a high school in Pontiac, Ill.

The job called for Haskin's students to stage an annual acrobatic demonstration at a PTA meeting. Haskin put on such an outstanding show that the PTA demanded a repeat performance. That was the be'nnin'r for Haskin and his circus instruction.

Thoroughly sold now on a career in physical education, Haskin attended six summer schools at the University of Wisconsin to get a master's degree in P. E. As an air force physical instructor during World War II, he staged acrobatic and circus performances for his men.

Haskin has a talent for showmanship as well as teaching.

He also has a talent for turning bad luck into good.

After the war, Jack took a double job teaching physical education in a Madison, Wis. high school and directing the all-city circus.

There he received his call to FSU where he launched the first "Florida Relays" in 1947 with a troupe of 48.

Since then it has developed to a troupe of 250—with a long waiting list of succesful tryouts.

It was only a home show the first year, with performers in makeshift costumes. Now it is a proud road show, giving 10 performances a year—mostly in Florida, Georgia and Alabama.

The circus course is an elective part of the university's physical education program. No student can earn more than one hour of credit even if he participates four years And students must maintain a "C" average to make the road trips.

Center Closes; Trophy Room Remains Open

The Trophy Room at the Student Center will remain open during the last two weeks of the summer season, said Mrs. O. F. Bateman, Student Center social director. It will open at 7:30 p.m. each evening until August 10.

This was arranged following the announcement that the Student Center will close July 26 for the rest of the summer.

The Trophy Room will be open for dancing and games. The piano and juke box will be moved in, and cards will be available. The only refreshments will be drinks from the coke machine.

Longmire Due TV Set Soon

A 24" RCA Deluxe television set will soon be available for students use in Longmires' student lounge, according to Miss Jane Adams, director and hostess of the building.

"The lounge is not intended to be a study hall, but a place students can relax, socialize, play games, listen to music, or watch TV," Miss Adams said.

The new TV set was bought mual sale of unclaimed lost and found articles. A total of $300 from funds raised at the annual sale from the Spring sale, a used 21" Admiral television set was bought from the sale's receipts which is now in the small lounge.

"Our goal for next year is to buy e combination hi-fi radio for the students," Miss Adams said.

FSU Student "Rock 'n Rolls" To Fame With Bouncy Platter

One record can make you in this slap-happy, rock-and-roll day and age and FSU's own Rod Willis is spending the summer doing his best to join the throng of successful hip-slinging, guitar-picking vocalists whose records cram the juke boxes and disc-jockey shows.

Rod is currently wowing audiences in New York state and will be performing in the Detroit area within the next few weeks.

His first record on Chic Label "Somebody's Been Rocking My Baby" coupled with "Old Man Moon," is climbing fast on platter popularity polls throughout the country and if it clicks the FSU sophomore may find himself in the fabulous rock-and-roll spotlight.

Rod is the Milton, Florida lad who last fall stole the show on Freshman Talent Night with his unrobbished Elvis Presley imitation. During the year, sticking to his own style, he went on to sing at school and civic functions all over the Big Bend area.

Since the end of Spring Semester, Rod has been making an extensive tour of New York and other northern states under the tutelage of his manager, Chick Thompson. From city to city Rod has been making guest appearances, doing charity shows and appearing on disc-jockey shows in order to plug his initial record.

No just one week in Buffalo we said over 7,000 records and we've been making friends everywhere we've been," said Rod.

Back in Tallahassee last week Rod met some girls and colored greens," Rod, who is majoring in business administration, commented that he's been "having a ball up in Yankeeland, but man, I can't take that northern food."

Looking to the future, Rod stated that "If this record goes like Sail on Chuck and I hope it does, we'll be cutting two more sides in September.

"However, I'm still planning on being back at school on registration day. That is, unless the record goes over real well.

Right now things are looking up for Rod and according to his manager "chances are real good that Rod will be appearing on a nationally televised Sunday variety show in the very near future."

The Art Of TV Production Is New FSU Class

A PANEL WHICH is puzzling over the guest's occupation and may never guess it, is composed, left to right, of Mrs. Elenora Craven, Guy Thomas Jr., instructor in business education at FSU, and Mrs. Kay Nunez.

By NANCY GENE BROWN

WFSU-TV is on the air!

Florida State's first closed-circuit television broadcasts have been taking place on campus this summer.

Two dozen students, taking part in two summer workshops have been learning from the ground up in FSU's initial experiment with educational television on campus. Sponsored by the speech department and the library school, the students have been learning skills in script writing, acting, camera, microphone, and lighting techniques, and control room operations—the works! Their principle interests are in drama and educational production. For their work they receive five hours' credit.

The speech department workshop, one phase of their summer drama activities, is working with a series of three shows on parliamentary procedure. Their final production will be a modern opera with its setting in a south Georgia town, "Miss Daisy." The opera was written in an FSU class by Ryan Edwards, the author of "See the Wind," which was produced on campus last winter.

In addition to the parliamentary procedure series and the opera, the group works out and televises small productions each afternoon, such as readings and excerpts from plays. One featured a poem accompanied by choreography without music, showing how the separate entities of poetry and dance can be successfully combined. These are not done for "perfection," but for experience. They are just "rough sketches," according to Dr. Ernest Borman, associate speech professor who is working with the group.

Also guiding the group are Dr H. Clay Harshbarger of Iowa State College, and Dr. Philip Lewis, director of instructional materials for the Chicago Board of Education, and educational consultant for WTTW-TV, Chicago's full-time educational TV station.

A grant-in-aid of $1500 from the National Association of Educational Broadcasters financed brinning the two advisers here for the workshops, in addition to helping with necessities for the studio.

None of the speech group has done television work previously, some, however, plan to go into the television field as a profession. Most of them are majoring in speech, speech correction, and drama.

Blunders are not uncommon In one of the parliamentary procedure discussions, one line called for an exasperated motion to "throw this motion out the window." The actress came out with a slightly flustered, "Let's throw this window out the motion." It really happened.

Another embarrassing experience which occurred during the early days of the workshop was related by one of the students. It seems they thought the cameras were off and, "like speech majors, we were humming it up." Later they discovered their antics had been televised across the campus "We learned from bitter experience to always act as if the mike and camera were live," she said.

Taking part in the eight-week workshop are Diane Kazan, Steve Kield, J. Morgan Sherwood, Sue Malsbarner, Wayne Whidsitesr, Lewis Martinez, Jane Seymour, Thelma Richmond, Pat Warner, Lee Hildman, Tom King, and Betty Sue Wrenn.

This is the first experiment with the television media on campus The summer drama lab, which has been held the past two years on campus, previously worked only with stage productions.

The Dage company, which manufactures educational television equipment, has sent its traveling control room to FSU to work with both the speech and Library School workshops. Called a "blind studio" since it does not overlook the scene of the production, it is housed in a blue truck outside the library.

The shows originate in the library basement.

Directed by Dr. Harold Wigren, who is with the Houston public school system, the Library School TV workshop is concentrating on learning the mechanics of television production They alternate with the necessary jobs in the studio, such as cameramen, floor manager, etc., and get experience in writing scripts for the shows they produced.

The Library School group, which receives three-hour course credit, has only twelve members, limited by the large amount of individual instruction involved.

Their final shows are on the air this morning, with "Vision for the Future" and an educational show on "Better Bulleting Boards."

"This is a sample of what we will have more of when we have our own facilities," according to Mr. Roy Flynn, director of university broadcasting services "The great possibilities of educational television broadcasting from FSU have been only partially explored".

An appropriation bill recently passed by the Legislature provides funds for the establishment of educational facilities at both U of F and FSU.

"We hope to start the paper work and applications for the station within six months," Mr. Flynn said.

IN THE MOBILE UNIT which is a complete T-V station Chuck Young, a journalism student at FSU, manages the switching panel to channel the show over the closed circuit to camera receivers, as Dr. Wigren stands by to advise him.

TWO CAMERAMEN SHOOT the sequence as Miss Betty Gardiner of St. Petersburg, public health educator for the Pinellas County Health Department, directs the action Left to right the cameramen are James Gosnell, a graduate student in audio visual work at FSU, and Dick Pastorett, a graduate student in the FSU Library School.

THE MASTER OF CEREMONIES, here conferring with one of the guests, is Maj. Ben T. Griffin Jr., information services officer for Orlando Air Force Base and a journalism student at FSU under Operation Bootstrap The guest, who the panel never guessed was a "Lion tamer," is Dr. Blanche Owens, assistant director for health, physical education and safety for city schools of Wichita, Kan.

Board Extends Car Ban To Sophomores To Match UF

The Board of Control in a meeting June 27 extended Florida State University's freshman car ban to include sophomores.

Jerome Jones, director of FSU service units, said this week the Board banned sophomores from bringing cars to campus because of "foreseeable future traffic problems" and "to keep problems at FSU and the University of Florida uniform."

He said the decision was based on "informal discussions between FSU President Dr. Doak S. Campbell, Florida President Dr. J. Wayne Reitz, and the Board of Control.

"No ruling was in opposition to the report made by the Student-Faculty traffic committee which submitted its year long study in May recommending that sophomores not be restricted in bringing cars to campus.

Jones said the ban is "a part of long range planning, and is not in conflict with the trends in other schools of comparable size." He noted a 1955 survey of 25 colleges and universities which within 12 answered yes to the question, "Are any students not permitted to bring cars." Nineteen answered no to the question.

Of these schools, however, 11 indicated freshmen weren't allowed cars, while only one said sophomores were not.

"Although students appear to be adverse to the car ban, the vast majority of their parents heartily approve of it," Jones asserted. He said the Board of Control had more response (favorable) from parents regarding the banning of freshmen cars than about any other subject.

Jones said the same exceptions will be made in the case of the sophomores as was made last year to the freshman class.

If a student is eligible to drive a car on campus under the exception rule, he may obtain an application blank from the dean of students office and secure written approval before bringing his car to Tallahassee.

Any additional requests for exceptions must be made in writing to the chairman of the traffic committee for action.

The following may be considered exceptions for the regulation:

Married students, those students twenty-one years of age, or older, those students commuting from other cities, those students living in the City of Tallahassee with their parents, and those students rooming in Tallahassee but living more than four blocks from the campus.

Commenting on the surprise Board action, Student-Faculty Traffic committee chairman, Karl Edwards said he was "very disappointed that the administration did not ask the committee for explanation of its recommendations at the time it was being considered by the president's council."

"Most students, however," he was the fact the council failed to notify the committee of its action—particularly on the sophomore proposal since the recommendation had been presented to the Board of Control," Edwards said.

The committee chairman said in comparison with other universities the traffic problem at FSU is not so acute. He said the committee's report showed no need for an extension of last year's ban on freshmen cars.

"The traffic situation at the University of Florida is not similar to the situation here. During our study we found there wasn't a time when students or faculty members couldn't find a parking place within a block or two of their classroom building."

"From first hand observance, I know University of Florida students must sometimes walk a quarter of a mile to a classroom building," he said.

"Also, here at FSU we are fortunate to have many large parking lots which the University of Florida does not have.

Edwards said another reason he expected the Board's decision was because the committee felt a moral obligation to last year's freshman class. "They started school with the understanding that the car ban was only to affect them one year and that they could bring cars here this coming year," Edwards explained.

The Student Senate in March passed a resolution opposing further restrictions on student cars. The resolution called for the Senate "to go on record as opposing any additional restrictions on the possession of automobiles by underclassmen" and that "positive action be taken to improve driving and parking facilities."

Orchestra To Play

Candlelight Dance Slated Tonight At Student Center

Dancing and movies conclude recreational activities for the summer session.

A dance with an orchestra is on the agenda at the Student Center tonight. Originally scheduled for tomorrow night, the candlelight event was moved to tonight.

The Center will be closed tomorrow until the start of the fall semester.

Final Dance

The final dance of the summer will be next Saturday's square dance on the tennis courts called by Joe Thacker. In case of rain, the dance will be moved into the men's gymnasium.

"Be Bigh and the Mighty" is the free campus movie on tap for tonight in the amphitheater. Wayne Stern with Lorraine Miller in case of rain, the movie is on 120 Geology Building on the next two Thursday and Friday evenings. "Grapes of Wrath" and "With a Song in My Heart" will be the amphitheater features.

Coffee Hour

An informal coffee hour reception will be given by the Student Club Monday at 4:30 p.m. in the Lonesmire Student Lounge.

"Birthright" will be reviewed by Dr. James Peru, associate English professor, Wednesday at 4:30 in the Student Lounge in Lonesmire This will be the summer's last book review.

We've had excellent attendance and good participation in all our activities this summer," said Miss Marie Williams, social director. "Our varied program provided something for everyone to do.

Overall Success

Speaking of the overall success of the summer's recreation, Miss Williams said, "Eight teams played in our basketball tournament, the rain was good to us; the fishing was superb—all our activities were accepted well."

Those who assisted in the summer recreation program according to Miss Williams, were Virginia Summit and Wes Weighman, graduate assistants, Nancy Young, Jim Paris, Gracen Tonesin, Marjorie Cook, Betty Ann Montgomery, Dave Harris, Mary Ann Bryant, Dr. Tait, who called the square dances, Dr. Griffith Pugh, who arranged the book reviews, and the orchestras of Robert Glickbach and Jerry Kohler.

Infirmary May Resume Salk Vaccine Shots On Monday

Polio vaccinations may be available for FSU students next week in the university hospital, according to infirmary officials.

Polio vaccine has not been available this summer, causing the vaccination schedule to be called off. University faculty and staff members were able to receive shots at the university hospital, under a Leon County Polio Vaccination Project not connected with the university, at a cost of $1.25 per shot.

The lack of vaccine was due to a shortage of the necessary serum in the wholesale supplies we have," according to Mr. Revia, hospital administrator, and Dr. Maurice Bernhardt.

Win Try To Obtain

"We will all see everything we possibly can to obtain all the vaccine necessary to carry the program out," Mr. Revia said.

Although the arrival of the vaccine cannot be guaranteed, the infirmary will, in all probability, be giving the vaccinations beginning Monday from 9 a.m. till 12, and continuing Monday through Friday for the next two weeks.

The first shot should be followed by the second within two to four weeks. If not on campus, the student receiving his first vaccination should arrange his third and final shot of the immunization series follows a six to seven month interval, the infirmary officials pointed out.

$1.00 Fee

A fee of $1.00 per shot is set for students, researchers of age. However any student under 18 can get the shots free of charge at the Leon County Health Unit on Gaines Street.

Filling for the vaccination service will be made in the infirmary at the time of the shot, to be paid to the Florida Anemia Accounts office in Wesstock.

Ollry To Participate In AEC Test Series

Robert J. Ollry of the Florida State faculty will participate in the radiological health and safety activities of the Nuclear Test Series, currently being conducted by the Atomic Energy Commission at the Nevada Proving Grounds.

Ollry is being recalled to temporary duty as an active reserve officer in the U. S. Public Health Service for a six week period. He is scheduled to leave this week-end for Las Vegas.

FEA Official Lauds Legislator

Members of the 1957 Florida legislature were commended for educational achievements in the session by Ed Henderson, executive secretary of the Florida Education Association.

Henderson said the legislative program enacted was not a compromise because it offers better careers in teaching than any of the separate proposals would have done. He will watch the development of the program, but is convinced "it has gone a long way in solving teacher supply problems."

Appearing as the final speaker on a weekly summer lecture series at FSU, sponsored by the School of Education and two education honoraries, Henderson was introduced by the dean of the school, Dr. Mode L. Stone.

The FEA spokesman said the new program will keep Florida's teachers in the state, and will also attract highly qualified teachers from other states. He said under the new state-county financed set-up small counties as well as large ones can retain good teachers.

Henderson found that legislators wanted to do right by the teachers as a means to an end, "so that children can get a good education in Florida." He said that's their purpose of education a to render service for children.

In discussing teacher retirement benefits provided, Henderson said they do not rate on the social security or any federal program, but have merits of their own as part of an independent state program. He said Florida career teachers have been given security they have never known before by legislation. "The four-point program achieved was the result of many ideas thrown into the legislature," he said in explaining the continuous salary-raise award operation.

ATO Tops In Frat Averages

Miles Dean, advising counselor for fraternities, has released the Spring Semester grade averages for FSU's fraternities.

The top three are ATO with 2.464, DTD at 2.337, and Pi Kappa Phi with 2.229.

Remaining averages are as follows: KA, 2.279; SAE, 2.223, which tied with PiK Delta Theta, KS, 2.229; PKA, 2.226; TEP, 2.207; SN, 2.185; Sigma Nu, 2.173; Lambda Chi Alpha, 2.119; Theta Chi, 2.116; Sigma Phi Epsilon, 1.828.

The average for Phi Kappa Tau has not yet been received.

Culpepper Named Speaker For FSU Commencement

Tips To Grads

Graduation tickets may be obtained by the graduates August 10 from 9 a.m. till 12 and from 6 to 7 p.m. in the ticket office in Westcott.

Four guest tickets will be issued to each graduate for the ceremony, which begins at 8 p.m. Saturday, August 10 in Westcott auditorium. If more tickets are desired, graduates are advised to check the ticket office since there is a possibility that some tickets will not be claimed.

Caps and gowns should be picked up at the University Bookstore before noon, August 10. Undergraduate women, those receiving bachelor's degrees, should wear under their gowns a white dress with dark shoes, hose, and formal collar, with the gown fastened at the neck. Undergraduate men wear dark trousers, shoes, and tie, a white shirt, and the coat is optional. The gown is fastened at the neck

Attire for Graduation

Women receiving masters' degrees should wear a long-sleeved white dress, no visible collar, dark shoes and hose. Men receiving masters' wear dark trousers, coat, and dark shoes. Doctoral candidates have the same attire, except that the long sleeves and cost are optional.

The graduates will line up at 7:30 p.m. in the Amphitheater for the procession into the auditorium. In case of rain this will take place on the second and third floors of Westcott.

After graduation, diplomas will be given out in the following places: arts and science, 200 floor of the History building; education, 200 floor of the Education building; graduates, registrar's office in Westcott; and business, home economics, journalism, library, music, nursing, public administration, and social welfare, all on the 200 floor of the Science building.

Speech Department Combines Murder And Love In 'Laura'

Your best friend is murdered in your apartment . . . she looks like you . . . your friends think she is you . . . you find out and find that you're a suspect . . . one of many!

In the speech department play "Laura" Jane Seymore, in the lead role, gets involved in these entanglements when she finds out that her apartment becomes a scene of the crime.

This play, by Vera Caspary and George Sklar, combining murder and love opens at the Conrad Threatre Thursday night. It is under the direction of Dr. Paul W. Davee.

The other suspects are the two men in Laura's life Waldo Lydecker, an ex-lover, portrayed by Jack Underwood and Det. Mark McPherson, who is trying to get the murder mystery solved. McPherson is played by Bob Hamilton.

GOOD CHARACTER ROLES

Besides having good substantial roles, Laura has a large number of character roles who add to the color of the play.

These people are Mrs. Dorgan and her son Danny, who are Sue Mahorser and Steve Kleid. Mrs. Dorgan is the landlady of the apartment building where the murder was committed.

Her son Danny is a fiend for all sorts of records.

Acting as Laura's cook is Bessie Clary, who is Pat Warner in reality. Miss Clary also is effected by the ghostly events around the apartment.

Helping detective McPherson in the investigation is Gloria, portrayed by Wayne Whitlesey.

Billed as a psychothriller, this tale of murder and love is recommended to those in search of surprise, suspense and glorious love in the telling, according to one of the play's directors.

"Laura" has been a book, a play and a movie in the movie version Gene Tierney was Laura with Clifton Webb as Waldo and Dana Andrews as the detective.

NEW YORK TIMES IDEA

In a murder play it is always pleasant to hope that at least one person is innocent and is going to get free commented the New York Times.

According to the New York Times paper Laura is an egotist who loves a morose cad and is

Celebrates Birthday Tomorrow

'Work Hard,' Says 80-Year-Old Ernst Dohnanyi

By NANCY GENE BROWN

FSU's renowned maestro, Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi, celebrates his eightieth birthday tomorrow.

Well-known at FSU and throughout the world for his many contributions to music, he conducts activities, Dr. Dohnanyi began concertizing in 1895. Touring Europe, His first visit to the United States was in 1900.

A Tallahassee resident since the beginning of his teaching career at FSU in 1949, Hungarian-born Dr. Dohnanyi and his family, the University citizens two years ago, having come here from Aiexcilna, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania.

Still Busy

Busy as ever, Dr. Dohnanyi said, "Sometimes I call it a village—but there's not a nice village in Florida!"

Full Year

This past year has been a full one for the virtuoso. He has given two benefit recitals for Hungarian Freedom Fighters, attended the premier of his recently rewritten Second Symphony by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra and received many guest appearances and conductor of the Budapest Philharmonic Society and his encore as professor in the Berlin Hochschule fur Musik, director of the Prana Liszt Hungarian National Academy and professor at the University of Argentina in Tucuman.

No Favorites

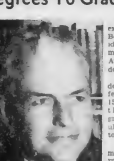
When asked which are the favorites of this composer of note? "I have no favorites" he declared during my talk with him. "Many of the greats' have works that I like better, and others that are not so good."

Called by music critics one of the last great old world romantic composers Professor Dohnanyi has written about 45 opus works. His first, "Quintet in C Minor for Piano" (1895), was praised by Johannes Brahms.

"But in my own works, too, I have no favorites," the professor said. "When I am writing something, I am very interested in it. When it is done, I am finished with it—looking forward to new ones."

50 Years Teaching

Dr. Dohnanyi has been teaching music for over 50 years, in addition his composing and conducting work. His first years of teaching, 1895-1915, were in Berlin. He has always devoted a large amount of time to the teaching, but left plenty of time for his other composition work



"It gives me pleasure to give things I know to youth. Passing on that knowledge is like immortality—something is always left to remember," he said. "It is rewarding to teach those who understand. A teacher is rewarded only by results."

To Keep Teaching

"I intend to keep on teaching as long as I can. But my

Acting Prexy Martin To Confer Degrees To Grads In Westcott

Dr. J. Broward Culpepper

Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, executive director of the state Board of Control, will be Florida State University's commencement speaker Saturday, Aug. 10, when about 370 students are awarded degrees.

Dr. A.D. Martin, acting president of the University, will confer the degrees, including over 150 master's and doctor's, at this record-breaking summer graduation. Exercises are scheduled for 8 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

The 49-year old commencement speaker is a native of Florida and has had an active career as an educator nationally as well as in various parts of the state. Born in Perry, he earned two degrees at the University of Florida and his doctor's degree at Columbia University.

Dr. Culpepper began his professional career by teaching social studies in Leesburg, and later served as high school principal in Daytona Beach and Gainesville before becoming assistant professor of education at University of Florida. He served as a visiting professor one summer at the University of Miami and superintendent-principal of public schools in both Leesburg and Tallahassee.

In 1946 he joined the administrative staff of FSU, the last year the school was Florida State College for Women, as director of research and field service. He was director of student welfare for the new coeducational university from 1947 to 1954 when he entered state education with the Board of Control.

Governor Collins appointed last year by President Eisenhower as a member of his Commission on Education Beyond the High School.

Baton Twirlers Present Show Tomorrow

Baton twirlers and drill squads had the spotlight this week with 234 youngsters participating in a First Annual Summer Twirling Camp.

Dean Karl Kuerstener of the School of Music was official director of the camp, and Owen Sellers and George Booker of the music faculty served as associate directors.

The camp was launched this summer in answer to many requests for concentrated training in Music Camp, and comes as an aftermath of the established five-week camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Konla, who have served as instructors in Music Camp for several years at FSU, were the main instructors for the short camp. Mrs. Konla was assisted on baton class instruction by four members of her studio staff in Fort Lauderdale: Kathy Fairfield, Barbara Hoo, Nedra Shields and Judy Tinney. Konla was assisted in drill and strutting instruction by Don Wait, drum major at University of Miami.

Climax of the camp will be a public demonstration, scheduled for 3:30 p.m. tomorrow in Westcott Auditorium. Classes will present solo baton twirling, double baton twirling, fire baton workouts and drill and strutting routines.

Reception Planned For Summer Grads

A reception honoring summer graduates will be held immediately following graduation ceremony in the Lonsmire lounge.

Parents, their families, friends and the faculty are invited to attend Acting President and Mrs. A. B. Martin will sponsor the reception, following the tradition set up by former President and Mrs. Doak S. Campbell.

Introductions in the area will be Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby, Dean of Women Sara Blackburn and Mrs. Milton Carrothers will serve the refreshments.

Board's Ban On Soph Cars Not Necessary To Help Traffic

Florida State University has at last been put on equal footing with its sister institution, the University of Florida. Although many times state officials and the legislature have made a definite distinction between the two schools (i.e. the engineering school argument) it now appears we are on equal basis—at least on the matter of traffic.

LAST MONTH'S Board of Control ruling outlawing Sophomores as well as Freshmen from bringing cars to Tallahassee was made "in order to make the regulations at the two state universities uniform." And "because it is the trend in many other colleges and universities to alleviate overcrowded traffic conditions in this manner."

However, it is important to note the reasons why traffic rules and regulations at FSU and U of F should not be uniform. It is simply because situations at the institutions are not identical.

A STUDENT-FACULTY Traffic committee was formed here to study FSU's individual needs on traffic restrictions and control, and that committee, which has functioned successfully for almost two years, recommended in May that FSU Sophomores not be banned from bringing cars to campus, although U of F sophomores were so restricted.

This recommendation was not arrived at by personal opinion or rumor observation, but from a year's study of campus traffic. The committee studied areas of traffic congestion, number of cars in relation to number of parking spaces available and various other significant details.

AT THE TIME the committee made its recommendation to the president's council, President Doak S. Campbell told its chairman, Karl Edwards, that he did not know if the Board of Control would accept its decision because of the U of F's Sophomore car rule.

The committee's plans called for Sophomores to be issued black stickers along with other students who lived on campus or less than four blocks from it.

EDWARDS explained the committee's position on the matter in an open letter to the Board of Control and to the students. He said in the letter that the following points should be taken into consideration before extending the car ban at FSU:

(1) "The traffic and parking problem at the U of F and FSU are not identical. Though the U of F has found it necessary to ban Sophomore cars in order to alleviate a serious problem . . . the situations are different in many important aspects."

(Edwards later explained that the U of F problem is much more acute because it lacks the large parking lots such as FSU's lot at Call and Copeland. Also he said there wasn't a time when a student or faculty member couldn't get a parking place within a few blocks of their classroom building here, while at the U of F it is necessary to walk about a quarter mile.)

(2) "THE COMMITTEE has considered its recommendations for more than a year and has unanimously concluded . . . a ban is not a solution to our traffic and parking problems.

(3) The students and faculty are opposed to a ban. Both student and faculty opinion has been represented on the committee . . . public sentiment should be an important factor.

(4) A COMMITTEE at the U of F asked the Board to approve its decision to ban Sophomore cars. The Board approved the committee's recommendation. A committee at FSU asks the Board to approve its decision not to ban Sophomore cars. Should not the Board endorse the judgment of the FSU committee as it did the U of F's?

(5) It would not be fair to this year's freshmen class to impose a ban when they came here with the understanding that they could have cars as Sophomores.

THESE ARE ALL significant reasons the car ban should not have been imposed. In addition, let's look at how successful the present freshman ban was last year.

First of all, there were many freshmen exempt from the restriction. By the time married students, those 21 and over, and those living off campus at least four blocks, were allowed exemptions, a number of those exempt almost came to as many freshman as had cars the previous year.

ALSO, THE tight restrictions lead to men students moving from dormitories to off campus residences. And one big trouble with the freshman restriction was that it put a great temptation before students to be dishonest in order to get exempt from the ban.

In lieu of all these reasons the committee's long study and recommendation, and the results of the freshman ban we do not think the ban was necessary and hope that, by some way, it can be reversed.

Board Should Name New Hillsborough School 'University Of Florida At Tampa'

Though Gov. Collins insists there's no squabble, members of the Board of Control and the Board of Education seem to be at odds over the naming of the new four-year university in Hillsborough County.

THE BOARD of Control has twice expressed a desire to name the school The University of Southern Florida. The Board of Education twice has disagreed.

And as a result, a committee has been set up with members from each Board to try and come up with a name suitable to both. Gov. Collins says there's no hurry in settling on a name; the school isn't scheduled to begin classes until at least 1960.

BOTH BOARDS agree that the institution's name should include the words "University" and "Florida."

But the Board of Education gives two reasons for not liking the name "University of Southern Florida".

First, it could be confused with the private institution at nearby Lakeland which is named Florida Southern College, and secondly, the state plans to construct other state universities even further south than the one in Hillsborough County.

Both are good points.

SEVERAL YEARS ago the state of California, which is also noted for its phenomenal growth, was faced with similar problems and arrived at a pretty logical manner of handling them. We suggest Florida might take a page from that good state's book.

Ever hear of UCLA? It stands for University of California at Los Angeles. That state has another institution located nearby known as the University of California.

WE THINK it would be a good idea to name the new University in Hillsborough—which is located in the Tampa Bay area—the University of Florida at Tampa. For short, UFT.

This would also solve the problem of naming future state universities in Florida. There's talk of building one at Boca Raton on the lower east coast. That one could be called the University of Florida at Boca Raton—or, UFBC.

It's just a suggestion. And we're inclined to agree with the Board of Education about The University of Southern Florida. It just doesn't fit.

"Notice How Flatter-Than-Ever White They Are?"

Screen Test

Biggest Screen Grins Lock Teeth In 'Gunfight At O. K. Corral'

By MARSHALL LACOMBE

The 1957 Hollywood grins on the screen look teeth in a Western with a pedigree: Gunfight at the O.K. Corral.

Burt Lancaster wears Wyatt Earp's badge without the background of a male chorus and Kirk Douglas coughs up a storm as Doc Holliday.

THIS YARN (sworn with truth-dread) sews up all the accidents prior to and including the famous gunfight in Tombstone, Arizona, and knits heavily around the fascinating relationship between Wyatt and Doc.

THE VISTAVISION rectangle blushes with many familiar cactus-faces, along with an Oscar winner-Jo Van Fleet-Shot of Kelly, as the dance hall girlfriend of Doc. Behind the cactus is John Ireland, Lyle Bettger, Ted De Corsia, and Frank Faylen. You may not recognize a couple of names, but, Western fans, you won't miss their gaits.

Rhonda Fleming (recently Miss "Queen of Technicolor") spends a day in Wyatt's bed, and from this develops a tender romance. But fear not, producer Hal Wallis didn't let much hazy stuff leak into the picture.

I WAS RATHER appalled when Kate (Jo Van Fleet) leaned on the bar and ordered a creme de menthe. I didn't know they served anything but whiskey out West, but this will give you some hint of an idea of the research devoted to this film.

Most of us are familiar with the gunfight's outcome, but the suspense leading up to the actual battle (which lasted five minutes) makes one wonder if history books, from here on, will have a footnote relating to this subject reading: "consult motion picture of same name."

TAKING IN ALL the aspects of film making, I would call this a well made motion picture. Director John Sturges has received honorable mention for his "Bad Day at Black Rock," and certainly handled Gunfight a scene well; the photography was good, although there were many close, barroom shots and street scenes, which were unvisible.

The screenplay was done by Leon "Battle Cry" Uris, and of course we're all familiar with Dimitri Tiomkin's theme as emotionally sung by that great national singer, Frankie Laine.

As the title insists, Gunfight At The O. K. Corral is all Western, keyed to Western audiences' taste.

DELICATE DELINQUENT is featured at the State Theater. This is an Orson Welles-type package deals in which the producer stars himself, and himself as none other than Jerry Lewis, exmember of a former package deal, called Martin and Lewis. The latter package unwrapped itself, but the former wasn't wrapped tight, perhaps it was because of content.

FROM ALL APPEARANCES one would think DELINQUENT is a comedy, but that's just another hand conjecture. Actually, I don't know what it is. There are those who'll swear it's a comedy, others, and then the laugher are forced to consider whether he's being sadistic or not. So here's some moral and sociological sequences following the theory that sort of squelch the giggles.

This is a poor combination of comedy and drama, it could be an excellent drama, or a riotous comedy, but it's neither.

JERRY IS an aimless delinquent—a part well saturated with use, thanks to the Hollywood and Vine crew and is taken under wing by a benevolent cop (Darren McGavin) who sympathizes, having risen from similar depths. Martha, Hoyt is the trippy but built penthouse social worker who finally redeems herself to Darren's arms she's too beautiful to waste.

IN CLARIFYING all this it might be said that the director-writer, Don McGuire, fired his guns in all directions, hoping to make a bit somehow. Jerry was merely inst-uments in the middle of all this gunfire, but he was the last who got shot.

If only some of the dramatic scenes were of the type that could or could not be taken seriously the problem would be eliminated. Instead the director overplayed his hand and went gungho in both directions, leaving the audience with a guilty laugh.

As far as Jerry is concerned, it's too bad the actor's vehicle for his film-first wasn't worthy of him. It also appeared, only slightly mind you, that Darren McGavin punch-hitted for Dean Martin—or at least his straight man part made it look that way. If he sang, my suspicions would have been confirmed.

I WISH TO MAKE a slight reference from the comments of last week's Elvis Presley column.

I had stated that no one but the unhera would see Elgira's picture and I was wrong. Well, my friend Charley at the Elgira Theater informed me that there were many teen-age age people who came back for more. One, Mary Lou, from Palm Cottage, survived four performances. This is worthy of Ripley's "Believa It Or Not."

I pride myself on being the last to admit I'm wrong, I had not taken into consideration such phenomenons as Mary Lou, and for that I'm sorry. Elvis's picture ramains as burning proof that Presley is a genius on the good taste parade. This I do not retract!

Ads Show Prices Low Years Ago

No one would doubt that there has been changes made in the past twenty years economically, internationally and on campus. Some can be noted by glancing through the advertisements of the 1937 Flambeau.

BENNETT'S offered a "Strawberry Ice Cream Soda with two scoops of Ice Cream" for 10 cents. And The Dinner Bell Shop promised a "Hot Fudge Sundae with Whipped Cream" for a dime. Steak dinners at the M&N Cafe cost more—forty cents, but, this included three vegetables, dessert and coffee.

The Rat Theatre stood as it does today-unused! All Tallahassee viewed the flickers at the State and five will get you in. And then few students on this campus will remember many of the motion pictures playing, much less some of the stars. A typical week's presentations included: "Make a Wish" with Bobby Breen, Basil Rathbone in "Wild and Woolly," Lancer Spy" with Dolores Del Rio, Ed Gardner in "Madame X." Hold 'Em Navy" with Mary Carlisle, and Gracia Parrish in "Outcasts of Blonde."

THE CINEMA ADS, however, show that many of today's big names were also stars back in 1938 and many of them don't look a day older on the 1957 screen. Some of the big pictures of the year were: "Angel" with Marlene Dietrich, "Bbo Tide" with Kay Milland, "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" with Loretta Young, "The Bride Were Red" with Joan Crawford and "The Perfect Specimen" with Errol Flynn.

The Vogue Shoe Parlor advertised the sweetest shoe in American history — the Paris dilly for $6.75 and Linden's offered "the smartest dresses in town for only $5.95. Ladies bathing suits at P. W. Rhodes ranged from $2.95 to $4.95 and Superior Cleaners would clean your flannel dresses for 60c.

Camels wanted to know if they were justified in spending millions for tobacco (they and their were and Chesterfields praised their pure white cigarette paper). Ford V8 guaranteed to get you the girl of your dreams and with more room inside because best it was Lurkies 2 to 1 even back in 1937. Come to think of it, may be tmns haven't changed so much after all!

A Better Measure

Writer Urges Protest Of 'Mammy' Censor

BY JEROME BERNSTEIN

STOP THE MUSIC! The whammy has been given American folksongs. Network censorship has been imposed on many Stephen Foster and other composers' works.

FUTURE RECORDINGS of old favorites will be known as Old "Man" Joe, "Mother's" Little Baby Loves Shortnin' Bread, "Up-town" Strutter's Ball, etc.

It is ironic that censorship should come from among the very people who for the past several years have been complaining about State Department censorship concerning Communist China.

NEWSPAPERS, RADIO, TELEVISION, and magazines have long abounced that the government's policy of limiting news coverage in Red China has been violating the Constitution. Isn't the same principle involved?

Now not only must Florida's state song, "Way Down Upon The Suwannee River," and Kentucky's "My Old Kentucky Home" be revised before they can be heard on any of the major networks, but the following question is raised; "Can news be censored as well?"

ONE OF the pillars of fairness in this country has been the right of the accused to be heard, be they right or wrong. However, when minority rules over the majority the pillar is destroyed.

Such names as Stephen Foster's are as much a part of this country as blueberry pie and ice cream. This writer thinks the students here on campus should have the right to write the words and express their opinion.

Charette Finds

The question of "what's wrong with the cigarette" has arisen the last week's column, causing confusion in Congress.

This week two government health experts told a subcommittee that they do not know whether filter cigarettes do any good in reducing smoking hazards.

They said that research so far was "insufficient to warrant a conclusion to be drawn on the effectiveness of filtips."

John Blatnik (D-Minn.), committee Chairman, commented that he was pleased by the fact that "nobody appears to know about filters." Or dropa, anyone?

I Declare

Use Defense Dollars For Top Quality Men

By RAY HEMANN

The Eisenhower administration, in its quest for budget cuts has found a powerful ally about cause for criticism as well as praise for its defense budget cuts.

First, the orchida.

THE DEFENSE Department announced last week that it has initiated a program designed to weed out "misfits" from the forces those who are "dead weight" and mentally unqualified for the jobs they hold. Any of you who have served in any of the armed services have coms across the type individual this campaign is aimed at.

He is a burden to the taxpayers, not only in being compensated for his job, but at the same time he is mentally and morally unfit to serve as a good representative of the United States, not only to the citizens of our own country, but what's worse, to the rest of the world.

I CAN think of no better way to make the defense dollar stretch than to save the money used to pay and equip these non-performing misfits and use it to increase pay and benefits for the fewer number, but higher quality men. It is also estimated that all the well qualified men available could make the service their career, often with a great sacrifice on their parts, and without the criticism for such a choice because of the unfair effect of a few poor-caliber men.

Now the poison oak.

A MOVE such as this is subtle and slower change in policy than the aforementioned one, the Administration has been cutting down on defense dollars for fear-mongering development of vital defensive and offensive weapons. One large aircraft company has been dropped, not on a particular guided missile on which millions of dollars were spent, not because of poor or discouraging results, but because of "economy" moves by the Defense Department.

Another big industry in Benin to cut down on its recruiting policies for engineering personnel as well. Many companies have been left to die on the drawing boards because of a delaying cuts in defense spending.

Another aircraft company laid off over 1,000 engineers in one whack because of "economy" moves.

SIMILAR THINGS are taking place in industries other than aircraft. Unemployment is a form of defense dollars that we cannot afford to endure, continued research and development costs must be maintained if we are to keep from our own pockets, but we can afford to try to find what few dollars we have to pay to keep our nation strong and the free nations of the Russian economy.

The Russian government is not the strongest in the world in manpower, but they have allowed up their development research program. It is completely foolhardy for our government to give Russia a chance to catch up with us.

Some more poosin oak.

THIS TIME the Defense Department and the federal government has cut the budget for Voice of America the program designed to counteract results this might have been beneficial. We have spent broadcasting down to one hour broadcast per week in countries where we are in very frinse of the iron curtain. This while Russia is on the daily broadcasts to these same countries. What are the many of wrong with us hang on every word from the Kremlin, to listen to their one contact with the world and our democratic way of life is curtailed because people in the richest country in the world have few cents. It is a poor settlement for our capital investment for our capitalistic system.

THE MISTAKE of industry cuts in the defense machinery of our country been made before; always coming at periods when the size each defensive dollar is cut up more than ever, pinching when the pressure the free world is at stake.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES DEPT.: There was a sign in the Florida Unemployment Welfare building which since been erased. It read "Help Wanted." Reason for Detection has been cancelled because someone took exam."

A Critique

'Elijah' Excellent; Marcia Robie 'Dull'

By DALE JENSEN

Mendelssohn's oratorio, Elijah, was given an excellent performance last Sunday afternoon in Haill. The chorus, under the direction of Wade Hampton, showed thorough training in their precision of attacks, uniformity of tone quality, and balance between sections.

THE CAST of soloists headed by Norman Turner in the title role, were particularly praiseworthy for their uniformity of excellence We found the lovely tenor voice of William Hare and the fine portrayal of the distrustful widow by Roe Adams especially commendaoury, and hope to hear more of them soon.

We found the music rather wearing. The comparison, made by Mr. Jaimes for Lai's ballet Flambeau, to a Cecil B. DeMille production was apt. . . the powerful principal characters were there, the cast of thousands was represented, and the drama was occasionally to be found. But like the DeMille productions, the work was uneven and too long.

THE STORY, that of the Biblical prophet, Elijah, could have been told just as effectively and more convincing in a more comfortable time

Another flaw was the all out use of Wednesday night in the Haill. Many persons showed up for the first performance of the summer Artist Series, and was disappointing to the light of what we had led to expect Miss Robie's and Mr. Aletsbee were performers of real too mundane.

THE ONLY Aletsbee really could be considered cesaful were as only because the oratorio there bere is no hero of the audience. The Lord Twirling Cump (Elijah) amused by a portrayal of a servant, while the slavish teacher returning in a colleve a summer of education could caught the fancy of that, but the audience in that very time.

The reliable chestnuts of Brooklyn and Bronx cheers were good additions, but dragged otherwise. The Jezebel, Ahab, and Obadiah were also rather dull.

Rainy Weather, Moisture And Two Diamond Gems

At this rainy weather we've been having of late is pretty much some ways. It keeps the campus green, the blooms bright and is bringing some of the local lakes back up near normal.

But it can play heck with athletics. It'll rain out baseball games and the like and it'll ruin just about any piece of athletic equipment that has leather in its patchwork.

Which brings us to the tale for this week.

A PAIR OF PRODUCTS—

Scheduled to appear in the August issue of The Mentor magazine is an article about FSU's rather imaginative baseball coach Danny Litwhiler, one of his friends, and a pair of products they've developed.

They call the gems: "Diamond Dust" and "Diamond Grit."

When Danny asked me to write the article some time ago, I

Sports Editor Pierce Lehmbeck was named late last week recipient of the Grantland Rice Scholarship for the 1957-58 academic year. The scholarship carries a stipend of $750 and is for study in the FSU School of Journalism.

to a little leery of the power these two concoctions were supposed to have

For a like-I-said, what would you think if a fellow told you he had a product which would make a baseball usable in any league within 30 seconds after it had been soaked to the consistency of a sponge?

And that he had another product which would dry an athlete's field that had been turned into a sea of mud within just a few minutes after application of this product?

I thought it, too, but I didn't say it.

And then I saw a demonstration.

There you're me, Danny and his friend have something that can revolutionize thinking towards all kinds of athletic events and tourney, as Danny says—"whether a rain or a heavy dew."

THE IDEA—

Danny and his cohort, Jack Moore, were sitting like so many other Indian folk in the rain on the FSU-Wake Forest game last May. Down on the field, officials were trying to keep the ball dry by continuous use of a towel.

Danny was surprised.

And after a few dozen field tests around the state and at a group of major league tryout camps further south, Litwhiler found this was something of worth.

So he told Moore in a half-joking manner:

"This is great. Now if you can come up with something that'll dry a wet field, we'll have something that will benefit everybody in the game."

"Single," answered Moore. "Just meet me at the field tomorrow."

At the designated time, they met—Danny with a water hose and Jack with a bag of grit. Danny painfully turned the area around the batters box into a sea of mud. Moore smiling applied the grit and raked it in.

And the mud disappeared.

IT WORKS LIKE THIS—

Which all calls for explanation.

Diamond Dust—the material used to dry athletic equipment—is a powdery like material which clings to a wet object and draws to itself the moisture in it. A couple of bounces on the floor and the ball or football is as good as at first.

Diamond Grit—the material used to dry up an athletic field regardless of type—is a heavier, sand like material. Like most it has grains, but unlike sand, the grains actually absorb the water and cause it to be evaporated rapidly.

In the less than a year that the Dust and Grit have been in official use, professional baseball teams all over the country have been using it.

Miami's Marlins of the International League are using it as a result of one of Litwhiler's demonstrations. Jimmy Foxx, the old Double-XX of the majors, is now an agent for it.

And it's even received mention on Mutual's Game of the Day

IT HAS MANY USES—

Many of the coaches of other sports at FSU are finding uses for it, too. Former Golf Coach Dave Tyler says it keeps the knees dry when you're playing in the rain.

For the tennis coach, it provides a means of keeping the hands dry. And it'll be a regular thing with the football squad this fall.

So says like Danny and his friend that make life easier.

Sneak Pigskin Preview

Rugged Schedule Means Uphill Fight

A Few Stars And A Few Potentials

When you get held of an FSU football roster, circle the names Schomburger and Renn, underline the monicker Dobson and put question marks by the guard positions.

Check off the top two tackles and then put a couple of question marks behind them Ponder about Boy Nelums' knee and wonder if he'll really come back.

Think of Johnson as a fairly rugged fullback and try to accept guess coaches as to who'll be hauling the ball from that right halfback spot.

That's the Seminole picture Confederate it a bit and you'll have a fairly good first unit with a couple of outstanding points and a couple of questionable ones.

Accordins to the man who knows, Tom Nugent, Ron Schomburger and Bob Renn are about as much end and quarterback as you can put at the two positions.

An All America?

Schomburger, a unanimous choice for team captain, is already tagged All America candidate by several pre-season prognosticators. And Nugent holds that his best athete should be his quarterback.

That's Renn. The slim, 175-pound lad led the Tribe as a groundgainer at left halfback last fall. He made the switch to quarterback during spring practice.

Stan Dobson is also a reason FSU coaches should be 3-2. 185 pounds, he's as stubby a polite quarterback as you could want running from the left half position.

Bill Musselman and George Boyer at 212 and 230 pounds respectively play a lot of good tackle, too. But behind them there's a couple of rating but as yet unproven sophomores.

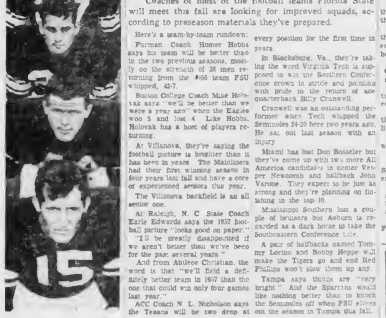
Trey Barnes is an experienced center and behind him is 205 pounds of promising sophomore named Paul Slaton.

At fullback Eddie Johnson carries 190 pounds on a healthy frame and should play a lot of football. Then there's another sturdy 190-pounder, Lou Manning, who's back from the service.

Buddy Reynolds spent a couple of years resting an injured knee and he's back this year with an idea of running as the Tribe's No. 1 right halfback.

Weaver, Too

But senior class jersey Bill Weaver has his heart set on playing that position, too. Tossesser he'll probably make up as a tough one-two punch.



That's the bright side, here's the dim side.

When Bob Nellums is well, he's as good as any end in this part of the southland. He played less than half the season last fall and still led the team in scoring.

Then he suffered an injured knee which probably would have written finis to anybody else's playing days. But Bob came off the operating table and he's been working at reconditioning himself all winter long.

"GENTLEMEN, it's a long road to travel," might be what FSU Coach Tom Nugent is saying to this collection of some of his finest football material. Kneeling, left to right, the players are Guard Jerry Graham, tackle Bill Musselman and end Ron Schomburger. Standing are fullback Eddie Johnson and quarterback Bob Renn.

IF YOU were an opposing lineman looking into the FSU backfield, this is what Tom Nugent's unique I formation would look like starting back at you. Front to rear, the players are quarterback Bob Renn, fullback Eddie Johnson, right half Billy Weaver and left half Stan Dobson.

FSU Opposition Growing Stronger

Coaches of most of the football teams Florida State will meet this fall are looking for improved squads, according to preseason materials they've prepared.

Here's a seam-by-seam rundown:

Furman Coach Homer Hobbs says his team will be better than in the two previous seasons, mainly on the strength of 28 men returning from the #5-6 team FSU whipped, 42-7.

Boston College Coach Mike Holovak says "we'll be better than we were a year ago" when the Eagles won 5 and lost 4. Like Hobbs, Holovak has a host of players returning.

At Villanova, they're saying the football picture is brighter than it has been in years. The Mainliners had their first winning season in four years last fall and have a core of experienced seniors this year.

The Villanova backfield is as an earlier one.

At Raleigh, N. C. State Coach Earle Edwards says the 1957 football picture "looks good on paper.

"I'll be greatly disappointed if we aren't better than we've been for the past several years."

And from Abilene Christian, the word is that "we'll field a definitely better team in 1957 than the one that could win only four games last year."

ACC Coach N. L. Nicholson says the Texans will be two deep at every position for the first time in years.

In Blacksburg, Va., they're taking the word Virginia Tech is supposed to win the Southern Conference crown in stride and pointing with pride to the return of ace quarterback Billy Cranwell.

Cranwell was an outstanding performer when Tech whipped the Seminoles 24-20 here two years ago. He sat out last season with an injury.

Miami has lost Don Bosseler but they've come up with two more All America candidates in center Vic Janowicz and halfback John Varone. They expect to be just as strong and they're planning on finishing in the top 10.

Mississippi Southern lost a couple of runners but Asburn is regarded as a dark horse in take the Southeastern Conference title.

A pair of halfbacks named Tommy Lorino and Bobby Hoppe will make the Tigers go and end Red Phillips won't allow them up any.

Tampa says thinks are "very bright." And the Spartins would like nothing better than to knock the Seminoles off when FSU plays out the season in Tampa this fall.

TWOSOME—Just about any coach would like to have wearing his colors, and Ron Schomburger and quarterback Bob Renn will do a lot of work for FSU this fall. As team captain, Schomburger is labeled an All America candidate.

Mag Writer Gives FSU Only 3 Wins

By PIERCE LEHMBECK

If Florida State University's football Seminoles are to have a winning season this fall, they'll have to say "baloney" to at least one up-country writer.

In the July football magazine to come off the presses to date, Street and Smith's Walter Stewart says the Tribe will do good to finish with a 3-7 record.

Though Stewart might be a mite off base in his speculating, the most avid FSU supporter would have a tough time convincing the Memphis writer to back down.

He's peeked at the schedule

And now that it's official and on all those pretty posters we see around town, even the man who put it together is beginning to ponder "... perhaps it is a little too tough."

Commenting early this spring, FSU Football Director Tom Nugent remarked "we've done a lot to bring outstanding football teams into Tallahassee this fall. Maybe we've done too much."

Open With Furman

The Seminoles open against rising Furman here Sept. 21st. After a journey northward, they come back to host North Carolina State, Abilene Christian, Virginia Tech Miami and Auburn.

And if you're inclined to wag a questioning finger at Abilene, remember that the Seminoles haven't beaten the Texans in two previous meetings.

On that northern jaunt, the Tribe will meet Boston College and Villanova. Later in the season they'll meet Mississippi Southern and Tampa on road trips.

Stewart gives FSU the nod over Furman, Villanova and Tampa. He says the Tribe will 'lose the rest

Which is possible

But even in his most pessimistic moods, Nugent admits the coming season "may be one full of upsets."

The FSU chieftan grants most other 'experts' will probably give FSU the nod over Furman. Tampa, Abilene Christian and North Carolina State.

And he's fairly certain most will write the Seminoles off as underdogs to Miami, Auburn, Boston College and Virginia Tech. You can flip a coin for a Villanova and Mississippi Southern decision.

But now that you've got all the ingredients, mix in these tidbits for a little added spice. They might change the taste altogether.

Twice before Virginia Tech has come into Tallahassee with the Seminoles rated about even; both times, Tech has gone home the winner, last year 25-7.

This time around, Nugent has scheduled the Virginians as the FSU homecoming opponent—and FSU has yet to lose a homecoming bout, though Wake Forest planted a 14-14 tie on the books last year.

Of course, Tech is supposed to be the cream of the Southern Conference this fall and chances are, tradition won't mean too much in their way of thinking.

Powerful Miami comes to the FSU reservation for the first time this fall and right on the heels of an engagement with equally powerful Texas Christian

The Seminoles have an open date prior to the Friday night Big Burnerama move into town and it could essentially make a little difference.

The stage will be set but it takes a lot of courage to even whisper "upset" when Miami is the intended victim.

Auburn Will Be Rough

Auburn will come here at a bad time—the week following the Seminoles' journey to Hattiesburg and the Mississippi Southern engagement.

Southern always fields a massive, bruising outfit and it'll be a mite revengeful this fall. FSU was the only team to mar the Southerners' unbeaten record last year and a 26-18 thriller always leaves a bitter taste.

Nugent says Boston College will probably be the key to the FSU season.

3-7 says Stewart. And only time will tell.

Off The Cuff

By GEORGE GOLDSTEIN

For those who will still be around for the remaining two weeks there still is something going on around the campus.

But first we have criticism of two things namely the Artist Series program, and the movies that have appeared at the amphitheater.

MARCIA ROBIE

Although we came in late and missed two numbers of Miss Marcia Robie's program for the Artist Series we found her performance quite variable.

In her comedy sketches Miss Robie did all sorts of female characterizations of those people who lived up North or at least above the Mason-Dixon line.

This is our main criticism of her, that she did not iclude in her repertoire some of the southern women.

True, her performance warranted the excellent curtain calls she deserved and Miss Robie proved that she was an excellent diallectician, but she could have verified it just a fraction more.

We felt that the people in the audience were not acquainted with some of the characters in reality, that is if you lived up in the same area, you would appreciate the comedy she did

Perhaps most distracting was the immature high school group that came and laughed when there was no cause for laughter during Miss Robie's explanation of her scenes.

Several times the adult members of the audience had to "shh" them up.

Those who missed this program studying.

missed a delightful relief from

As far as calibre goes the movies at the ampitheater during the summer session have been quite good, in fact excellent.

Our main gripe is: Why aren't the films presented in Westcott auditorium? From what can be gathered there are two perfect projecters in the projection booth for use.

After all many guys who take their girls to the movies want to go to a place that's nice and more movie like. This is especially true in regular session.

Somehow one doesn't feel the same atmosphere watching a movie in a dormitory or in the amphitheater.

It's cooler, comfortable, and just right in Westcott Auditorium so why not use it? There are many nights that Westcott is not used.

Would a Wednesday night every week be a little too much to ask? It could make a lot of people happy.

"STOCK GROUP"—BEST YET!

This has beenone of the hardest working and most varied kind of programs that student actors have been taking in the summer stock program.

Besides working on two plays under the direction of Dr. Paul W. Davee, the cast have been on a television series every Monday night, under the direction of Dr Ernest Borman

This group has two more things to offer you in the way of exciting drama. One is a very highly effective murder-love mystery called "Laura".

For their last television production they are doing highlights of Ryan Edwards new one-act opera. Mr Edwards has had his "See The Wind" produced here.

Besides actina in front of the sets they have also been building them under the supervision of Mr. Charles Reimer, technical director of the drama department.

They have also assisted Miss Pat Clift with costuming for the different shows.

STAR TRAILS

WSFSU-FM . . . . Wish that the station was still on the air for the eight weeks session In case you, the public, have never heard the station, some of the greatest works of music have been played over the air.

This also includes the light works and some of the best Broadway Show tunes from current and past seasons. Movie themes and popular recording artists have been played too.

RECORDS . . . . Have you heard Pat Boone's latest "Remember You're Mine?" It's pretty bouncy but not too much of rock 'n' roll. If you're a record fan then get it.

Another record that seems to be a "collectors item" is one that we think Elvis Presley made. It seems to be his only decent one . . . you can hear all the words.

If those of you who were curious or brave enough to stomach his movie, you'll remember a song about a ". . . . . . . or other Cowboy". Record shops have lots of orders for this one.

Two Year Old Bread Developed For Army

Armies of the future may travel on stomachs filled with two-year-old bread if experiments at Florida State prove successful.

For a year the Department of Baking Science and Management has been working on a contract with the Army Quartermaster Corps to find a formula for bread which can be dried, stored and then successfully rehydrated.

The Quartermaster Corps has just renewed the research contract for another 12 months and Dr. E G. Bayfield, associate professor who is in charge of the research, said additional manpower and laboratory facilities will be put into the work.

Stands Up Well

Already he reported, bread baked with certain formulas and with certain additives has been found, in the laboratory, to stand up well under the drying process and, after rehydration several months later, it looks feels and pretty well tastes like fresh bread.

Objective of the research, he said, is to find a bread ideal in texture for mass manufacture, drying and storing for perhaps several years and for rehydration by troops in the field.

The ideal product will be bread —or a yeast product of the sort by whatever name it is called—which, unlike the hard-tack which used to cause doughboys to swear, will taste like the bread they used to have back home.

Use for Stale Bread

The research, in addition, has implications for the baking industry, which has to pick up tons of bread at the grocery every day after it has gone stale. There is a possibility some new use for the stale bread may be suggested.

About 2,500 loaves of bread, baked in the departmental ovens in the basement of the dining hall building, have thus far gone into the research. Currently working on it are two student technicians — Paul Wright and Roy Wynn Both, incidentally, are Army veterans who have a lot of personal interest in developina a successful product

Dr. Bayfield described the laboratory process as follows: Freshly baked loaves of bread, prepared from different formulas and by different mixing procedures, are sliced and readied for a test. Some of the formulas, in addition to calling for various proportions of standard ingredients, have one or another of some 20 additives also.

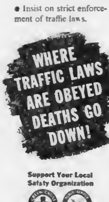
Reduced Water Content

Placed in a drying oven at 266 degrees Fahrenheit for 15 minutes, the slices of bread come out with the water content reduced from the normal 36 to 36 per cent down to five per cent.

The slices are stored in plastic bags for various periods — Dr. Bayfield said no time tests have been made but presumably the dried bread can be stored for years—and then the slices are placed in an airtight vessel and rehydrated.

Many of the formulas which have been tried, said the scientist, have resulted in a texture which causes the bread when dried to develop cracks and fissures These formulas are rejected. Other formulas, although they stand drying well, are rejected because the rehydration causes considerable crumbling or breaking.

No Definite Result



Although the research has not gone far enough for any definite results Dr Bayfield said slices of bread from some formulas have been found after rehydration, to bend like fresh bread when the slices are held at the edge.

"The feel of the bread is like fresh bread," he said, "and while some of the flavor of fresh bread has been lost," the taste is passable. Eventually, of course it is hoped to develop a product which can pass tests by a panel of blind-folded tasters."

other work is very important to me, too," he declared.

On Tuesday radio station WFSU honored Dr. Dohnanyi with a full day's programming of his works.

Interviewing him in his home on Beverly Court, I was fascinated by the varied works of art in the living and dining rooms Included were etchings of scenes in Budapest by the Hungarian artist Koch, a charcoal portrait of Dr. Dohnanyi done from memory by Bertha Hellebrandt, and many figurines, as well as a large abstract done by the professor's daughter, who studied art here. "There were others that I was not able to bring here from Argentina." Dr Dohnanyi said.

Quiet Birthday

His birthday will be spent quietly with his family His daughter's family will come to visit him from Baton Rouge, where her husband is a professor. "I will be glad to see my $1\frac{1}{2}$-year-old grandson, Sean Ernest," he said.

The alert, active gentlemen of 80 years, who possesses merry, lively blue eyes, was quick to answer my request for a definition of an "old" person —"An old person is a person who is much older than I!" he asserted. "Being active and interested prevents one from becoming old. It has nothing to do with years."

Advice to the students? "Don't relax too much. Too much rest—it's not good," the learned gentleman said. "You have to work. Life is a struggle, and you have to love that struggle if you love life.

"That keeps you young."

Kappa Delta Pi Takes In 14

Thirteen students, and undergraduates, and one faculty member were initiated into Kappa Delta Pi, national education honorary, Tuesday.

Miss Lois Schnoor, assistant professor of music, is the new faculty member of Kappa Delta Pi.

Professor Misses 'Audrey' But Is Waiting For 'Bertha'

Florida State University's Dr. Noel E La Seur missed the chance to fly through "Audrey," the first hurricane of the season, but he will be ready to go when the second storm of the year, "Bertha" blows in.

Dr. La Seur, an associate professor of meteorology, and three students in the department, Ronald LaVoie, Claude Hall, and Daryl Rubsam, are spending the summer studying storm formation and movements at the National Hurricane Research headquarters at West Palm Beach.

This is the third summer that the FSU department of meteorology has cooperated with the national hurricane research project in order to gather data on the tropical troublemakers.

Missed Audrey

Dr. La Seur missed the opportunity of flying through "Audrey" because of equipment not being ready, but he collected much important data on the recent hurricane

To get a better and more accurate prediction of hurricane formation, Dr. La Seur will fly through any future storms that brew in the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico area.

This is also the professor's third season of flying in the research project. He said special equipment is placed aboard Air Force B-50's and B-47's to enable the scientists to read wind direction, speed and barometric pressure.

Flies Thru Eye

The plane then flies through the "eye" of the hurricane several times and the data is recorded on little punch cards much like those used in accounting offices

After the plane lands, a complicated map is drawn of the storm, which sometimes covers more than a thousand miles, and then the weather experts go to work "analyzing the storm."

Last year Dr. La Seur flew through one major storm and four minor ones. "The 1956 season was a poor one in many respects, however, we were able to get much important data," he said.

Killed 76

The hurricane season last year resulted in the death of 76 people and caused approximately 68 million dollars in property damage.

Le Seur explained that one of the most important instruments used in hurricane research today is the automatic navigation equipment aboard the plane

Previously, it was necessary to fly down close to the water to tell the wind force and direction. With the electronic navigation gear, it is possible to fly at high altitudes and it will record the data.

Automatic Photos

But the meteorologists do not depend on their own reading of the instruments. Not only does the data come out in punched cards, but it is automatically photographed by a 35-m[illegible] meter movie camera for a double-check

Apparently the most important part [illegible] gathering data on the giant storms is to [illegible] their courses. La Seur said the storms [illegible] with the general Atlantic air movement [illegible] what like a balloon is blown along [illegible] wind. This movement is generally [illegible] he said which causes most of the st[illegible] move in a northwesterly direction

Dr. La Seur said that more energ[illegible] leased in a hurricane than in several a[illegible] bombs. "Although some people hope [illegible] present-day research will eventually enable [illegible] to control the storms, the theory is "science-fiction," he asserted.

Began In 1954

Only one phase of the meteorology depa[illegible] ment's study of weather, the present hurr[illegible] research began in the summer of 1954 [illegible] junction with the national weather bureau [illegible] flights have been made at altitudes ran[illegible] from 1,000 to 32,000 feet.

In addition to the hurricane project FS[illegible] meteorologists are engaged in several o[illegible] projects intended to make weather forecas[illegible] a nearly exact science.

Dr. Warren Dryden, 30-year-old ass[illegible] professor, is assigned to a project in con[illegible] tion with the Air Force in which he is se[illegible] ways to use man-made moons, the fir[illegible] which will be launched in Florida next yea[illegible]

Satellites

Tools to be used in the project are no[illegible] in existence, however. Artificial satellites are [illegible] least a year away and it will be more [illegible] before they become large enough to [illegible] equipment needed for weather observation a[illegible] cording to Dr. Dryden.

The FSU studies may help the Air Force de[illegible] cide how large a satellite must be for we[illegible] forecasting, what equipment is needed an[illegible] pattern of flight that should be followed

TV Cameras

Television cameras on an artificial m[illegible] revolving 200 to 500 miles in space could p[illegible] graph the entire southeastern United Sta[illegible] any other large area Cloud patterns co[illegible] observed to indicate the birth and mover[illegible] weather.

The most far-ranging study of all is [illegible] Dr Seymour L. Hess, one of the world's a[illegible] ties on the planet Mars. He recently com[illegible] a report on the blue haze and the [illegible] structure of the Martian atmosphere fo[illegible] Office of Naval Research.

This is based on the fact that the su[illegible] trols weather on Mars as it does on ear[illegible] relation between earth weather and [illegible] weather may throw new light on the sun [illegible] in both phenomena This would give [illegible] scientists a better understanding of weather [illegible] our own planet.

Rock 'n' Roll Heads Frosh Talent Night

Two dozen acts highlighted the 1957 edition of Freshman Talent Night and audience consensus seemed to indicate that "this was the best one yet."

Singers, dancers, comedians and instrumentalists joined forces to bang out a show that had the capacity crowd at Westcott Auditorium clamoring for more. Several acts brought the audience to their feet in standing ovation

Proving that rock-and-roll is still top banana with the student body, the Pastels, a vocal-instrumental quintet composed of Mike O'Conner, Dan Miller, Ronald Butler and Clayton Sculnik, all of Esatis, Florida, and Barry Willis from Manchester, Georgia, literally brought down the house at both shows with their rocking renditions of "That'll Be The Day" and "A Whole Lot O' Shakin' Goin' On."

Two saxophone guest stars who appeared in last year's show came back to win new fans. Dennis Smith, who appeared with guitarist Pick Mitchell on Lawrence Welk Talent Show this summer, aans the popular "No Arms."

Taylor Takes Over Infirmary's Top Spot

Dr. Ruth Taylor will take over as acting Chief Physician of the University Hospital on October 1, Dean of Students Oglesby said Thursday.

Dr. Taylor's appointment comes as the result of the resignation of Haviland G. Hathaway, Chief physician here since February, 1953. Dr. Hathaway resumed his private practice in Binghamton, New York.

During the summer, hospital physicians Dr. Barner and Dr. Jefferies also resigned to return to private practice or study. They have been replaced on the staff by Dr. Ovella Graett and Dr. John Donald.

FROM CHICAGO

Dr. Taylor was Director of Student Health Services at the University of Chicago for several years, before coming to FSU.

Dr. Donald comes from 10 years of private practice in Louisville, Ky. Dr. Kraett, born in Lloyd, Florida, is a graduate of Florida State.

Before taking her current position she was a physician at the W. T. Edwards Tuberculosis Hospital here in Tallahasee.

Also announced by the Dean of Students office is the appointment of Mr. Hinton P. Bevis as Hospital Administrator. Mr. Bevis has been pharmacist at the hospital for the past six years.

HOSPITAL COUNCIL

Hospital policy will be made by a newly inaugurated hospital council consisting of Mr. Bevis, Dr. Taylor, Mrs. Louise Youngblood, director of nurses, Miss Vivian Duxbury, Dean of the Nursing School, and University psychiatrist, Dr. DeHart Kranz.

Mr. Bevis, in discussing hospital policy, said that while no new services are being planned immediately, the staff "will do everything it can to provide good student health service." He urged all students to bring their medical problems to the hospital.

Polio shots will continue to be given out with a dollar charge for each shot. Mr. Bevis explained that the dollar merely covers the cost of the serum.

He also said that the hospital has an order in for Asiatic flu vaccine. When this arrives, he added, it will be announced in the FLAMBEAU, and injections will be given to students at cost on a first come first serve basis.

A new wing, built last year, was recently opened. It will provide for more clinical and lobby space,

Parking Lots Repaired

University parking lots recently have had a temporary face lifting.

Four new parking lots were graded and shot with tar by the State Road Department. An old parking lot next to the old Demonstration School was also temporarily repaired.

The lots are serviceable at the present time. Paving on each will continue within the next few weeks when the Road Department returns from an emergency paving job in Pensacola.

Stevenson Told Him Of Potentiality

FSU One Of Most Promising U.S. Universities—Strozier

By CHARLET POITEVINT
Flambeau Editor

President Robert M. Strozier believes Florida State University to be one of the most promising institutions in the country, and he has set out to make it a great university.

Coming here from his former position as Dean of Students at the University of Chicago, Dr. Strozier has begun the job he previously referred to as "a challenge I look forward to."

The new president said former presidential nominee, Adlai Stevenson was one of the persons who told him about the potentiality of FSU.

"We can make the university anything we want to make it—we need only to find the right blueprint with which to attain great success," he declared shortly after his appointment by the Board of Control.

WHAT'S THE BLUEPRINT

And what are Dr. Strozier's ideas of drawing up this blueprint? He has expressed opinions on many phases of university life in various speeches and interviews.

"Informed student opinion should be heard," Strozier told the Flambeau. The president, who helped organize student government and a student-faculty committee as a clearing house at the University of Chicago, said student government should have a voice in affairs which pertain to the students, such as social regulations.

He thinks one way to strengthen the quality of the university academically is by a more selective process of admission, and he believes the present requirements might be extended. (For the first time last year, FSU freshmen had to meet scholastic requirements for admission.

ADDRESSES FACULTY

In an address to the faculty last a week, Dr. Strozier expressed a desire for administrative heads and deans to teach classes in order to keep in touch with the students.

At the invitation of the Department of Modern Languages, he himself hopes in offer, in the near future a seminar on Balzac or perhaps to teach 17th century French drama.

Believing the size of classes to be more important than the size of the university, Dr. Strozier would like them to be small enough for discussion as well as lecture.

He told the faculty, "I hope we find in the classroom an opportunity to develop and mature the latest talents of the young, that through discussion and lecture, we make the classroom a living situation in which everyone has a part."

HOUSING FACILITIES

The new president feels students should be housed comfortably so that their physical surroundings are conducive toward attaining the educational aims of the institution.

"The living units are excellent laboratories for the extension of the educational purposes of the university. The counseling program with and without the residence halls should be geared toward the developments of the talents of all the students.

"If classes are not too big, and there is adequate counseling and dormitory room, a bountiful personnel program, and a well planned academic program—then size is not important," he said.

On student activities, Dr. Strozier remarked they should provide students the opportunity to develop their talents for leadership. He said that these programs should always be in proper perspective in relation to the academic program, however.

FOOTBALL IMPORTANT

Quizzed about the role football and other major collegiate sports should play in the university, Dr. Strozier said he has found that football fulfills a certain need in the university and is a "unifying point" for the student body.

He noted that at the University of Chicago, where football was de-emphasized 20 years ago, spirit was lacking in the fall of the year when new students enrolled.

On integration, the new president has indicated his awareness of the difficulties of the situation. He asserted, "I am but a part of a team along with other Florida university presidents, the Board of Control, the legislature, and the governor.

"And I hope to be a good member of he team," he said.

Dr. Strozier took over the duties of president of the university September 3. He was appointed by the Board of Control in June to the position vacated by the retirement of former president, Dr. Doak S. Campbell.

Dr. A. B. Martin, FSU vice president, served as acting president during the interim.

University Petitions FCC For Educational Channel

No Sophomore Car Ban Yet

The controversial sophomore car ban will not be enforced until second semester, according to Dr. R. R. Oglesby, dean of students.

The decision to reverse the Board of Control's June ruling was made by the president's Council because adequate notification and preparation had not been made, Oglesby said.

"The administration is not ignoring the Board's ruling, but merely trying to be fair to students who may have already brought cars to the campus, not knowing of the restriction."

The Council's action came after long attempts by the Student-Faculty Traffic Committee to prevent sophomores from being banned cars at Florida State University.

Issuing its decision on the recommendation of the administration, the Board said one purpose of the ban was to make regulations at FSU and the University of Florida uniform. Florida now has a sophomore car ban in effect.

The first ruling to abolish sophomore cars was in opposition to a report made by the traffic committee which submitted its year long study to Dean Student Doak Campbell recommending no ban for extension of the ban.

The committee stated in its report that the parking problem on campus is not as acute as is commonly believed. "There wasn't a time when students or faculty members couldn't find a parking place within a block or two of their classroom building," Karl Edwards, chairman of the committee reported.

"We also have many large parking lots such as the one at Copeland and Call streets which are nearly filled to capacity," he said.

The committee studied traffic congestion, number of cars in relation to parking places, time of most congestion, numbers of ex-emptions, and other factors in making the report.

MENC Reception Set For Sunday

A reception will be held at 4 p.m. Sunday for all music students and returning MENC members.

The get-together, to be held in the large lounge of the Longmire Building, is being sponsored by the officers of the Music Educators National Conference of FSU.

The informal gathering will present an opportunity for all of the new music students to meet the faculty and to become acquainted with the Music Education professional service and the student members and officers.

Special guests will be the Music Education faculty members of the School of Music.

Traffic Committee Announces Drastic Regulation Changes

By DOLORES LAFFERTY
Flambeau Staff Writer

Campus traffic regulations have undergone drastic changes since last year, the Student Traffic Committee has announced.

Each person who registers his car will get a list of these changes, and is urged to acquaint himself with them. All cars must be registered and have a 1957-58 decal in the lower right hand corner of the windshield.

Campus and student police will begin checking cars Monday morning, giving tickets to those not registered for this year or without the decal properly located.

Holders of Garnet and Gold stickers are the only ones not effected by this ruling which included old and new cars on campus. If their present sticker is legible it need not be removed.

TRAFFIC COURT OPENS

The office of the Traffic Court, opening today at 2 and weekly hours from 10 to 12 a. m. and 2 to 5 in the afternoon, is located in 208 Longmire. Fines may be paid there, or if the receiver wishes to delay the payment without it being increased after the 24 hour limit it can be mailed in the traffic office during the limited time.

Traffic Court will be held Tuesday at 7:30 in the office for those wishing to appeal their cases.

At the meeting, Officer Stein of the campus police, explained, "Our job is to help everyone on the campus as much as possible, not to fine them or cause them unjustified inconvenience. At the same time we must enforce campus regulations and issue tickets for violations."

"If all university employees would cooperate by parking in the Frisbee Memorial Golf Course except in emergencies, it would ease the traffic problem in the congested area of the main campus," said Gerald O. Jones, Director of Service Units at the meeting Thursday.

"They would also find that such practice would actually save time for themselves and the university," he said.

We hope that greater use will be made of the 850 car lot at the corner of Call and Bronough Streets, which is within five minutes walking time of 90 per cent of the offices and classrooms on campus," Jones said

PAVED AREAS

In addition to the large parking mentioned above there are five newly paved parking areas adjacent to the campus.

There are more physically handicapped persons on campus than ever before. Signs are placed to indicate the places reserved for them to park. Persons ignoring the signs are subject to Traffic Court prosecution.

Another chance in traffic regulations is the division of offenses into two groups consisting of minor and major ones. These groups are marked on the new ticket to be issued. Routine parking violations and improper registration compose the minor offenses while speeding, reckless driving, running stop signs or

WFSU Power Increase Set

By JIM MCINTYRE
Flambeau News Editor

The State Board of Control voted yesterday to allow Florida State University to file an application for an open circuit television station.

The application, which is to be sent to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) will be processed by Mr. Roy Flynn, Director of Communications and Radio for the University in cooperation with the board of control office.

The channel which as allotted for educational purposes in this area is channel 11.

Originally planned as a closed circuit station, the university channel is now being planned for open broadcast. In the closed circuit arrangement, programs would only be available on those sets connected to a central cable.

Under the open circuit plan, any set in the immediate area of the university campus will be able to pick up the station.

In order to prevent invasion of commercial television interests, the station will operate with a low power transmitter.

STUDENT TRAINING

Dr. A. B. Martin, university vice-president, explained to the board that not only would there be value derived by those receiving the proarrosal, but an opportunity for practical training would be given to students as well.

The program of educational television in Florida has long been one of the pet interests of Dr. Doak S. Campbell, former president of FSU.

Dr. Campbell has been one of the outstanding proponents of a closed circuit system connecting the state universities and the state junior colleges in order to make the facilities of outstanding professors available to a larger group of students.

WFSU POWER BOOST

The board of control also took action on Dr. Martin's request for a power boost for the university radio station, WFSU-FM.

Now operating with a power of only ten watts, the station will soon begin operatinn with a 1000 watt output.

The power boost will enable WFSU-FM to be heard throughout Leon County, and in some instances, beyond its borders. Prior to this time the broadcasts were only available on campus and in the adjacent areas.

In other action, the board approved a request by the university business managers for permission for disposal of surplus furniture and materials through sale to swn franchisees.

Dr. Robert M. Stromer, making his first appearance before the board, was elected to board chairman

A Guest Editorial

From The President

Greetings to all the students of the Florida State University!

THE FLORIDA STATE University has had phenomenal growth and success. It has gone through the difficult period of becoming a university. This phase has now been successfully completed.

Given the vigorous and capable faculty, the lovely setting of our campus, the wise and experienced members of the executive council, an intelligent and eager student body, we are on the threshold of moving to new heights as a university.

A UNIVERSITY, by its very meaning, is all-encompassing. It represents teaching and research. It represents service to the State which nurtures and supports it.

You students are the very heart of the university. Yours are the open minds which are to receive the advantages of the experience and training of your professors. And the open mind is necessary to receive their wisdom.

WE HOPE THAT you are eager to learn. We also hope that you will be able to combine work and play judiciously, so that neither excludes the other.

I believe in the extra-curriculum as well as in the curriculum. I have spent many years working with students in their activities outside the classroom and believe that these activities can provide an extension of the educational program of the university. Experience on a student newspaper, in a live club, on an athletic team, in student government or in many other activities should provide the means of developing one's poise and maturity, and making one a better citizen in the years after he leaves the university. That, after all, is our primary goal —helping you to develop your native talents, so that you will lead a richer and fuller life, so that you will not be content to accept things as they are.

WE HOPE THAT we will teach you to think for yourselves. We do not want to indoctrinate you with learning; we wish rather to lead you to find the means of searching by yourselves for truth. We shall give to you the benefit of what we have learned by ourselves and with the help of others. We want you to learn to think, and so think independently. If we accomplish this, then we shall have no fear for the future of the Florida State University or for the future of the State of Florida, for it will be guided by intelligent and literate citizens.

I hope that during the year I shall have the opportunity of knowing most of you personally. I shall watch your progress with keen interest.

Car Ban Not Needed

Sophomore car owners are probably not aware of how close they came to being restricted from bringing cars on campus this semester.

At the last moment, the president's Council made its decision not to enforce the Board of Control's ruling. Sophomores who had not heard the administration's recommendation of the ban to the Board this summer and the Board's approval of it, had driven their cars to school; many from distant places.

These who had been requested to sign a pledge the first days of registration stating they would not bring cars on campus, and were therefore faced with the problem of what to do with the vehicles.

During the spring semester, the Student-Faculty Traffic Committee, after studying FSU's individual needs on traffic restrictions and control for many months, recommended the ban not be put into effect.

The committee reached this decision after months of careful consideration of the problem; through studies of areas of traffic congestion, number of cars in relation to number of parking spaces available, and various other factors.

However, since traffic problems will eventually grow at FSU, the Board of Control saw fit to go ahead with the sophomore restriction which is already in force at the University of Florida.

That the committee's report was contradicted is worth comment. We do not feel it should be mandatory for conclusions reached by this committee or any other composed of students and /or faculty to be heeded. But reports of these committees should be given a thorough chance to be heard, then given serious consideration, since their work is the result of much study which decision-makers do not have time to make.

The ban is supposed to go into effect second semester. But the possibility of an alternate solution should be considered again by the Board before banishing two entire classes to the road on foot.

For instance, it would be possible to allow students who live on campus to park their cars in an adjacent off campus lot. Then freshmen and sophomore black sticker owners would have the privilege of keeping their cars on weekends or on date nights, although they would not be able to drive or park on the campus itself. Perhaps a portion of the Doak S. Campbell stadium parking lot can be used for this purpose after each game.

This plan, or a similar one, would allow all students the privilege of bringing a car to school without adding to the congested campus traffic.

Improve Registration

University officials are faced with a problem each semester which shows little signs of declining despite their efforts. It is registration.

A new system is tried almost every semester, but none have proven entirely successful.

The latest system, some say, was better than any tried previously but it still left a lot to be desired.

Upperclassmen, who have witnessed many efforts to simplify registration, feel that there is a waste of manpower at many sections.

A solution offered by these students would put more clerks at the sections which many freshmen and upperclassmen, such as English and history, will visit.

Another method suggested to simplify registration is to set up separate sections for general education courses.

Higher level courses would be available in other sections.

An attractive feature of having general education courses in separate sections would be that clerks and assistants could spend more time with transfer and freshmen students helping them to arrange their schedules properly.

We realize that university officials are constantly seeking better methods of conducting registration, and if one of the above methods was tried it might prove valuable in easing the burden of registrating for both tha faculty and students.

Rats Need Cap Scare

We've observed that there's something on this campus fast becoming as scarce as the proverbial hens' teeth. It's the freshman Rat Cap.'

There's little doubt that there was a healthy supply on hand at the beginning of orientation week: We saw 'em.

Actually, we've held for quite a time that the little red hats serve a more constructive purpose than humiliating new students on this campus, although others may dissent.

Martinis Madness

By ART ALBRECHT

A curious blend of trouble is about to be brewed in outer spaces. Within a few years, man will launch satellites in the name of scientific progress.

BUT THE results of these launchings are apt to be quite the opposite of progress when we really examine the subject.

It is true that battery tends to repeat itself, the ultimate and ghastly future of these floating man-made planets is obvious, unless everyone takes a firm stand against the use of satellites; this nation—already seething with racial tension—is in for even more serious difficulty.

In the Capitalistic form, we can be assured that the satellites will be turned into giant gasoline stations for travel to and from Mars as soon as the scientific novelty has worn off.

EVEN BEFORE the actual launching, Richard Oil and Rowe and Johnson's will receive a franchise to operate on these solar waystations.

Beams will be flashed to Mars advertising package trips to tropical Manic, romantic Reno and fabulous New Orleans—all on a travel now and pay later basis.

A Congressman from New York will start bringing the Martians in by giant leads and before you'll know what happened, another minority group will have filtered into the land of the free.

WHAT WILL follow is inevitable.

Prejudice will immediately come into action—particularly if the Martian's skin happens to be green, purple or any color lower than white. Crude signs will be posted advising Martians, Go Home!" We'll condemn them for mingling with our white girls at the dining cannuh. We'll "like" them as individuals, but hate them as a group.

Soon the words "civil rights" will rear their ugly head and the Martian will cry prejudice. A National Association for the Advancement of Martian People will be formed and White Citizen Councils will rise in opposition.

CASES concerning discrimination will be brought to the courts and eventually the Supreme Court will turn in a Scottsboro type book and decide that the Martian who holds citizenship is entitled to go to school with the white folks. Heaven forbid!

Another Plessey will come to fore and segregationists will declare that it's a violation of state's rights.

An Arkansas governor or possibly one from Mississippi or California or Georgia will call out the National Guard because rather than acceptance will be threatened. Magazines and newspapers will have a field day with stories and pictures depicting the segregationists as rabble-rousing governors.

ARGUMENTS PRO and con will be the topic of the day. We'll again hear such gems as "How'd you like your sister to marry a Martian?" "It's a Communist plot!" "The segregationists are un-American." "The integrationists are un-American." "God, himself, segregated the Martians by putting them in Mars."

And this is only part of the picture! Do we want this minority group coming into our cloistered confines and causing more racial controversy?

If not, it's time that everyone informed their Congressmen to oppose any further efforts to launch a satellite. If the satellite is launched, we can expect the worst. After all, how'd you like your state; to marry a Martian?

Something Of Value

By LANE GOURDIE

"It gives them something of value; you know, Something of Value, like the Mau Maus." said Paul Eugene Slaton, sophomore Bladar. Freshmen must have been glad for that this 19-year-old Miamian had their better interests at heart!

UNLIKE MOST conceptions of these "good deeds," our hero has no horns, forked tail, nor evil glint in his eye. Paul is 5' 10" and weighs about 200 pounds. His hazel eyes and sandy crew cut fairly bristle with humor and what his friends describe as a "terrific personality."

Paul, an outstanding football player, started his sports career in the ninth grade as fullback; when a junior at Miami Edison, he switched to center, and has stayed there ever since. It seems to be profitable, since he was on the All City team as a junior and on the All-Dade team as a senior. A football scholarship to FSU is nothing to be sneezed at.

HIS NEW vocation as a Bulldog will be a rather busy one, since Rat Week only extended from Sept. 12-19, but it's been most interesting, according to Paul. He usually stopped the freshman—female freshmen, that is—as they came from meetings. Taking the easy way out, his usual request was to hear the "Hymn to the Garnet and Gold" or the "Alma Mater."

Failure in either of these resulted in extending the list for Rat Court attendance, but no on-the-spot penalties. As did the Wiser Sludges, Paul realized that the hazing was a good thing as long as it wasn't carried to extremes re-

Frats Buy Hearse Cheap

By BUCKY CANON

This column will attempt to keep you informed of some of the serious and some of the more humorous happenings on colleges campuses throughout the nation, and will pay special attention to our close neighbors.

From Texas, the Southern Methodist University Campus reports that a hearse can be bought cheap. Four Kappa Sigs bought it for $200 after their efforts to obtain a fire-engine were thwarted. To their disappointment however, it seems that the coeds refuse to ride in it despite the tasteful midnight blue interior decoration. So now they'll sell cheap. (ACP)

Also from Texas, we hear of the student at Hardin- Simmons University who found a note between his license plate, reading "Help! I'm being held a prisoner. It didn't bother the student inside, he knew that the plates were made in the penitentiary. (ACP)

Undergraduate men prefer their dates to wear nylons with seams, and do not think it necessary that they themselves wear garters. At least this is the result of a poll taken at North Dakota State Teachers College, by a sorority pledge class. Answers to the question "Do you like a girl goodnight on the first date?" varied from 39% "yes," to 33% "no." In between were "sometimes." "I sure do," and "it depends." (ACP)

Here's a little item picked up from a University of Chicago Daily Maroon of last spring. Dean of Students Robert M. Strozier (now president of FSU) spoke out for the return of football to that university. Intercollegiate football has been absent from Chicago since it dropped out of the Big Ten previous to World War II. The item dean said that he believed that football would help to draw the university closer together.

The Critic's Corner

Critic Sets Policy

By LOWELL RODDENBERRY

At the outset of this column, it seems wise to explain its purpose. Ideally, a critical review should be a definitive work that deals honestly and authoritatively with some given artistic event. However, such a premise is not so readily workable in the student in the capacity of a reviewer.

THE EVENTS to be reviewed are not a professional nature and thus not to be subjected to hypercritical evaluations. These events and productions are first and foremost academic requirements and only incidental entertainment.

The professional critic is akin to a boxer in that he advises the public about the quality of a work and its performances and whether his money would be well spent in attending.

THE POST OF critic on a college paper is of necessity more a matter of research and reporting than actually determining the relative value of a work and its performers. This reviewer, with all humility and within the scope of his ability, expects to learn much in the process of writing this column.

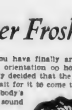
The review that succeeds in being educational is perhaps the most successful one. If the student reviewer can help the layman a basis for appreciating music, art or drama, then he will accomplish his purpose. In any event, this column will be of a musicological nature, at least to some extent.

IF A THESIS concerning the writing of these critiques can be concisely expressed, it's that literality is the order of the day.

A great many people seem to think that the critic is a reporter who merely voices the reaction of the public and thereby represents the voice of truth. Ultimately, however, the public and good taste are not necessarily compatible bed-fellows.

ON OTHER HAND, no one can define certain aspects of taste upon a work of art or a concert that are neither applicable nor not at all fair. An absolute criterion of judgment is virtually impossible. Art is the final Relativism, a subjective matter. Many are the paths and byways that lead to Parnassus.

Through this column the reviewer hopes to present an interest in and a knowledge of the standards cultural efforts to be found on the FSU campus.



A policy that has been adopted whereby faculty recitals are not to be reviewed. For publicity purposes as well as for artistic interest, there will be previews as opposed to reviews.

Calling The Card

It's Your Oyster Frosh

So now you're a college student. You have finally arrived. You've heard speech after speech during orientation on how the whole world lies before you. You've finally decided that the world is your oyster and all that jazz. Well, it's time to come to grips with reality.

BUT THAT'S A LIE. The world is nobody's oyster unless he makes it so. This may sound discouraging, but it's true, nonetheless.

And another thing. You haven't arrived. You're just beginning a trek that is long and hard. Some will fall by the wayside before they are even underway. Others will stay on the sidelines and feel that it is tiresome when they are handed their sheepskin after four years of effort. They are just as wrong as those who drop out early.

THE EDUCATION that is just beginning for you is not something that will go on for four years and then stop abruptly. If you decide to be somebody, it will be something that continues long after your college days. This is the purpose of college.

Although FSU doesn't have a long tradition as a university, you should be aware of some of those who have gone before you and know that those who have been outstanding have been those who realized that the world wouldn't come to them. They have sought actively a full life in the academic and social fields and have used what talent they had to the best advantage.

YOU'LL MISS A LOT by not knowing many of those who have already graduated. You'll miss the experience of meeting people like Dave Bachman, Jim Joanos, Evelyn Moll, and Ike Crenshaw. All of these people have had hard work to achieve the things they have done.

Bachman came on campus as a shy guy who had to overcome the added difficulty of having a popular older sister who was still in the university. He overcame that handicap and went on to become President of the Student Body after having served as and will in Student Senate, the Westminster Foundation, fraternity and various honorary leadership honoraries.

JOANOS WAS A LITTLE fellow physically, but that was no means an indication of the stature of his personality. In his senior year he was vice-president of the Student Body, president of his religious foundation, president of the Inter-faith Council, president of his fraternity, president of the Inter-fraternity Council, and elected to several leadership honoraries.

Evelyn Moll was probably the most phenomenal of them all. She graduated this past June at the age of 18. During her junior year, while she was 18, she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, the highest scholastic honor one can receive. She also served as

Collins' Philosophy Best

By PIERCE LEHMBECK

At the Tallahassee Quarterback Club's inaugural gathering earlier this week, Florida State University football coach Bill Collins observed the busiest people nowadays are football coaches and governors.

FOOTBALL COACHES, he said, "are busy calling out the horses. The governors—they're busy calling out the national guard."

Bisher's remarks were doubly amusing in that they came on the heels of similar musings expressed in an equally humorous vein by Florida Governor Leroy Collins.

"As governor, I'll do anything to support our Seminoles," Collins said in his address.

THEN THERE WAS a pause as the handsome governor rubbed his chin.

"Except that is, short of calling out the national guard to keep Miami out of Campbell Stadium in November."

The humor of the group laughed at Collins' remarks. There was little apprehension. It was hard to imagine that only a year ago this was a point of tension with the easy-going governor.

WHEN THE SCHOOL actually decided to open its doors to accept their annual impossible load, the alert governor had gone out of his office to watch for possible racial unrest. Calling of the state militia was not even considered.

It's still a serious thing.

And it's because of that, you couldn't help but feel a great admiration for this, the most popular of all Florida governors, as he expressed himself with an obvious ease.

THIS AIN'T SEEMS to have an answer for everything, and at no point did he seem to pause to hunt for words. They came easily, and they came with conviction.

It was obvious from talking to the governor later that his mind was still heavy with the problem of Negro va. white, of agitator vs. moderate, the calm and the apprehensive.

The solution to the racial problem, he said, will come only when "the white citizen faces up to the fact that the Negro does not now have equal opportunities; that he is morally and legally entitled to progress more rapidly, and that a full good faith effort should be made forthwith to help him move forward in the improvement of his standards."

BY THE SAME TOKEN, he said "the Negro must also contribute by his own attitude" and that he should realize those things before he will be granted an equal status.

That, to the governor, is the realize that he must merit and deserve whatever place he achieves in a community. He should strive to be wanted; he should strive to avoid being resented."

To be practical about it, Collins said, "compulsion and legislation cannot interference by those without a background for understanding now only generate resistance, resistance develops hate and this defeats the Negro's own purpose.

"Mutual respect and confidence on the part of both races is essential."

This is the governor's philosophy and he has followed it along the line, even in times of stress and strain.

There has been no integration in Florida, because of that there are not mixed emotions. There has been no racial violence on the door steps of Florida's schools; because of that, everyone has a little happy.

Bob Jennings, who graduated.

Directing the Hurricane attack will be Billy Baker sophomore quarterback. Jerry Penland will operate at left half while Billy Weir will start at right half.

The only senior in the starting backfield will be 200-pound fullback Jim Grant who stood out for Furman in last year's Tribe-Furman game.

Coach Hobbs, winner teams have won only 2 out of 30 games in his first two seasons says, "For the first time since I've been at Furman, I can confidently say that we won't be embarrassed on the football field . . . we'll play a creditable game against everyone."

The Furpla Hurricane will have two 200-pounders at ends, co-captain Dick Pfeiffer and Ray Slominski. Operating at tackles will be Dick Marshall, who returns as a regular for the third time, and Bob Akers.

The second slots will be handled by Gene Head and Nick Tomorello. E. J. Hall and Buddy Walter or Jim Berroff will draw the starting assignment at center.

New Backfield

Other starting members of the Tribe backfield besides Renn are right half Billy Weaver and left half Stan Dobosz. Both are 180-pounders and run more like fullbacks than halfbacks.

Dobosz and Weaver are standouts on defense also.

Another offensive and defensive standout is 195 pounder Eddie Johnson, who will open at fullback. The Charleston, West Virginian moves fast for his size and should help the Tribe's offense.

Ronnie Schomburger, the 6-0, 180 pounder from Pittsburgh will try for another iron man year. Senior co-captain, Schomburger has started every game since a freshman.

Operating at the other flank will be senior Bob Nellums who suffered a knee injury toward the end of last season. But Bob will be ready for action and hoping to lead the squad in scoring for the second straight year.

Tackles Set

Two 200-pounders will start at the tackles. Constantly improving Bill Musselman and Jacksonville senior George Boyer will be ready for all Hurricanes.

Opening at guards will be 203 pound Jerry Graham and a converted end Bob Fountain. Both are juniors and fit into future Seminole plans.

Veteran Troy Barnes, senior from Chickasaw, Ala., returns to center.

The second string backfield will be headed by Ted Rodrigue at quarterback. The passing master will have either Len Levy or Fred Pickard, both sophomores, at left half.

Buddy Reynolds who missed last season because of an injury will be ready at right half, while senior Carmen Battaglia will handle the fullback duties.

The Tribe finds itself in about the best condition for an opening game with only Gene Mc-Cormick, sophomore quarterback, on the injury list.

Experts Not Sure On 1957 Record

Tomorrow night, Tom Nugent will trot out the 1957 edition of the Seminole football team for the surveyance of a crowd of some 15,000 students and townspeople, and pretty soon after of the state's sportswriters.

There'll be a few new faces at key positions, and a few old ones, but the fact remains the Seminoles will do well to equal their 5-4-1 1956 record.

Guesses on the Seminoles' finish have ranged from as low as 3-7 to as high as 8-4 by the so-called "experts."

The schedule is basically the same, with Ohio, Wake Forest, and Georgia gone and Boston College, Tampa and Maine Christian replacing them.

My guess is the Seminoles will go 6-4, 7-3 if they get the right breeks in the right games, notably Boston College and Mississippi Southern.

Tomorrow night's opener with Furman appears to be little tougher than last year's with Ohio, though the Purple Hurricane reportedly has improved.

Improved or not, Furman doesn't figure to give the Seminoles the battle that such squads as Boston College or Villanova will on succeeding weekends.

KEN KEY

The key to Seminoles victory or defeat lies as it did last year in the quarterback slot, this time on the experienced shoulders of Bobby Renn.

Renn, like his all-American predecessor Lee Corso, is a converted halfback. If he takes to signal-calling as Corso did, Nugent can turn to other positions for his 1957 grey hairs.

One of those positions is guard, where Leo Baggett, Al Pacifico, and Bob Elliott are all gone, for various reasons.

Currently, Juniors Bob Fountain, a converted end, and Jerry Graham are first stringers, but a questionable neck injury may keep Graham starting.

In such case, either Al Ulmer or Abner Bigbie, both lights may step into the starting position.

The big men in the line are still captain Ron Schomburger, Troy Barnes and Bill Musselmen. Schomburger could be another Seminole all-American.

Looking at the schedule in brief, Furman and Tampa at either end appear to be victorious. On the other end of the totem pole, the Seminoles must be very fortunate to beat either Miami or Auburn.

The rest — take your pick.

Right now, they figure favorites over Villanova, Maine Christian, North Carolina State and underdogs to Boston College and Mississippi Southern, and Virginia Tech.

All three games could be toss-ups by game time.

SOPHS ENCOURAGING

With three-fourths of last year's backfield now gone the running of sophomores Lennie Levy and Fred Pickard

RARIN' TO GO. Captain Ron Schomburger, veteran end, will lead the Seminoles as Florida State opens their 1957 season here tomorrow night against Furman's Purple Hurricane. Schomburger is the first captain at FSU to be elected before the start of the gridiron season.

Schomburger Possible All-American Choice

Ron Schomburger, Florida State's candidate for all-American honors at left end, failed to cross the opposition's goal lines during the 1956 season, but still managed to be named to four all-opponents teams and win the praise of opponents and teammates alike.

The Seminoles rewarded the play of Schomburger by naming him team captain for the current season. It was the first time at Florida State that a football captain was named prior to a season.

Georgia coach Wally Butts crammed up Georgia's feeling about the FSU captain after the Bulldogs edged the Seminoles 3-0 in the waning moments of play last year.

Butts remarked to interviewers that Schomburger "was the most dangerous man out there."

"He tied up two men every time he went into our defensive backfield. We had to watch him every minute."

ALL OPPONENT TEAMS

Schomburger made the Georgia all-opponent team as well as those of Virginia Tech, Villanova, and Mississippi Southern.

He is a 6-2, 195 pound native of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania where he lettered in football, basketball, and baseball at Westfield High School.

However, life at FSU he has given the gridiron his undivided attention and has won a letter each year.

TWO-WAY PLAYER

Schomburger shines on defensive play and is one of Florida State's most outstanding offensive players.

Though he failed to score last year he led fullback Joe Holt in pass receptions with 16, good for 140 yards and an 8.7 yard average per catch.

The worth of a good captain doesn't stop with the close of a game, and according to FSU coach Tom Nugent "Ron is probably the biggest single inspiration the Seminoles have."

Nugent added that, "He's a quiet sort of person, but he's the kind who will go in and assume a big brother role if he see's a teammate down in the dumps."

Schomburger, a business major, carries a 3.2 overall college average into his senior year.

The popular Seminole captain feels that "this year's team is the strongest of the four teams I've played on at FSU with the greatest potential to win. All we have to do is fill that potential!"

THE MIXTURE AS BEFORE

Today begins my fourth year of writing the column and, as before, I will continue to explore the issues that grip the keen young mind of modern America—burning questions like "Should housemothers be forced to retire at 28?" and "Should pajamas and robes be allowed at first-hour classes?" and "Should proctors be armed?" and "Should picnicking be permitted in the stacks?" and "Should teachers above the rank of assistant professor be empowered to perform marriages?" and "Should capital punishment for pledges be abolished?"

Should capital punishment for pledges be abolished?

Philip Morris Incorporated sponsors this column. Philip Morris Incorporated makes Philip Morris cigarettes. They also make Marlboro cigarettes. Marlboro is what I am going to talk to you about this year.

Before beginning the current series of columns, I made an exhaustive study of Marlboro advertising. This took almost four minutes. The Marlboro people don't waste words. They give it to you fast: "You get a lot to like in a Marlboro . . . Filter . . . Flavor . . . Flip-top Box."

Well, sir, at first this approach seemed to me a little tense, a bit naked. Perhaps, thought I, I should drape it with a veil of violet prose, adorn it with a mantle of fluffy adjectives, dangle some participles from the ears . . . But then I thought, what for? Doesn't that tell the whole Marlboro story? . . . Filter . . . Flavor . . . Flip-top Box.

Marlboro tastes great. The filter works. So does the box. What else do you need to know?

So, with the Marlboro story quickly told, let us turn immediately to the chief problem of undergraduate life—the money problem. This has always been a vexing dilemma, even in my own college days. I recall, for example, a classmate named Oliver Hazard Sigafoos, a great strapping fellow standing 14 hands high, who fell in love with a beautiful Thetа named Nikki Spillane, with hair like beaten gold and eyeballs like two tablespoons of forget-me-not brew.

Every night Oliver Hazard would take Nikki out to dine and dance, and then to dine again, for dancing made Nikki ravenous. Then they would go riding in the swan boats, and then Nikki, her appetite sharpened by the sea air, would have 8 or 10 cutlets, and then Oliver Hazard would take her home, stopping on the way to buy her a pail of oysters or two.

To raise money for these enchanted evenings, Oliver Hazard took on a number of part-time jobs. Between classes he cut hair. After school he guttered gutters. From dusk to midnight he vulcanized medicine balls. From midnight to dawn he trapped night crawlers.

The crowded schedule took, alas, a heavy toll from Oliver Hazard. In the space of a month he dwindled from 260 to 104 pounds—but that, curiously enough, proves his salvation.

Today Oliver Hazard is a jerker, earning a handsome living which, combined with what he makes as a lymph donor after hours, is quite sufficient to curb Nikki's girlish appetite. Today they are married and live in Upper Marlboro, Maryland, with their two daughters, Filter and Flavor, and their son, Flip-top Box.

Lake Bradford Has Water!

Reservation Boat Activities May Begin Next Week

For the first time since 1953, FSU students will be able to participate in boating activities held at the University camp on Lake Bradford.

The lake level has been below normal for three years due to the lack or rainfall in the Tallahassee area. For the past eight months, however, the water has been rising in steps and because of the summer rains it is now flooding over the dam.

According to Jim Julian, Water- front director at the lake, there is a possibility that the small- crafts program will begin next weekend.

It will consist of sailing, canoeing and boating. At the present there are thirty craft available to the students but more will be added as the program continues.

CANOES AVAILABLE

Two twelve-man war canoes, fit- teen aluminum canoes, row boats, sailing canoes, a kayak, sail boat, cat boat, canvas canoes and a coast guard surf boat are ready for immediate use.

There will be no charge for the use of the crafts. They are fur- nished by the University for the use of students. Julian said.

Each student who wishes to par- ticipate in this program will be expected to pass a short swimming test. His ability to stay afloat in deep water for a period of ten minutes by swimming, treading water, or floating will be checked.

CHECKS MADE

Next, a practical and oral test will be given while checking out the craft. This is to determine common sense used in the han- dling of the craft. After passing the test, the student's name will be recorded qualifying him for the remainder of the year.

A tentative time of twelve noon until six p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays has been set up for the boating activities, according to the waterfron director.

It may be a couple of months before the flood waters subside and the water is safe for swimming. At that time there will be a desig- nated swim area marked off and life guards from the university on duty. Bath house facilities and a snack bar will also be available.

The State Board of Health has already sprayed the lake to kill surface weeds. They will make numerous checks before declaring the water pure enough for swim- ming.

Mr. R. O. Vernon, of the Flori- da Geological Survey, said this week that an annual rainfall of 56 inches is needed to insure the sta- bility of the water level at Lake Bradford. "In all probability," he said, "the lake level will stabil- ize for the next few years."

This is the time of the year when we at this corner take pleasure in returning once again to review the best and sometimes the worst of motion pictures on view downtown throughout the year.

We expect everybody will be a bit too busy to see as many pictures as you're all accustomed to viewing during the summer months, but nevertheless will al consult us and maybe once in awhile agree with us.

If anyone is really interested in joining our forces we encour- age you to look us up, and we especially have openings in the following categories:

OPENINGS

We need someone to:

Mark up how many Injuns bit the dust in a James Stewart cowboy picture.

Keep count of al l the delectable dancing girls in all John Derek desert pictures.

Distinguish one Kathryn Hepburn-Spencer Tracy picture from another.

Keep track of how many times Sal Mineo gets banged around in his many juvenile pictures.

Give us some personal know- ledge of the Chinese language for the old Charlie Chan re- vivals.

Mark up how many Injuns bit the dust in a Gary Cooper cow- boy picture.

Keep us awake during a typic- Robert Mitchum slumber show.

HUDSON'S TEARS

Record the number of tears running off Rock Hudson's face in the several soap-operas he's starred in.

Note the reasons for the crim- inal tendencies of Rod Steiger as a paleface or a big shot.

Give us some personal know- ledge of Brandoise for the old Marlon Brando revivals.

Help us to understand and evaluate the niggles of Jayne and Marilyn in all their comedy pic- tures.

Probe the inner mind of Monty Clift.

Explain why Robert Taylor is not only Ivanhoe but Quentin Durward and every other char- acter out of Sir Walter Scott.

INJUNS AGAIN

Mark up how many Injuns bit the dust in a John Wayne cow- boy picture.

Supply the name of hairdress- er in all Tony Curtis and Burt Lancaster pictures.

Evaluate the bone-spun rea- soning of June Allyson in her tender, heartwarming pictures.

Gymkana Meeting Set Wednesday

Gymkana, gymnastic honorary, will hold its first meeting of the Fall semester Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Men's Gym- nasium announced coach Hartley Price.

The meeting will be held in the gymnastic area of the gymnasium floor.

Dr. Price urged that all persons interested in acrobatics, dancing or any field of stage production "to be sure and attend."

At this meeting the groundwork for the annual Gymkana show held during this semester will be discussed.

Eight FSU Opponents Open Gridiron Slates This Weekend

Eight of Florida State University's remaining nine opponents open their 1957 football season around the country this weekend.

The Seminoles next foe, Boston College, raise the curtain on their grid slate against a very highly rated Navy squad. Navy has been placed as a 15-point favorite over the Eagles.

Villanova, who will play host to the Tribe on October 5, opens its season against the Baylor Bears. Baylor, which has been rated one of the top teams in the U. S. this year is a 20-point choice.

WOLFPACK UNDERDOG

North Carolina State, who will visit FSU on October 12, opens against the arch-rival North Caro- lina, which is a five point favor- ite.

The Seminoles October 19, op- ponent Abilene Christian breaks the ice against East Texas State. VPI, the FSU homecoming op- ponent plays Tulane in its season opener. The Green Wave is listed a one point choice over the Gobblers.

MIAMI AT HOUSTON

Probably the toughest foe for the Tribe this year will be the Miami Hurricanes who open their slate against Houston tomorrow. The Canes, in the midst of a re- building season, are rated a slight seven point favorite.

Mississippi Southern who hosts the Tribe on November 16, opens its season tomorrow against Lou- isiana Tech. Tampa, the final game of the season for the Tribe opens against Virginia Military Institute.

Auburn is the only Tribe op- ponent who will not be playing this weekend. The Tigers open next weekend against Tennessee.

New Skyscrapers

Loan Application For Dorms OK'd

An application for a federal loan of $2,300,000 to go with a $955,900 Legislative appropriation has been ap- proved for two new sky-scraper dormitories to be built on the Florida State University campus.

Bids will be taken and contracts let within 90 days. This is contin- gent on the time necessary to have bonds validated and sold.

Planning and building of several new structures is now in progress. One of these buildings is expected to be completed in February and the other by the 1958 summer ses- sion.

EDUCATION BUILDING

The new building for the School of Education, located on Tennessee street will possibly be ready by February, according to R. K. Shaw, university business manag- er. Bids will be taken in the next few weeks for two additions to the same building. These will consist of an Industrial Education shop wing and a seminar room wing.

The new School of Business building is progressing on schedule and should be ready for occupancy by summer.

Both of these structures are to be air-conditioned.

Planning will begin shortly for a $1,000,000 building for the depart- ments of math and meteorology which will be located across Woodward St. from the Student Center parking area.

NUCLEAR ACCELERATOR

Planning has also begun for a million dollar building to house two Van de Graaf accelerators and other divisions of physics in a chem- istry departmenta involved in nuclear research. This structure is to be located across Call street north or the circus practice lot. Contract for the purchase of tha first $975,000 accelerator was signed in July. Delivery is antici- pated in January, 1960.

A site for the new Social Scienc- es building for which $1,000,000 has been appropriated will be selected in the near future. Plans for the building will begin in the next few weeks.

'King Football' Reigns Today

"King Football" will reign su- preme in Tallahassee this after- noon.

A gigantic parade honoring the incoming football season will be un- gun at 4 p.m., according to Ar- thur McCarthy, parade organizer.

Featured will be the bands and football teams of Tallahassee's four high schools and two uni- versities.

LEAD PARADE

Leading the parade will be FSU's new president, Dr. Robert M. Strozier, accompanied by the mayor of Tallahassee, Coach Bo Nugent, and football queen Bar- bara Bishop.

The Marching Chiefs and the cheerleaders will follow with three FSU football teams running signal drills in full uniform close behind. Following them will be FSU students in cars who wish to be in the parade.

The Leon High contingent will follow, including the band, foot ball team, and student body. Flori- da High will appear next in the same order.

IN THE REAR

Following the Florida High group will be the FAMU band and football team. Lincoln High and the Florida A&M Demonstration School will complete the parade.

Mr. McCarthy also asked the cooperation of any students inter- ested in driving in the parade. Application cars will form on Georgia Street, between Monroe and Adams, at 2:30 p.m.

Queen Contest . . . WILL HANG NO MORE Begins Monday

The Homecoming Queen contest will begin on Monday, September 23, Miss Elizabeth Lynn, Assistant Dean of Women, said this week.

All groups intending to sponsor a candidate should send in her picture and begin campaigning on that date.

The polls will not be open until Tuesday, October 15, when preliminary elections will be held in the lobby of Westcott Auditorium from 9 a.m. till 5:30 p.m. The queen will be chosen from among the top five contestants on October 22.

Any recognized campus group may sponsor a candidate, provided she has attended FSU for one semester, is a sophomore, junior, or senior, and has at least a 2.0 scholastic average. A list of eligible campus groups may be found in the Pow-Wow; the queen will ride with her court on a float in the Homecoming parade, sit in a special box, and be escorted to the dance for a ceremony in her honor during intermission.

Details will be posted.

Stadium Approach For Students

Students are urged to approach the stadium on Jefferson or Pensacola Street for the football game tomorrow evening.

They will not be allowed to come by way of the demonstration School route, as that will be reserved for the Boosters' Club to meet and continue to the game together. Only cars with the Booster Club sticker will be allowed into that area.

'Retired Life Very Enjoyable' Says Mrs. Doak Campbell

Life without administrative responsibilities, is quite enjoyable, according to Mrs. Doak S. Campbell, wife of FSU's former president.

"But we're just as busy," she declared.

Following 16 years in the executive office in Westcott, Dr. Campbell retired June 30 to assume his duties as president of Associated Consultants in Education, which advises five colleges and universities in the south.

TRAVEL OCCUPIES TIME

His duties in field studies and consultant work keep Dr. Campbell occupied the year around with travel — he and Mrs. Campbell left today for a southern regional board meeting. They will return in time for the Furman game tomorrow night, and depart again to attend the Governor's Conference at St. Simon's Island, Ga.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Campbell have found their increased leisure time profitable. "We have been doing a great deal of writing—research into problems in which we have long been interested," said Mrs. Campbell.

NEW HOME SMALLER

"Our new home is smaller than the president's residence, and much easier to take care of—and it's air-conditioned!" she said. They live at 1001 Hirh Road.

A gardening enthusiast, Mrs. Campbell has found the recent hot or rainy Tallahassee weather not conducive to spending time out-of-doors. But she hopes to begin work with her azaleas and camellias soon.

"We miss the immediate contact with the students," said the ex-president's wife, "but wherever our travels take us, we find FSU graduates, and enjoy seeing how successful they have been.

"And we are always glad to see the present students. We hope they will come to visit us."

Student Hired For Research Project

Thomas P. Bennett, FSU junior, has returned from participating in the summer apprenticeship program at the Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial Laboratory, Bar Harbor, Maine.

The Laboratory, a research institution, studies heredity's relation to abnormal growth, social behavior, and the constitutional diseases.

After observing the Laboratory's scientists and methods, the apprentices conduct research projects of their own in such fields as using mammals experimentally, normal and abnormal development, heredity, and the endocrine function.

Bennett was sponsored by Dr. Andrew Kandutsch, research associate at the Bar Harbor Institution.

CHURCH NEWS

Wider Variety Keynotes Religious Calender

By ANNETTE McINTOSH

A special welcome back to you from Florida State's religious groups. Many changes have been made during the summer; you'll want to see these, as well as to worship, to renew friendships, and to take part in this year's new activities.

The Baptist Student Union opened the fall term with a pre-school retreat, which was held September 8-11 at the Florida State University Reservation. Approximately 30 people attended; those participating were both old and new students.

Judy Barrineau, president of Y.W.A., has announced that a meeting will be held in Longmire Auditorium on Monday, September 23, at 7 p.m. All girls interested in Y.W.A. are invited to attend.

The BSU invites everyone to come to the Vesper Services which are held each week on Tuesday, 6:30 p.m. to 7:15 p.m., and the Morning Watch Services on Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 7:45 a.m. Until the completion of the new BSU house, these services will be held in Longmire Auditorium.

Nine of Florida State's Christian Science Organization members attended a 3-day meeting of Christian Science Organizations throughout the world at the mother church in Boston, to discuss furthering their college program.

Every Thursday at 7 p.m. the organization holds its regular weekly meeting in the home at 535 W. College Ave.

These Sunday services are regularly scheduled at the Episcopal Chapel of the Resurrection: Holy Communion, 8 a.m.; Morning prayer and Sunday school for children, 9:30 a.m.; Morning prayer and sermon, 11 a.m.; Canterbury Hour, 6 p.m., which will this week consist of supper and a program by Rev. Harcourt Waller.

The Episcopal Faculty Fellowship will meet Monday at 8 p.m. Dr. Vernon Pox will lead, speaking on "Crisis and Punishment."

On Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. choir tryouts will be held at Rugg Hall.

The calendar of activities for Epiphany Lutheran Church includes a picnic dinner at which students will be the guests of the congregation at Lafayette Park on Sunday at 1 p.m.

Officers Raymond Lebau, Delphis Johnson, and Raymond Reinhardt announce meetings every Sunday at 6 p.m. in the student lounge of the church, with a cost supper. Transportation is provided from South Cawthon at 5:45 p.m. A balanced program for the year has been set up, including religious, social, and athletic features. Dr. Victory S. Mamatey of the history department is group sponsor.

The Methodist house, Wesley Foundation, is offering these 4 Sunday school courses at 9:30 a.m. this semester: "Old Testament", taught by Dr. Tom Lewis "Teachings of Jesus", Mr. Jim Smith; "Paul", Mrs. Jim Smith; and "Christian Beliefs," Dr. William Tate.

Also church at 10:55 a.m., supper (.35) at 5:15 p.m. and the Forum Hour at 6 p.m. This Sunday four students will discuss being a Christian in these different areas of campus life: government, Arnold Greenfield, organization, Nancy Warrall; athletics, Tom Gregory; social functions, Pat Marley.

Matins, 15-minute morning devotions, will be held every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 7:30 a.m. in the Foundation.

Rev. Austin Holladay, chaplain, cordially invites all to open house, which will be held after the football game Saturday night, as well as after every home game.

As yet I've found no way to reach these groups: Church of Christ, Congregational Church, Liberal Religious Youth, and Intervarsity. Will their representative, minister, a leader, or any interested and informed person please contact me before Tuesday noon. . . Annette McIntosh, 336 Landis or the Tri Delt house. Each group should elect or appoint a regular representative, who will give me his organization's news each week.

Parties Usher In Year For Dorms, Greeks

Here we are back in the land of the Seminoles, and already the whirl of social activities has begun! Although classes started only yesterday, the campus has been buzzing for over a week. Freshmen have been thoroughly introduced to life at FSU, and upperclassmen have returned to their old stomping grounds.

DORM AND GREEK groups have ushered in the fall season with bang-up parties and plans. This weekend promises to be an exciting one as the Seminoles meet Furman in the first football game, and by the way, girls, if your favorite date has left you out of his plans this weekend, it's probably just because of fraternity rush. Don't worry, it will be torn about next weekend when sorority rush begins.

ALONG SORORITY and fraternity rows, the fun of college life has already begun.

The Alpha Chi Omegas are happy to have Mrs. Neva Schreck as their new housemother. Better known to the Alpha Chis as "Gee", Mrs. Schreck is from Hartsburg, Pennsylvania, and has spent the past two years as a housemother in Bowling Green, Ohio. Alpha Chi President Ada Leigh Wall attend the group's national convention in Pasadena, California, this summer, and has related many interesting experiences to the chapter.

OVER AT THE Alpha Gamma Delta house, the girls are busy preparing a skit which they will present to the Theta Chi rushees next Wednesday night.

Parties are always fun, and the Alpha Xi Deltas' swimming party for the Delta Tau Deltas' last Tuesday night was a tremendous success. The party was held at the home of an alum, and food, fun, and happy people abounded, according to the Delts.

Alpha Xi president, Jan Kamlish, warns all fraternities that the sorority's trophies will be locked up tight in a new glassed trophy case. Miss Kamlish also adds that the student body is invited to an informal record party Saturday evening after the game.

Seminole Society

STARTING THE YEAR on a spiritual note, Dr. Edwin Hartz, University Chaplain, spoke to the girls on the different religions on campus after a luncheon in the newly redecorated Alpha Xi dining room.

* * *

The Phi Delta Theta's have been working hard to finish up the redecorating and painting of their recreation room and lounge in the Delta Shelter in time for the open house-coming party which they are giving after the game.

* * *

ENTERTAINING AT their house with after-the-game, informal record parties will be Delta Zeta, Lambda Chi Alpha, Zeta Tau Alpha, whose rec room, "The Casbah," has been redecorated in an Egyptian theme, and Phi Kappa Tau. Incidentally, these parties are all open to the student body.

FSU's Omega chapter of Sigma Kappa won National recognition this summer at the Sigma Kappa Officers' Workshop, June Silay, who traveled to the Workshop with Mrs. Kay Miller, National Counselor, accepted the award for the best eGrontology Week report on behalf of the chapter.

The report, written by chairman of the project, Barbara Lee Packard, gave full details of the Sigma Kappas' week of helping and cheering the old folks of Tallahassee's hospitals and old folks' homes.

THE AWARD WAS a beautiful silver tray, to be displayed in one of the chapter's new trophy cases.

The original Sigma Kappa chapter house has been completely remodeled and redecorated. The entrance hall carries a color scheme of white, black and gold throughout with a plantation-type front door. The new addition, which doubles the original size of the house, contains a new recreation room, dining room, kitchen, and sleeping porch. It will be ready for occupancy by second semester.

National Counselor Mrs. Miller has been visiting with the Sigma Kappa this week and looking over the many changes in the chapter house.

The Tau Epsilon Phi's are really proud of their new house (formerly the Sigma Nu house), and have been busy painting and redecorating the entire inside of the house. The boys have already made plans to arrange the new modern furniture as soon as it arrives this weekend.

AS SOON AS THE TEP's finish painting the last piece of new furniture in place, they plan to celebrate with a big open house. Soon they will carry their redecorating spirit outside and landscape the yard.

Over in the Dorms, Bryan Hall has started the social season with a tea, which the ten junior counsellors recently presented for their freshmen. The girls entertain with a fashion show featuring what the well-dressed college co-ed will be wearing this fall. This was the first in a series of the traditional dorm teas.

A big surprise was in store for the Kappa Alpha Thetas when they returned to their redecorated house this fall. The completely new interior was created by a designer from Miami. Beiding paint and upholstery, there is a new rug that unsips and easily rolls away for dancing parties. Upstairs, pastel shades and relaxing study chairs accent the bedrooms.

Still to come is the completion of plans for the daughter the Thetas purchased with the corner lot that they are planning their creative talents, the girls are busy painting, sewing and landscaping "The Pink Mink."

It will be used for meetings, recreational activities and television.

Simplicity And Conservatism Keys To Dress For Fall Rush

Simplicity for the lady and conservatism for the gentlemen are the keys to proper dress during the present fall fraternity and sorority rush season.

The annual fraternity rush begins officially tonight at 7 p.m. Sorority rush will begin at the same hour next Thursday.

As scheduled by the Interfraternity Council, the frat preferential rush parties begin Monday and continue through Friday.

According to Interfraternity Council officers, conservative ties and sports coats are in order for the Open Houses. Once the preferential parties begin, attire should vary with the nature of the party.

As for the ladies, a spokesman said, "The important thing is to keep in mind is that simplicity of dress makes more of an impression than overdressing."

"Cocktail or date dresses are appropriate for formal receptions."

Heels should be worn, according to the council, but the distances between the sorority house visited by freshmen "often make it uncomfortable to wear them."

In the past, some women have carried a pair of "flats" with them to wear between houses, donning the high heels when they enter.

At the women's preferential parties, transitional cottons should fit the occasion. Again, heels should be worn.

Added accessories, as jewelry, should be in line with the dress. Hats, the spokesman warns, "should not be worn to any of the parties."

"Gloves are optional."

With Vocational Programs

Brazilian Dreams Of Helping People

Of the many big dreams brought to the campus of Florida State University this week probably one of the largest of all is that of a sparkling eyed young woman from Brazil.

She is Maria Christina Oliveira, the head of the Ninth School department of the Instituto Batista Baptist Institute of Terrasina, a city of 75,000 near the Amazon River.

Her dream is to take back from north Florida to her Brazil ideas which will help young people of her community to help themselves.

In connection with vocational guidance studies at FSU, she will survey vocational programs in high schools of Tallahassee and north Florida.

Though there are thousands of miles and an expanse of ocean between the two countries, the two sections have much in common, the young Brazilian said.

The climate of the two areas is nearly similar—sub-tropical and humid and both sections have been economically depressed for many years. However, she said, unlike the American Southland which is coming out of depression, northern Brazil is still an area of widespread poverty and accompanying lack of opportunity for young people.

Miss Oliveira, the daughter of school-teachers, is not limiting her studies to vocational guidance. She believes that the job of aiding the less-privileged of her community is to find a better way of life should cover the fields of agriculture, home economics and physical education as well as assistance in learning a useful vocation.

So she will study Florida's Future Farmer and 4-H clubs, with a view of taking home ideas about organizing similar groups among the young people of her school.

She is including several home economics courses in her studies.

"Brazil's main problem is one of education," she said. "I see the development of the United States largely as an outgrowth of the Christian principle of helping one another to help themselves."

Though her work will be primarily with teen-agers in her own school, Miss Oliveira hopes that ideas that take root there will spread to other sections of the community. Eventually, she hopes to interest the community in building a clubhouse for its young people.

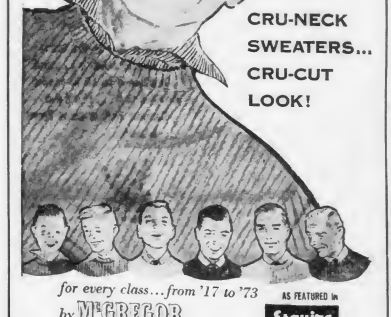
"I know I cannot realize all my dream, but while I am here I do want to take advantage of every opportunity to learn, so that when the chance comes, I can serve," she added.

Miss Oliveira, who has been studying in this country under auspices of the Southern Baptist Convention, recalls that when she arrived in June, 1956, she could not speak English.

$7,500 Chapel Ready In Oct.

The new $7,500 Unitarian chapel under construction at 936 Widwood drive, a block west of the campus, is expected to be ready for use early in October. Work was started early in the summer, and when a week or ten days more working time will see the job done, according to the builders.

The new chapel is modernistic in design, with its diamond shape and its roof lines being its distinctive features.



The Unitarian Fellowship is composed of about 30 members, many of whom are FSU faculty members and students. Services are held every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in room 533 in the FSU demonstration school until the new chapel is completed.

Dr. Eugene Boyle, associate dean of the School of Education, is next Sunday's speaker. His subject is "The Moral and Spiritual Foundations of American Democracy."

Thetas, ATO's Head Greek Spring Grades

Kappa Alpha Theta led the F.S.U. greek groups scholastically last spring with a 2.9717 grade-point average, according to university records.

Zeta Tau Alpha placed second with 2.8538 and Alpha Gamma Delta ran a close third with 2.8409.

The sororities maintained their high grade-point level over the preceding eight on down the line: Delta Delta Delta, 2.8100; Chi Omega, 2.8068; Alpha Xi Delta, 2.7350; Alpha Delta Pi, 2.7102; Kappa Delta, 2.6861; Pi Beta Phi, 2.6656.

Other sororities averaged as follows: Chi Omega, 2.6438; Phi Mu, 2.6424; Alpha Omicron Pi, 2.6360; Alpha Chi Omega, 2.5907; Gamma Phi Beta, 2.5836; Sigma Kappa, 2.5218; Delta Zeta, 2.5206.

Phi's fraternities, according to figures released by Mr. Halsmith, housing counselor to fraternities, were headed by Alpha Tau Omega with 2.7464; Delta Tau Delta, 2.7317; Kappa Phi and Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Delta Theta tied for fourth place with averages of 2.7000 and were followed by Kappa Sigma, 2.7239; Pi Kappa Alpha, 2.7168; and Tau Epsilon Phi, 2.7067.

Only five in the campus fraternities were Sigma Chi, 2.7051; Sigma Nu, 2.7173, Lambda Chi Alpha, 2.7110; Theta Chi, 2.7116; and Sigma Phi Epsilon, 2.7028.

Women out-do men scholastically in undergraduate studies on campus.

The women boasted the men by a margin of .3589, while the graduate students came through with a .0079 lead over women students.

Graduate students had a grade-point average .7162 better than undergraduate students, and the graduating grades further reveal a trend of scholastic improvement from freshmen to graduate study. The improvement is marked: freshmen, 2.1740; sophomores, 2.2586; juniors, 2.5469; seniors, 2.7113; graduate students, 2.9062.

Stu Nellums, first string right tackle for the Tribe, led the team scoring last season with 31 points. Nellums also caught six touchdown passes to lead in that department.

James Love, of Quincy, tell of the unparalleled reception the new president had received upon his arrival in Tallahassee.

STROZIER COMMENTS

Dr. Strozier's only comments were on the university hospital and the status of Professor Earl Vance.

"The university hospital director has not been named yet," he said, "but Dr. Ruth E. Taylor will be the acting director until a permanent director can be appointed."

"After that time," he added, "Dr. Taylor will join the hospital staff as a physician."

Dr. Taylor was formerly employed in the health services at the University of Chicago.

The Vance case, which has been a bone of contention with the board of control for the past three years, was brought to a close with Dr. Strozier's announcement that Mr. Vance had been assigned to teach a course in social studies.

Board chairman Love commented, "I'd almost be willing to vote you a five dollar bonus for that," as the FSU agenda came to a close.

Walk To Stadium Eased By Walkway

Seminole fans walking from campus to Campbell Stadium tomorrow night will find the traveling easier than it has been in past years.

To prevent foot traffic down Pensacola Street, a walkway through the Delta Tau Delta parking lot, across the street, over a newly-constructed bridge spanning the canal and to the stadium gates has been provided for the convenience of walkers. The walkway will be lighted.

try, wasn't on the show.

Another show stopper on the Frosh program was student Carol White of Miami Beach who whispered her way through For All We Know as Julie London.

Entertaining the audience while acts were set up backstage were emcees Ev Marsh, Jack Ryder and Bob Moss. Moss, who believed freshmen girls should be called "mister", kept everyone laughing throughout the evening.

Attending the audience with amazing muscle control was Claire Brubaugh of Americus, Ga. She performed in mystical acrobatic number.

Adding a more serious note to the evening's entertainment were Martha King, accompanied by John Bell Long and Patty Ann McCarty who sang operatic selections. Both are from St. Petersburg.

DRAMA PRESENT

Dramatic ability was also in evidence as the evening progressed. Mona Miracle, Jill Jerkins and Joyce Baxter of Gainesville gave their rendition of "The Adulteration of Ol' King David, a skit in Negro dialect. The trio was followed by Kay Tidwell, of La Belle, who kept the audience laughing at the hilarious antics of a small Negro boy. In a more serious vein was Kay Cranford's interpretation of Mary, Queen of Scots at her meeting with Elizabeth I from Max Schiller's "Mary Stuart."

Providing a bowling routine were Cynthia Heffron and Marjorie Morton of Hollywood High, whose baton twirling and high stepping to the "Hawaiian War Chant," added special interest.

Musical numbers were provided by Barbara Youmans, of Tifton, Ga., who played the popular piano selection, "Malaguena" and by Connie Mansfield, of Lakeland, who played the intriguing "The Jolly Caballero" on the accordian.

Two dance numbers were also presented at each performance. Marianne MacNichols' ballet routine provided a great contrast with "Espana Cani," a Spanish dance by Anne Skaggs.

SINGERS PLENTIFUL

Popular vocal selections were interspersed throughout the program. They included "Autumn Leaves" sung by Mary Dean Jarrell; "Don't Blame Me" by Phil Howard of Miami; "Something Wonderful" from "The King and I" by Joan Moore. Also Judy Ann Mantell of Tallahassee gave her rendition of "I'll Never Stop Loving You." Bryant Simms, a transfer student from Jacksonville University sang "The Birth of the Blues." Carol Poppitner of Leesburg, followed with "Love Is Where You Find It" and Gwen Waters concluded the vocals with "All the Things You Are."

A humerous character sketch was provided by April Lee who was followed by Jack Ryder, of Dayton, Ohio, who pantomimed an African safari in search of "King Arthur's Lost Mines." John Reynolds lampooned army life in a satyrical monologue.

Accompanists for the performers included Kay Wright, Bill Porter, Anne Hoffman, Nancy Gross, Martha Dredder, Mary Roberts, Bill Ponds and Dick Mitchell.

Dr. James Carr, Assistant Dean of Men, served as faculty sponsor.

Singers Invited To Join Choral Group

Choral Union, an organization made up of people who enjoy singing, meets every Monday and Wednesday at noon and every Thursday night from 7 till 9 p.m. in the choral room of the Music Building.

Students may either take it for 1 hour's credit, or for no credit at all. Everyone who likes to sing is invited to join the organization Union officials said.

Sludges Prowl, Rats Howl! Rat Court Session Held

By SANDY WENTZ

"Rats and more rats!" And they are all running from those dreaded Sludges.

It all began on September 11, 1957, when Ramon Arnold, President of the Sophomore Class told the freshmen what would be required of them.

They were given definitions to learn and rules to follow beginning Saturday, September 14. They were also invited (or demanded) to obtain their rat caps upon their exit that evening.

RATS RECITE

At any time a fer September 14, the freshmen were expected to be able to recite any item or items at the request of an upperclassman. Refusal to do the request included marching around the pool, sinaing at the Student Center, wearing sandwich board signs in effect Rat Court and having their faces painted each "RAT" written with lipstick across the forehead. Failure to comply with some immediate remedial action or in a subpoena to appear before the Rat Court.

The enforcing of the rules and requests was the job of the Sludges, identified by a black band with a white S in the middle, worn on the arm. These sludges were chosen by the sophmore officers. Although all upperclassmen could participate in the requests, the Sludges were the ones that took the names of the RATS who would not perform and would have to appear in Rat Court.

RAT COURT

Rat Court was held Tuesday evening, September 17, in Westcott Auditorium. The freshmen carried the "bad RATS" to court the; evening and blocked the doorways, so no one could leave if they so desired.

Chief Justice of the Rat Court was Marshall LaComb; other justices were: Ramon Arnold, Ken Prescott and Reggie Ivory.

The first punishment dealt by the court consisted of an upperclassman yelling "air raid" and a female RAT jumping into a waste can, doing a helmet on, looking through two beer cans and blowing a whistle until the upperclassman yelled "all clear." She had to do this frequently throughout the whole court session.

Another punishment consisted of four female RATS getting on their hands and knees and barking when an upperclassman yelled "On, you husky, mush!" Other preps included balloons filled with water, toy dogs, and a shrunken head.

JUSTICE GETS PIE

Whenever a RAT was a little hesitant at carrying out his sentence, the court threatened to throw pie in his face. This was all climaxed by Chief Justice LaComb getting a pie thrown right in his face, with the rat-cap-wearing assembly running off the stage afterwards.

Rat week ends Saturday, September 21, with all of the freshmen sitting in one section at the first football game of the year.

Ramon Arnold, when asked how he felt about the attitude of the students this year, replied, "I was tremendously pleased by the spirit and cooperation of both the members of the freshmen and sophomore classes. We feel that we have accomplished our purpose in promoting new school spirit."

Rita Trucks, a freshman in the audience the evening of Rat Court, was asked how she felt about Rat Week. She replied, "It showed the true spirit of the freshman class and was a lot of fun."

Other sophomore officers in charge of planning Rat Week were; Ken Prescott, Vice-Presednet; Kay Hufford, Secretary; Kay Hall, Treasurer, Dennis Smith, Social Chairman sulting in embarrassment.

"AFTER ALL," stated Paul, "the idea is to give them a sense of belonging, not of crawling in a hole."

Training for this eventful week evidently started years ago as a youngster, for Paul has always loved to hunt and fish. He started with his uncle who was a "trooper" in the Everglades, and even though he has no school on campus, hi spastime has stood up well under the rigors of the fresh hunt.

THOUGH HIS major is Public Relations, Paul is well known as an excellent imitator, and seems to have a flair for dramatics. The Sludge's favorite music is in the jazz line, the Four Freshmen and Chris Conner being his preferred performers.

Time-consuming football leaves his outside activities pretty much restricted to regular attendance of the First Baptist Church here on Sundays and meetings at the ATO house.

Thus is wrecked the popular conception of an ogre sludge belching fire leaving instead something of value.

New Library Hours

The University library has announced its hours.

They are, as reported by Charles H. Walker, Registrar, from 8:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. on weekdays.

Saturday- 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
Sunday- 2:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Lutherans Slate Meeting Sunday

The Lutheran Student Association will hold its first meeting this Sunday at the Reservation.

The meeting, to be held from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m., will begin with a spaghetti dinner. The program will feature a panel review of J. B. Phillips' book, "your God is Too Small," Panelists will be Ronald Wood, Harriet Anderson, and Sharon Gruel, with Phyllis Miller as moderator.

All students who are interested are urged to attend. Transportation will be provided in front of Westcott at 5:00 p.m., Sunday.

Intern Applications

Students scheduled to do intern teaching the second semester of this year should get application forms from the Internship Office, 204 Education, immediately.

Fill them out according to instructions so they can be filed in the Internship Office by 5:00 P.M., Monday, September 30, 1957.

Students whose names are on the second semester internship list will be removed from the list of active applicants for that or a subsequent semester unless deferments are secured by the Director of Internship.

Student Keys

All people who have not received their Student Government keys that were ordered last year may pick them up in the office of the student body president, 212 Longmire, from 2 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Cheerleading Tryouts Set Saturday In Amphitheater

Cheerleading tryouts will be held Saturday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Music Building Amphitheater, Head Cheerleader Jim Julian announced today.

Only freshman and transfer students are eligible for the tryouts. The participants will be judged on poise and personal appearance, execution of the cheers, and enthusiasm and pep.

One boy and one girl will be chosen by the judge, who will require three cheers from among those used in the last week's activities.

Judges will be the present cheerleaders, Dick Ainsworth, Betty Lovan, Charles Johnann, Nancy Fowler, Marilyn Teare, and Julian.

The names of the two students chosen will be announced at the Furman game Saturday night.

New Music Majors Invited To Coffee

The national men's and women's music honoraries, Phi Mu Alpha and Sinfonia Alpha Iota, are sponsoring a coffee for the benefit of all of the new music majors in the School of Music this year.

The event will be held in the large lounge of the Longmire Building Saturday from 2 to 3 p.m. All new music majors on campus are invited to attend.

This coffee is to acquaint the new students with the activities o fthe two national music honoraries.

BOB CRENSHAW IS NOW in the U. S. Air Force pilot training program and is visiting the campus this weekend. Bob was the all-American boy type who excelled in several fields. He weighed in at only 175 pounds, but was one of the finest centers in FSU football history. The team captain in his senior year, he was also president of his junior and senior classes, an officer in Gold Key and ODK, and a member of the Hall of Fame.

So there you have it. Freshman. Our history is not long, but it's full of great people. And all of them started out just like you. The university will only be your oyster if you make it that.

Theatre Auditions Set This Week

Auditions for the 1957-58 theatre season will be held at the Conrad Theatre Monday and Tuesday nights.

Those studeous who wish to audition will be asked to do something that they have done before, lasting for approximately five minutes.

This provision is for the benefit of those students who may be handicaped by a script.

In addition to the prepared scene, the students will be asked also to read some material "cold".

Opening the theater season at FSU is the first Community Theater production "The Rainmaker", by Richard Nash.

Following this, will be "Sleeping Beauty", the children's theater show; "Caesar and Clespatra", the second community show; and "The Diary of Ann Frank", the third community theater show.

At present the last production has not been named but will be in the realm of the cestury comedy. This production will travel to Sarasota for the annual Art Seminar there.

Working with the auditions are the Drama department's two new directors, Dr. James W. Bourke and Mr. Richard G. Fallon, and the members of Les Jongleurs, the drama honorary on campus.

Pep Rally Slated At Amphitheater

Coach Tom Nugent and his Seminoles, the pep band, and the cheerleaders will lead tonight's pep rally beginning at 7 p.m. in the music amphitheater, according to Head Cheerleader Jim Julian.

The rally will precede the Furman game, tomorrow night.

List Of Off Campus Housing Now Ready

Men students who have not located housing are asked to come to the university housing office in 110 Bryan Hall.

Listings of off campus housing will be made available in the office. The staff is also available to assist students in finding suitable housing.

Expert Not Sure

in fall practice has been particularly encouraging to Nugent.

Since regular Stan Dobosz is still brothered with a neck injury, one of the two might open at left half tomorrow night.

Bill Weaver will probably open at right half, a berth the hard-working Coral Gables senior has richly deserved for some time. Injuries have hampered his prowess through most of his college grid career.

Behind Weaver, though, Buddy Reynolds is sure to see plenty of action. Reynolds starred in the Sun Bowl as a frosh in 1954, and has looked good this fall.

Eddie Johnson starks up first at full, though senior Carmen Battaglia has had his finest fall thus far. Rest and passing ace Ted Rodrique dominate the quarterbacks.

With Schomburger at the ends is senior vet Bob Nellums, and with Musselman at the tackles another vetern, George Boyer. Troy Barnes is a fixture at center.

So, there you have it. A little luck here, a little luck there and a winning season is in sight.

Of course, luck can be bad too.

Student Senate Reconvenes New Chaplain Plan Slated

The Student Senate reconvenes at 4 p.m. tomorrow in the Longmire Building.

In regard to any new plans President, reported that this year, for the first time, a stu- dent from a different religious group on campus, will serve as Senate Chaplain each week.

In the past, a different sen- ator has been asked to lead the Senate in prayer at the begin- ning of each session.

At one of the Senate meetings during the next month, Arnold Greenfield, President of Student Body, will give the annual Presi- dent's Address to the Senate.

TWO GROUPS

The Senate is divided into two groups, the Men's Senate and the Women's Senate. Polly Al- water, Women's Vice-President, presides at sessions where wom- en's problems and viewpoints are discussed.

Men's problems are brought up at the meetings of Men's Senate. Bob Murray, Men's Vice-President, presides at these sessions.

The two divisions come to- aether for the weekly sessions of Student Senate, at which time solutions for these problems are proposed. Minutes at these ses- sions are taken by Gayle Gard- ner, Secretary of the Senate.

Miss Kaminis, the presiding officer of the senate, issued an invitation to all members of the student body to attend the opening session of senate to- morrow, as well as any other weekly session during the year. Several of the senators elected last spring are to be sworn in tomorrow.

"Attending these Senate ses- sions would be a wonderful op- portunity for any freshman or new student at FSU to see their Student Government in action," Miss Kaminis said. "Any person running for office this year would certainly benefit by being present," she added.

FLOOR OPEN

"The senate floor is open to anyone who asks for it," said Miss Kaminis. She encourages students, and particularly fresh- men, to taken an interest in the affairs and workings of student government, by going to the Si nate themselves, or asking their senators to present any ap- peal or complaint they might wish to make.

Miss Kaminis will be in her office, 209 Longmire Building, on week days from 2 until 3 p.m.

Anyone planning to run for an office this year is advised by Miss Kaminis to first con- sider the responsibility and size of the job, and the nto weigh it with the time and ability re- quired to do that job well.

"Don't run for the sake of holding an office," she warns. "There is more to it than that. A lot of hard work is involved in holding any student govern- ment position."

Class officer elections and sen- ator elections will be held with- in the next month at a time des- ignated by the Secretary of Elections, Joan Harmon. In- formation concerning these elec- tions will be published in the FLAMBEAU.

Senior Black Books Remain On Sale

Senior Black Books, containing all the vital information needed by graduating seniors, will be on sale this week.

Seniors are urged to pick up their books at the Westcott ticket office as early as possible.

Barbara Chambers, senior class acal chairman, told the FLAMBEAU. "The Black Book contains the information on senior activities and graduation requirements."

She urged all seniors to obtain a one "in order to know what's going on during the year."

Tally-Ho Looking For Staffers

There will be a meeting to- night for persons interested in joining the Tally-Ho staff, accord- ing to Editor Evie Morris.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Tully-Ho office, fourth floor Longmire. No experience is necessary, Miss Morris said.

NEW FOREIGN STUDENT ADVISOR. Miss Joan Guthridge, recently appointed as Foreign Student Advisor and Counselor to Student Organizations. She is a former Danforth Foundation graduate student.

Officials Will Enforce Traffic Laws

University officials promised to enforce "with no exceptions" tighter traffic and parking regulations which go into effect on the campus yesterday.

Gerald O. Joner, assistant to the business manager and the man directly in charge of traffic, asked townspeople and others driving into the campus, to use, when possible, the frinae parking areas like those at Call and Copeland streets, and at the sti- dent center.

ISSUE TICKETS

Beginning Monder morning, the campus police have been in- structed to issue tickets for all violations listed in the new cam- pus regulations," he said. "Traf- fic regulations apply to everyone with no exceptions."

Any student can obtain a com- plete list of these regulations in Mr. Jones' office, 104 Westcott.

There are no major changes in the handling of traffic on the campus but parking is being tightened up more than ever.

NO STORAGE

"Blue area parking is restrict- ed to two hour limits and is not in- tended to serve as storage area for students or staff," he said. "Everyone is ask-d to cooperate by planning ahe-d, parking out- side the designated area, and as- sisting in carrying out the new regulations.

"It has become necessary that individual reserved parking areas be more curtailed. Only employees required to live on campus or severely handicapped students can be considered. Fac- ulty reasserving garnet and gold stickers are requ-red to expire the ir utility for reserved fac- ulty lots provided."

LOADING ZONES

Jone- added that loading zones may be used only for that pur- pose. Car remaining more than 10 minutes unaccompanied and not in the actual process of loading and unloading will be issued violation tickets.

Cheerleaders Choose Two

Peggy Sue Glasscock, freshman, and Don Chamberlin, junior trans- fer student from St. Petersburg Junior College, were chosen the new FSU cheerleaders Saturday in the Music Amphitheater.

Competion closely along with forty-two others, Miss Glasscock and Mr. Chamberlin's pep and en- thusiasm, appearance, poise and personal appearance most impressed the judges who were Dr. Dorothy Carr, school of Geso of ment; Miss Elizabeth Lynn, assistant dean of women; Mr. Troy Odum, head freshman football coach; Mr. Al Yates, pres- dent of the Seminole Booster Club; Jim Soles, FSU graduate; and Jim Julian, head Seminole cheerleader.

A cheerleaders' life will be nothing new to Miss Glasscock as elementary education major who cheered for high school team mates. Auburndale High.

Mr. Chamberlin, on the other hand, has had only one cheer- leading experience, as he was al- ways busy as athletes at Clear- ter Hig- School. Tha social science major is a Pi Kappa Al- pha.

Other finalists were Charlene Berla, Texie Ann Larsoo, and Jean Harts.

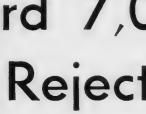
The two new members of the cheering squad will journey to the fans at the Furman game Sa- turday night.

'Signals Sets Content Changes Four Issues Are Planned

Smoke Signals, the campus bi- mo- nthly magazine, has decided to undergo changes in content.

Arlieda Rias, the magazine's editor, is planning to publish four issues. If printing agreements are completed before differdtiate can be avoided, the first should be out in November, she said.

BALANCED MAG



Each issue is to have a balanced presentation combining cartoons, feature articles, and humor stories, according to Miss Rias.

Head Layout Editor Mila Brady stated that the staff is working overtime in order to increase the publication's popular appeal.

Smoke Signals was the center of a ma- jor controversy last year when Marcelo Trumi, last year's editor, and Miss Rias locked horns in a Board of S-dent Publications ba- ble involving content of last year's fourth edition, which came out the week before school ended.

In resolving the dispute, last year's and this year's staffs col- laborated on the issue in an effort to widen the variety of material in- cluding pin-ups, campus-produc- tion fiction, and articles of more general interest.

The magazine is financed by the school and is distributed without charge to students.

DOES EN STAND FOR ENGLISH OR EDUCATION?
Two rats contemplate the futility of it all at registration.

Marching Chiefs Hail Frosh In 1957 Debut

In a salute to Florida State University's lowly freshmen, the Marching Chiefs, under the direction of Manley R. Whitcomb, began their 1957 season in Doak S. Campbell stadium, Saturday.

Carrying the theme of freshmo week and all of its problems throughout the show, the band performed as half-time before the large crowd assembled for the FSU-Furman football tilt.

Forming a bush rat cap on the field, the band played the "Wash- ington and Lee Swing," as all fresh- men sang their apocalypse.

Rapidly moving into another for- mation the Chiefs depicted a freshman brain at work during Orientation Week as they played music which accompanies a pop- ular TV quiz program. At the end of the selection the "brain" ex- ploded and white smoke rose to the laughter of the crowd.

PLENTY OF NOTHING

"I've Got Plenty of Nothing" was the theme of the next formation which showed a cash register at the close of registration. Mayor- ettes, led by Jackie Hailey, per- formed inside the machine.

"Sorry, No Vacancy," in the university could the new dormito- ries are built, reported the Chiefs as they formed a seminole teepee accompanied by "Standing on the Corner."

An Esky Face with shifty eyes was the next formation. The band pantomimed the upper class-MEN surveying the new freshman material.

"Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me" accompanied the action.

10TH ANNIVERSARY

In a salute to Joe College at the tenth anniversary of FSU as a co-educational university, the Marching Chiefs formed the out- line of a college student with a crew-cut and played "Sooo Heart- ed Men" and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

Robert M. Strozier, new uni- versity president, was welcomed to the campus by the band when they played "Getting to Know You."

A four leaf clover and the word "Tom," saluting Tom Nugent, FSU football coach, the fight song, and Alma Mater completed the program.

Flying Seminoles are B Ca- roll and Ted Sakuris. Associate director is Robert Beausagel; ar- ranger, Charles Carter, and drum major, Terry Johnson. Phil Per- sey served as announcer for the evening.

Cap And Gown Orders Taken

Seniors should place their or- ders for caps and gowns as soon as possible, according to Mr. James Wheeler, manager of the University Bookstore.

In order to have the academic regalia in time for senior inves- titure on October 22, orders must be in to the company by Oc- tober 2.

Seniors may place their or- ders at the University Bookstore any time before that date.

A $15 deposit will be required before ordering.

723 Girls Seeking 361 Places In Sorority Rush This Week

Seven hundred twenty-three girls will be going through sorority rush this week, reported Ann Kelly, president of Pan-Hellenic Council. There are 361 available places.

Rush parties, which will begin with formal receptions on Thurs- day and Friday nights, will con- tinue through Monday. Each rushee will go to six houses Thursday and ten on Friday.

There will be five invitational parties on Saturday, but rushees may not go to any house more than once. Opportunity to visit the houses for dinner will be offered on Sunday and Monday.

PICK UP BIDS

Preferences may be signed from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday. Bids must be picked up between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Wed- nesday, and pledging may begin anytime after 5 p.m. on that day." Miss Kelly said.

"One thing I hope they'll un- derstand is that they'll pick up bids and sign preferentials in the Pan-Hellenic office on the fourth floor of Longmire," she added.

Invitations, however, are re- ceived on the second floor of Longmire in the auditorium.

NO DEAD DAY

Sorority girls are not to wear their pins to religious student houses, double-date with fresh- men, or converse with them un- necessarily. Only a greeting is allowed. However, there will be no "dead day" again this year.

For the girls who do not pledge this time, there will be an in- formal rush later in the fall. Registration begins on October 28. There will be only three parties, all of which will be on Sunday, November 3, according to the Pan-Hellenic president.

Phi Chi Theta Meets Tomorrow

Phi Chi Theta, business frat- ernity for women, will meet to- morrow at 6 p.m. in the Long- mire Student Lounge.

All members are urged to at- tend, according to Charlotte Abney, president.

Applications Total 7603, 2343 Frosh

A record 7,054 students were on hand this week for the beginning of classes.

Late registrations are expected to swell the total considerably be- fore Oct. 1, according to Charles H. Walker, registrar.

Applications for admission to FSU totaled 7,603, with 549 rejec- tions listed.

"There were many others who were rejected for one reason or another, who did not pursue their applications to completion," Wal- ker added.

There were 2,343 applications from prospective freshmen, 1,140 from transfers, 538 from new graduate students, and 69 applica- tions from new foreign students.

MEN OUTNUMBER WOMEN

Men outnumbered women on the basis of the new registration figures, 3,733 to 3,321. This does not include the off-campus regis- trations in the bookstrap and ex- tension service operations.

Many students failed to com- plete the application processing due to the tight housing situation on campus and in Tallahassee, Walker said.

The total student registration was boosted this week by the registration of commuting stu- dents and Tallahassee residents who are taking night classes.

Commuters come to FSU from as far away as Marianna, Fla., and several south Georgia com- munities for night classes.

STROZIER ON SIZE

This marks the first year un- der the administration of the new FSU president, Dr. Robert M. Strozier.

Dr. Strozier commented on the size of the university in his in- augural address to the faculty earlier this month.

Indicating that criticism of a large university could not be based on its size alone, Dr. Stro- zier said, "Size, in my opinion is irrelevant if the important mat- ters of the university are proper- ly handled.

"I have known some small col- leges which are too large," he added, "and some large ones which are exemplary."

LIKES SMALL CLASSES

Dr. Strozier expressed, in his address, a dislike for the large class that is conducted only on a lecture basis. "Were we to con- duct our classes solely by lec- tures," he said, "then we might as well disregard the size of classes. I hope we do not."

"I hope," he went on, "that we find in the classroom the op- portunity to develop and mature the latent talents of the young; and through discussion and lec- ture, we make the class room a living situation in which everyone has a part."

FSU Film Series Resumes Tonight

The university will resume its popular film program tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the lecture hall of the new library.

Free and open to students, the films will be shown, commented upon by a member of the depart- ment to which they apply, dis- cussed by the audience, and voted upon. Those accepted will be added to the FSU audio- visual library.

Dr. Otis McBride, director of the FSU audio-visual center, said, "This week's presentation will offers 'Not by Chance,' which emphasizes the need for skilled preparation in teacher training, and 'Devil's Island, USA,' the story of Fort Jeffer- son on one of the Florida Keys."

The weekly series will include films on history, art, science, guidance, theatrical arts, litera- ture and history, and social studies.

The Florida Flambeau
★ State's Best College Editorial Page, 1957 ★

Flambeau Policy

There are certain values every newspaper strives for in its editorial policy. So too does the college press. Although its needs may vary, the purpose remains the same: to produce a mercurious publication which informs, influences and entertains its readers.

The Florida Flambeau is an All American college newspaper. We hope to keep our standards high and remain in that category, but retaining that honor will not be our prime concern. We pledge ourselves instead, to publishing a paper which meets the needs of the college community, as well as one which is outstanding according to the rating of national judges.

Therefore, our policy must be two-fold. Its traditional aims and values must not falter, but we pledge to keep in perspective our primary job: covering the college news field. This includes stories of interest to faculty, parents, alumni, and special students such as those married or living off campus, in addition to the regular student body.

Many new additions are planned in this line for the Flambeau this year. Our Society Section is being expanded and we plan to print wedding, engagement, pinning, and birth announcements. A veteran's column will also be added. These and more features and special stories about students are planned for the newspaper.

Our editorial page will continue to strive for the quality and excellence which won it the Florida Society of Editors' award as the state's best in 1957. Constructive criticism will be welcome as will praise when warranted. We hope to retain the vigorous and controversial editorial page as in the past and will also welcome participation from the student body through discussion in columns and letters-to-the-editor.

This is where our policy will remain the same. To quote from the 1956-57 statement of policy, "We intend to consider all questions of public importance. To call this form of journalistic Afghanistanism in which matters on the local scene are neglected is to err. Whether of national, international, or campus nature, the Flambeau will discuss it, feeling sure of an audience which will comment accordingly. Campus issues will be our primary concern, however.

We will strive to bring before the students though our editorials and columns every shade of opinion so that they may have the responsibility of disseminating the facts. Column contributions will be accepted without regard to the opinion expressed, but rather with regard to quality, although we hope to present a well rounded variety of opinion.

To quote again from the 1956-57 policy, "We pledge avoidance to attacks on individuals, though we shall not be reluctant to take up the actions of our public officials."

This involves the fundamental ethics of good journalism and the principles set forward by the Board of Student Publications, established two years ago. The Board issued a "statement of principle" which is interpreted to give the Flambeau complete editorial freedom as long as the editors maintain responsibility for material published.

It declares that "Rightfully or wrongfully, Florida State University is held accountable by the general public for everything that appears in campus publications" . . . thus, the publications must "reflect the high aims and good character of the institution."

However, the board added to the principles and underlined the following, "The widest degree of possible latitude should be provided to student editors for the free discussion of current issues and problems subject to their consideration."

We feel this independence, which is so necessary for a college newspaper to attain greatness, is guaranteed by the new administration, and that freedom of the press on the college level will continue. It is so often the college press must succumb to becoming a bulletin board of news with virtually no voice to speak out when criticisms need to be made.

Because previous Flambeaux have been granted freedom of expression and its editors have been given the responsibility for its content, the newspaper has attained a reputation for its liberal, progressive and affirmative editorial views.

This year's Flambeau staff hopes to maintain that reputation, without becoming dogmatic in its policy.

Chiefs Stay—So Does Accl aim For FSU

This week, Florida State takes another big step in its drive to reach the top in the realm of college football when the Seminoles emplane to Boston to face Boston College.

The conduct of the team and accompanying officials will do as much to gain favorable publicity for the school as will the quality of the play on the football field.

However, unlike a similar trip to Philadelphia last year, this time the university is losing an opportunity to gain a lot of favorable publicity.

For we firmly believe that the addition of the Marching Chiefs to the traveling party to Boston would gain immeasurable favorable publicity for the school.

The Chiefs undoubtedly stand as one of the finest marching bands in the nation, and this praise comes not only from this area but from many other places where they have performed.

Last year, fans and sportswriters in Miami and Philadelphia alike acclaimed our band as one of the finest they have ever seen.

Why then are they being left behind when the university seeks to make more friends and fans, this time in Boston?

The answer undoubtedly lies in the lack of immediate funds as it has in preventing the Chiefs from making several trips in the past.

We firmly believe though that the university could make no better investment in publicity than to send the Chiefs to Boston.

It may be too late to do anything about this, but we still believe that the university will make a grave mistake if the Chiefs stay home. — A. W.

Doris Day Miscast As 'Babe'

BY ALAN KASS

The clever ad copy for the new Doris Day picture would lead one to gather an increase in pay, ing Miss Day the lead in his delight of uproarious comedy musical but the same increase a hoarded frets, "The Pajama Game", declares that "Nothing is as much fun as 'The Pajama Game'" Apparently in Tallahassee it surely isn't. Football is!

The gridiron throng drew 36,712 people and the celluloid patrons were nearly as hard to find Saturday night as lover's are in Hernando's Hideaway.

The musical, based on the book "Seven and one half Cents" is little enough. It revolves around petite blond- Grievance Committee leader, Doris Day, of Local 423. Amalgamated Shirt and Pajama Workers of Amer- ca. She is entrusted by her work- Mr. Abbott canceled out in giving mers to gather an increase in pay, ing Miss Day the lead in his comedy "Damn Yankees" since her performance as the lure of slow and fast curves, "left much to be desired."

The comedy aspects needed BEG to help across the laughs. One particular gag that puzzled A Man," round out the gimmicks of popular songs from the show. ser gag with Miss Haney got Chotenauplius was recently made thru the usual careful eye of possible by Bob Fosse.

The big error made was in some gentleman named the fact the casting of Babe (Doris Day), that "the boys are 5 minutes She seemed almost lost in all behind the bottoms".

All in all "The Pajama Game" musical. It seemed that half way thru she just gave up and didn't color and entertainment, and seem to care if her top fitted buttons up as superlative movie nearly with her bottom. In fact, entertainment.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler The Iconoclast

"AN ON THIS PLAY IS RUNG TH' BALL AROUND HIS OWN RIGHT END"

Wonder What Ike Said At Newport . . .

By DON HAYES

The dramatic conference at Newport which took President Eisenhower away from other matters of nation-wide importance seems like a waste of a good day. I wonder what they talked about. . . .

The failure of the President to firmly uphold the decision of a Federal judge should not surprise anyone. During the past session of Congress, he erected and vacillated on every major part of his legislative program from the school bill to the budget.

AS A RESULT, the accomplishments of this Congress rival that of the "do nothing" 80th Congress of Truman's administration. The President just has not been the chief executive that this nation has a right to expect and I don't believe he lacks the ability.

How then has he retained his tremendous personal popularity? He hasn't with members of his own party in Congress when opposed it, diluted the admiration program as much or more with Democrats, many of whom were merely playing politics in their opposition.

OF COURSE, IKE is still personally popular. He doesn't suss music online—I never criticize anyone." He goes to church and afterward says philosophically, "You can't legislate morality."

In discussing Fiu vaccine, the Chief Executive says that he won't be vaccinated until the vaccine is "available for ordinary people". With the side effects and favorable press the man who came out of World War II as a "shining knight" in the country-men, hasn't found it difficult to maintain his personal popularity with the rank and file voters.

Actually, Eisenhower seems to reflect the attitude of a person who is rather bored with his job. His almost complete reliance on executive assistants for both information and advice is pathetic, however capable they may be.

The action of Governor Faubus in calling out the Arkansas National Guard to keep Negroes from entering Little Rock's Central High School will not prevent integration there.

FOR THIS REASON it is not the sort of action deserving of complimentary telegrams, etc. The cause of segregationists would have been better served if, in addition to using the Guard as he did, he had (1) denied that the Supreme Court ruling was this Law of the Land (2) opposed integration personally or (3) refused to accept the Federal Court injunction.

Such a stand conceivably could have forced the Federal court to relax its ruling to some degree. Political ambition is sometimes a tempting desire.

THINGS THAT MAKE ME HAPPY: The thumping electoral victory of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his Christian Democratic party in Western Germany. The court order which at this time has thrown a block in front of Dave Moffa at all their drive for continued domination of the Teamsters' Union.

Old Seminole Spirit Came From Flasks

BY NANCY GENE BROWN

I went to a real college football game once. I was rather young at the time, and before the game ended I was very sleepy, so I don't recall much about the event, except that my cousin was in the game and we were there to see him play.

THERE WERE lots and lots of people in winter coats, and some girls wearing short skirts and white sweaters and they were all around, jumping up and down and screaming, down on the field. It was a big green field as you know, and the players were pegged pants and had numbers on their shirts.

All of a sudden a whistle blew and the boys ran away, but I didn't mind because then a big band came out on the field. I liked the music.

THEN THEY left, the players came back. My daddy pointed to one of them, wearing a 3 and a 9 on his back, who was running down the field with all these other boys after him. It was my cousin Bobby, and he had stolen this funny ball and they were playing with. They didn't catch Bobby till he stopped running when he got to this big white post, and by this time everybody around us was standing up, screaming like mad.

This occasion from my hazy memory dates back to me as I noted the apparent apathy at the Furman game Saturday night. Everybody yelled at that other college game. Yelling at football games seems to be a popular pastime on campuses elsewhere around the nation.

BUT WHAT happened here? True, Miss Furman's cheerleaders have been more exciting. But perhaps greater support from the east stands could have brought about a corresponding increase in action on the field.

The Boy Scout contingent in the end zone put the "loyal, ardent" Seminole fans to shame. Even the freshmen seemed to be timid, and few waved their Red caps. Perhaps they feared the iron hand of the Sludge Squad, or that they would be ostracized by their silent upperclassmen superiors, if they dared to see in the football mood."

NO ONE SEEMED particularly interested in the intangible entity known as school spirit. But a spectator sport is nothing if not intangible. It is a type of spirits literally transported to the stadium in flasks.

The singing of the National Anthem aroused about as much enthusiasm as the season's final touchdown. Our energetic cheerleaders seemed destined to perform solos on the sidelines. However, viewed disinterestedly by an apathetic student body in the stands

WE HOPE THIS is not the case for there is an awakening of the sleeping giant that populates the stadium at gametime. We hope it occurs before the heralded conflict with the University of Florida on November 23, 1958.

When a few more Seminoles wake up and let out some genuine war whoop, we'll have school spirit. Then we'll have a real football game at FSU.

Add Students To Inflation Ladder

BY L. A. HESTER

Weary from a summer's rest I have humbly returned to once again pursue battle with the mightiest of all dragons called education. That old clap trap saying that wisdom can't be bought may still be true, but I defy Athena herself to storm that venerable enigma called the college campus without an inexhaustified wallet; it can't be bought, but you sure can't acquire it for nothing either.

I READ IN THE paper where Eisenhower's caddy, Hagerty, said that the ninth hole stop-overs while he is attending the Newport affair to be called high level economic conferences between the President and the Powers That Be on tha forboding subject of inflation.

Maybe we should form a committee of three and elect a chairman to be sent with an eloquent plea for the plight of us poor college slobs.

INFLATION IS HARDLY the word for what has been going on here in our own little domain of FSU. Off anyone guessing (if you can call some of the places for rent housing) has easily surpassed the haight records of anything the Air Force has been able to produce, inspite of rents almost equal Russian propaganda claims of what their missiles can do.

An economic professor might call it supply and demand. I call it robbery.

Eating prices have increased about 20 per cent. Creeping capitalism has grabbed off our school food services; gone forever is the Soda Shop's bottomless five-cent cup of coffee and how my tummy yearns for a five-cent ice-cream cone.

EVEN A STOP at the newsstand requires more money. The Atlantic Monthly is up to 60 cents from 50 cents. The New York Times' s day edition is up a dime to 25 cents; the s doesn't affect me as I don't read papers w out funnies.

If you happen to be a motorist one at the gas pump will maye you a hiking enth last. And if you decide to ride the bus, tha has increased 50 cents in price the past ye walk a minute, discount that last one. Th integration not inflation, either.

OH, DON'T dispair; I'm just beginn A stop at the bookstore and five books las was $35 shorter; I did get a bargain, though second hand book for only $5.48. Oh yeah can sell 'em for poundage at the end of semester.

But if I sound pessimistic, there is thing that I can think of that inflation not affected, and that's my 75 cents an hou a student assistant. I'm just hoping that don't end that either or seeing a memorandu professors last year to keep the lights off daytime classes.

ON MY NEAR suicidal trip around the ply and demand curve I was told that in inf tion a sort of balance existed with those at top benefitting and those on the bottom s ering the top, slowly sinking into the Anyway tha ladder went: big business, a labor, unskilled labor, white collar workers a last came pensioners.

I propose that we instruct the sharp of our committee, who as you remember is go to represent us at Newport, to demand, by rounds of mineral water, that still one m thing should be added to the depths of ou dastardly ladder, and that's us po' po' colle students.

I Declare

FSU Proud Parents Of Jet Plane

BY RAY HEMANN

THE BOLT OUT OF THE BLUE DEPARTMENT: Several months or so ago a telephone rang on the bill of Westcott and the school official answering the call was confronted with a conversation similar to this:

"I HAVE YOUR airplane out here at the airport."

"What airplane?"

"The jet plane the Air Force is giving FSU."

"The what?" . . . "What on earth is FSU going to do with a jet?"

"I don't know, but it's yours now."

"Well take it back we don't want it."

"I can't, it requires 10,000 feet of runway to get off the ground and the longest one Tallahassee has is 6,000 feet. It's yours now. I'm going back to Tuscon, Arizona, right now. Goodby."

With that, the telephone conversation ended and Westcott became owner of one 1,000 lb. $400,000.00 F-84 reconaissance type jet plane, complete with loaded ejector seat, canopy and wing tanks.

AFTER ALL THE smoke had settled and the shock had been cleared into the whys and wherefores of the deal it was found that the Air Force was assigning some of its obsolete aircraft to certain ROTC units in the country for training aides. Just why our school was selected is a matter of some concern as it is, but if you go down to the ROTC building there she is!

To Heck With Class

Little Amos Makes First Decision

BY BOB SIMMONS

It seems that at least one time during his stay at this place of knowledge, a student is required to make a decision taking a great deal of serious contemplation to complete.

Little Amos Provodos made his shortly after classes started last week.

WHILE DILIGENTLY working his way from West Hall to his d o'clock remedial English class on campus, he was met with an almost insurmountable problem: a Florida State University water fountain standing in the walkway.

Being a freshman he undoubtedly could not approach the situation with aplomb of an upperclassman for fear that he was shook. Badly.

THE TIME WAS about five until eight. This complicated the problem.

He had to make a decision as to how he could maneuver about this mechanical demon lurking in the water either to go over the top or get around it on one side or the other in acceptable condition.

Then Little Amos took a seat on the curb beside the walkway and began to ponder the many aspects of the matter.

He could go around it.

IT WOULD BE possible to try leaping the infernal contraption and walk over it. But he would arrive sogey and might contract a case of the Asiatic flu bug.

Conceivably he might walk around the spray firing area and then hotfoot it to class. But the time was now two until eight and it is more than three blocks—almost all uphill—to the Dem School. And if he arrived late, Little Amos knew, he would be faced by an angry prof for some reason, when his excuse is a good one, the opening sons, the long faced dispenser knowledge get a mad on.

THESE THINGS took hold of the very soul of Little Amos, who was a man to take serious contemplation, and a warm little body trembled so hard that a "Business in the ABC's" text fell on the ground.

"Oh, my God," he thought, "all my years I have happened a year from now when I be taking logic. Or maybe when I was wearing diapers."

Sweat broke out on his forehead as other students began to file on the opposite side of the walk on to class with wet feet.

OUR LITTLE HERO was frozen to spot by indecision.

Then calling up all the moral reserve from his strained frame he rose and took a step ahead as though a light from deep within had lighted it.

Little Amos had made his first decision.

He turned to the west and with firm, resolute steps began to execute the decisional edict. Soon he was back in his warm little concrete nest affectionately decorated with the latest edition from Playboy and Esquire.

"What the heck," thought Little Amos philosophically, "tomorrow's always another day. Besides it's too nice a day to waste in classes!"

Nine Rules Set To Improve Frats

In answer to the question, "Just what is a fraternity and what does it put its responsibility", Fraternity Scholastic Chairmen at the Workshop Conference Committee after the following suggestions:

1. POST MARKS on the fraternity bulletin board. Although some felt that this is touchy business, others said this was a policy of their own fraternity and that it helped to promote incentive.

2. Set aside some quiet part of the house as a general study room to which a person can go if he wishes to be undisturbed.

3. ESTABLISH DEFINITE study hours and rules regarding such things as radio playing, bull sessions, etc. It would be a experience that requiring quiet from 7:30 p.m. to 9 a.m. was the most effective.

Hurricane Out Of Wind, FSU Wins, 27-7

Can't Tell Yet

Although the Seminoles made their initial game of the 1957 season a winning one, it's still hard to tell what kind of a team we have.

The game, far from a rip-roaring, slam-bang affair most of the 20,000 plus fans expected, turned out to be slow moving and quite dull.

However, it undoubtedly showed Coach Nugent what he has and what he hasn't.

From here it looks like the big switch of moving a left halfback to quarterback will work this year with Renn as it did last year with all-American Lee Corso.

Renn is, undoubtedly, one of the finest runners in the South, and the key man in the Seminole backfield.

And, although he didn't throw the long pass Saturday night, he did complete four passes, one for a touchdown.

DON'T JUDGE YET

One of the toughest things for a quarterback to master is passing with a wet football, and for this reason, fans and reporters alike must be slow to render a final judgment as to Renn's passing ability.

For another thing, it's hard to tell about his signal-calling as the plays were frequently broken-up by the sight of a red handed symbol lying upon the ground.

Continual penalties against a team, (Florida State had 172 yards marched off against them) forces the quarterback to change his plan in order to get back the yardage quickly.

So we'll just have to wait to form an definite opinion. Maybe next week's game with Boston College will throw more light on the subject.

Switching over to the line, Florida State has two great ends! That's the only word to describe Ron Schomberger and Bob Williams.

The best in the South.

Neiluma, the big, rawboned senior, looks like he's out to lead the Tribe in scoring again this season as he did last year.

ASSIST FROM SCHOMBURGER

The sure-fingered end picked up two touchdowns, one of them as a gift from his running mate, Schomburger.

Everyone saw Neiluma fall on the pigskin in the Furman end zone after a bad pass from center. But not many fans spotted the guy who shoved the ball loose from Furman halfback Charlie Tinder with a vicious body block.

I think Schomberger should be given half the points on that one.

The other really strong spot in the Tribe's forward wall is at center which is handled very capably by the veteran Troy Barnes.

He's always there when you need him. It should be interesting when Barnes faces Vester Newcombe, Miami's all-American center candidate.

CASTELZ SAYS

Bill Kastelz, sports editor of the Florida Times Union, a member of the press box brigade Saturday, concurred that "It's hard to tell about FSU yet.

Nugent ran his units into the game so frequently that one doesn't know what he's got."

But "the first unit looked good. Renn's got the head for quarterback. He's deceptive and a hell of a runner.

Florida State will be a very interesting team to watch this season.

We agree with him it will be interesting.

THAT OL' SCHOOL SPIRIT

After speaking with some of the freshmen and even graduate students, I find that they were disappointed more in our school spirit than they were in the game.

They were used to rooting the stands and yelling their lungs out, neither of which they did.

My reply could have been it saves the vocal chords, but I was forced to agree with them that the spirit is below par.

There have been columns written on this subject before and undoubtedly will again in the future, but the answer can only come from one place.

And that's the students themselves.

NOT QUITE, CHARLIE. Seminole quarterback Bobby Renn (15) eludes the grasp of Furman's Charlin Linder as he picks up yardage in the third quarter of Saturday's opening football game. Renn guided the Tribe to a 27-7 victory.

Renn Guides Seminoles To Season's First Victory

By JOE GREENE

It didn't take long for Florida State to find out that Coach Tom Nugent's Seminoles are loaded for bear this year, and the bear they were loaded for turned out to be Furman's Purple Hurricanes as FSU marched to a 27-7 victory in its opening game.

Seminoles in the stands didn't have long to wait to see this year's scoring potentiality as quarterback Bobby Renn shot 34 yards into paydirt the first time FSU touched the ball.

One of 18 penalties which cost the Seminoles 172 yards killed the score but left the fans satisfied.

The second quarter proved to be the ballgame as FSU struck pay-dirt three times in a matter of 18 minutes to build up a 20-point margin that crushed any hopes that Furman's coach Homer Hobbs may have had for a upset.

Taking shots at the Furman forward wall with backs like Renn, Freddy Pickard and Billy Weaver plus throwing to ends like Ron Schomburger and Bob Neiluma was just too much for the hapless Hurricane defense.

The combined aerial and running attacks stalled Furman for a total of 439 yards, of which 274 was gained on the ground.

Renn filled the quarterbacking shoes for the Seminoles admirably and halfback Pickard, a 161 pound sophomore, turned in a terrific performance as he picked up 79 yards in the carries to become FSU's leading ground gainer.

FSU's first score came on the second play of the second quarter when Renn put the finishing touches on an 80-yard drive with a one yard plunge for the touchdown.

The next touchdown came six plays later on a Furman blunder. Neiluma scored the touchdown on a bad pass from center as the pass back went over a Furman man's head in the end zone.

Minutes later, Ted Rodrigue connected with Clare Bagnell for 33 yards and the Seminoles had a 20-0 lead.

Furman bounced back and scored with less than three minutes remaining in the first half on a 13-yard pass play from quarterback Bill Baker to end Ray Siminski.

The Seminoles scored one more in the second half on a fourth down 2 yard pass from Renn to Neiluma in the end zone. It culminated an 87 yard drive that saw Pickard, Weaver, and Renn circle the ends for 40, 22, and 11 yards respectively.

According to Homer Hobbs, Renn completely embarrasses the most pain with his end runs.

Three Future Opponents Win

Saturday was whitewash day for some of Florida State's football opponents as the 1957 gridiron season picked up steam.

Only three future foes broke into the win column as North Carolina State's Wolfpack set Jim Tatum's North Carolina Tar Heels back on their heels with a 7-0 upset victory.

The Wolfpack will be the next home opponent for Florida State on October 12.

In perhaps the closest battle of the day, Virginia Tech, favorites to nop the Southern Association crown nipped the Green Wave of Tulane, 14-13 at New Orleans.

Mississippi Southern managed to nose out Louisiana Tech, 2-0 Saturday in an away game for the Southerners.

Florida State's next opponent, Boston College, was swamped by Navy, 46-6. The Eagles only score came on a 95-yard pass play.

Villanova's Wildcats, who host the Tribe October 5, in Philadelphia held Baylor to a 7-0 victory. The Bears were a three touchdown favorite.

Tampa, the team that FSU closes out its season with, also drew a goose-egg as they were beaten by VMI, 7-0.

Perhaps the biggest upset was the 7-0 win by Houston over Miami's Hurricanes Saturday night in Houston, Texas.

Abilene Christian which comes to Tallahasser on the 19th of October, had its game with East Texas State postponed because of a flooded football field.

The Auburn Tigers were idle.

Intramural Meeting On Tap Tomorrow

All men's organizations interested in intramurals should send a representative to the first intramural board meeting tomorrow night in the men's gymnasium, at 6 p.m.

No room has been selected as yet but coach Keith Pritchford will be there to arrange things. The main order of business will be discussion of the year's schedule.

Veteran Center Troy Barnes Rated Forward Wall Mainstay

BY JOAN GORSKI

A rugged three-season veteran, standing 6-2, and weighing 190 with a liking for rough defensive work is a way to describe Troy Barnes the mainstay center for Florida State this season.

Barnes is rated by Tribe coach Tom Nugent as one of the most reliable men on the field at all times. He has played the pivot spot for all three years of his college career.

Barnes played tackle for four years at Murphy High in Chickasaw, Ala. He was named to the all-city team in his senior year.

Entered In 1952

In the fall of 1952, Barnes entered FSU on a scholarship. During his freshman and sophomore years he saw limited action in the Tribe forward wall.

The call of Uncle Sam broke up Barnes' college career in 1954. While in the army he played for two years as a tackle for the Golden Arrows later called the Eagles.

During his service football career he receiving a trophy for playing in the first Shrine game at Charleston, S. C.

The Alabama product returned to FSU in 1955. After starting out at the tackle position Barnes was converted to center and according to Nugent, has done a great job there ever since."

Biggest Thrill

Barnes claims his biggest thrill was playing in the FSU win over Mississippi Southern in 1956. In that game the Seminoles slipped by the Southerners, 20-16.

The big center was labeled as an outstanding performer both offensively and defensively in that game.

Barnes said "this year's team is the greatest we've ever had at the University."

He added that "the boys have a lot of spirit and confidence and the season could be nothing but great."

Barnes is an insurance and real estate major. He a member of the Alpha Kappa Psi business fraternity.

Artist Series Slates Broadway Musical

A rich offering of opera, musical comedy, drama and the dance is on the program for the coming season at FSU.

And, as in past years, residents of Tallahassee the Big Bend and southern Georgia will join FSU students in filling Westcott auditorium and Opperman music hall.

Four features have already been booked by the special events office, two of them featuring Broadway casts.

First a Christmas presentation in early December, will be Gian Carlo Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors," which will be shown in a children's matinee as well as an evening production.

BROADWAY HIT

The Broadway hit musical comedy "Not Time for Sergeants" is on the play-bill for February, along with the Detroit Symphony. Then later in the spring, Jennie Nourel, metro-soprano, will appear in recital.

Last year, 895 off-campus tickets were sold for artist series productions, and many of these were purchased by Tallahasseans.

Because of limited seating capacity, the university authorities first make tickets to events available to students. A few days before an event, remaining seats are offered to the public.

LIGHT OPERA

Production of FSU's own Light Opera Guild are also enjoyed annually by residents of the area, and during last season approximately 1,000 seats were occupied by residents of Leon County along with Quincy, Bainbridge, Chattahoochee and Thomasville.

Plans are already underway for the guild's first production "Oklahoma" in early December.

The first of several recitals scheduled by the faculty of the FSU music school will be Sept. 27, featuring a string trio composed of Robert Sedore, Owen Sellers and Miss Mary Winslow.

HILYER CONCERT

Then, Oct. 4, Edward Kilenyi will present a piano concert Oct. 11, Anna Kaskas, former metropolitan opera star, and a new member of the music school faculty, will appear in recital.

These faculty recitals, always popular with townspeople and students alike, are free and open to the public.

Four theater productions will again be given by the FSU speech department during the season. Some 1,275 adults, including a large popula; productions which included "Sabrina Fair" and a political satire, "The Bugger They Come," by Dr. Ernest Bourman of the FSU Speech Department.

A spring attraction will be by the Theater Dance Group, and more than the 336 townspeople who saw the event last spring are expected to be on hand to see the original dance program by FSU students and faculty.

Then, there'll be the big Gymkana Show in the fall, and the circus in the spring.

And throughout the year, there'll be lots of free events such as the Christmas production of Handel's "Messiah," and programs by the men's and women's choral groups.

Each Thursday there's a preview showing of educational films being considered for purchase by the FSU Library. The public is invited to come and help make the selections.

Homecoming Queen Vote Set Oct. 15

Crowning of the 1957 Homecoming Queen will highlight this year's Homecoming activities.

The queen will be chosen by popular vote of the student body. She will be crowned at the Pow Wow on Friday, Oct. 25.

Voting for preliminary election of five candidates to compose the Queen's court will be held in Westcott Hall, Tuesday, Oct. 15.

The Queen will receive her trophy at the Homecoming dance held Saturday night, and will reign at the remaining FSU football games.

Any organized group may sponsor a sophomore, junior, or senior co-ed, who has been enrolled in FSU one semester, and has retained a two point average or better.

Application blanks may be secured in the Dean of Women's office in Longmire building.

The name of the contestant and sponsoring group must be turned into the Longmire information desk on or before 5:00, Ullrich, president.

Graduates Slate Fall Picnic

The Graduate Class of FSU will hold its annual fall picnic at the University reservation next Friday, September 27.

Tickets to he box dinner affair, which will begin at 5 p.m., are now on sale in the Westcott Building for $1.00 each.

Other social events planned by the 900-member graduate class are a square dance, November 15; a Christmas dance December 7; a Valentine social, February 14, an Easter egg hunt, March 29; and a spring dance, April 12.

In addition, a 30 coffee hours are scheduled for five successive Thursdays starting October 3.

Home Ec Club Schedules Picnic

The Home Economics Club will hold its annual picnic tomorrow on the patios of the Home Economics Building at 5:30 p.m. The picnic will include hot dogs, potato salad baked beans, pickles, ice tea, and ice cream.

Tickets are on sale now at the Home Economics Building. The cost is 50 cents, said Barbara

No Epidemic Here, Says Infirmary Chief

Heavy Influx Of 'Flu' Patients Typical For Time Of Year

By NANCY GENE BROWN

A heavy influx of clinic patients has hit the University Hospital during the past several days, but there is "no epidemic," according to Mr. Hinton F. Bevis, hospital administrator.

"We have had a marked increase since September 21 of URIs —upper respiratory infections," Bevis said. But this fact follows a pattern of an annual increase in this sors of ailment, usually the latter part of October or first of November," he added.

"It seems to be short in duration—around 24 to 48 hours," he told the Flambeau. Hospital physicians feel that it is a type of flu, and we are working with the Leon County Health Department to determine what type it is."

NOT ALARMED

We feel there is no cause for alarm. We have nothing at the present time that we have not had in previous years," Bevis declared.

In the majority of cases, illness is not serious enough to warrant hospital care. In these instances, excused absences from class are granted to those wishing to stay at home, according to Dean of Students R. P. Calleby.

Medication is issued to them from the Hospital, he added, and bed rest is encouraged. If further complications set in, they should return to the hospital.

Around 200 students a day have received medication for the illness. At this time, 35 to 40 persons are hospitalized, Bevis said. "Prime attention at the hospital may take a little longer at this time, but please wait to see a doctor," he added.

Meanwhile to avoid contagion, "Take care of yourself, and get plenty of rest," he emphasized.

The situation is well in hand," Dean Calleby declared. "The infection is uncomfortable, but not dangerous. The cases have been reasonably mild, even in contagion, considering the large number of students."

Registration For Tally-Ho Will Reopen

Seniors Can Still Schedule Pictures

By CHARLET POTEVINT
Flambeau Editor

Registration for the 1958 Tally-Ho will be reopened in about two weeks, Evie Morris, editor, announced this week.

Only seniors will be allowed to register late for picture appointments. However, other students may sign up for the book she said.

A registration desk will be placed in Westcott Lobby for this purpose.

Students who do not register for the Tally-Ho or have their pictures made will not receive a book," stressed Miss Morris.

A fee of $1 will be charged to students desiring a book, while a fee of $2 will be charged those wanting their pictures to appear in it.

2,000 SOLD

Approximately 3,000 books and pictures have been sold so far.

The registration period has been extended because the large number of persons wanting to sign up for it during registration could not be accomodated, said the editor.

The method of registering in order to receive a Tally-Ho has been in force for two years. It was designed to eliminate the large surplus of books left at the end of each year by students who did not pay up their fees.

"Although the Tally-Ho is allotted a certain amount of money from student activity fees, it is not enough to produce an adequate publication," Miss Morris asserted.

NOMINAL FEE

"Therefore, we must charge a nominal fee in addition."

When the registration system was not employed in 1956, over 200 books were never picked up, but there are no copies of last year's book left, except those paid for at the beginning of the year, she said.

"The rule will again be rigidly enforced and those students not signing up and paying the fee during registration or the extended period will definitely not be issued Tally-Hos at the end of the year," she said.

Pictures will be taken by appointment on the fourth floor of Longmire Rapsport Studios is contracted to do the job.

Traffic Dept. Asks Student Aid In Parking

The Motor Vehicle Department of Florida State University is seeking the cooperation of all students to help ease the parking problem on campus.

Beginning next week, any vehicle obstructing traffic will be removed by a wrecker. This includes vehicles blocking driveways, disregarding hospital parking zones and spaces reserved for handicapped students.

If any vehicle is missing, students are reckoned to call the Campus Police at 74561 or 78091, before reporting it stolen.

Gerald Jones, head of the traffic department, said, "Parking and traffic is most congested between 8 a m and 5 p.m. weekdays, and is critical on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays."

1235 REGISTERED

The number of cars registered on campus as of Sept. 24 was 1235, and the total is expected to be 2900.

Last year there were 261 freshmen exempted from the freshmen ban on cars, and Mr. Jones estimates the total will be 275 freshmen this year.

Approximately 300 traffic tickets were issued the first few days of this week. The majority were for cars not properly registered, Jones said.

Fines from campus traffic tickets no into the Traffic Fines Account. $1500 will be loaned from this account to be distributed in scholarships for deserving students.

Elections Held Off Until November 5th

When are the senatorial and freshman class elections going to be held?

Joan Harmon, secretary of elections, reported at Tuesday's Student Body President's Cabinet meeting that the elections would be held the first and second Tuesdays in November.

Article X, Section 1C, in the Student Body Constitution states: "All officers to be elected by the vote of the new Freshman Class and senators, other than those elected in the spring Class Elections, shall be elected in the Fall elections, to be held on the third Tuesday following Orientation for the primary; and the fourth Tuesday following Orientation for the final."

Miss Harmon told the Flambeau Wednesday that the elections would definitely be held on the dates she announced in order to have the cabinet meeting.

Students On Advisory Board

Cabinet Tackles Infirmary Problems

The Student Body President's Cabinet Tuesday tackled budget and hospital problems in its first meeting of the year.

Composed of various department heads, the cabinet is appointed by student body president, Arnold Greenfield.

Greenfield, who presided at the session, reported initially that there has been a reorganization of the infirmary set-up.

"Several students," he said, "will be placed on the hospital advisory board." The board at present is composed only of hospital staff members.

"The purpose of this will be two-fold," Greenfield added. "It will not only aid the infirmary staff with policies and student complaints, but will enable students to become better acquainted with hospital problems and regulations.

"Heretofore students have never had any voice in running the infirmary, and we're hoping many will benefit," the president added.

FINANCE COMMITTEE

At the end of the last school year, Greenfield reported a financial committee composed of business staff heads and student government representatives was formed for the purpose of aiding the financial grievances of the campus.

"The could really develop into a significant thing," Greenfield said.

Joyce Weatherup, secretary of honor, reported that there was a re-revision of the honor booklet which was given to new students during Orientation Week. She also said that a letter explaining the honor code was mailed to each new student before school began.

$106,295 BUDGET

Jack Taylor, secretary of finance, reported on the $106,295 budget. "Our main problem," he said, "is that of control. However, with the cooperation of the various treasurers there will be no great problem." He further stated that the treasurers would be informed of correct procedure thereafter.

Cabinet members include Art Moore, attorney general, Jack Taylor, secretary of finance, Pat Finlay, secretary of the interior, Joyce Weatherup, secretary of honor, Sylvia Kearson, secretary of student events, Bob Johnson, secretary of organizations, Dick Crawford, secretary of welfare, Priscilla Moss, secretary of state; and Ronnie Blue, president's assistant.

Pan-Hellenic Council President Ann Kelley explained that "Pan-Hellenic has arranged a plan by which each girl is in a group. She and her group are escorted by an upper-class representative from an anonymous sorority to each sorority house."

SIX VISITS

Six houses are visited by each girl last night. The parties, which lasted only fifteen minutes each, gave the rushees a chance to become familiar with the residences, and to meet a few members of every organization.

Tonight rushees will go to 10 parties continuing from 8 to 11 p.m.

FIRST PARTIES

Saturday is the first day of invitational parties. Invitations may be picked up on the second floor of Lemunire in the auditorium from 9 to 11 a.m.

These invitational parties will include dinner parties on Sunday and Monday. "A rushee may visit the same house twice on Sunday," Miss Kelly reminded.

On Tuesday preferential cards must be turned from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Bids may be picked up from the Pan-Hellenic office on the fourth floor of Longmire between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. Wednesday.

City Commission Petitioned To Eliminate Call St. Parking

The Tallahassee City Commission Tuesday night received a petition from Call Street property owners to eliminate parking on that street in the campus area.

The petition, which was signed by all but four of the property owners in the affected area, concerned the area of Call Street between Copeland and Dewey Streets.

TOO CONGESTED

The property owners contend that the parking causes unnecessary congestion on the street.

City Manager Arvah Hopkins was delegated by the commission to check on the four owners who did not sign the petition and report back to the group at their next meeting, Tuesday, Oct. 8.

University authorities were not to eably silent on the matter, considering it a problem completely within the jurisdiction of the city.

Gerald Jones, asst. business manager for the university, did however, indicate disapproval of the proposal on two bases.

"Firstly," he said, "this will eliminate quite a few parking places for students and faculty which we can ill use at this point.

LIKES CONGESTION

"It is fundamentally a city problem," he said, "but the only thing really in favor of keeping the parking spaces available is the congestion it does cause.

"The area in question includes the street that runs in front of the University nursery school." Removal of the congestion in the area tends to slow traffic down somewhat."

"This is a safety factor for the nursery school and for the students who generally cross the street in that area."

SPEED CHECK

"The cars from the street prevent the area from becoming a speed track," he said, " and without their presence to slow down traffic, a child from the nursery school could easily be killed at one time or another."

Hopkins told the Flambeau that two of the four property owners lived on corners of the street and were not directly affected by the parking problem.

They still all be checked as to their sentiment in the matter, however," he added.

Housing Problem Practically Solved

FSU's annual housing problem has nearly been solved or will be in the near future.

"All upperclass women have been placed in dormitories, with about 50 freshmen still temporarily in dorms and cots, but to be placed permanently soon," said Miss dith McCollum, director of women's residences.

"About 100 male students have been provided with temporary housing in fraternity houses. These boys will be moved to more permanent residence on campus by October," stated Mr. Robert Brewer, director of men's housing.

During the past summer a list of rooms and apartments for rent in the city of Tallahassee was prepared. A shortage of lodgings for moderately priced apartments for students with families appeared.

"Over all, every student, married and single, who has responsulted the office as helped and secured quarters in the city," added Mr. Brewer.

The office is located in the south wing of the basement of Byran Hall.

Prexy Defends Recommendation For FSU Engineering School

BY A. J. ARTHUR

In defense of his recommendation for an engineering school for university president, pointed out that 800 student a leave this state yearly, to study engineering elsewhere.

"As this state is growing and expanding industrially every year the need for engineers in Florida's future is an obvious one," says President Stronier. "I therefore can see no harm in the duplication of the University of Florida's engineering school."

After what he terms a "short but intensive" study of the university upon his assuming the presidency three areas ago, the chief officer of FSU believes that the addition of an engineering school to the curriculum would be an asset to FSU, as it would be a school designed primarily for more.

NEW APPROACH

Amplifying his recommendation Dr. Stronier stated that if such a school were inaugurated here a whole new approach to engineering studies would be developed for the South, one not only technical schooling, but also the training of top personnel and the encouragement of research.

"An engineering school at FSU would be closely allied with the physics department," he said. "I would have very high standards."

Somewhat upholding Stronier's recommendation was U of F dean o engineering Joseph Wells comment in the Tampa Tribune Friday. Well stated that he felt Florida students should be able to study engineering in the state, either at U of F or at another university here.

He admitted that the U of F's classes were "very airly crowded," but declined comment as whether or not an engineering school should be given to FSU. "That is strictly a Board of Control decision," he said.

Well pointed out as a possible handicap to the establishment of another engineering school in this state the difficulty of obtaining a faculty for it, because of the variation of pay ra es between the engineering and teaching professions.

Stronier commented Friday that though his preliminary survey of FSU, Dr. Robert M. Stronier, that this university would not allow him to formulate any major policies, he would continue to study the possibility of obtaining an engineering school for FSU.

"Since the biennial has passed," Stronier said, "it would be impossible to take any immediate steps toward the accomplishment of this goal in the present or coming year. We would have to wait for the next biennial before assuming any major projects."

TAMPA PLANS

Recently announced as planned for the new state university at Tampa, is an advanced engineering extension course. The inclusion of the extension courses in the curriculum there was requested by an industrialist in the Tampa area.

It was approved by State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey, who said it is the sta e's obligation to provide educational services that industry needs from our educational systems."

37 Campus Movies Termed Best Ever

This year's presentation of "campus movie" series promises to be the best ever viewed FSU students.

Jim M Williams, director of fund activities, commented that interests are increasing in attendance more so than ever before.

The schedule until Christmas: Sept. 30 to Oct. 4 — Caine Mutiny with Humphrey Bogart. Oct. 7 to Oct. 11—Death of a Salesman with Frederick March Oct. 14 to Oct. 18—Song to Remember with Cornel Wilde. Oct. 28 to Nov. 1 — Father was with Alec Guiness Nov. 11 to Nov. 15 — Long Day Line with Tyrone Power Maureen O'Hara.

Showings will be at Florida Union Monday, Landis Hall on Tuesday, West Hall on Wednesday, Jennie Hall on Thursday, and probably at Westcott auditorium on Friday.

Senators, Veep Sworn In

Presiding the opening session of the Student Senate Wednesday, two men senators and two new women senators, vice-president took the oath of office.

Barbara Burkhardt, chief justice of honor court, performed the short formality.

Those sworn into office included Polly Atwater, women's vice-president; Graham Purcell, senior senator; and Gerry Gordon, junior senator.

The Rush committee made up of Senator Graham Mosely, Men's Vice-President Murray, and Gordon, who serve as chairman.

A subgroup of these rules of rushing is necessary before the actual week of simple can begin.

SAMPLE BILL

Bob Murray explained a sample bill of the senators. He showed them how to draw up a bill for introduction in the Senate.

A meeting of Men's Senate immediately followed the session when a Senate may be held every other, month's vice president, 5:15 p.m. yesterday.

Purpose was to present first meeting, and all students are encouraged to attend the session whenever possible.

Senate Needs Awareness, Veep Says

Kaminis Requests Objective Approach

By KAY WRIGHT

In order to make student government the students' government, we must be aware of arising problems" said Student Body Vice-President Jan Kaminis, opening session of Student Senate Wednesday.

As senators you have a big job ahead. There are more than 20 students whom we will represent in using the lawmaking body delegated to us," she stressed. A great responsibility has been placed in each of us." We owe it to the students to be aware of their needs. Our purpose in college is to seek and gain knowledge. We should try to provide the environment conducive to those goals," she said.

NO PETTINESS

Miss Kaminis told the senators that the objective approach to school policy politics. She wished them of the honor of being a senator, as well as the responsibility the position carries.

So worthy of the title Senator. Think of the students' gain and your own second. Take a big initiative. FSU is a growing institution," she said.

This is truly ser as a cool honor. You can help the school to adjust to the rapid growth of the school. Remember our senate's 24 hours a day. We are looking to us. Let a perfect effort!"

Anna Ackerman, president of the Faith council, served as temporary chaplain for the session. She led the group in a very meaningful prayer to open the meeting.

RULES DELAYED

The item of business brought before this initial meeting of the student Senate was the resolution introduced by Junior Senator Gerry Gordon and Men's Representative Bob Murray. The resolution concerns the duties and procedure of the senate. It was read at the next meeting after consideration by a

Faubus' Violence Wish Granted

The tension at Little Rock has left both partisans and moderates alike in a state of unrest.

Rabid integrationists have roasted Governor Faubus, President Eisenhower and the citizens of Little Rock in turn.

THE PROFESSIONAL segregationists have attacked Mayor Woodrow Mann, Arkansas NAACP Secretary Daisy Bates, Federal Judge Davies, the Little Rock School board and President Eisenhower, all as being "unrealistic in the face of public danger."

The moderates have found much to be desired in the conduct of nearly all the principals involved.

AND WHO is to blame for the sudden eruption of mob violence in this once placid southern city?

Certainly the provoked gathering must shoulder its share of the burden. No mob can be formed without people in its ranks who are emotionally aroused over a situation, and where people are involved in direct action, however spontaneous it may be, they must be held accountable for their actions.

But to simply say "The crowd is to blame" is not only superficial, but also a trifle naive.

THERE MUST BE some stimulus in any situation that draws normally law abiding people to participation in violent demonstrations.

The person who is attempting to rationalize his own position on the issue will look no further than the Federal Court decree to open de-segregation in public schools. He will lay the blame at the feet of the judge and indirectly at what he will call "The dictatorial edicts of the nine old men."

BUT THIS IS inadequate reasoning. When the Little Rock school board presented its plan of gradual integration in the public schools, the NAACP challenged it in court as being too slow. They lost, and the gradual plan was put into effect. Certainly, on the basis of this fact, the court cannot be criticized for following the extremist line.

The Supreme Court has been attacked as causing the furor in trying to force something on a group of people for whom it is unnatural. This, some say, will be the cause of violence wherever schools begin to integrate.

AND YET, THE selfsame state of Arkansas has proved in several places that public schools may be integrated without cause for alarm. The University of Arkansas has been taking Negro students for several years. The public schools in Hoxie, Pine Bluff and several other municipalities have quietly gone about complying with the court's decision.

But Governor Faubus, who had seen integration come to these places in his state without upheaval, suddenly became alarmed when a carefully prepared plan was initiated in the capital city.

HE NOT ONLY predicted that there would be violence, but acted in such a way as to focus attention on it, even though there was no indication from past experiences in Arkansas that there would be any uprising.

He acted contrary to the plan of the Little Rock School Board, a body elected by the people of that city.

HIS PREDICTION of violence was what social scientists refer to as a "self-fulfilling" one. The crowds that had watched with interest in the other areas of the state became a mob that reacted with force in Little Rock. Primarily because their emotions had been raised to a high pitch by the governor's prediction and his subsequent actions.

If anyone should rest uneasily about the situation, it is Governor Faubus, and not simply because of the turmoil in his state.

He should rest uneasily because of his initial role in predicting and contributing to the sad spectacle.

Greek Problem Revisited

Along with freshman rat caps, orientation, and registration comes another tradition executed the first day of every college year: that of fraternity and sorority rush week.

TONIGHT THE future frat men will take oaths and pait on their pledge pins, the small metal symbol which is a token of membership to some outstanding Greeks. But fraternity affiliation is not quite so coveted at Florida State University as membership in sorority. Many veterans and mature students look upon fraternity values with apathy or think it too childish an activity to join.

No so with sorority hopefuls. This week over 700 women will trod through each of the 16 campus sorority houses in attend the myriads of parties, teas and dinners. And each sorority will be competing to cogently impress its favorite rushees.

IT WILL be the first experience of this kind for the majority of rushees, although some of them may be acquainted with the rush system through parents or older brothers and sisters.

Freshmen, who make up the majority of rushees, have only been on campus a few weeks, probably will have found gotten most of Dean Katherine Warren's wise words of advice given during a Panhellenic program.

IT WILL BE difficult for most of the new students to differentiate the maze of receiving lines, hand-shakes, and punch bowls. When they sign preferencial cards the criteria may rest with the sorority's name, the size or newness of the house, or in many cases, it may rest with a genuine regard for the women who belong in a certain group.

Whatever the criteria may be—the rushee can be assured that each sorority offers the same values and benefits. Each offers the identical life-long friendship among members, organized social activities, and general sisterhood and sense of association with its members, and rushees are usually as satisfied with their second or third choices as with their first.

TO THE many students who do not gain bids, may we remind them that FSU is not primarily a Greek society. The majority of women students are non-members and they reap as many opportunities for social activities in their milieu as do the Greeks. Extra-curricular activities are versatile and the advantages of being a non-Greek are many.

Success is not merited by the frat pin, nor by the sorority badge.

Letter To The Editor

TO THE EDITOR:

The increasing student parking problem on the campus has been a controversial subject for several years and appears to be growing instead of declining.

Most of the complaints I've heard have been from blue stickers. I would like to speak on the half of the black sticker holders.

Approximately 60 per cents of blue sticker holders are now in the parking places on campus making the few places assigned to black stickers inadequate. Apparently not satisfied, the This problem is becoming so and that it's almost impossible to find a white parking place around the library at any time of the day. Most of them are filled with blue sticker cars.

I feel it is now time to make some revisions of the campus traffic laws, permitting only black stickers to park in white spaces or to expand parking facilities. Additional police would also be desirable to see that the new laws are being heeded.

Beethoven's Works Reflect His Moods

By DALE JENSEN

The Faculty Trio will present the first recital of the season tonight in Opperman Music Hall. The program will open with a Beethoven Trio in E flat, Opus 70, no. 2

After a brief intermission, a Trio in B flat by the late Arnold Bax will be performed. The ensemble is composed of Marry Wiltshire, piano, Robert Seifert, violin, and Owen Sellers, 'cello, all of the FSU Music School faculty.

THE USUAL conception of Beethoven is that of an unkempt, unwashed genius given to unmanageable and exultive moments of temperament. This music is fairly accurate, but anything which is usually overloaded is that, as a rule, his work reflected this mood and a period of despair was usually accompanied by a drop in quality of his compositions.

A very general rule describable in an overview of Beethoven's works is that these sour numbers in the first ten, the 20s, the 40s, and so on, tend to be of lesser quality while the 'teens, the 30's, the 50s and so on exhibit a vast majority of the best of Beethoven.

HOWEVER, one should not accept this formal expection to hear the Eroses symphony reduced to a little score merely because this Trio bears a 70 opus number. The chamber music of Beethoven more than the work of the early classic period of Mozart, with the orchestra of temperament more restrained and carefully prepared so as not to exceed the capabilities of the instruments used.

Sir Arnold Bax was born in London in 1883 and the attendant to Royal Academy of Music, he showed exceptional talent as pianist, conductor and composer, but due to his independent mind was restrained to ced to hold a paying position and could devote his whole energy to composition.

THROUGHOUT his career he is considered a self - confessed "modern romantic", choosing his style very little even in the face of Schoenberg's atonality

Calling The Card

Clothes Complex Solved By Doc

By JIM McINTYRE

Try as I might, I can never seem to be the campus Beau Brummel.

I REALLY CAN'T understand it. I always try to be dressed. I want to sip around in well lined out fashion. I want people to get the impression that I am in style.

But somehow I can never quite seem to make the grade.

I can save and save and save and then make a trip to Nic's or Bess to spend my entire wad and see a saving of the Pygmy's comb. I'm not on to the campus wave.

AND THEN when I've gotten the clothes back from the tailor and have donned them with all the pioneer dexterity a college man must use in accomplishing his day of life I walk out of my West Hall room and am utterly crazy by the Soda Shop to try to fit into the crowd.

I roare the door with my most blase expression beaming out to the four corners of the dice, and try to see out my one or two friends to hear an expression of awe or at least approval, over my new logs.

AND THEN my best friend will say "Buying your clothes from the Salvation Army again this year, Jim?"

Why can't a guy do? I've tried to figure it out logically and can't seem to arrive at a conclusion.

It couldn't be any of my handpainted ties. They're all awfully pretty. They have flamingoes and flowers all over them. And besides, most of my professors wear them, and look how everybody likes them.

IT COULDN'T possibly be my double-breasted pin stripe suit. Everyone knows it's been in my family for two generations.

It must be some defect in my personality.

I've tried to examine myself psychologically, but since I don't know nothing of psychoanalysis, the process is a trifle difficult.

I DID visit the FSU Psychology Department with my problem and underwent a battery of tests.

First they tried my heartbeat. It was normal, but seemed to keep a sort of syncopated beat. This was promptly attributed to my coffee breaks in the Student Center and the jukebox there.

They tried jamming my reactions and found the one about as quick and agile as a turtle. This was credited to my owning an automobile. It seems that one life I walk out of my West Hall room and am utterly crazy by the Soda Shop to try to fit into the crowd.

I roare the door with my most blase expression beaming out to the four corners of the dice, and try to see out my one or two friends to hear an expression of awe or at least approval, over my new logs.

The AX

Ivy Leaguers Sing Of Conformity

By MARSHALL LACOMBE

"Boots are red, blood is too; the ax is yours if you fit the shoe!" So wrote a semi-popular columnist who looked good in a black and blue libel suit, but looked better in an AC/DC chair.

It's better to have bad taste in mouth than in mind, and with this premise we begin The Ax, dedicated to deception and typified by nothing specifically, but to dialect everything in general.

The first General to be court-marshalled is the commander of the Ivy League and his collegiate following.

This enemy can be detected easily by its unique uniform which features buttons where they shouldn't be, belts that don't even buckle, and shoes carved from the hides of albino deers.

The major weakness of these pin-dirted parrots is their one proficiency: conformity, lack of individuality.

The counselor for the defense might claim—must claim—that this is the style; that it looks good. This is the standard course of apologetics indicated into each collegiate soul as it garbs itself in the approved manner; a soul which becomes the carbon of its predecessor's ideal went in two or three times. Old timers tell of one Soph preky, John Adams, who wore a bathing suit around under his clothes all autumn.

ENFORCEMENT IN 1955 resulted in low. It was a rare member, indeed, who wore his or her cap after classes began. And when Rat Court convened, the only member tried was a Flambeau reporter sent over to get a picture.

Bill Clendinen, president of last year's Sophomore class, decided that better enforcement would be necessary for good of the student body. He held some informal meetings with the West Hall freshmen and from these the Sludge Squad came. Preparations were made over the Christmas holidays and when Fall arrived, the Freshmen found slugs saying "Sludge is Watching You." "Sludge was watching too! Especially if you were a cute freshman girl.

THE RAT COURT, under Chief Justice Bob Kansky attempted to find new and unique punishments for offended users. The program was probably the most successful up until that time due to the streamlined enforcement of the Sludges, and the spirit of the Court. But it was quickly seen that in time a time and enforcement fell off when serious class work began.

This year's program appears to be the most promising yet and the Class of '61 ought to follow in their footsteps.

As in true elephant style it has its nose to the previous to. "Stylish? Attractive?" What of the individual as he begins his flow into the "milky way." Beware lest it curdle!

In the words of Satchmo: "Sow a thought and reap an act; sow an act and reap a habit; sow a habit and you reap a character. Sow a character and you reap a destiny!" So what? So look in a mirror!

The Ax swings high. The Ax swings low; Oh! you who do look out below!"

In a world of mental midgets the most worthy of the choice block is that degenerate and those illiterates who prove evolution theory — the long scribblers!

These are the thwarted. Gestapo, the MVD of our generation. They are, by nature, soulless too cowardly to lift the bonus of defiance, and they hide themselves from the paranoia of conception.

Too afraid are they to risk their practices, for this would bring about the pathetic end "boys at the stable," the manure which loves compost.

Sacrificed to history have been many modes of dance. From the Minuet to the Charleston, the Blackbottom, and even the Tennessee Wig Wak. Now is being made at the Ax.

The jerking quick steps of emotionless, unanimus enquina, tilting from side to side as if in the last throes of death or commonplace in our society.

Our society has bled ritual and our society at present is void of therapies during this question to this society: What don't Rock & Rollers and Elvis-lovers smile at their cries? Collins smiles at Johnny Ace's suicide at Graceland.

The indifference between dancers a unsociounable is the character: Does R & R paralyze the oral muscles, or the extreme pain when the cesera of the mouth are ravaged?

Or is it that if they are to they'd be too ashamed or indicate at the ridiculous antics of partners? Are those fetish masks actually a safety mechanism against mutual embarrassment a courtesy?

The Rot Man

Frosh Rat Cap History Told

By BUCKY CANON

Open season on Freshmen is now officially over, and the campus no longer abounds with the telltail garnet and gold beanies.

We did see plenty of them during Orientation Week though, and it appears that this year's sophomore class has imposed a very short, but squatted Rat program on the Class of '61.

RAT COURT session, held one night during Orientation Week at Westcott Auditorium was probably the most successful ever at this campus. It was short in fact that numerous offenses and numerous punishments. Chief Justice Marshall Lacombe kept the court rolling with his offhand wit, and was ably assisted by the attendants all in a humorous mood. And the grand finale—Justice Bob Kansky on the stand as Cinderella's face—left the audience howling.

THE RAT program hasn't always been this successful. It was begun back in 1946 or 1948 when the Senate voted to require incoming freshmen to wear the caps to promote unification and spirit at FSU. The Students Government had a hard time enforcing the rule for the first years of this decade, though. There were many veterans from Korea here on the GI bill and many mature students who would have no part of it.

GRADUALLY the job of imposing freshman rules and enforcing them fell to the sophomores. Some traditions did evolve. One tradition was that of a Freshman-Sophomore day, which consisted of a competition between males of the two classes in track and field events and in the case of the frosh won, the rat caps disappeared.

IF NOT, they stayed until November. Another tradition was that the sophomore class president and the chief justice of Rat Court went into Western pool.

The first tradition was only by a very few freshmen—twenties of the freshmen didn't wear their caps after Orientation Day. And the Sophomore Class took great pleasure in observing the rat program, and sometimes the sophomore pres-

FSU Florida History Course Helps Citizenship

Reprinted from the Florida Times-Union

Two adventures in Florida history are being offered in the summer session, one getting under way at Florida State University today.

IT IS good to hear that FSU is resuming its distinguished work in that field.

Dr. Venita Shores, who retired from the FSU faculty last spring, will conduct the 10-week course in Florida history there in 1925. Dr. Kathryn Trimmer Abbey, now Mrs. Archibald Hanna of Winter Park, later took over the Florida history course and her work led to the publication of the standard treatment of the subject, "Florida, Land of Change."

U.S. HISTORY is nothing but the total of 48 state histories.

Those who would know the stories behind the story must also study state history. No one, for example, can understand the age of Andrew Jackson without attention to the democratic movement in the states.

Yet Florida has not seemed to require its college students to take the course in state history as some other states have done nor are our requirements in high schools as rigid as they might be. Floridians can well grow up ignorant of their own colorful heritage, unaware of its fascination and inordinate importance.

FLORIDA has forts and historic monuments, but not enough people know what significance Florida has towns, lakes, rivers with Spanish and Indian names that mean little or nothing to the people who live in them.

More knowledge of state history would mean greater state pride, better citizenship, and greater future achievement.

Tribe Takes On BC Tomorrow

Home Of The Bean

ALOFT AND BOSTON BOUND—This giant, 88-passenger aviation lifted out of Tallahassee this morning at a time most drowsy and not-so-lucky-as-I students were wending to the right o'clocks.

Fate and fair weather willing, it'll set down early this afternoon in that teeming New England city which is known among other things for its beans.

There's talk that a bus will be waiting at the airport to escort a passage of gangling athletes dominoes and just plain orders out to the Yankee-BoBox baseball game. It's a pleasant night.

But this is a business trip.

QUESTIONABLE POWER

Florida State's football Seminoles demonstrated awesome signs of power last week in quelling desperate Furman, 27-7. But one wasn't what Furman said Furman was and the Seminoles came out of the game with a lot of questions unanswered.

Item: Tom Nugent, anxious to see just how deep his squad was, set 45 players into the game. You don't find out who's got what with them.

Item: The Seminoles drew something like 172 yards in penalties against three times as much as Furman gained on the ground. Those are they weren't that naughty; perhaps just a little ignorant.

Opinion, meantime, ran into a Naval Academy team that many folks set in its history and took a 46-6 beating. Chances are the college wasn't that bad; just a little outclassed.

Another thing that's on everyone's mind as Boston looms just around the bend is who's got the most to do what with.

Boston mentor Mike Holovak acknowledged the loss to Furman was "a little disappointing" but he said "you learn a lot when you lose to a good team."

Expect agreed. And it's very possible that the astute Holovak will register agreement with him when he remarked "you learn little from whipping a mediocre team."

Things turn to the oddsmakers for an answer, you'll be just as puzzled. The Dunkel System—which rates a team on the number of touchdowns—has Furman as 18 point favorite.

The Williamson system, which in this case seems a little more realistic, gives the New Englanders a 2-point edge. Most Yankee prognosticators just aren't speaking.

SUCCESS STORY

But the fan who likes a success story in an individual vein, the college game might develop a sidelight which should prove to

It'll involve Ted Rodrique, a senior FSU quarterback who's had so many ups and downs that he's probably been called good and bad name in the books at one time or another.

Ted grew up in Lynn, Mass., just a stones throw from the stadium in which the Seminoles will do battle tomorrow. As a football athlete he had the obvious misfortune of playing behind the great Golden Greek, Harry Arasnis.

Ted was always just 'that other guy.'

And so his way home today and Florida chances are Nugent—who is there for a success story in the making—will toss him in as starting quarterback tomorrow afternoon.

It'll be interesting to watch.

FOOTBALL THROUGH THE AGES

The football frenzy is upon us. But let us in the midst of this pandemonium call time. Let's pause for a moment of thoughtful reflection. What is this great American game called football? What is its history? Its origins?

Let us Retire for a Moment of Roundly Reflection

First of all, to call football an American game is somewhat misleading. True, the game is now played almost exclusively in America, but it comes to us from a land far away and a civilization long dead.

Football was first played in ancient Rome. Introduced by Julius Caesar, it became one of the most popular Roman sports by the time of Nero's reign. The eminent historian, Sigafoos, reports a crowd of MMCLDDXVIII people at the Colosseum one Saturday afternoon to see the Christians play the Lions.

With the decline of the Roman empire, football fell into disuse. The barbaric Huns and Visigoths preferred cricket. Not until the fifteenth century A. D. did football emerge from its twilight and rise to its rightful place as the firmament of European sports.

Which brings us to September 29, 1442, a date dear to the hearts of all football fans. It was on this date, according to the eminent historian Sigafoos, that a sixteen-year-old lad named Christopher Columbus tried out for the football team at Genoa Tech. He failed to make the team because he was too light. He weighed at the time only twelve pounds.)

And why, you ask, is this date—September 29, 1442—dear to the hearts of all football fans? Because young Columbus was so heartbroken at not making the team that he ran away to sea. And if that hadn't happened, he never would have discovered America. And if Columbus hadn't discovered America, the world would never have discovered tobacco. And if the world hadn't discovered tobacco, football fans never would have discovered Marlboros—which, as every fan knows, is the perfect companion to football. And why shouldn't it be? Look what Marlboro's got . . . Filter . . . Flavor . . . Flip-top Box . . . You can't buy a better smoke. You can't smoke a better buy.

The end of football in Europe came with the notorious "Black Sox Scandal" of 1587, in which Ed Marlowith, center of the Pisa mob, paid off the University of Heidelberg players to throw the championship game to the Chartres A and M Gophers. It was a mortal blow to football on the continent.

But the game took hold in the American colonies and thrived as it had never thrived before. Which brings us to another date that remains evergreen in the hearts of football lovers: December 16, 1773.

On that date a British packet loaded with tea sailed into Boston harbor. The colonies had long been smarting under the English king's tax on tea. "Taxation without representation," they called it, and feelings ran high.

When on December 16, 1773, the British ship docked at Boston, a resin-pro football team called the Nonpareil Tigers, coached by Samuel (Swifty) Adams, was scrimmaging near the harbor. "Come, lads," cried Swifty, seeing he ship. "Let's dump the tea in the ocean!"

With many a laugh and cheer the Nonpareil Tigers followed Swifty aboard and proceeded to dump the cargo overboard in a wild, disorganized and abandoned manner. "Here now!" called Swifty sharply. "That's no way to dump tea overboard. Let's get into some kind of formation."

And that, fans, is how the tea formation was born.

Double your pleasure at next Saturday's game by taking along plenty of Marlboros, whose makers bring you this column throughout the school year.

Frosh Gridders Open Tonight

Florida State's Baby Seminoles said to be the best freshman squad in FSU history, opens the 1957 football season against Georgia Military College of Milledgeville, Ga. at Campbell Stadium tonight at 8

The Frosh will be led by Bobby Conrad a 176-pound all-American quarterback from Marianna, Fla

Conrad starred in the East-West all-American High School game last month and has proven his all-around ability in scrimmages with the FSU varsity.

Coach Paul Odom, who is in his second year as head freshman coach, has been well satisfied with the club's performance in practice, but expects a tougher game this year from GMC which lost to the Baby Seminoles last year, 42-0.

HUMAN TEAM

Coach Lew Cordell who has been head coach at Georgia Military for 17 years will bring his entire 36-man squad to Tallahassee

During those 17 years, the Bulldogs have won 113 games, tied 13, and lost only 40 for an outstanding coaching record.

Starting in the opening backfield with Conrad for the Baby Tribe will be Bud Whitehead, speedster from Marianna, Ga. Whitehead will operate from left half.

Another talented runner who is expected to give the Baby Seminoles running attack added punch is Jim Calhoun, 196 pound fullback from Winslow, Ariz.

Slated to start at right half is George Versaggio a 170 pounder from Norfolk, Va

COACAPTAINS

Tackle Joe Webber from Coral Gables and Ronnie Hinson, end of Waycross, Ga. have been selected by Odom to captain the Baby Seminoles for the opener.

Other Tribe starters will be R. L. Lamb a 175-pound guard from Atlanta and Terry Moras a 177 pounder from New Orleans.

Getting the starting assignment at center is Jim Worthington of Columbia, Tenn.

At the tackles are Webber and Bill Kurkowdail of Winter Garden, Fla Opening opposite Hinson at the other flank will be Sam Smith of Daytona Beach.

Nugent Tabs Renn As Versatile Athlete

A flashy runner with high potential as an excellent passer, Bobby, Renn, is the key man in the Seminole backfield this season.

Standing 5-11 and weighing 175, Renn fills the quarterback slot in fine fashion.

Summing up the qualities of this rough and ready performer, Coach Tom Nugent makes this statement: "Bobby Renn is a fine runner, an excellent blocker, outstanding in all pass defense and truly a great athlete.

Renn should be able to play most any position and with experience will take over the quarterback job for us in real style."

Renn played halfback for Henderson High School, Henderson, N. C. for four years. In his senior year he was named to the all-State and all-East teams, received a Shrine Bowl bid and played in the East-West all-Star game.

In the fall of 1952, Renn entered Davidson College in North Carolina and played halfback on the varsity team in his freshman year.

Following his freshman year he served with the U. S. Army for two years. While in service he played quarterback for the 19th Army Cavalry.

All V-Corps and all-Europe were honors won by Renn during his service football career.

In the fall of 1955 FSU was his college choice. Being a transfer student Renn was unable to play during his first year with the Seminoles. He made up for lost time when as halfback he led the team in ground gaining last year.

Converted to quarterback this season he is rapidly developing as a team leader. Last week Renn was named as "Back of the Week" by state newspapers.

"I think if we get by Boston College this week, we'll win every game," said Renn in regard to the Tribe's season.

Renn is a business major and a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Auburn, Tech In Key Games

All of Florida State's future opponents with the exception of Miami will see action as the first big gridiron weekend moves into full swing.

Most Seminole fans will focus their attention mainly on two games: The Auburn Tigers open their 1957 season against Tennessee at Nashville

In the other encounter, VPI, the Tribe's home-coming foe, and conqueror of Tulane be one point, faces West Virginia, in Morgantown. In a game which should decide the Southern Conference winner.

Furman, last week's victim of the Seminoles will save fans a chance to compare scores as they take Villanova, in Philadelphia. FSU plays the Wildcats next Saturday.

Rodrique Possible Starter; Eagles' Top Halfback Hurt

Florida State's once-victorious gridders make their first of two northern appearances tomorrow afternoon tackling Boston College on the Eagles' newly dedicated Alumni Field.

The Eagles were none too happy about their dedication battle last Saturday, as they were swamped by a Navy powerhouse, 46-6.

In the process, BC lost its captain and number one halfback, Tom Joe Sullivan. Thus they are the second straight FSU opponent to be without their captain and left halfback.

Furman's Jerry Woodward missed the FSU-Furman battle last Saturday with a leg injury.

Pre-game odds make the Seminoles anything from a two-point underdog to an 18-point favorite.

RODRIQUE MAY START

Tribe coach Tom Nugent will field basically the same first unit that opened the Furman game A possible exception may see Ted Rodrique open at quarterback, primarily since Rodrique is from nearby Lynn, Mass.

Captain Ron Schomburger and Allard was a part of a 93-yard against Navy. With Sullivan out, they may have just four tomorrow.

Only seniors likely to open for the Eagles are 215-pound Tom Meehan at guard, 226-pound tackle Joe Gaha, 196-pound fullback Larry Plenty, and 218-pound tackle Tom Lane.

Two sophs and four juniors make up the remainder of the Eagles' lineup.

The ends are junior John Flanagan and soph Don Toal, the other guard is junior Ed Degraw and center is soph Anthony Abraham.

In the backfield with Plenty are junior Don Allard at quarterback and honors Alan Miller and Bob Murphy at the halves.

The key to the Boston College attack is in the running of halfback Miller and the aerial arm of quarterback Allard pass play which accounted for the Eagles' only score against Navy. He's a throwing threat from anywhere on the field.

Miller last season chalked up 419 yards to lead the Eagles in rushing yardage He averaged 5.7 yards a carry and scored three times

Mike Holovak, a former BC halfback great, is starting his seventh season as Eagle coach. During that time his teams have produced a 35-18-3 mark with only one losing campaign

The Seminoles make their second northern invasion next weekend is Philadelphia against the Villanova Wildcats.

They return home October 12th, starting a four game home stand with North Carolina State.

Tomorrow's game will be available to FSU fans over WTAL radio.

Veteran Bob Nellums will open at the ends, probably as fine a pair of ends as boasted by any team in the south.

Schomburger has been mentioned frequently as an all-America candidate, and his performance against Furman may have boosted his chances.

Two seniors will open at tackles. Bill Massolmo and George Bower. Converted, two juniors, Jerry Graham and Joe McGee will open at guards, with Bob Faulkner injured.

Senior Troy Barnes will be back at his accustomed center spot. Soph Paul Raion will undoubtedly see his share of action there also.

Chances are Bobby Renn will open at quarterback, though Rodrique will see plenty of action in any case.

Renn bids fair to eclipse the performances of predecessor Lee Corso at the single-calling post in the next two years.

In the Furman opener, the North Carolina native averaged seven yards on 11 carries and compiled four of six passes for 46 yards and a touchdown

WEATHER BIG FACTOR

If the field is dry enough, Boston College will undoubtedly see more of the Seminoles' air arm than did Furman on a rain-soaked gridiron.

Seniors will probably comprise the remainder of the backfield—Sam Dobosz and Billy Weaver at the halves and Eddie Johnson at fullback

Why No Injuns, Cowpokes, Inquires Norwegian Student

By LANE GOURLIE

"Indians, cowboys, gangsters, and Hollywood film stars" are unfortunately absent from our campus. Why unfortunately? Because they are what is expected of our country, naturally!

At least that's what Miss Kari Norheim explained Kari, an attractive Norwegian exchange student, is the first holder of a Rotary International Scholarship to study in Florida.

The blonde girl thinks "FSU is simply wonderful much better than I expected from comments I heard in the northern states and Germany."

She went on to explain that most foreign students attend our northern universities, but think the southland is taboo. Kari, a quite content here in every way, however.

HITCH-HIKES

Quite a backround come to FSU with the appealing girl. Her past three summers have been spent hitch-hiking all over most of Europe. Following this in an apartment, with each person happy-go-lucky pursuit which a having his own bedroom and quite common abroad has giv- sharing a living room and en her quite a repertoire of kitchen. Quite contrary to our memories, for to her the mys- methods, men and women often terious places are a very pleas- live across the hall from each ant reality. other.

The twenty-two year old graduate student finds it "quite amusing to take square dance," for European universities stress only the courses that its students plan to take up vocationally. While attending the University of Oslo, Kari studied only the subjects that she plana to teach.

Kari finds in her 12½ hour schedule one very interesting note: she is taking freshman, sophomore, and senior English courses! Though her major is English, the pleasant blonde hasn't studied the language since junior high school. Though during our convention she often paused to find exactly the right word, her control of our native tongue is truly remarkable.

TOO MANY ADS

Her main complaint about America? "Radio—there is none —it's all advertising," she said.

As for FSU, Kari is most impressed with it. The friendliness in her hall details, for she had expected a much more formal atmosphere. She likes what the school has done for its students, and thinks the student activities are amazing.

"The systems of your universities and those of Europe are certainly on extreme opposite ends," the pretty visitor emphasized. Her native land is composed of "Free Universities", she explained.

There, it's the student's own responsibility to attend lectures, and he takes his exams when he feels capable of passing them. After following such practices, the graduates are completely self-reliant adults, for everything that they've accomplished has been on their own.

DORM DIFFERENT

Dormitory life is quite different also. Their dormitories, quite modern, are apartments in reality. Five students live in of Oslo. Kari studied

However, in spite of this new way of life, and the absence of "Indians, cowboys, gangsters, and Hollywood film stars," the Norwegian expects her visit to be very happy, and will now "explore everything from skyscrapers to those fascinating supermarkets."

NEW DRUM MAJOR Terry Johnson, of Miami, decked out in full regalia for his appearances with the Marching Chiefs. Johnson missed the band's initial apparance at the Furman game due to illness.

Terry Johnson

Marching Chiefs' Drum Major Is Miami Music Ed Student

Terry Johnson, sophomore music education major, has been named drum major of the Marching Chiefs, the "greatest band in the land."

Tryouts for the position were held during the last school year in May. Applicants were tested on marching and directing a small band.

"I was very honored at receiving the position," Johnson said, "as the competition last May was terrific."

Johnson, who hails from Miami, has had previous band experience both at FSU last year where he played trombone and at Miami Hish where he served as band captain. However, this is his first attempt at leading a band.

"My duties will consist of leading and directing the Chiefs in the half-time shows at football games," Johnson stated. "I will also direct the band at basketball games and assist in drill exercises."

The drum major was not on hand to lead the Marching Chiefs at the FSU-Furman football game because of illness. He'll be out in front in two weeks at the next home game when FSU meets North Carolina State.

Vets, Check On Checks! Officer Elections Tonight

By JOHN RAY

"Checks-checks, when do we sign for our checks?"

Mrs. Don Mathis, the lovely lady who handles the many chores for vets on cpus, announced today, in answer to the numerous times that the above question been asked during the past week, that the check signing procedure will probably start Monday.

Veterans interested in their monthly checks, and we don't know any who aren't, may check the bulletin board in Westcott to see when they should sign.

MEET TONIGHT

A method to simplify the monthly check-signing procedure will be discussed at a meeting of the Vets Club at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Room 120 of the Geology Building.

Dayton Roberts, club president, urged all members to attend. He pointed out that a solution for easing the monthly burden might be adopted and will be explained in detail.

ELECTIONS, TOO

The election of new officers for the current semester will also be held. Nominations for the posts were made at a meeting Monday evening. No nominations will be accepted from the floor tonight.

Joe Moffa and Gary Kissinger are running for president; Zeto and Sonny Reynolds candidates for vice-presidents.

Running unopposed are Johnson for treasurer, Wells for secretary, and Spears for sergeant-at-arms.

Gary DuBois was named letic director of the club fo

Beethoven Trio Offers Recital

A well-known Beethoven trio for strings and a composition by a modern English composer, heard in Florida for the first time, will be featured at the first faculty recital of the year by the FSU School of Music tonight, in Opperman Music Hall.

A string trio composed of Robert N. Bedore, violist; Owen F. Sellers, cellist; and Miss Mary Esther Winslow, pianist, of the FSU faculty will appear in the recital, which is scheduled to begin at 8:15 p.m.

Beethoven's Trio No. 6 in E-Flat Major, Op. 70, No 2, will open the program. Following intermission, the trio will introduce for the first time to a Florida audience the Trio in B-Flat Major of Arnold Bax, an English contemporary-modern composer.

The faculty recitals, always popular with local audiences as well as FSU students, are free and open to the public.

The choir loft is a balcony at the rear, design- ed thus so that the singers will not become self-conscious or showy. A custom-built Skinner pipe organ is now being sent and should be installed within the next two weeks.

This chapel's beautiful but stark simplicity should not de- ceive. It presents a unified sym- bol and worship within destroys this. The stain-glass windows, both slanting, narrow, and brightly-colored, lack any defi- nite figures, for these might dis- tract from the overall unity. The unusual curve of the right-front wall further produces unity and an around-the-family-circle feel- ing. The light that enters from the clear windows that face for- ward on the left is completely bent by this curve also. The Pi Kappa Alpha's have moved to 8 Governor's Square and have been working hard to get the house repainted and redec- orated in time for rush.

The last of the porch furni- ture arrived in time to be push- ed in place before the busy week began. The house features a large dining room with glass sliding doors and a large pic- ture window.

Now that the interior of the house is in top notch order, the Pikes are beginning work on patio and barbecue pit to be completed this fall. In the near future a swimming pool will be put in the rear of the property.

As the Sigma Nu's put the final touches on the interior of their house, they hope to have on W. Call, they are beginning work on an addition to their house which will be completed in a few years. The Sigma Nu's plan to build an identical house to their present one on the ad- joining East lot and connect the houses with an arcade. Ground breaking within three weeks is planned for a new kit- chen, living room, chapter room and sleeping quarters to be add- ed to the rear of the existing house. New lawn furniture is ordered for the patio with barbe- cue pit which will be completed within a few weeks.

The Alpha Omicron Pi's sold their home in June and this year are living in the old Kappa Sig house on Dewey Street. They have been busy redecorating and arranging the new furniture for the downstairs. President Mar- tha Hall said the best news of all to them was finding out from their past national presi- dent that they will begin build- ing their new house early next spring.

Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday Matins are held in the Wesley Foundation (Metho- dist) chapel at 7:30 a.m. Begin your day in a little happier way by attending these. Gerri Han- con, public relations, states:

Friday from 10-11 p.m. re- freshments are served in the Wesley lounge in what is called the Coffee Hour, although cof- fee is rarely served. Refresh- ments are provided, and this is a time to meet your friends.

Sunday school started last Sunday, but it isn't too late to begin one of the four classes that are offered. Sunday school is at 9:30 a.m. and church at 10:55 a.m.

Pat Wolfe, president of the Wesley Foundation, will speak at Vespers Sunday at 7:15 p.m. Everyone is cordially invited to attend these and Fellowship sup- per and recreation, which begins at 5:15 p.m.

The Foundation invites all of its members, new and old, to participate actively in its pro- gram this year. It wishes every- one a happy school year, and hopes that you will share some of your free time with a re- ligious organization on campus.

FSU Fashions

South Inspired Transitional Cottons

By MARGARET MCLEAN

Isn't it a dreadful shame that in Tallahassee the fall of the year is cleverly disguised as Spring? Re- sult, we of the Torrid Zone have no actual transitional situation in which especial clothes are worn. Instead, we re- lutely necessary or even desirable.

For a great many years the Fashion Industry has been guilty of the sin of fashioning less than adequately for the climate of our southern states. What was seen in fashion magazines as suitable at- tire was greeted by a cooler clime. Even a resolute clothes horse wilted at the sight of woolen goodies, light weight or hot, in a Floridian July.

Apparently irate readers put the bee in their bonnets because eventually the fashion industry re- vealed the potential of a whole new horizon in the Southern con- sumer. This is the essential prob- lem: A Something new to wear that would be worn at least 3 degrees. B Something new to wear that, nevertheless, looked re- motely like Fall—that is the birth of the "transitional cotton."

Transitional cotton is cotton like any other, but the "Fall look" is stimulated via styling, texture, color, and type of fabric used. The novelty of these fabrics are dark in color value, slightly heavier in actual weight in some instances, nubbier in texture, and the styling is toward a more "covered" look.

Fortunately, there is a tremen- dous variety in range of colors and cotton blends in fabrics, as well as in the interpretation of the fabrics. Cotton can even be made to give the effect of wool, satin, chiffon, and innumerable others. In other words, anything these smart silver Yankees wear, we can also wear, but, of course, the vacationa way.

COTTON'S THE GREATEST

To a Southern gal, the transi- tional cotton is indespensible. She wants it almost the year 'round for every conceivable occasion. Dur- ing college years she probably runs heavily on her collection that falls in this category.

The convenience factor appeals most to the campus set and this stuff has all the virtues: wrinkle resistant, requires a minimum of ironing, changes its appearance with a change of accessories, and almost all of it can go into a wash- ing machine minus fears of stretching, shrinking or fading. Cotton knits, however, require hand-washing and usually must be blocked, excepting orlon or dacron blends.

This Fall, the something differ- ent is that the silhouette is no longer full, the color no longer drab. Plaids are in the limelight again and more beautiful than ever. The scale of the revived plaid is enormous and the pattern absolutely mad.

One plaid that promises to life your spirits is a combination of pink and orange and is entitled— "Siamese Plaid." There are ver- sions of it and fabulous others in cottons, wool, velveteens etc.

MIDDY IS BACK

The "middy" or over-blouse has also returned to campus and this it's called "blouson" and the waist is fastened on a drawstring. The middy suit will appear on the campus scene. This is to ignore your bustline & emphasize your narrow hipline. The silk shirt combines well with the middy suit, especially of the silk shirt. It is a still a fashion-wise big deal. If the shirt is worn underneath any- thing, the cuff of the blouse is worn out and over the sleeve of the outer garment. Chunky jew- eled cuff links are the very, very accessory. The blouse can either complement or contrast the color of the suit, but apparently the "tailored-color" look is passe.

Color is more intense this sea- son and is being referred to as "jewel toned", i.e., deep reds, greens, golds, blues and purples. The new feature colors for fall are "emerald green" and "royal blue". The cocktail or party dress of the time is the sheath over and over again. Royal blue is supposed to replace black this year as the basic color, but a word of warning—use a color like this one with discretion because it looks very cheap if over-done.

BLACK AND ROYAL BLUE

Blacks seems to take the edge off this color the most successful- ly. As a matter of fact, the most appropriate accessories of royal blue is a royal and black houndstooth check. A pair of evening slippers in this shade would be very ef- fective with a dramatic white dress. Jewelled clips in royal and / or emerald imitation stones are quite beautiful.

Note this year are too strange to describe and at FSU who wears them anyway? Purses are still on the oversize side and shoes are as pointed as can be. The stick pin and large brooch are the jewelry mewing with dress. Jewelled clips in royal and / or emerald imitation stones are quite beautiful.

Application Forms For Interns Due

Students scheduled to do intern teaching the second semester of this year should get application forms from the Internship Office in Education, immediately.

The forms should be filled out according to instructions so they can be filed in the Internship Office by 5 p m Monday.

Students whose names are on the second semester internship list will be removed from the list of active applicants for that or a subsequent semester unless deferment is approved by the Director of Internship.

Opera Guild Production

'Oklahoma' Tryouts Slated Tuesday And Wednesday

"Oklahoma", immortal musical comedy of Rodgers and Hammerstein, will be the first production of FSU's Light Opera Guild.

Richard Lee Collins, the guild's new director, announced tryouts for the musical, to be staged in December, will take place in the Faculty Dining Room of the Union Building. The tryouts will be held at 7 p. m. Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 1 and Oct. 2, in the Opperman Music Hall.

The production features 20 characters and 7 scene roles, plus other small parts, Collins said. Tryouts will be held at the same time for the chorus. The show also features a ballet in the famous dream sequence.

GRIMM ASSISTS

Collins, who has directed many operatic productions and sung leading roles in others, will be assisted by Miss Betty Jane Grimm.

"Oklahoma" has become a classic with American audiences since its Broadway debut in the early 1940's. The show, in two acts divided into three scenes each, is based on "Green Grow the Lilacs", by Lynn Riggs.

Collins joined the FSU Music School faculty this Fall as assistant professor of voice and director of operatic productions as well as the Light Opera Guild. He came to Tallahassee from Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

OPERA BACKGROUND

The recipient of numerous honors and scholarships awards in music, Collins also has a professional background including leading roles in a number of opera companies including the Punch Opera of New York; National Grass Roots Opera and the Birmingham Civic Opera. He has been stage and music director for productions including Tales of Hoffman, Marriage of Figaro, Pagliacci and Cavalleria Rusticana.

A graduate of the University of Louisville, Louisville, Ky., Collins holds the Mus. B. degree in voice from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, and the M. A. degree in Music and Music Education from Columbia University, New York City. He has done graduate work in voice and opera at Indiana University toward the Mus. D. degree in voice and opera.

OKLAHOMA DIRECTOR. Richard Lee Collins, who will direct the Light Opera Guild's presentation, "Oklahoma" in December, is the director of the newly established opera workshop. Tryouts are to begin Tuesday at 7.30 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

AFROTC Officers Study At Maxwell

Three officers of the Department of Air Science at Florida State University returned last week from a short summer workshop at Hq. AFROTC at Air University, Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama, announced Robert Howard J. Wilhemsen, professor of Air Science.

Major Trevor G. Bevao, Jr., instructor for the senior year of air science, studied new techniques in the presentation of materials on leadership and management and military aspects of world political geography.

Captain John G Williams in structor for the junior air science course, was a member of a workshop unit which offered new aids in the teaching of problem solving and communicating.

Captain Wesley Adley, instructor for freshmen, was a member of a workshop unit that studied new methods and aids in the presentation of two blocks of instruction, fundamentals of global geography and international lemons and security organizations.

Similar workshops were held at the same time at nine universities throughout the United States. The workshop leaders for these ten workshops previously had attended a summer course at Ohio State University where civilian educators in the various instructional fields listed above presented new materials and techniques

Waring's Singers Here December 11

Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians will open the Student Artist Series series December 11 at 8:15 p.m. in the Men's Gym, Secretary of Student Events Sylvia Kramon revealed yesterday.

The Student Artist Series, now in its second year, is sponsored by student government on a non-profit basis.

An appointed committee, working with Mrs Kathryn Vernon, director of student activities, correspond with booking companies to engage available entertainment.

Distinct from the University Artist Series, the Student Artist Series does not correlate its programs with college courses.

The Student Artist Series definitely tries to give the students what they want, and we take occasional surveys to determine the preferences of the student body," Miss Kramon said.

Any student or organization wishing to suggest a certain performer should contact Miss Kramon at the Alpha Gamma Delta House.

Students Should Use West Stand

Students attending the freshman football game in Doak S Campbell Stadium tonight are urged to sit only in the west stand.

Gerald Jones, asst. business manager for the university, made the request in an effort to cut down custodial expenses for the game.

"The use of only one stand," he said, "will mean we don't have to attend the expense of cleaning up both sides.

Alpha Kappa Psi Sets 1st Meeting

The Beta Psi chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional business fraternity, will hold its first regular meeting Monday at 6.30 p.m. at the chapter house, 902 W. Park.

Plans will be discussed concerning rushing, pledging and initiation, as well as other current business, according to Jim Julian, AKPsi president.

"All business majors are eligible for initiation into the organization provided they meet the requirements set forth by the national headquarters, and after they have successfully completed their pledge training," Julian said.

Open house will be held for all interested business majors for the purpose of selecting pledges on Oct. 6 from 3 to 6 p.m. and Oct. 10 from 7 to 10 p.m.

DENTAL CLAIMS

Veterans who have been discharged within the past year must file dental claims immediately in order to collect from the government for any dental work needed.

Mr. Robert Berry, veterans' rehabilitation service officer in Tallahassee, said that vets have only one year from the date of separation to collect dental claims.

Information on the above may be obtained by contacting the VA office on South Adams Street.

Torpon Tryouts Slated Oct. 2

Activity for the Tarpon Club began next week, as they prepare to orient new members.

The honorary swimming club will hold classes for three nights so that all those who are interested may learn the strokes and stunts necessary for election to membership, said Madge Straun, publicity chairman.

Classes are scheduled from 8:30 to 10 p.m. on Oct. 2, 3, and 7.

Tryouts will be held Oct. 8 and 9 from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and 8:30 to 10 p.m. Final tryouts will be held during the same hours on Oct. 10.

and Stravinsky's expressionism.

As nearly as can be determined this trio was one of Bax's later works, probably composed in 1918. Portions of it reflect some of the influence of atonality and the impressionism of Debussy but the overall effect remains one of late romanticism.

THERE ARE very few opportunities locally to hear good chamber music performed live. This group, an ensemble of several years standing and having extensive concertizing to its credit, is likely to provide one of the best of those opportunities tonight.

The program is interesting and challenging to listener and performer alike. We sincerely hope there will be more scheduled performances of this nature by a wide variety of chamber ensembles.

Tallahassee Man Given Fellowship

Wilmer A Rohde of Tallahassee has been awarded the Ethyl Corporation graduate research fellowship at FSU for the 1957-58 academic year, the company announced early this week.

The award is one of 19 fellowships that the company is providing at leading colleges and universities.

Total value of the grant is $50,000. Rohde will receive $1,500 for living expenses plus an allowance for tuitions and fees. In addition, the university department concerned receives $500 for expenses in connection with his fellow's research.

Rohde received his B. S. in chemistry from the University of Miami in 1954 and his M. S. in 1955. At Florida State he is studying for his Ph.D. degree next year, under Prof. W. H. Herz.

FSU Cracking Down On Parking Violations

Senate, Frosh Elections Set October 22nd

The primary for the senatorial and freshman class elections will be held October 22, Joan Harmon, secretary of elections, announced today. Finals will be held October 29.

A misunderstanding resulted in the elections being scheduled for November 5, but was changed Friday when Miss Harmon discovered the mistake.

This will mark the second straight year that the elections will be conducted by precincts. This system was initiated last year when the reapportionment act, which was passed in 1955, officially went into effect.

18 PRECINTS

Eighteen precincts will participate in the elections. A list of the specific precincts will be published in Friday's Flambeau.

Miss Harmon said that five freshman class offices will be decided in the election. They include president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and social chairman. In addition, two freshman senatorial seats will be at stake.

Declaration of candidacy forms may be obtained from the information desk in Longmire or from the election committee office, Room 209 Longmire betwen October 1 and 6.

The declarations must be turned in to one of the above offices by 5 p.m. October 8, according to the secretary of elections. She said no declarations will be accepted after this time.

EXPENSE ACCOUNT

Miss Harmon also pointed out that no candidates' names will be placed on the official ballot until they have filed a campaign expense estimate. The class president is alloted $30 for expenses and other class officers will receive $15. Student senators are alloted $25.

Active campaigning for the elections will begin at 5 p.m., October 15.

Additional information on the elections may be obtained from Miss Harmon at the Zeta Tau Alpha House, phone 3-1739, or from the election committee office in Longmire.

ALL-DOHNANYI SLATE OFFERED BY KILENYI

The first all-Dohnanyi program ever to be played in Florida will be offered by Edward Kilenyi, distinguished concert pianist and former pupil of the great Hungarian-born composer in a recital here Friday night.

Both Kilenyi and Dohnanyi are now on the faculty of the School of Music at FSU. They have appeared in concert several times as a two-piano team.

Friday night's program, which will begin at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall, will open with what critics regard as Dohnanyi's biggest single piano composition, "The Passacaglia" opus 6.

BAROQUE IDEA

The composition combines the idea of the baroque "ground bass" with the classical form of the rondo within a deeply emotional, romantic, ballad-like piece.

As a contrast, the composer's famous humor will be represented by the Introduction, fugue and March from the Humoresques, Opus 17.

Dohnanyi's charming "Ruralia Hungarica," played here for the first time in its entirety in the original version, will be the principal work of Kilenyi's recital, which is anticipated each year as a high point of the concerts by the faculty of the school of music.

Based on Hungarian folk melodies, the seven pieces develop dirges, dances, children's songs and all the rich national musical idioms

VIRTRUSO WORKS

Closing the program will be several virtuoso works, such as the Capriccio in F Minor—one of and most popular virtuoso pieces—and two waltz paraphrases.

The first, using waltzes by Brahms, contrives to actually make the music more "Brahms-like" than the originals.

The second is a brilliant setting of Johann Strauss' irresistible series from his "Gypsy Baron."

The concert is free and open to students, faculty and interested public.

Gilchrist Slates Street Dance Friday Night

Residents of Gilchrist, who are keeping their fingers crossed that the moon will shine Friday night, are inviting all FSU men to their street dance Friday from 6 to 11 p.m.

The street will be roped off between Gilchrist and Broward dormitories with social and square dancing for everyone Gene Fuller, a recreation major will act as émcee and square dance caller for the evening

Refreshments will be served on the lawn. Mrs. Christine Wilson, social director of Gilchrist, promised, "There's going to be enough punch this year to go round and round Our theme song will be 'More coming up.'"

Gilchrist women held their first street dance last Spring with more than three hundred people joining in. Since another date could not be secured for a follow-up dance last Spring, it was decided to open the Gilchrist social season as quickly as possible in the Fall with a street dance.

This year the planning is under the leadership of Gilchrist's social chairman, Elaine Bogue, with the assistance of Ann Lewis, the street dance chairman, and her committee

Miss Lewis said, "The street dance was a big success last year, and we're planning it even bigger and better this year."

Students Urged To Use Fringe Parking Areas

With over 4,000 automobiles registered on campus, and less than half that many parking spaces, the university is cracking down on parking violations.

Eighteen uniformed policemen and two student officers have begun issuing tickets to parking violators in the campus area.

Students were urged to utilize the fringe parking areas in an effort to alleviate the the crowded campus conditions.

Don Zuchelli, student policeman, said that "students are not using the large lot on Call and Copeland Streets. This lot has a capacity of 800 cars Parking in this area would help relieve some of the congestion"

Parking tickets are placed on the window of cars found in violation of the sticker or time rules.

PAY FINES

Fines for parking tickets are paid at the student traffic court office, 208 Longmire, or in the asst. business manager's office in 104 Wescott.

In case the owner wishes to appeal his ticket, the student traffic court is in session on Tuesday nights at 7:30 p m

Money from the fines is placed in a special scholarship fund, according to Bill McKemie, chief justice of traffic court.

Regulations for permission to operate an automobile were released by university officials this week.

In order to drive a car on campus, a student must have completed at least 56 hours of academic work.

Students who are married or over 21 years of age are considered exempt from the regulation.

Also included in the exemption list are those students who have a handicap that would make walking a problem.

Special permits are issued to students living more than four blocks from the campus and those students who must work off campus and need a car for their work.

Starting next week all students committing serious parking violations will have their cars towed away by wreckers and will be required to pay a $5 fine to reclaim them

So far this year, according to the university motor vehicle division, there have been no seri- The only accident reported so far was a minor collision in ous traffic accidents on campus, which no one was hurt.

Theatre Arts Group Sets Five Dramas

The FSU theatre arts group will present five outstanding dramas this year, according to Dr James Brock, associate professor of speech.

Four contemporary plays and one 17th or 18th century drama to be selected will make up the theatre fare for the coming year.

The group will open with "The Rainmaker," by Richard Nash, on Nov. 1, 2, 4 and 5. This play, which was recently made into a movie starring Burt Lancaster and Katherine Hepburn, is the story of a drought area farm community and the con-man rainmaker who alights in their midst.

Casting for the play was ended last night and results will be pointed in Friday's Flambeau.

George Bernard Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra" will be coming up on December 13, 14, 16 and 17.

The annual children's theater production will be "The Sleeping Beauty," and will be presented on January 18, 20 and 21.

The moving "Diary of Anne Frank," by Goodrich and Hackett will be March 14, 15, 17 and 18

The final drama will be the 17th or 18th century comedy and will be May 9, 10, 12 and 13

Bookstore Installs Television Set

Television will make its first appearance at the University Bookstore this Wednesday

Gordon Wheeler, manager of the bookstore, said this week that a television set will be installed at the bookstore for students to view the World's Series between the Milwaukee Braves and the New York Yankees.

All students are invited to make use of the facility.

Names Of Queen Candidates Due

The names of all homecoming queen candidates must be submitted to the Longmire information desk by 5 p m Friday, according to Joan Harmon, secretary of elections.

"The name should be accompanied by a list including class, major, and sponsoring organization," said Miss Harmon.

The queen will be chosen by vote of the student body and announced at the homecoming pow-wow.

Homecoming Rules Being Distributed

Official rules and regulations for the Homecoming parade are now being distributed

Prepared by the float decoration committee, the rules are being supplied to all fraternities, sororities and clubs on campus, according to Hugh Hinely, associate professor in arts education, who is chairman of the committee

Special entry forms are also being sent, and will be available in 102 Education Building.

These entry forms, along with sketches of the float, are due to be turned in to the committee on or before October 11.

Financial Reasons

Commuting Students Here From 24 Cities

BY FRANCES FINLAY

Most people are aware of the mushroom-like growth in the size of the student bodies at the colleges and universities of the nation, but few are aware of the growing group within this group:

The classification of commuting students does not include those day students who live in the city where the college or university is located or who get their mail on an R.F.D. route from that city.

ALTHA TO GEORGIA

Last year, students who commuted to FSU came from Altha, Blountstown, Bristol, Carrabelle, Chattahoochee, Clarksville, Crawfordville, Greenville, Gretna, Havana, Madison, Marianna, Perry, Quincy, Waukeenah, and Woodville; and from Georgia Bainbridge, Cairo, Camilla, Moultrie, Norman Park, Ochlocknee, Pavo, and Thomasville. These students carried an average load of 15 semester hours.

While the reason for maintaining a residence away from the campus varies, the most frequent answer to the query, "Why commute?" is usually financial.

LIVE AT HOME

Some of the commuting students can not afford to go to college unless they continue to live at home. Others have part time jobs in the city where they live Many students have a working husband or wife in the community where they live

Problems that plague the commuting student include insufficient library time and difficulty in arranging labs. Commuters usually try to schedule classes for only three days a week.

LITTLE TIME

With his time on campus limited, the commuter has little time for extra curricular activities such as student government, publications, athletics, musical productions, or clubs.

Special provisions for day students at FSU include a women's and a men's day student lounge, both located in Longmire Locker space is also provided for their convenience

There has been much written in the magazines and press of the nation concerning the hunger for education so prevalent among Americans today. The fact that so many people are willing to undergo so many hardships in order to obtain an education is sound evidence that this hunger really exists.

Moffa New Prexy Of Veterans Club

Joe Moffa was elected president of the Vets Club at a meeting Friday evening Moffa, who defeated Gary Kissinger in the election, succeeds Dayton Roberts.

Fehmi Zeko won the race for the vice-president post He was opposed by Sonny Reynolds.

Other officers elected were Bill Johnson, treasurer, Marge Wells, secretary; and Fred Spears, sergeant-at-arms. All three ran unopposed.

Gary DuBois, the club's newly appointed athletic director, announced that the organization will compete in all intramural sports He requested any veterans interested in joining the tennis, basketball, or swimming teams to contact him immediately.

The new president announced that an important meeting will be held Friday night He urged all members to make an effort to attend.

Rainy Weather Takes Its Toll

Rainy weather, combined with the usual aches of sorority rush, was too much to take for 117 sorority rushees this week.

The rush parties, which began Thursday were continued through Monday with the total number of participants being pared from 723 to 606 in the process

The rain contributed sore throats, soaked shoes, and wet dresses to the traveling groups of girls. The usual highlight of each rush party, the singing escort to the door at the end, was somewhat marred by the re-donning of raincoats and galoshes

Freshman dorms were said to be a maze of confusion as girls searched for dresses that "would not spot in the rain."

The clamor subsided somewhat yesterday, after the parties had come to an end, with the signing of preferential cards by rushees in the Longmire building

The rushees began picking up bids this morning at 9 a. m The actual pledging will take place at the various sorority houses today, beginning at 5 p. m.

There are 361 places available in the 18 national sororities on the FSU campus.

Collins Makes Us Proud

We have yet to learn the results of the conference between President Eisenhower and the Southern governors, but Florida can be proud of the leadership shown by Governor LeRoy Collins not only nationally, but here in Florida as well.

For proponents of Florida's proposed illegitimate child, the "last-resort" bill, have announced they will not try to revive it in the special Constitutional revision session which opened this week.

Collins vetoed the bill at regular session of the legislature, and it looks as if the lawmakers are going to let it lie in its grave—at least until the results of the Washington talks are realized.

It is a great task Collins and the other Southern governors are attempting for it is the task of presenting an integration plan containing patience and understanding; one the heterogeneous North cannot comprehend completely. The North has its race problems also, but are not banded together by a traditional point of view or culture as is the South.

Collins understands his people. He understands Florida. And the course he charts will be a moderate one with Florida's economic, as well as social well being in mind.

He is looking forward to a great destiny for the future of Florida. "If the South should wrap itself in a Confederate blanket and consume itself in racial furor, it would surely miss its greatest opportunity for channeling into a wonderful future the products of change now taking place," he said in his now famous Sea Island speech.

He said, "the American people will respect and welcome a conscientious Southerner who has demonstrated his ability to deal with the race issue in a calm, lawful, constructive, and courageous manner, based upon a true understanding of the fears and aspirations of both races."

And what is the correct interpretation on which Collins justifies this understanding? Perhaps it is voice of Southern opinion as revealed by Frank Adams in the St. Petersburg Times. Adams stated the Southern opinion goes like this: Let us solve our problems in our own time, let us solve our problem with our own methods, but let us give our word that the ultimate goal which the law says must be reached, will be reached. But don't hurry us, and don't goad us, and don't back us into a corner."

In his speech Collins explained the difficulty of a "Southern leader to work effectively for the brotherhood of mankind, and the dignity of the law, in areas alive with emotions deeply rooted in the past, and still have his people with him," as compared to Northern officials making righteous, but vote-getting speeches.

Here is a man who has met the integration problem with great understanding, foresight, and reality. Reason, for Collins, must prevail in place of any deep-rooted personal beliefs which he surely must have, in Southern traditions and culture, which surely must be a part of his life.

We are lucky, therefore to have Governor Collins speak for Florida, but we have yet to take the integration test.

Let's hope deep-thinking intelligent people like Collins set the pattern for human behavior when that test comes, and that they will meet the problem with definite action.

FSU Extends Hospitality

Deplaning Sunday from the chartered National Airlines airplane which carried them to Boston, were a sad tribe of Seminoles. The lone handicap didn't dampen the team's spirit, however, and we hope they return to Villanova with utmost confidence.

Returning with the team was a million dollars worth of public relations and friendship for FSU. We are referring to the members of the Seminole Boosters and the legislature, who made the trip along with the team, coaches, and other personnel.

The Boosters are doing quite a lot to help the Seminoles, and the legislators have been responsible for much favorable legislation passed for the university.

Because there were extra seats on the chartered plane, these Tallahassee gentlemen were invited to accompany the team to Boston. Except for transportation, the FSU fans had to pay their own expenses, according to the athletic committee. In fact, even the member of the athletic committee who accompanied the team in place of a nonexistant athletic director, had to foot his own expenses.

This discounts any stories or misunderstandings about "free loaders" on trips similar to these.

The advantages gained by invitations to these avid Seminole rooters is irreplaceable.

Half Smoke, Half Don't Shows Poll

Reprinted from the Reflector, State College, Mississippi

Slightly under half of all college students in the United States smoke regularly, and slightly under half don't smoke at all. The remaining few smoke only on rare occasions. The habit is more common among college men than among coeds by a fairly significant margin. A few students appear to be worried about recent stories linking cigarette smoking with lung cancer.

ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE Press asked the following questions of a representative national cross-section of college students in order to collect college opinion on the smoking issue:

DO YOU SMOKE? WHY?

The results:

	Men	Women	Total
Yes, smoke	50%	39%	46%
No, don't smoke	40%	49%	43%
Sometimes or rarely	10%	12%	11%

Regular smoking students generally repeat advertising slogans when asked why they smoke. A Wartburg College Waverly, Iowa junior is very typical in his reply: "for relaxation." Many other students simply say: "enjoyment." Others smoke because they're nervous, some in order to keep their weight down, and some just don't know why. Many say they wish they could break the habit.

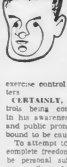
"I HAVE TO DO something besides eat when I study," is the reply of a sophomore coed at Nebraska University Lincoln, and an Ohio University Athens freshman coed says she smokes "because I have nothing else to do and I see everyone else doing it." A Brooklyn College Brooklyn, N.Y. senior "likes it" because it is a release for nervous energy, and a Southeastern State College Durant, Okla. graduate student condenses her reason in these three words: "I want to."

A non-smoking students generally have well defined reasons for not smoking. Many feel that it is bad for their health. Others don't have any desire to smoke, and some say it's too expensive. Some call it a filthy habit, and others just see no need for it. Here are some comments typical of these viewpoints:

"It's a waste of money," is the opinion of an Ohio University sophomore. A sophomore coed attending Yakima Valley Junior College Yakima, Wash. terms it both a "waste of time and money." A graduate student at Ohio University believes that smoking "impairs the health," and a senior attending the College of Physicians and Surgeons San Francisco, Calif. states that there is "no advantage to smoking."

A freshman coed at Jacksonville University Jacksonville, Fla. gives this lenathy reason: "I have never felt the desire to smoke. Many college students have the idea that smoking makes you more mature. Or they smoke just because the crowd they associate with does. I can't see it." And a Christian College Columbia, Mo. freshman coed uses this personal reason for not smoking "When you smoke you don't smell like a girl anymore, but like a cigarette"

Students who smoke only on rare occasions might give the explanation offered by a University of Nebraska senior who says: "I smoke only when I've been drinking", or that offered by a freshman coed attending Brooklyn College who states that she smokes "when I feel like acting sophisticated."



"Calling The Card"

Strozier's Talks Have Concrete Meaning

BY JIM McINTYRE

Dr. Robert M. Strozier is the new president of a fairly new university.

He has found himself in a peculiar position. He has moved ed from the realm of academic life of a private institution, the University of Chicago, into the hectic life of an administrator with a legislature and people to please. Yet he has which exercise control on policy matters.

CERTAINLY, with such contrasting duties, he must be a genius.

AND LIKE it or not, the university is answerable to them.

This is what makes the position so delicate. The general run of persons in the state does not come in contact daily with the great ideas of history. He does not understand the existence of an academic community. He cannot grasp the importance of why they are not made with a great deal of gradiosus.

AND IT IS in this amalgam that a stasis supported school must cater in part if it is to continue its breath.

Taking all this into consideration, I feel it is easy to see why the new president has made no "startling pronouncements."

But there is another factor involved Dr. Strozier is a highly educated man, and as such is not accustomed to leaping before he has had adequate opportunity to look.

NOTHING WOULD be more repugnant on the part of an official of any institution than an attitude that declares he has all the answers to a situation about which he knows very little Dr. Strozier is not, judging from statements and personal contacts, an arrogant man.

And although his statements to the faculty and the press may not be filled with startling revelations, he has said more quietly concrete things than these earn have heard from a president in the five years they have been listening at FSU.

HE HAS SAID that administrative officials, himself included, should be expected to teach classes.

He has said that the system of rotating chairmen exclusively is outmoded and must be replaced by smaller classes with more give and take between instructor and student.

He has said that outstanding teaching will be rewarded as much as outstanding research while emphasizing the importances of research in the university.

HE HAS DECRIED educational administrators without eliminating it, and has set out to provide a good general education for all, including being "conversant with at least a single foreign language."

So before we go around criticising the man in the big chair like miniature Bruno Bauers, let's look at his situation, look at the facts, and realize that he has asserted his position, but in a way that is quiet and humble.

The defense rests.

U.S. Uses Russian Bayonet Tactics

TO THE EDITOR:

Either the satellite, the U.S. can now boast it equals or surpasses Russia in any field, including the childish and harrowing of unarmed citizens on private lands and the seizure of a city within a sovereign state, all without benefit of a declaration of martial law or the request of the Governor. The school is state property but federal troops have invaded and occupied it, forcing people off the streets, denying them the right to peacefully assemble on private property as they were yesterday, and bayoneting those who didn't "move fast enough to suit the troopers." All with only surrogate military arrogance and intimidation. Incidentally the right to assembly is specifically and literally spelled out, not "implied," in the Constitution.

It is obvious that those who care that our almighty in the Pentagon has changed his mind and justifies the means Law, precedence, and custom matters none when you have a thousand armed troops to coerce, bean and bully the bewildered and frustrated populace into submission.

Two weeks ago I could not have imagined the present situation: could not have believed it possible in this country. No matter what we say though, the fatal step has been taken. It cannot be obliterated from our minds. We are now a federal union in name only. The States have such paltry powers and functions as the delirious omnipotents in Washington deign to allow. The Constitution has been insidiously altered, and we consequently find ourselves living under an altered form of government, much more unitary, among other things, than that envisioned by the founding fathers.

Most of us feel far away and detached from the Arkansas affair. Yet we in Florida and all the nation presently have as much at stake except physical violence as the people of Little Rock. The freedoms they have lost, we lose also. Only time appreciate.

Yours Sincerely,
CHARLES F. ADAMS

Thanks Given Student Guides

TO THE EDITOR:

During the recent crowded, busy days of Orientation Week, we were fortunate in having the assistance of a group of upperclass student guides who helped greatly in the process of getting new students registered in the rapids of that period. These upperclass students worked as clerical helpers, as guides, counselors, advisers, and in many other roles.

Although we have made every effort to thank individually each student who worked so unselfishly to help the newly arrived classmates, we should like to take this means of giving a public expression to each of those upperclass students, whose fine cooperation it was our privilege to observe, our warmest thanks and our sincere wishes that they be successful and satisfying year at FSU.

Sincerely,

Could It Be?

Why Pick Teaching As A Profession?

BY NANCY GENE BROWN

In his book, "The Aims of Education," the internationally known philosopher and educator, Alfred North Whitehead describes the purpose of a university in the following manner:

"THE JUSTIFICATION for a university is that it promotes the connection between knowledge and the zest for life, by uniting the young and the old in the imaginative consideration of learning . . ."

I had picked up the book in a dubious manner, feeling it would be altogether too deep and uninteresting for me. But these words took hold immediately and, in part, answered a question I'd asked many times.

WHY WOULD ANYONE want to be a teacher? Why would a person with character and ability enough to become a success in any professional walk of life choose instead a classroom and a token salary?

And, a less theoretical question, why do I want to be a teacher?

AS I READ, I began to crystallize my beliefs: That in many professions, creativeness can begin to ebb; zest for life reduced to a minimum. That at this point, a person must make important decisions:

He can seek in some manner to retain youth and vigor by intermingling and exchanging ideas with the young, the imaginative, the progressive, and in this way he can lead a mutually beneficial, productive life.

OR HE CAN let himself die intellectually.

This latter choice is the one I refuse to make. In the words of Dr. Whitehead, "Culture is activity of thought, and receptiveness to beauty and humane feeling . . ."

Most people prize this activity of thought, the struggle for new ideas.

For me, EVERY intellectual revolution which has ever stirred humanity into greatness has been a passionate protest against inert ideas . . ."

And ideas grow inert only when thinking human beings allow themselves to grow inert, unreceptive. Progress results only when thought ceases.

These ideas are my way of entering into a quest for a logical basis for my choice of professions.

Dig Loved Ones Out Of Filth Creek Trail

By MARSHALL LACOSSADE Jr.

Forty days and forty nights! If my calculations are correct we have 35 more rainfilled calendar days to remaining, planning of and to begin construction of your choice, Bluegrass area available in the latest issue of Mechanics

Illustrated.

WITH THE rains come traffic congestion, mass sniffles, arthritic joints, and the return of that all popular sport, mud-sliding. Which brings us to that well known stretch of terrain running off Call Field, across Call Field Creek, and into the Campus Post Office.

At present, if my information source is correct, there are a pair of make-shift boards precariously placed to span the mucky portion. Along this obstacle course, the Flying Gestapo can might be able to survive the combat conditions of this miniature Sierra Leone, but I'm not too sure of the average foot-sinking coed.

At any rate, if nothing can be done about the Trail, perhaps the State Road Dept. or the National Guard, or both, would be kind enough to dig out our loved ones that on the Trail during this and previous rains.

THE CAST FOR the first speech production of the season, "The Reluctant Debutante," should have been chosen last night.

The tryouts for these productions are most interesting to watch, let alone participate. All the campus Barrymores turn out for that event, and many of them are quite talented in their projects for psychological study.

Let's follow Ida Bore as she makes her entrance at the end of the Cornish Theater.

THE DOOR FLINGS open, banging against the wall. Ida strides, not walks, to the footlights. She adjusts her beret Marilyn Monroe smile upstaging all those who entered before her. She grabs a script and good naturedly volunteers to be the first on stage to display her talents.

After she reads the first page, a half minute spent looking at the script are glances confirm the director, an expression of serious humblessness. The girl uncommonly talented, she's convinced.

After she leaves the stage Ida likes to call it her "exit," she is the recipient of expressions of approval from the audience, especially one seedy looking lady family of many close friends.

AFTER SHE GIVES the director her helpful suggestions and brushes up against him in whispers secretly in his ear, and he whispers back. From all appearances she won't has the part, but the director too.

The fact is that all Ida from the director was that day and a brief "Don't call I'll call you." But as she is taken by the hand by Bella Blast and her entourage make their entrance, exchanging glances with the retreating enemy, and aim themselves for the Hot Spot of the production.

If the play proves to be the entertaining as the tryouts, this particular production to be excellent; I wouldn't miss it for the world.

Officials Often Give Insipid Speeches

BY L. A. HESTER

I was meticulously thumbing my way through the Tallahassee Democrat when I read a small article that "Queen Elizabeth is Coached in TV Technique by Husband."

Altrincham is indeed a scoundrel or not, however, if he had coached the Queen on television effective figureheads in general, they would have wholeheartedly agreed with him; for one reason soon people who acquire positions of prominence in this country have a suave to use nothing but prosaic platitudes when addressing the public.

Lord Altrincham's criticism of the Queen's speech, and President Robert M. Strozier He has been on the job for over a month and yet no one knows the $64,000 question. What do you think of the new president? Are you still undecided?

Although he has made numerous public appearances and statements he has yet to say anything of substance. Typical statements are his answers to what do you think of the international situation? "I am but a poor, old man—and I hope to be a good member of the team"; the potentiality of FSU: "We make the university anything we want to make it, we need only find the right blueprint which to attain greatness," challenge I look forward to it's a pleasure to appear before you, raise the flag, etc, etc, etc. Giving credit where credit

Allard And BC Too Much, 20-7

Rodrique Sparks TD Drive; Seminoles Prep For 'Cats

By FRANK RAMOS

Florida State's Seminoles were a slight favorite last Saturday but somebody forgot to tell Boston College quarterback Don Allard about it as he led the Eagles to a 20-7 victory over the Tribe.

But Florida State coaches had some crying over the BC win for as soon as the Seminole plane landed in Tallahassee they went to work reviewing the game films and preparing for the Villanova contest next week.

The Villanova Wildcats in the meantime were busy beating Furman 20-0 as they celebrated the opening of their newly-enlarged Campus Stadium.

Florida State, the week before romped past the Purple Hurricane 27-7.

The Eagles were a much different team than the one that fell to Navy 46-6 in their opener. Don Allard completing 12 passes in 18 tries the Eagles rolled to 23 first downs to the Seminoles' six.

ALLARD FUMBLES

It looked like the Tribe had a big break on the opening kickoff when Allard fumbled Nellums' kick and Troy Barnes recovered on the BC 24. But in four plays the Tribe picked up no yardage and the Eagles took possession of the ball and the game.

After a series of punts Boston College and Allard were on their way.

Allard took charge and completed four straight passes as the Eagles moved 52 yards in 12 plays with right halfback Alan Miller carrying the ball over for the last two yards and the score. Jim Cotter kicked the point and Boston was out in front to stay.

BC moved to the Tribe seven yard line only to be denied because of a costly fumble. The clock then stopped the Eagles when they had advanced to the State 14.

But the Eagles came back again in the third period.

With Allard resting his passing arm, the Northerners were forced to grind out the yardage on the ground, but this didn't seem to stop them.

PLENTY SCORES

They moved the pigskin 80 yards in 18 plays with fullback Larry Piersky going over from the one for the second touchdown.

Troy Barnes, Seminole center, blocked Cotter's extra point try to make the score, 13-0.

The Eagles were on their way to touchdown number three when left halfback Bob Murphy took Bobby Rose's kick and sprinted past three would be tacklers and raced 34 yards to the State 31 yard line.

Then that man Allard took over again. He hit sub halfback Jim Cudmuth with another aerial, who and the speedy halfback moved the ball downfield for an 18 yard gain.

Allard who was on alouch running the ball he gained 30 yards in 8 tries moved the ball on keep plays to the five yard line Allard thro hit end John Flanagan in the end zone for the thurd score.

Cotter made this kick good and the Seminoles were about finished.

ROCKY HITS

But Ted Rodrique from nearby Lynn, Mass. averted a shutout.

The Seminole quarterback flipped passes to Stan Dobosz, Bob Nellums and Billy Weaver and the Tribe was now on the Boston College right yard line.

Rodrique then spied Nellums in the end zone and tossed a pass that the senior end grabbed for what seemed like a Florida State score.

But officials had detected holding by the Tribe and a 15 yard penalty followed which seemed to chill the Seminole's chances for a score.

However, Rodrique was determined to give State followers something to cheer about and he spotted Ronnie Schomburger on the Eagles two and threw BC halfback Bill Alves deflected the pass, but the FSU captain made like a juggler and was hailed the ball away and went over for the score.

John Sheppard then came on for the first time and converted for the extra point and BC led 20-7

TROY BARNES, senior center for the Seminoles, is starting his fourth year of varsity competition. He blocked an extra point try and recovered a fumble last Saturday against Boston College.

Seminole Foes Score Upsets

Florida State's coming opponents made headlines this past weekend with surprising upsets over their favored foes while the Seminoles were being beaten by Boston College.

Perhaps the biggest conquest was made by the Auburn Tigers by virtue of their 7-6 defeat of Tennessee, pre-season favorite to cop the Southeastern Conference crown.

The Tigers punched across the winning score in the second quarter, and then held the Volunteers at bay to pick up their opening season win.

In another eye-opener, North Carolina State humiliated Maryland, 46-13 behind the breakaway running of halfbacks Dick Hunter and Dick Christie.

The Tribe hosts the Wolfpack on October 12, at Doak S. Campbell Stadium.

Next week's foe, Villanova, had little difficulty defeating Furman, loser to FSU 27-7 last week, by 20-0. The Wildcats entertain the Tribe Saturday in Philadelphia.

Abilene Christian had enough to gain a tie with Chattanooga, 6-6 Friday night.

Swimmers Wanted

Swimming coach Bim Stults urges all freshmen that are interested in trying out for the Florida State frosh swimming team to contact him.

Coach Stults can be reached in the men's gym or any afternoon between 3-6 at the pool in the women's gymnasium.

Baby Gridders Rip GMC, 51-0

Florida State's baby Seminoles trampled the cadets of Georgia Military College into the muddy confines of Doak S. Campbell stadium to the tune of 51-0 Friday night.

Quarterback Carl Meyer, halfback George Versprille, and fullback George Calhoun each tallied twice during the Seminole massacre.

Running wild on the rain swept field, the frosh scored twice in each period crashing out 451 yards while holding GMC to an anemic 104.

Florida State first tallied midway in the first quarter by recovering a fumble on the visitor's 43. Calhoun cracked over from the four yard marker for the first TD and starting quarterback Bobby Conrad of Marianna added the conversion.

Minutes later 175 pound guard Ray Lamz intercepted a pass and raced 37 yards for the score. With five minutes left in the half Versprille, brother of former FSU halfback Pat Versprille who was injured a year ago this fall, added a third score on a 17-yard jaunt around left end.

Halfback Bud Whitehead picked up all 14 yards on three plays in the final touchdown march of the first half and scored on make it 25-0

Early in the second half, Versprille picked off an enemy aerial on his own 32 and rambled 68 yards for his second score of the game.

Scant minutes later, Meyer kept the ball on a quarterback option and raced 68 xrom d right end for the games most spectacular display of broken field running.

GMC recovered a Seminole fumble on the Florida State seven with two minutes left in the game, but were unable to crack the tough freshman defensive wall.

Coach Paul Odom voiced his pleasure at the outcome by saying that, "the boys did a real good job and I'm well satisfied. This has been FSU's best opening freshman game."

"Our offense was working well and both our quarterbacks, Bob Conrad and Carl Meyer, ran and handled their teams well. The defense was sharp for an opener, and George Versprille was outstanding there."

Odom pointed out that next Saturday night's game with South Georgia Junior College is free to all students on presenting their student activity book at the gate

'If It Is, It's Right'

BOSTON, Mass.—This was a long, cold afternoon for an entourage of Floridians who came to this charming city to spread smiles and good will.

It was a helluva lot longer for an entourage of Florida State football players who came here to win a football game. They didn't. They got whipped.

It wasn't one of those games you could make an excuse about. It was good clean football where one team didn't make any mistakes and the other did.

There was universal agreement that quarterback Don Allard made most, if not all the difference. A cool perfectionist, he called all the shots—and few missed.

Of course, he had a couple of hulking characters named Alan Miller and Larry Piersky he could turn loose on the Seminoles' forward wall if he needed to.

Miller was tough. Plenty, a big fellow who'd have the disinterding of being a Navy down here, was as good a running fullback as FSU will meet this fall.

Point of the matter is, the Seminoles took a beating this afternoon and, to quote a philosopher the name of whom I can't remember—"if it is, it's right."

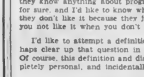
To put it in words perhaps more easily understood, the best thing that can come out of losing is a lesson learned well. Some mistakes you can't realize until you've made them.

A PERSONAL NOTE

Now, if I may, a personal note.

A couple of days ago in Tallahassee, Tom Nugent broke the silence from a locker-room adjacent to mine by saying simply, "Pierce, we need a holler guy."

I looked at him for a moment, then answered, "When you've got a bunch of swell guys like Schomburger, Nellums and Dobosz, you don't need anyone to tell 'em how to go."



I was wrong.

Sitting here high above the playing field this afternoon, it was easy to see the value of this 'holler guy' Tom mentioned. Here's why.

You see 'em down there reeling under Allard's deadly passing arm, then coming up tight to try an' stop Piersky as he comes scrapping off tackle. Then they call a time out to regroup.

A year ago, Lee Corso would have been at his best in this situation. He would have moved around the huddle, slapping Barnes on the back of the head, Johnson on his rear—he would

Sandi Sings Out

By Sandi Beskind

How many of us on this campus can honestly say that they know anything about progressive jazz? Not many, that's for sure, and I'd like to know why! Some would definately say they don't like it because they just don't like it, but how can you not like it when you don't know anything about it.

I'd like to attempt a definition of progressive jazz to perhaps clear up that question in the mind of which it roams. Of course, this definition and discussion which follows is completely personal, and incidentally open to debate.

Jazz improvisation! I guess that's sort of short, but that's what it is. In other types of music, the artist imitates the notes that the composer has put down on the manuscript, more-or-less. In jazz, that notion is almost a secondary character. Whereas in jazz, the performer takes the theme and plays around it according to what his heart tells him, not his mind. This is also the reasons for many discords and odd sounds that happen in progressive jazz. Two artists in the same band might hear the music or feel it with difference, and this makes for a discord, BUT this is not necessarily wrong. Two notes that might clash go against the classical-minded musicians, but are certainly not wrong, for who is to say what is right and wrong in music. It really is a question of what appeals to the ear, and not correctness.

In taking song artists like Sarah Vaughn and her "Great Songs From His Shows," or Ella Fitzgerald with her "Rodgers and Hart Song Book," which can easily be found in the Robin's Nest on Park Ave., one half block from the campus, or Baker's Music Center downtown, one can see the way in which they both sing out every song, be it blues or ballad, with sincerity and depth. Pianists like George Shearing and his "Shearing in Hi Fi," or Teddy Wilson's "For Quiet Lobers" are fine examples of the warmth portrayed in progressive jazz.

Why not give it a try? For some great progressive jazz, either listen to the Nite Watch on WTAL on Sunday nights from 8:00 P.M. to 12:00 midnight, or try dropping in to the Robin's Nest and give it a whirl. See you there!

Formal clothes make a man look more manly! There's an air of elegance about a tuxedo, full dress or summer formal that can't be matched in street clothes. Smart men rent their formals from our large selections of newly styled garments, newly cleaned and pressed — and individually fitted to perfection. For weddings, club dances, proms, whatever the formal occasion, renting formal wear is smart, convenient, and economical.

Pi Delta Phi, French honorary fraternity held its first business meeting of the year yesterday. The year's program was planned.

Tallahassee Bird Club Seminar will open the year's activities tomorrow at 8 p.m. in room 222, Conradi Building. Guest speaker will be Frank Winston of the Florida Game and Fish Commission, who will discuss banding experiments and the mourning dove in Florida. The meeting is open to all interested persons.

* * *

President Robert M. Strozier will speak at a Graduate Club coffee hour in the Longmire Lounge tomorrow, 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

All graduate students and mature undergraduates are invited to attend the tea, said Nancy Douglas, publicity director of the Graduate Club.

Graduate Club officers elected in a recent meeting were: Marvin Rosenblatt, president; Leon Coulter, vice president; Stewart Strickler, treasurer; Sue Mac-Intyre, social secretary; Diane Valentine, secretary; Nancy Douglas, publicity; Bick Campbell, reporter; and J. Morgan Sherwood, parliamentarian.

The ninth annual Fall Forensics Mixer was held last night.

A humorous debate was held between Rosa Castro and Melvin Peters on the subject, Resolved: That the next president of the United States should be a woman."

A discussion of the year's forensic program was held with Jean Bradshaw, senior debate manager, presiding.

Newly elected officers will be in charge at a Veteran's Club meeting Friday night, according to Joe Moffa, new president.

* * *

A two-day field trip to Pensacola will highlight the year's activities for Delta Sigma Pi, business fraternity, said Paul Jula, president.

Members will leave the Student Center tomorrow at 8 a.m., arriving in Pensacola in the afternoon. The rest of the day will be spent at the Naval Air Station, and a tour of the installation has been planned.

For tomorrow a tour of Chemsurand's modern new plant has been arranged. The tour will last approximately two hours, after which luncheon will be served.

All business or economics majors are welcome. Cost of the trip will be $7, including food, transportation, and lodging.

Approximately ten places are still available on the bus. Call 3-4355 for reservations.

prendices, who's blot on Hinduism is a matter of past, especially with the younger generation.

HOLD ON MASSES

It is hard to classify the activities of Gandhi in accepted channels, e.g. political, religious, spiritual, etc. His hold on the masses, who affectionately refer to him as Bapu, Father of the Nation, was based on his insistence on high moral principles.

He titled his autobiography "My Experiments with Truth," and no other title could have been more appropriate. During his years in independent India, his daily activities were in the form of prayer meetings, and these meetings invariably opened with hymn-singing from the holy books: Gita, Dogso, and Bible, corresponding to the three major religions, Hinduism, Islam and Christianity.

He had to sacrifice his life for this cause of unity in beliefs of mankind when on January 30, 1948, he was assassinated on his way to the prayer meeting by a fanatic of his own race.

On that solemn occasion the whole of India resolved in the words of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru: "We can best serve the spirit of Bapu by dedicating ourselves to the ideals for which he lived and the cause for which he died."

Mahatma Gandhi has become the guiding star of peace and justice through non-violent means based on love and understanding.

Today the light from this star reaches the oppressed and the restless in all the corners of the world.

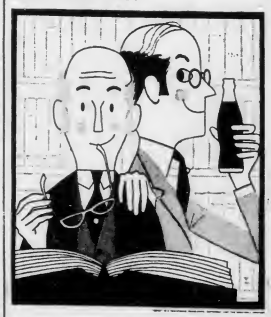
have been the 'boiler guy.'

There wasn't one today. When a timeout was called, each tired Seminole looked at the other—and each waited for the other to say something.

No one did.

This isn't a manner of criticism. It was a source of discussion and agreement, among many of the players earlier this afternoon.



But there was agreement, too, as we ran down the list trying to find this perennial 'boiler guy.'

Schomburger? He's the team captain, but he's the strong silent type who inspires by doing.

Nellums? He's another doer. Musselman, Boyer, Graham, Barnes, Fountain—It's the same all across the line.

Renn? He stays pretty much to himself even when he's off the field. Dobosz' Johnson? Weaver? Same answers.

It's a touch situation, but it's one which can be resolved only by the guys who'll do the playing. And it sure would be swell if we had eleven 'boiler guys.'

due he has said that all administrative officers of the school should teach, which I am in wholehearted agreement with. Actually this is not intended as a personal attack on President Stronzer, but one does get rather tired of listening to his pat speeches and endless streams of words where nothing is ever said.

Five years of listening to Eisenhower surely the champion of them all, has made me somewhat of a fanatic on the subject. I'll take old Harry Truman myself; no matter what you think of him at least he gives you something to substantiate your opinion on.

What I expect from administrative authorities is what Lord Altrincham says Queen Elizabeth will have to produce when she is no longer young and pretty. I quote "She will have to say things people can remember, and do things on her own initiative which will make people sit up and take notice."

Graduate Students Seek Antibacteria

Seeking an anticancerous substance, graduate students of the FSU organic chemistry department have developed antibacteria, which are effective in combating various intestinal diseases.

This research work under the authorship of the Cancer Institute for U. S. Public Health is directed by Dr. Harry Walborsky.

Graduate students, who have advanced this undertaking, are Dr. Meyer Schwarz, Dr. Lonergni, Dr. M. Baum, and Dr. C. Colombini, who is currently engaged with the work.

Although these men have not found an agent to prevent cancer, an abnormal and extensive growth of tissues, experiments have proven some of their developments to be successful in combating other bacterial growths.

'Miss Gymkana' Entries Due

Entries for this year's "Miss Gymkana" contest will be due by Oct. 16, Beauty, poise, personality and co-operation will be considered in the selections, according to Dr. Hartley Price, director of the Gymkana Show.

Registration For Tally-Ho Reopens

Re-opening of Tally-Ho registration will begin Monday, Oct. 7 and continue through Friday, Oct. 11, according to Evie Morris, yearbook editor.

Seniors who have not yet ordered their pictures for a picture appointment will be accommodated, but those students will be allowed to register this late. However, no students will be permitted to reserve a book.

"We don't have enough time to get pictures to underclassmen," Miss Morris explained, "because we're already running as it is."

Registration desk will be found Westcott across from the ticket booth. A Tally-Ho representative will be on hand from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on each of specified days.

NO PICS, NO BOOK

Students who haven't yet ordered for a Tally-Ho or had pictures made will not receive a book," the editor pointed out.

Art Gallery Has New Curator, Opens With Hurst Sculptures

Florida State University's Art Gallery, opening the academic year under a new curator, Mrs. Mary Jones, offers as the first attraction a one-man show by Ralph N. Hurst of the faculty.

Mrs. Jones, assistant professor of arts, won an exhibit Sunday at 3 p.m. The occasion is open to the public and the works will be on exhibit through Oct. 31.

Mrs. Jones has joined the faculty as an instructor in art history and gallery curator. She was an assistant at Williams-Proctor Institute at Utica, N.Y. She also has served as research assistant at the Museum of Art and Gothenburg Museum both in New York City. She is from Philadelphia, she is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College and a master's degree from the University.

WIDE RANGE OF ART

Visitors to the Hurst show will find several group-works as in wood, stone and terra cotta, the exhibitions on the gallery for the year contain a range of art of interest to people, students and faculty. From Oct 13 to Nov. 10 the gallery will display a group of Toulouse-Lautrec drawings; and from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15 a display of Little Masters. The Lecture Department of Art will have an exhibition from Jan. 29 and from Feb 2 to 23 the Department of Arts Education will have an exhibition of Occupational Creativity.

In March, Miss Jones said the gallery will feature "Modern Art in Tallahassee," a showing of art of modern masters owned by Tallahassee collectors.

She called attention to new gallery hours. The gallery will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Sunday afternoon from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

FIRST ONE-MAN SHOW

The show, which opened Sunday night, is the first one-man show by Hurst, a native of Indiana, who now has come to Florida five and one-half years ago.

He is widely known both for his figurative works, which have won awards in and outside of the state and for his writing in addition to classroom work on the campus he has taught extension classes for adult students at West Palm Beach, Pensacola, Ft. Lauderdale and Miami. This year he is teaching beginner and senior high school art teachers in Jacksonville.

A student of the no-ed sculptor, Robert Laurent, Hurst has arranged and worked with Florida materials, including several native woods like cherry and black walnut. He does not work from a model, but, searching for the form he wants to achieve he works with the materials.

In addition to wood, these include marble, Maine boulders, soapstone, alabaster, metal, and terra cotta.

HURST'S AWARDS

His awards include the 36th Annual Exhibition Award, Tri-State Exhibit, Evansville, Ind., 1951; First Prize Kroger Salon, Indianapolis, Ind., 1952 and 1956, second prize Modern Art Prize 1952; Chairmanship Award and second prize, Florida Craftsmen, 1953. Gifford, Monroe Cast In 'Rainmaker' Leads

By NANCY HANNAFORD

Launching FSU's theatre season this year will be Richard Nash's "The Rainmaker," which will be presented November 5, 6, and 8 in the Conrad Theater.

Tickets for this production, to be sold on actually open the will not sell soon be on sale at the Westcott ticket office, according to Mr. R G. Fallon, director of theater at FSU.

Ethel Gifford, a junior from Clearwater, will star in "The Rainmaker" on the part of Lizzy Curry, a warm, mature, but plain member of a drought stricken farming community.

PLAYS STARRUCK

Playing Starbuck, the rainmaker, will be Craig Monroe. In the movie version of this play the part was played by Burt Lancaster and Lizzy Curry was portrayed by Katherine Hepburn.

Bryant Simms, a junior transfer student from Jacksonville University, will play the part of File the community's assistant sheriff.

Freshman Royce Pipkin, from Haines City, was chosen for the part of Jimmy, Lizzy's younger brother, who is a party in the conspiracy to set her married.

John Wallace will play Noah, the quiet, unassuming brother of Lizzy and Jimmy. The sophomore hails from Miami.

Playing H. C., the warm-heart ed father, will be Reo McCall, a junior from St. Petersburg.

Senior George Goldstein, from Miami, will portray the community sheriff who does his part to justify human hope, whether it be for rain or feminine beauty.

Every member of the cast has had extensive dramatics experience in either college or high school, since company, or community theatre work.

Star Ethel Gifford, a drama major, has played in "Sabrina Fair," "Oedipus," and "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife."

Craig Monroe, the rainmaker, has played in "Oedipus," "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," "The Skin of Our Teeth," and "Bomb Pacific." He took a part in the last production

Bryant Simms has had professional experience in stock company work and has participated in community theatre drama.

Very active in high school dramatics was Royce Pipkin, and sophomore John Walker has already been in the cast of two major FSU productions: "Oedipus" and "The Bigger They Come."

Reo McCall, majoring in theater arts, played in a party in the conspiracy to set her married.

Love parts were "Oedipus," "Sabrina Fair," "The Bigger They Come," "The Skin of Our Teeth," and "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp."

George Goldstein has done extensive technical work on FSU productions, and played in "Bomb Pacific," "My Three Angels," and "Oedipus."

Mr. R G. Fallon will direct "The Rainmaker," essentially a story of the importance of hope, a set in a drought stricken farming community. There live the Currys.

315 Women Pledge 16 National Sororities

Annual Leader Conference Slated Oct. 16

The annual Mortarboard-ODK Leadership Training Conference will be held on Oct. 16, according to Sylvia Kearson, chairman of the joint committees.

Miss Kearson said that the purpose of the conference is to train both freshmen and upperclassmen in the mechanics of leadership through discussion and lecture.

The seminar will begin at 7:30 p.m. in 124 Seience Building and will last till approximately 9:15.

Freshmen and upperclassmen will meet together at the beginning of the session for a general orientation, including talks by members of the university administration.

SEPARATE GROUPS

They will then break up into groups, with the freshmen remaining in the Science hall, and the upperclassmen going to various rooms in the building for discussions of various phases of campus leadership.

The seminar for freshmen exclusively will be divided into four phases.

Student publications will be the first topic, with Laud Anderson a member of the Board of Publications, and Dr. Reed Montgomery, publications advisor, in charge.

Religious organizations and activities will be taken up by Joe Westhafer and Dr. Harcourt Waller, director of the Canterbury Fellowship.

Martha Grunaud, chairman of the Student Affairs Arnold Greenfield, student body president, will preside over the meetings during the third section, which will concern the various opportunities for leadership in student government.

Leadership and scholarship properties will be the subject of the fourth discussion and will be led by Jan Kemmis, student body vice president, who is also a member of both Garnet Key and Mortarboard.

The three discussion groups for upperclassmen will be led by graduate students.

One of the groups will be a general discussion on the purpose and function of campus political parties in the overall university situation.

Joyce Weathrup, secretary of honor, will lead the group which discusses the honor system and the functions of the honor council.

School spirit will be the topic of the third and final upperclass discussion. This group will be led by Jim McIntyre.

Miss Kearson, who is co-chairman of the committee, with Hank McCann, ODK member, said that "last year's conference was a big success, and we expect this one to be even better."

Miss Kearson urged all students who are in any way interested in the topics to be discussed to be present for the entire session.

WANT NEW MAGAZINE. Roy Clifton Moose (left) and Dr. James Trammell Cox, new additions to the FSU English Department talk over the idea of printing a magazine for the encouragement of fledgling writers on campus. Both are graduates of the University of North Carolina.

Novel Writers

Two English Profs Seek Literary Mag

A chain of coincidences which began in the 1940's has brought together on the campus of Florida State University the only two men who have been awarded the Thomas Wolfe Memorial Award by the University of North Carolina.

They are Dr. James Trammel Cox and Roy Clifton Moose, who joined the faculty of the FSU English Department this Fall. Both are productive writers. Each is working on a novel.

And, as a means of encouraging creative writing on the campus, both would like to see a literary magazine at FSU similar to the Western Review of the University of Iowa, of which Cox was managing editor, and Carolina Quarterly Review of Literature, of which Moose was editor and one of the founders.

SOUTH PRODUCTIVE

The agree that the greatest literary output of the present day is in the South, and that the problem facing southern writers is the lack of outlets for their works.

And, both believe the so-called "little" magazines would have risen mushroomed on campuses over the nation since the war financed primarily by the students themselves are the best outlets of all for beginning writers.

The Thomas Wolfe memorial award, established in 1938 soon after the death of the famous novelist Carolinian has been awarded only three times. Cox received it in 1941 and in 1942 the year he graduated at Chapel Hill. Moose received the award in 1948, the year he received the AB degree from the university.

Strangest coincidence of all is that Dr. Francis Townsend, head of FSU's English department, selected the men without knowing they have received the Wolfe award. Neither of the writers knew the other. They met for the first time at Chapel Hill the past summer, and in the course of conversation found out that they were both coming to FSU.

NATIVE VIRGINIAN

Dr. Cox a native of Lynchburg, Va., came here from the University of Iowa, where he taught English. He also has been on the faculty of Converse College. After attending Lynchburg College, Cox received the AB degree from the University of North Carolina. He also holds the MFA and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Iowa.

His published works include most recently a short story "This is Sedlacek Talking" in Perspective, Spring 1957 and "Report on Chaos: Symbolic Naturalism" in Modern Fiction Studies, published by the Purdue University.

After graduating at Chapel Hill, Moose, a native of Chinaw-Ga, N. C. went with the University of Iowa.

His published works include a novel, "Brave Men, Brave Women" and a short story "Hunter's Home" which appeared in the Virginia Quarterly Review.

Moose received the BA degree with honors in 1943 and the MA degree in 1950. He is married to Jovanka Iovanka and his daughter from the University of North Carolina.

112 Drop Out During Hectic Rush Week

Over 300 women were pledged to the 16 national sororities on the Florida State University campus this week.

The pledging climaxed a week of hectic rush which was marred considerably by the constant rains in the Tallahassee area.

Ann Kelly, pan-hellenic council president, had announced earlier in the week this approximately 721 women were going out for rush with slightly over 300 places available.

But as the rushees dropped out of the race during the first few days of the muddy affair, the total did not get beds from sororities of their choice.

There will be a period of informal rush for those rushees who did not meet their quotas during the rush period. The dates will be announced later.

The complete list of pledges is as follows:

Homecoming Dance Theme; 'FSU: The Forward Look'

The 1957 homecoming dance will "go modern," according to Kay Hufford, decorations chairman.

Miss Hufford, who is heading a large committee of students in charge of decorating the gym, said the theme would be simply: "FSU: The Forward Look."

She said that "the whole dance will have a modernistic flavor, from the band to the decorations."

The name of the band to play at the dance has not been announced yet.

GOING WELL

Jim McIntyre, general chairman of the dance, announced this week that plans were going well with the entire dance committee.

"The orchestra has been obtained, the tickets have been taken care of, and all the arrangements for decorations and hospitality are under way," he said. Gold Key men's leadership honorary, is annually in charge of the homecoming dance.

McIntyre remained silent on the name of the band, but did say that it would be announced in the Flambeau in next Friday's edition.

EX-QUEENS

McIntyre announced the appointment of two ex-homecoming queens to the information committee. They are Betsy Bowden, 1954 queen, and Laurie Bowden, who reigned over last year's festivities.

The committee also announced a new ticket and registration policy for this year.

Tickets for the dance will be sold at $3 per couple with no single tickets being sold.

STUDENTS WILL PAY

Invitations will be sent to the governor, university administrators, faculty and chaperones only. There will be no special invitations to any students.

This year for the first time, no complimentary tickets will be issued to students serving on the dance committee. All members of the committee will pay their own way.

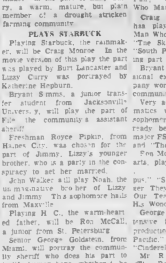
Miss Hufford issued a special appeal to any student who might be interested in serving on the decorations committee, whether they have had experience or not, to contact Miss Marie Williams in the Longmire student lounge.

"We need all the help we can get," she said, "and will have a place for any interested student."

FSU Contest Set Oct. 8-9

The annual Miss FSU Contest, sponsored each year by Tally-ho, will be Oct. 8 and 9 this year, according to Lynn LaGrange, who is in charge of the beauty section of that year's book.

The contest will begin at 7:30 p.m. on both the two nights in Westcott auditorium.



Coeds who wish to enter the contest should obtain application blanks of their own making to the LaGrange information sometime this week.

The blank should include the student's name, home town, campus address, major, and class.

No sponsor is necessary," Miss LaGrange said. Any girl who would like to enter the competition may do so on her own."

For the first night's competition, the girls will wear formals. The second night they will appear in skirts and sweaters.

Also on the final night, they will wear during one performance shorts and T-shirts or sweaters.

STONE BIRD WATCHERS. Dr. Ralph N. Hurst, of the FSU art faculty, discusses his current one-man show with the new University Art Gallery curator, Miss Ellen Mary Jones. The object of their discussion is Dr. Hurst's "Stone Bird," which is on display in the show.

Distorted Picture

Opponents of the proposed "last resort" bill are to be commended for again keeping the bill out of the constitutional revision session.

FOR THE SECOND straight day the bill failed to gain the required two-thirds vote of the members present in order to be admitted to the floor.

But the vote was too close for comfort and proponents of the measure threaten to bring it up for consideration again. We hope this does not happen because it does not bring merit to Florida or Governor Collins, who has gained much prestige in his handling of the problem these last few weeks.

CALLED HERE for the important task of revising a much outmoded and amorphous constitution, their job has been almost bypassed by the fear of Little Rock. And not only Little Rock and federal troops scare the more zestful of the lawmakers. Fear of Cotton, Sturgis and Mansfield and other cities where gradual integration is taking place is within these men.

The picture we see is an ignominious one, for while Florida's chief spokesman is charting a wise, foresighted, and intelligent path for the state to follow, the legislators—leaders, as well as representatives of the people—are ducking his very words by planning to bring the once vetoed "last resort" bill to the floor again.

WILL THE purposeof the session be forgotten? Already it seems as if no real advances will be made. Certainly the Senators and Representatives will not be in the mood to present spirited debate on whether or not to give South Florida its share of representation in Tallahassee, if the crux of argument concerns circumventing the Supreme Court's three-year-old decision.

We hope the "last resort" bill is judged to be unwise by the Legislature and that it settles down to discuss the business at hand—revision of the Florida Constitution.

Extend Library Hours Again

One concrete, advantageous service was established last year by the Student Senate. It arranged with university officials to keep the library open until 10 p.m. Sunday nights.

However, the library has gone back to its old schedule on Sundays of opening its doors from 2 to 5 p.m. From the standpoint of economy, the library benefits, but from the standpoint of convenience, the students do not.

The extra study time on Sunday nights was greatly appreciated. Although books could not be checked out at this time, other library facilities were available, and only a few librarians were needed to operate overtime.

Student government is working again to get the closing time extended on Sunday nights and during exam weeks.

It will be a feather in its cap, if it is successful.

Defense Tags Can Be Had

Hurrah for free enterprise!

Our Washington brethren have once again prowled us from the inroads of socialism by announcing that Civil Defense name tags (to be worn around the neck for identification in case of nuclear disaster) will be made available to the public through governmental cooperation with the Pet Milk company.

American citizens are urged to send 25 cents in coin plus one label from a large can of specified brand of milk and receive their identification tag. Hurry, for the supply is limited! ! !

Poetic comment on above newsflash:

Hydrogen Bomb got you feeling blue?
Pet Milk is the drink for you.
Send in a quarter with the label,
And get your dogtag while your able.

Ten Buck Ticket Outdated

May we make a suggestion to Morrison's Food Service? Long has the ten dollar meal ticket been out of date. We dare anyone to attempt to eat in the Seminole Club for ten dollars a week, so why not sell fifteen dollar meal tickets?

Students can plan their meal budgets to fit the price of the cafeteria eating establishment. Seriously, many students figure they can eat in the Student Center or Seminole during the week for the price of a ten dollar meal ticket but find the book a bit slim toward the end of the week.

With prices continuing to soar at Morrison's, a fifteen dollar meal ticket seems more realistic.

Little Girl Proves Big In Spirit

BY LANE GOTRLIE

This is the story of a little girl.

That is, she's small in size Anyone over 5'1" will tell you that, for they seem to tower over her curly red head. Does she mind? Does she ever!

A DOLL PACKED with dynamite, however. Through sheer feminine physicality, her body houses a spirit and brain mightier than the mightiest.

Glenda Briscoe, better known as "Frecky" had just a few problems after she entered FSU. No, they were a little different from those of the typical freshman girl—dates, studies, fun, etc. didn't seem to bother her much, for the first part of the year was fine.

IT WAS AT THE end of the year that the bombshell exploded—she was on crutches for the last six weeks of school, including final exams. This was the second time it had happened, however, for during her junior year in high school she had ruptured a knee cartilage playing softball. Playing basketball two years later she did the same thing to the other knee.

This doesn't sound too bad, you say. True, one could survive being on crutches during final exams, having to be carried up and down three flights of dorm stairs, not being able to sleep and all of the other things entailed

BUT YOU SEE, her major was physical education, and she tried being a physical ed major with two ruptured knee cartilages? Terrby dif for one more semester. But it was impossible. Did she throw up her hands? Not her. She turned right over to the English Dept.' and is now very happily spending most of her time with English literature

In spite of the crutches, Torchy managed to become a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, which requires just a few bit of intelligence. She also served on the Student Religious Council, a most interesting experience. For the tapping occurred just after she had very exhaustedly gotten to sleep, and suddenly she woke up to find people punning ribbons on her and dragging all over the room. The next thing she knew two girls had picked her up, and they "went roaring down three flights of stairs" and she'd dropped me. It would have been the end."

BUT IT WASN'T, for the next year she was back to pledge Kappa Alpha Theta, and to be initiated to the following semester. She was also Dramurals chairman (ironic, isn't it?)- for Lambda Chi, and quite active in the Westminster House

As president of Bryan last year, Torchy spent what she considered to be her most rewarding year. The residents of Bryan felt the same way. This is quite a feat, for she became a member of Mortar Board, Garnet Key, and Sigma Tau Delta.

For someone who has to chin herself to find the blankets in the top of her closet, this little girl is pretty big.

Writer Picks...

TO THE EDITOR:

I was interested to see your football picks in the September 27th issue of the Flambeau; however, I wonder if you picked FSU to defeat Boston College on sentiment. The majority of the staff missed four, and some more.

TO COMPARE my picks to yours, here are mine for the coming weekend: N C. State over Clemson, Duke over Maryland, Tulane over FSU, Michigan over Georgia Tennessee over Mississippi St, Virginia Tech over William & Mary, W Virginia over Wisconsin, Army over Penn State, Yale over Brown, Illinois over Oklahoma, Navy over N Carolina, Texas A & M over Missouri, Iowa over Wash., State, Tulane over Marquette Minnesota over Purdue, Oregon State over Northwestern, Mich. State over California, Colorado over Kansas, Florida over Kentucky and Baylor over Miami.

I am looking forward to the coming Flambeau Picks.

Sincerely,
PETER MARRAINE

Is Center Annex Planned?

TO THE EDITOR.

I would like a little information on a subject I have heard around campus. Was there an appropriation for the enlargement of the Student Center? What has been done?

Sincerely,
BOB FUTCH

(Editor's Note): Plans have been made for a Student Union Building which would house student activities, but no appropriation has been made for it by the legislature. However, the legislature has authorized the university to borrow money to build a $15,000 addition to the bookstore and post office, according to Rod Shaw, business manager.

Kilenyi Recital Many Faceted One

BY LOWELL RODDENBERRY

Tonight's piano recital at 8.15 in Opperman Music Hall by Edward Kilenyi is a many faceted one. The performing artist is a world renowned pianist and not so incidentally an FSU faculty member, as is the composer, Ernst von Dohnanyi, to whose works this concert is entirely devoted.

Dohnanyi is quite probably the world's greatest living musician. His name is pronounced Doak-non-yee. He does with a rather guttural sound in the back of the throat.

A PROGRAM devoted wholly to the works of one composer can easily unique, but the well balanced program that Kilenyi has arranged will most certainly be rare Dohnanyi's harmonic idiom is unabashedly romantic, by variety of musical forms represented lends the element of contrast that nourishes the mind and musical experience.

The contemporary pianist: a do-it-mes a specialist in one style period, or in the works of one composer. The do-it-mes is a safe assumption to say that Mr. Kilenyi prefers the trading of peanuts who specialize in the whole repertoire. He can and does play the composer programs based on the composition of the great masters from Bach to Bartok Suffice it to say, the is no mean feat.

Tonight's program includes the Passacaglia, opus 6. The work a as forbidding pianistically as the word is for composition. Remarkably. It is possible to give a short concise definition thus it is simply a theme or melody played over and over in the base with con variation, melodies or variations superimposed above it. Of interest to the more listening listener are the variations which assume a formal importance of their own, in that a rondo form becomes apparent as the variations unfold.

NEXT COMES the Rurala Hungarica, opus 32 a; the "a" denoting that the work has been transcribed into mediums other than the original piano version. The Rurala is based completely on Hungarian folk melodies and is undeniably authentic as folk music

The Introduction and Fugue in a flat minor follows the intermission. This is a brilliant, virtuoso piece that audiences find delightful, but which confronts the performer with a fiendishly difficult task. The fugal subject is subjected to the usual devices of contrast in contrapuntal technique and the introduction, which is of a rhapsodic nature, uses the fugue subject for its thematic material.

THE MARCH and Minuet that follow are two totally unrelated compositions which will speak for themselves. The former is one of the more often played works of Dohnanyi. Closing this group is the Capriccio in f minor which figures prominently in the repertoire of every virtuoso

Two concert transcriptions close the program. First five in the various registers of the keyboard

Johann Strauss' Treasure Waltz from the Gypsy Baron closes the program in scintillante proof the Ernst von Dohnanyi has a thorough affinity with the waltz and is without doubt, the king of waltz transcribers

THIS CONCERT, like any other faculty p ve student performances is open to the public. And there is no admission fee. To those interested, the student recitals at 2:00 every Tuesday afternoon are open to the public and on the basis of the first two recitals, well worth attending. In explanation, these student recitals are the music student's equivalent of a laboratory and only incidentally entertainment. The entire middle section and most of the left in Opperman Music Hall are reserved for music students and faculty, but the remaining seats are available

More than worthy of a necessarily brief mention are two Clementi sonatas Dolores Cano and Billy Alston, who played Beethoven's fourth and fifth piano concert on the past two consecutive Tuesdays. Both Miss Cano and Mr. Alston exhibit abilities of artist calibre with which their audiences obviously concurred, giving each long, sustained applause.

Alpha Kappa Psi Sets Open House

Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional business fraternity will hold its first open house Sunday for the purpose of entertaining all business majors interested in obtaining membership into the organization.

There will be approximately 46 student members and 13 faculty members on hand to greet the interested students and to discuss the purpose of the organization and plans for the current year, said Jim Julian, president.

All students enrolled in the School of Business are eligible for membership after the successful completion of a short pledge period

The open house will take place from 3-6 p.m. at the chapter house, 902 W. Park.

Dance Tryouts Slated Tuesday

Theatre Dance Group tryouts will be held Tuesday at 3 30 p.m. in the women's gym. Everyone is invited to try out.

What Will Future History Books Say?

BY DON HAYES

What the events of the past few weeks have stood the test of time, how will historians assay the "invasion" of Little Rock?

THE INTERESTING story of the "Whisky Rebellion" seems to offer a parallel in some ways, though of course differences exist. Judging from what the average person knows about the "Whisky Rebellion", one is forced to conclude that future generations will neither be much disturbed nor affected by the Little Rock controversy. On the other hand, the use of the South are certainly affected now by the action of the President and naturally give little thought to the judgments of posterity, which is of course subject to the passions and prejudices that sometimes precipitate our thoughts and actions

THE DECISION of Eisenhower, to act in support of the Federal Courts, is obviously contrary to his general demeanor Ever since he has held the office of President of the United States, he has compromised his actions to the extent that he has just could not be termed a strong chief executive of the type personified by Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln and the two Roosevelts.

Then all the sudden he turned and refused to give ground any more.

I hope that I live long enough to have the opportunity to learn the general historical evaluation of the present actions throughout this period and certainly there must be further decisions and unexpected implications.

THOSE WHO advocate the closing of the public schools giving the responsibility of educating the children back to the parents and the communities strike a blow at the very foundation of our government.

Such a system, to be practicable would involve unspecified tax funds to support religious institutions, clearly violating the concept of separation of church and state Of course all people adhering to this belief, but in the past this was based on the First Amendment to the Constitution-- has been upheld by the courts. Probably some of necessity more restrictive and the end result likely prohibitive.

Certainly this is a time of reflective thinking and true republic officials, who will act according to their conscience

MSCW's Curfew Worse Than FSU's

BY BUCKY CANNON

Do you think that the hours for coeds are bad at Florida State University? If you do, it's a good thing you're not attending Mississippi State College. Coeds there must be in by 10:30 p.m on weeknights, including Sunday, 11 p.m. on Friday night, and are allowed a 12:30 p.m. extension on Saturday nights. And a girl traveling outside a five mile radius of the campus must get written permission from her parents before she can leave.

BUT THE BULK of the girls in the area attend Mississippi State College for Women, about twenty miles away. Conditions are worse there from the social point of view. Closing hours for women's dorms are 10:30 every evening except Saturday when the girls are allowed to return as late as 12:30 a.m. Freshmen and sophomore girls are limited on their number of dates per year. Juniors and the cluther. On all evening dates girls from MSCW must double date.

The sophomore class at the University of North Carolina has dropped "Rat Week". They did this after deciding that only a minority of freshmen were participating in the week and that traditions alone was not reason enough to keep it. In its place they will try to install a Friendship Week.

THE QUESTION of dancing on campus was raised at Wake Forest last week by the editor of the Wake Forest, a group of strong Baptist affiliation has also been discussing dancing on the campus since early April. Criticisms from "church circles" around the area (North Carolina) has caused the Board to appoint a committee to reconsider the question.

Big goof at Marquette University. The University built a new, modern mant a dorm. Students greeted the news with cheers, rooms enthusiastically. One story never made it turned out that they could not get out.

The door manufacturer had installed the doors with locks on the wrong sides. Those doors were recommended for a mental institution.

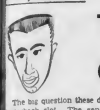
Scrambled Song List Can Become Craze

BY ARTHUR ALBRECHT

A few months back Ed Sullivan's smiling Sunday night revue Steve Allen, the show's star regularly wrecked the ranks of such old standbys as Charades, Three Minute Spin the Bottle.

A VARIATION OF UP at an Auction, League of America dinner, Allen, the sometimes comedian, emcee, and part time songwriter, introduced the idea of a scrambled song list. Typical of the possible titles presented for this new parlor pastime are: The Man In The Raincoat Passed Suit by General Robert E Lee, The Red Seed by Lotsy Bur-bank, Rock Around The Clock by Bobo Rockefeller and The Day The Music Stopped by Charles Van Doren.

As a matter of interest, this writer does not consider sport has failed to catch on at the college level. This, however, is understandable. Everyone requires pardon the expression, having an occasional book or at least a book review.



IN ORDER TO eliminate this definite handicap, I suggest that by establishing the time, we might start a new campus craze. After all we have to listen to the radio and slide our nickels in the juke box also.

Here's a few to get the game rolling. My One Sin by Judas Iscariot, Whole Lot Of Shaking Going On by Jayne Mansfield, A Good Man Is Hard To Find by the Baltimore baseball Scouts, Somebody Loves Me by Nikita Khrushchev, Please Don't Talk About Me When I'm Gone by Dook Campbell, Ma He's Making Eyes At Me by Liberace

Gone by Dr. Howard Dunford, Dear Hearts And Gentle People by Norman Vincent Peale, The Happy Wanderer by John Foster Dulles, Father Knows Best by Harry MacFadden, Rave A Party by Mike Todo, Jailhouse Rock

The Big Question

The big question these days is who will run the team from the quarterback slot. The general consensus is that Bobby Renn is the passer the position calls for.

Everyone knows that he can run and kick, but the prime ability of a quarterback is passing.

Judgment had to be held up as the Forman game was not fair test, but after listening to the Boston College fiasco, on the radio, that's the main sorespot.

Renn threw twice, completed none.

But this is what's puzzling us. With the Seminoles behind one touchdown, Renn, number one quarterback, saw very little action during the second half.

I haven't seen this fact mentioned in any of the game stories or even game stories appear in the papers.

AN WITH THE GOLDEN ARM

The team was being run by Ted Rodrigue and Jerry Henderson—numbers two and three respectively.

True, "The man with the golden arm" got the Tribe a touchdown in the waning moments of the game when the issue was not in doubt.

But Rocky is always a sure bet to get us a touchdown when the odds are Florida State winning are a bit sad.

Last season he passed for the only Seminole score against Georgia Tech and all but scored the lone touchdown as the Jackets bowled to Miami.

Lee Corso scored from the one after Rocky's passing gave the Tribe first Elba.

And the pattern continues the same this season.

However, it must be pointed out that Rodrigue did contribute a touchdown pass against Villanova last year in Philadelphia.

With about one minute remaining in the first half it was as Nugent said "Rocky, go in there and get us a touchdown."

And promptly his reply was "Okay, Chief." So he hit Nellums with a pass in the end zone.

And tomorrow the Tribe will be facing another good passer in the person of Bill Magee. Villanova's top passer. Reports are that his replacement Jim Grazione is not bad at throwing the football, either.

This week's rains have not given the Seminoles much chance to touch-up their leaky pass defense. After what Don Allard did to Nugent will do his darndest that no other passer will do likewise.

We'll know tomorrow.

This will be the fourth meeting between FSU and the Wildcats with the Seminoles chalking up victories in the other three tilts.

ILLANOVA'S TURN?

But this could be Villanova's turn. So far they have split the first two games. Baylor was lucky to push a touchdown over in the last quarter to win 7-0, while Furman fell, 28-0.

For those who like to compare scores—go ahead FSU beat Furman 21-7.

However, the Seminoles must show something soon. From here on in the schedule gets tougher not easier.

In last week's Flambeau, Bobby Renn was quoted as saying if the Seminoles could beat Boston College they could go all the way.

Well, they didn't. And N. C. State comes next here in Tallahassee.

WHAT EVERY YOUNG COED SHOULD WEAR

Gather round, girls. Flip open a pack of Marlboros, light up, enjoy that fine flavor, that good bite, relax and listen while Old Dad tells you about the latest campus fashions.

The key word this year is casual. Be casual. Be slapdash. Be rakish. Improvise. Invent your own ensembles—like ski pants with a peek-a-boo blouse, like pajama bottoms with an ermine stole, like a hockey sweater with a dirndl.

Dirndl, incidentally, is one of the truly fascinating words in the English language. The word originated on June 27, 1846, when Dusty Sugafoot, the famous scout and Indian fighter, went into the Golden Nugget Saloon in Cheyenne, Wyoming to see Lily Langtry, Miss Langtry did her dance in pink tights. Dusty had never seen anything like that in his life and he was much impressed. He thought about her all the way home. When he got home his wife Feld-par was waiting to show him a new skirt she had made for herself. "How do you like my new skirt, Dusty?" asked Feldspar. He looked at the large, voluminous garment, then thought of the pink tights on Lily Langtry. "Your skirt is darn dull," said Dusty. "Darn dull" was later shortened to dirndl, which is how dirndls got their name.)

But I digress. We were smoking a Marlboro and talking about the latest campus styles. Casual, we agree, is the key word. But casual need not mean drab. Livein your outfits with a touch of glamor. Even the lowly cigaree and man-shirt combination can be made exciting if you'll adorn it with a simple necklace of 120 matched diamonds. With Bermuda shorts, wear kneecymbals. Be guided by the famous poet, Cosmo Sigaloos (Chloe cousin Dusty invented the dirndl), who wrote:

Sparkle, my beauty,
Shimmer and shine,
The night is young,
The air's like wine,
Cling to a leaf,
Hang on a vine,
Crawl on your belly,
It's time to dine.

(Mr. Sugafoot, it should be explained, was writing about a glowworm. Insects, as everyone knows, are among Mr. Sugaloos' favorite subjects for poetry. Who can ever forget his immortal Ode To a Ball Weevil Or his Tumbling Along with the Tumbling Tumbleug? Or his Fly Gently, Sweet Aphid? Mr. Sugaloos has been inactive since the invention of DDT.)

But I digress. We were smoking a Marlboro and discussing fashion. Let us turn now to headwear. The motif in hats this year will be familiar American scenes. There will be models to fit every head—for example, the "Empire State Building" for tall, thin heads; the "Jefferson Memorial" for squatty heads; "Niagara Falls" for dry scalps. Feature of the collection is the "Statue of Liberty," complete with a torch that actually burns. This is very handy for lighting your Marlboros, which is terribly important because no matter how good Marlboros are, they're nowhere unless you light them.

© Max Shulman, 1957

Whatever you wear, girls—and men too—you'll find the perfect accessory is Marlboro, whose makers take pleasure in bringing you this column throughout the school year.

Baby Seminoles After 2nd Win

Florida State's Baby Seminoles will be out after their second victory tomorrow night when they meet South Georgia Junior College at Campbell Stadium.

Students must have their activity books with them to gain admission to the game. The book must contain ticket No. 4.

Kickoff time is slated for 8.

"We expect this game to be a true test of how good the freshmen are really in," said head freshman coach, Paul Odom.

In the frosh's first game they romped past Georgia Military 51-0.

Odom expects to play a wide open game with the emphasis on passing.

Same Lineup

The frosh mentor has decided to stay with last week's winning lineup. Again directing the Baby Tribe will be Conrad with co-captain Bud Whitehead running from left halfback.

Operating at right half will be George Perry, a 175-pound 12 of the Seminoles' 51 points last week. Versaille was also outstanding on defense in the opener.

Jim Calhoun who also scored twice against GMC is slated to start at fullback.

Getting the starting assignments at the ends are Ron Smith of Daytona Beach and Ronnie Hinson of Waycross, Ga.

Bill Kirkendall and Joe Weber will hold down the tackle posts against South Georgia.

Ray Lamb who intercepted a pass and raced for a touchdown against GMC gets the nod at left guard again. Playing opposite Lamb is co-captain Terry Maran from New Orleans.

Operating from the center spot will be Jim Worthington of Columbus, Texas.

Tribe Faces Villanova Tomorrow

20-Point Underdogs; Rain Hampers Week's Practice

By JOE GREENE

Florida State will attempt to rejuvenate itself in the eyes of Seminole fans as it journeys to Philadelphia to meet the Villanova Wildcats tomorrow afternoon.

The Tribe goes into the game a 20-point underdog on the basis of comparison and speculation.

Villanova beat Furman 28-0 and lost to Baylor by a slim margin as seven points, while the Seminoles beat Furman 27-7 and lost to Boston College 28-7.

The Wildcats promise to be as strong if not stronger than last year. Fourteen lettermen are returning and sophomore prospects are looked to for reinforcements.

Calling the plays from behind the line for Villanova are Bill Magee and Jim Grazione. Magee topped Eastern passers on percentage of completions in that department last year.

BIG LINE

Villanova's forward wall promises to be a tough one to crack as the Wildcats guard and tackle department is considered the stronghold of the team.

Villanova's pass defense could be another problem for the Seminole's to overcome. Last year they were rated tops in the country on statistical evidence.

And the Wildcats can throw the ball around just as effectively as they can defend against it. Magee has good aerials to throw to, and completed passes seem to have plagued the Seminoles considerably thus far this year.

The Seminoles left for the big city this morning at 8 after facing a rain filled and practice missed week.

According to Tom Nugent, head coach, the rain has been a continuing problem for the past week and could really hurt the team.

FOUNTAIN STARTS

The Seminole's have undergone a slight shakeup for the game tomorrow. Bob Fountain has been moved to left tackle in place of Bill Mussleman.

Fountain sat out last week's game because of a leg and toe injury.

Sophomore Abner Bigbie has climbed into the right guard position in place of Jerry Graham who is out of action as the result of a hip injury sustained at Boston last week.

FSU will be led by quarterback Bobby Renn who is the teams leading ground gainer with 117 yards Freddy Pickard is next with 89 yards in only nine carries.

In the passing department, Ted Rodrigue has completed 10 out of 16 for 110 yards and two touchdowns.

Renn is next with four for eight, 46 yards and one touchdown.

Ronnie Schomburger, FSU's candidate for all-American, is the team's leading pass receiver with three for 50 yards and one touchdown.

Bob Nellums, the very capable right end has snagged two TD passes He is the teams leading scorer with 12 points.

The Seminoles are batting 500 in the passing end of the game with 14 for 28.

A tough problem for the Wildcat's pass defense to face.

Lose Five Men

Gymnasts Hit Hard By 1957 Graduation

BY MIKE PLATTIS

Florida State's gymnastics team may have trouble filling the positions left vacant by the loss of five of FSU's top gymnasts.

The Seminoles this year have lost Rafael Lecouna, captain of Cuba's Olympic team at London, Helsinki, and Melbourne; Bob Murray, 1958 team captain; Jamie Ashmore, former NCAA free exercise champ; Ronnie Amater, holder of the 1955 Dixie belt title, and Tom McDonald

To help supplement the loss of three men, gymnastics coach Hartley Price has six freshmen and transfers who will be eligible for collegiate competition next year.

The new transfers are junior Tom O'Connor, recently of the University of Michigan who works flying rings, and Chet Witten, an all-around performer from Maryland.

New Frosh

The freshman contingent includes Broadus Bakry, tumbler; Dave Carmolli, promising trampolinist; Bill Bravery, all-around, and Earl Boyd, trampolinist.

Jack Miles, 1955 National AAU all-around champion and new graduate assistant to Dr. Price, had this to say of the present team members: "Larry Malmlin, Fernando Lecouna and Chick Cirio will form the backbone of this year's collegiate all-around team.

"Malmlin is a former Swedish Olympian, Lecouna went to the London Olympics for Cuba, and Cirio is a former National AAU free exercise titlist. The potential is there to use."

Joe Gonie, Don Preisser Laird Anderson, Roger Webb, Don Powers, and Don Brantley will round out the varsity squad.

Gonie is a veteran on the parallel bars. Preisser is FSU's top tramp man, and Anderson, who placed fourth in rope climb in the 1956 NCAA meet, is the Seminoles' best rope climber.

Webb, a junior from Toledo, Ohio, will give added strength to free exercise and tumbling, while Powers and Rosansky will work tumbling and tramp.

Miles noted that "the men on

N.C. State, Clemson Contest Highlights Opponents Games

All but one of Florida State's remaining football opponents have games slated for tomorrow.

The game that will be watched with the most interest is the North Carolina State - Clemson tilt. N. C. State, the Seminoles opponent next Saturday is ranked 13th in the nation and has a 2-0 record.

The Wolfpack upset North Carolina in its opener and then trounced Maryland 48-13 last week.

Abilene Christian, the Tribe's opponent on Oct. 17, plays McMurry, who is slated to have a stronger team than the one that Christian's first game was rained out and they tied Chattanooga 0-0 last week.

VPI takes on William and Mary College and are rated a slight favorite. FSU hosts the Gobblers on Oct. 26, the Homecoming game.

A potentially powerful team from Miami meets a strongly favored Baylor squad in a game in which Miami will be trying to live up to its pre-season press releases.

Miami meets the Tribe November 8 in Tallahassee.

FSU Library Receives 400 Publications

Florida State University announced today its library has been given more than 400 books, periodicals and federal and state documents comprising collections of two of the country's pioneers in vocational education.

The materials, all covering vocational education, are from the personal libraries of the late Drs. J C Wright and Lindley H Dennis Dr Wright was long assistant U. S commissioner of education in charge of vocational education. Dr. Dennis was a member of the original group which drafted the Smith-Hughes Act and for 17 years was executive secretary of the American Vocational Association.

ESTATE GIFT

The books are the gift of Mrs L H Dennis, widow of the educator, and Mrs. Nadia W Zimmerman, daughter of Dr Wright. University officials said the addition of the gifts to what FSU already has "gives FSU one of the finest libraries of its kind to be found in any university in the country."

Among the books are rare books documenting the early beginning of vocational education in this country, telling about historical events and the early philosophies of pioneers in this field

VOCATIONAL ED

Dr. Wright, who died April 11, 1955, at the age of 79, was internationally known for his leadership in the construction and development of America's program of vocational education.

His services as head of the program in the U. S Office of Education as assistant commissioner was from 1922 to 1946 when he retired. He was the author and editor of numerous books, papers and publications Following his retirement he was for several years vocational education consultant for the Institute of Inter-American Affairs.

Dr Dennis, another pioneer in the development of the vocational education program, was an active chairman of the American Vocational Association legislative committee for many years. His development of a nationwide movement in support of federal funds for vocational education led to the enactment of the George-Reed Act of 1929 and the George-Ellzey Act of 1933

After his retirement as executive secretary of the American Vocational Association in 1950 he was consultant to the Department of State on vocational education, visiting many European and Middle Eastern countries and lecturing in many colleges and universities.

Valda Mock

New Vocational Counselor Has Wide Background

The job of offering vocational guidance to students of Florida State University belongs to an attractive young woman whose own education and professional background ranges from teaching school to actuarial work with one of the nation's largest insurance companies.

She is Miss Valda Mock, whose appointment to the position of vocational counselor is announced by Dr Melvene Hardee, coordinator of counseling for FSU.

A native of Fort Meade, Fla., Miss Mock was graduated from high school there and received the AB degree in mathematics and the MA degree in guidance from FSU. She taught algebra in public schools at Lakeland and did actuarial work with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., New York City

THEATRE DANCER

Miss Mock, whose avocation is dancing, is well-known to Tallahassee audiences who have attended annual shows of the FSU Theater Dance Group She served as assistant director last year.

According to Dr Hardee, the function of vocational guidance heretofore performed by the office of Dean of Students R R Oglesby was recently transferred to the counseling department and will be assimilated in the regular program of professional counseling offered by the university to its students.

This summer, in preparation for her work Miss Mock, with Dr Hardee and Bert Powell, the assistant coordinator of counseling, visited each academic department of the university and conferred with staff members about opportunities open in various fields of specialty.

Dr. Hardee said a library of occupational information has been set up in a special reading room to aid in vocational counseling Mrs Ruthe Tate, administrative assistant; Miss Mock, Miss Marjorie Folichio, student assistant, and Miss Ann Stickler, senior student in library science, worked together in planning the library

Students requiring vocational testing as a part of the vocational guidance process will be referred to a special test service unit, directed by Dr. Kenneth McLa..lin, which will work coopera... with the vocational counselor

Students desiring assistance ... vocational guidance may as... an appointment with Miss ... in Room 301 Westcott Building ... call Ext. 7-5321. Dr. Hardee ...

Faculty, members, advisers ... other university personnel ma... fer students to the Office of ... ordinator of Counseling for sp... vocational help at any time ... Oct. 1, she added.

Free Movies Open In Westcott Oct. 11

Free campus movies will be shown on Friday nights in Westcott Auditorium on a two-week trial basis, beginning October 11, with "Death of a Salesman"

"These movies are open only to students, faculty, and facilities upon presentation of their ID cards" announced Miss Marie Williams, university social director

Regulations governing the use of Westcott Auditorium prohibit eating drinking, and smoking "We feel that the student body will be greatly benefited by having the large space," continued Miss Williams "However, continued use of it will depend upon cooperation in maintaining standards of conduct that meet with the regulations for use of Westcott"

There will be a further announcement regarding the use of Westcott in two weeks.

Omitted from the list of Sig Pledges in the Flambeau was Jim Miller.

A combo party featuring the Devilaires has been planned in honor of the 22 new Alpha Gam pledges. Deanne Davis, spokes-man, announced that everyone on campus is invited to the par-ty which will be tonight from 8:30 to midnight.

The Alpha Gamma Delta's have redecorated their living room in shades of blue and beige. The living room is highlighted by the two trophies won at their national convention: a silver Achievement Tray for coopera-tion of chapter officers with Na-tional, and the Rose Bowl for scholarship. It was the first time in the history of Alpha Gamma Delta that one sorority won both honors.

Sears Scholarship Winner Announced

Dr Margaret P. Sandels, dean of the School of Home Economics Florida State University, an-nounces the award of Sears Roe-buck Foundation Scholarships to two Florida girls who have held positions of leadership while main-taining high scholastic averages throughout their High School careers.

They are Phyllis Williamson, of Wildwood, and Margaret Hodges of Ona.

Dean Sandels said the Sears Roebuck Foundation scholarships for $200 each are given annual-ly to two rural girls who plan to enter FSU as freshmen in the Fall term and who will major in home economics. The awards are made on a basis of scholarship, leadership, character and extra curricular activities.

Both of this year's winners have been active in 4-H Club work and in the Future Homemakers of America. Both are members of Sig-ma Kappa Delta, the National Honor Society.

Miss Williamson, while main-taining a high scholastic average participated in many school and community activities, such as plays, band and food-raising drive, and served as a reporter for her local newspaper. She was vice-president of her FHA chap-ter, and an officer in community, county and 4-H Club organizations. She has won numerous trips to 4-H camp and to the state 4-H Short Course held each June at FSU.

In June, 1956, Miss Williamson was selected as one of two na-tional clothing award winners at the National 4-H Congress in Chicago. She enjoys working with young people and has served as counselor at 4-H camps for five years and at the Presbyterian Church camp three years.

Miss Hodges received the Ameri-can Legion Award for 1957--the highest award to her graduating class of 124 students.

She has participated in many school activities including annual staff for four years, Glee Club, Spanish Club, Junior Class Play and Quill and Scroll. She has par-ticipated in 4-H speaking contests and contributed articles for the school and county papers and participated in many commun-ity fund raising activities.

Knowledge Test To Be Given Oct. 8

The 1957 "Knowledge for College" test will be given Oct. 8 at 8 p.m. in Westcott audi-torium.

All freshman and transfer women students will be required to take the test.

It will cover information taken from the Pow-Wow and the Knowledge for College booklet. All those who fail to pass the test will be campused for one week until the retake of the exam, which is scheduled for Oct. 15.

Qualifications For SAL Listed

All sophomore, junior and sen-ior women students who have taken a minimum of 12 hours in music, who have a 2.0 average in music and a 2.5 overall aver-age, and who are not registered in the School of Music are re-quested to register in the School of Music office for the ninth period set aside by Sigma Alpha Iota, women's professional music fraternity.

Mathematics Club Meets Wednesday

Pi Mu Epsilon, campus mathe-matics honorary, for the first time this year Wednesday at 8 p.m. in room 198 History.

President Bonnie Sanders will speak on the topic, "An Introe-duction to Abstract Set Theory."

Anyone interested in mathe-matics may attend.

Wesley Foundation Adds New Service

By ANNETTE MCINTOSH

Methodist . . . An over-crowded chapel at the Wesley Foundation has made necessary the use of an additional worship service, beginning Sunday. The new service will be at 8:30 a.m., followed by Sun-day school at 9:30. The third morning church ser-vice will be at 10:55, as usual.

Methodist churches all over the world will celebrate communion Sunday in an annual service de-signed to give a deeper spiritual relief. The Wesley Foundation's communion ritual will be at the 8:30 a.m. worship service.

Wesley Players, a Methodist drama honorary organization, will hold its second open meeting Thursday at 8:00 p.m. Four such meetings are held and three out of these four meetings must be attended in order to be eligible for membership.

Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 7:30 a.m. Matins are held in the chapel. The Founda-tion invites you to join as it be-gins a new day with prayer.

New Psychologist Is Charles Taffel

Dr. Charles Taffel, the new director of training and research for the Leon County Health Center, is administering the prac-tical clinical program for interns and students of clinical psychology.

Under this program the stu-dent or intern works at the Health Center on Gadsden and Chiles St. for several hours each week. They work with psy-chologists and social workers.

VA HOSPITALS

Some of the interns who are from other states are working at veterans administration hos-pitals similar to those in At-lanta and Coral Gables.

Taffel took over his duties in August. He was appointed to the position through the civil service merit system.

Dr. Taffel and his wife have been as director of training in a VA hospital and most recently chief of the Psychology Service at the VA Mental Hygiene Clinic in Provi-dence, Rhode Island.

Dr. Taffel's duties as a psy-chologist vary at each assign-ment, but generally consist of diagnostic work, group and in-dividual therapy, research and training.

SUPERVISES RESEARCH

While in Tallahassee he will be primarily concerned with the supervision of training and re-search.

A New Yorker, Dr. Taffel receiv-ed his bachelors degree in the City College of New York and his master's degree at New York University. Forsaking the East, he went to Indiana for his doc-torate.

Dr. H. L. Waskom of the De-partment of Psychology said that at present the university has one student at the Mental Health Center working under the program.

Lipner Seeks Technical Aide To Help With Cell Resarch

Dr. Harry J. Lipner is searching for someone with whom to share $5000.

The money is a grant to the Florida State University pro-fessor from the Texas Society for research on white cells, and is to be used to pay an assistant and to purchase the necessary materials and equipment. The new technical assistant must have ex-perience in chemical and biological training.

What is Dr. Lipner going to do with $5000? "For studies directed to-ward an analysis of the factors causing an increase in a white cell in the blood," stated Dr. Lipner. Though many theories have been advanced in this new field, the scientist says none of them are satisfactorily applied to the specific cell he is interested in.

To further the knowledge of one of the white cells called the eosinophil, Dr. Lipner is es-pecially interested in learning how they are stimulated to ap-pear in greater than normal numbers. It is already known that a polysaccharide or carbo-hydrate, prepared from a pig

Arnold Greenfield

Thumbnail Sketches

By DELORES LAFFERTY

This is the first of a series of stories on students active in FSU student government. It is in the hope of the Flambeau staff that the student body will gain a better insight into student gov-ernment through learning more about the men and women who serve them.

Arnold Greenfield, student body president, celebrated his twenty-first birthday Tuesday.

Although Arnold hails from Miami, he modestly claims that he is a southerner at heart, since he lived in Miami for the past 13 years.

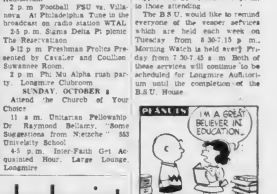
In reply to my question of what he liked to do in his spare time, he shrugged and replied, "What spare time?" That reply certainly is true for this busy young man. He feels that big high after about as he had an honor, but an opportunity to accomplish something for his university and its student body.

Some of his plans for the com-ing year include an investiga-tion of the food service, improved off campus housing, and also improved bookstore and library service.

Arnold has been active in cam-pus life since his freshman year. Three years on the debate team, member of the Honor Court, and be-ing on the council at the Meth-odist Student House kept him quite busy. Last year he was at-torney general in student gov-ernment which gave him a good background for his big job this year.

I was curious to know what event in Arnold's life had been the most thrilling. Besides re-ceiving the office he now holds. He replied that one of the most outstanding events in his life was when he won the national speaking contest and made the trip to New York City in his sophomore year. Since he has been on the debate team he has traveled all over the country making talks to various groups.

This past summer he attend-ed summer school at FSU. His summer was highlighted with a good deal more activities than most typical college men. After completing the summer semest-er he traveled to the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor for the National Student Body Pres-idents Convention.



After the convention he re-turned to Tallahassee and then left with the Reverend Austin Hollade and other students to tour Florida, visiting Methodist churches to talk to incoming FSU freshmen.

Reading is Arnold's favorite pastime. Books on philosophy and religion are his choice. Other spare time activities he enjoys are football, baseball, and tennis as a "spectator sport." While he claims to be no ex-pert, he knows a great deal about classical music.

School Systems Differ In Denmark

"The entire school system in Denmark is different," said Sue Rhinds, senior journalism major at Florida State University, who just returned from that country.

Miss Shields spent her junior year studying at Rodding Folk High School in southern Denmark. She left New York August 1, 1956 and returned to the United States in June 1957.

This international study trip was made under the auspices of the Scandinavian Service for Cultural Studies.

She went on to explain that Danish children begin their formal education when they are seven years old and attend the first people in the world," she grammar school for seven years. remarked and expressed the At the age of fourteen most hope of returning to Europe. Danes quit school and begin an apprenticeship for the purpose of learning a trade.

For the students who plan to enter a university there is a preparatory school where four years of languages and four years of math and science are required.

At Roddina Miss Shields studied such subjects as Danish government, Danish culture and social studies. All the classes were taught in Danish.

While there on a paper equivalent to an FSU term paper, Miss Shields spent a week as a Danish prince. She described that week as "none of the most profitable educational experiences of my life."

Impressed with the progressive Danish system, Miss Shields visited several other Scandinavian countries. She declined to compare the Scandinavian penal system with that of the United States stating that she had never visited an American prison.

For the first three months of her stay abroad, Miss Shields lived with several Danish families. "The Danes are among the

400 Teachers Arrive Here For Homemaking Convention

About 400 state homemaking teachers will flood the campus today and tomorrow attending their annual convention.

Latest techniques for teaching homemaking courses will be outlined for the high school instructors during their two-day program.

Highlighting the sessions will be talks by Dr. Robert M. Strozier, president of the university, and Thomas D. Bailey, state superintendent of public instruction.

Other guest speakers will include Dr. Lois O'Toole, dean of the Division of Home Economics, Oklahoma A. & M. College; Miss Frances Champion, state superintendent of homemaking education of the state Department of Education; said the program also would include discussions by teachers and by a panel of high school girls who are members of Future Homemakers of America.

OPPERMAN MEETING

Headquarters will be in Opperman Music Hall auditorium. As a special feature, the faculty of the FSU home economics school will hold "open house" Friday night in their classrooms, to discuss with the high school teachers FSU's homemaking education program for both graduate and undergraduate students.

Dr. Walter R. Williams, jr., director of vocational and adult education, state education department, spoke at a vocational meeting which preceded the conference last night. Mrs. Ina Wolfsang, Tampa, Mrs. Hazel Pancher, homemaking teacher at Centenary High School, Escambia County and Dorrie Chazal, Ocala FHA member.

Gayle Norman, Tallahassee, national FHA president, will speak. The group will also hear talks by Mrs. June Dixon, Lake Wales, and Miss Margie Lowrance, St. Petersburg.

FACULTY MEMBERS

Members of the faculty of FSU's School of Home Economics will be featured Saturday morning with Dr. Emma B. Whiteford, head of the department of Home Economics Education.

They will include Dr. Ruth Noon Mrs. Margaret Strickin, Pompano Beach, will preside, assisted by Mrs. Mildred Bishop, DePunak Springs.

A Future Homemakers of America panel will be held in the afternoon with Miss Lane presiding. Panel members will be Jo Anne Harrison, state FHA president, Bradenton; Joyce Wolfsang, Tampa, past president and a student at FSU; Mrs. Fred Cliff Paisley, publicity; Martha Grizzard, special decorations; Edward Cubbon, stadium arrangements; and Roy Strickland, Tallahassee decorations.

FEW CHANGES

There are few changes in the Homecoming program this year, but a slight change of emphasis has been put on the barbecue and banquet.

The barbecue will be started more toward a legislative function, and the banquet toward an alumni and student affair.

For the first time, students have been invited to the banquet. It was formerly called the "Garnet and Gold Key Banquet," and was for members, alumni, and

A Monroe, Georgian, written by FSU student Marlene Mahon, is the first play to be produced by Brigham Young University.

Dr. Ernest Bormuth, supervisor of the experimental productions, and Stephen Kleid, a senior from Miami, Beach, will direct these two productions, which will be held Oct. 24.

The purpose of this program is to give original plays and plays written by FSU students a chance to be produced. Students can gain valuable experience in production participation, and drama majors can have an opportunity to play diverse roles.

The next major drama production will be Caesar and Cleopatra, to be held December 13, 14, 16 and 17. Students planning to try out for roles in this play are invited to get in touch with either Mr. Fabian or Dr. Brock about time and place.

Homecoming Chief Needs Charm, Congeniality, Tact

By KAY WRIGHT

Homecoming, FSU's biggest event will come to life in three short weeks.

Dr. Donald Loucks, 1957 homecoming chairman, stated that to successfully accomplish the job of chairman, "one has to combine the charm of a Hollywood leading man, the ability to influence people of a Dale Carnegie, the last and diplomacy of an ambassador, the organizational ability of a Henry Kaiser, the gentleness of a new mother, the ruthlessness of an ancient Roman taskmaster, the strength of Samson, the wisdom of Solomon, the luck of the Irish, and the all-around cleverness of a university president."

Dr. Loucks expressed his confidence in the chairmen of the twenty-three Homecoming committees. These chairmen are carefully selected by Dean Warren and Dr. James Carr. Last year, Both faculty and students make up the committees and serve as chairmen.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN

The following people serve as chairmen of committees: Bob Blewett, alumni activities; Ron Shaw, barbecue, finance, and general arrangements and transportation; Harold Sutton, campus decoration. Ivan Johnson, campus decorations judging; Jim McIntyre, dance. Hugh Bunch, float decorations

James McDonough, float decoration judging. Roy Flynn, same ceremonies. Dean Katherine Warren, homecoming banquet. Elizabeth Lynn, homecoming queen. Gerald Jones, campaigning; Edith McCollum, housing. Vernon Fox, parade organization. Al Quade, pep rally.

Kay Vernon, prizes and awards; Bob Leigh, publications; Cliff Paisley, publicity; Martha Grizzard, special decorations; Edward Cubbon, stadium arrangements and Roy Strickland, Tallahassee decorations.

FEW CHANGES

There are few changes in the Homecoming program this year, but a slight change of emphasis has been put on the barbecue and banquet.

The barbecue will be started more toward a legislative function, and the banquet toward an alumni and student affair.

guests only.

There will be no open house at fraternity houses, sorority houses, or dormatories at the same. due to the lack of time between the game and homecoming dance, according to Loucks.

Dr. Loucks said that the Winter Circle and the Flint Dictions Committee deserve credit for the long hours of work they have already spent on the 1957 Homecoming.

The good support and cooperation already shown, are insurance that things are already underway to make FSU's homecoming successful and a joyous for all," he said

Neel Leaves November 1st For New Job

The State Board of Education named Dr. Samuel R. Neel Jr., president of the new junior college in Manatee County.

Dr. Neel, who has been dean of men at Florida State University for the past three years, was chosen from a list of prospective administrators by the Board of Education in conjunction with the Manatee County School Board and an advisory committee of Manatee citizens.

He has been a member of the faculty at FSU since 1948, serving successively as head of the general education personal development area, university chaplain, and dean of men.

TAKES OVER NOV. 1

He will assume his duties on November 1, starting to lay the base plans for the new institution.

Dr. Neel attended Emory and Henry College, the University of Virginia and received his PhD degree at Duke University.

He has, as yet, not given serious consideration to the staffing of the new school, preferring to wait until he has information available on personnel in the area.

Dr. Neel served as a combat chaplain on overseas duty in the 8th World War II and the Korean conflict.

He is married to the former Dianna Vander-Jagt, and has two children: Helen, 12, and Samuel R. III, 6

POLICIES

The board set fee policies for the new community colleges at its' Friday meeting.

Residents of the county in which the school is located, or of a county which contributes taxation to the support of the institution, will be admitted without tuition.

A new Dean of Men for FSU has not been named.

Flying High To Select 30

"Flying High" circus tryouts for the Accidental Players are being held today at the practice log on the Call street between 2:30 and 4.

Approximately 30 girls will be selected for intensive work in the basics of showmanship, poise, coordination, and ability to grasp the finer points" according to Ann Hopkins, director of the Players' circus.

Last year's veteran troupers will be on hand, and will take on a few more basics.

The Circus has already scheduled several trips throughout Florida and southern states for the spring season.

Also this year, the annual Circus Workout will be held May 1, 2 and 3.

Dean For Three Years

'Our Happiest Ten Years'—Sam Neel

BY JIM McINTYRE

Flambeau News Editor

"We've had the happiest ten years of our lives in Tallahassee," said Dean Sam Neel after the announcement of his appointment to head of the new junior college in Manatee County.

Dean Neel, who has been dean of men for the university for the past three years, said he had "mixed emotions" about taking over the new institution which is in the primary planning stages at present.

Our family hates to leave Tallahassee," he said, "for we have made life-long friendships here."

"But," he added rapidly, "there is a tremendous opportunity involved in the community college movement to make Florida something for the entire populace of the state."

This new college, as well as the many others being built in the state, has tremendous potential for strengthening the total educational program of the state of Florida," he said.

When asked what had influenced him most in making his decision to accept the offer of the Manatee County group, Dean Neel referred to the persons who are responsible for establishing the new college in that county.

Flambeau Photos: Bob Weier

"A pioneering spirit . . ."

"Mr. Blackburn, the county school superintendent, and Mr. Moody, who is chairman of the Advisory Committee for the college, were probably the outstanding factors influencing my decision," he said.

Dr. Neel went on to the plans and potentiality of the college, a point that obviously contributed to his acceptance of the position.

The State Department of Public Instruction has estimated that it would take long for the school to build up to an enrollment of 400," he said.

"Dr. James Wattenbarger, who is chairman of the community college program for the boa, " has been instrumental so far in the establishing of other colleges of this type, and will be very helpful in our efforts to establish a similar campus plan." Dr. Neel said.

MASTER PLAN

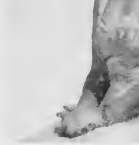
"This is, of course, the first thing we must do," he said, "and after we get a master plan for the location of the college and its general layout, we can proceed with planning the buildings that will be needed."

When asked about the opening date for classes in the new school, Dr. Neel pointed to September, 1958, as the probable starting date.

"We don't know anything definitely at this point, and naturally don't want to proceed too rapidly for our own good, but there is a strong possibility that we will be able to begin some classes on a limited basis at that time," he said.

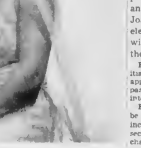
"Of course," he added, "this is something we will have to work out when we get there."

"The major purpose is to be an integral part of the community and act as an agency which contributes to the general educational welfare of the area," he said.



SMALL ENROLLMENT

"The real advantage of such a school comes in the small number of students and the personal contact the faculty and administration can have with them."



Asked if there were any specific challenges involved in the position of a president who must be instrumental in planning and developing his own college, Dr. Neel answered, "I believe I have enough of the pioneering spirit to want to be a part of something brand new.

"This is a great opportunity to build in the manner one feels is right. I have gained a great deal of experience at FSU from Dean Oglesby and other members of the administrative staff that should be invaluable in the administration of a college that is completely new," he said.

He will begin his duties with the Manatee school on about the first of November.

"The college should be an integral part of the community . . ."

"The happiest ten years . . ."

Paul Reynolds Named Summer School Head

DEAN J. PAUL REYNOLDS, NEW SUMMER SCHOOL DIRECTOR

North Carolina Native Gets New Position

Dr. J. Paul Reynolds, associate dean of the college of Arts and Sciences, has been appointed director of the summer school at Florida State University.

Dr Reynolds, a native of North Carolina, was appointed to the newly created position by Dr. Stronier, university president, at a meeting of the Executive Council yesterday.

The position, which will be established to control all summer school business, will be held in addition to Dr Reynolds' regular duty in the college of arts and sciences.

STROZIER COMMENTS

Dr. Stronier yesterday told the Flambeau that "Dr. Reynolds will be in direct contact with this office on summer affairs."

"He will be so to speak, a presidential assistant in charge of summer session," Dr. Stronier added.

Dr. Reynolds came to FSU in 1949 as a professor of zoology. He became associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences in 1953.

He is a graduate of Guilford College, Greensboro, N. C., the University of North Carolina, and Johns Hopkins University.

His Guilford College BS, which he received in 1928 was in biology, German, and music. He received the MS degree from the University of North Carolina in Zoology, and his doctorate from John Hopkins in the same field

TAUGHT AT UNC

He has taught at Guilford, Birmingham Southern College, the University of North Carolina, and FSU.

Dr. Reynolds is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, ODK, Lambda Chi Alpha, the American Society of Zoologists, the American Society of Human Geneticists and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

He has received general education grants in 1940 and 1948. He is also the author of several publications in the field of zoology

Dr. Reynolds represented FSU at the American Institute of Biological Sciences meeting at the University of Miami in 1953.

He was invited by President Eisenhower to attend the President's Conference on Occupational Safety in May, 1954. The conference was held in Washington, D. C.

The Association of Southeastern Biologists named him as their treasurer last year He is also a member of the Florida Academy of Science.

Dr. Reynolds is married and has two children.

No Serious Cases At Infirmary Here

The FSU infirmary is well-filled. Dr. Taylor of the hospital staff reported this week

The estimate of the number of Asiatic flu cases in the city of Tallahassee has gone as high as 5,000, and campus officials have hinted that 1500 FSU students may be suffering from the flu.

Turner, Ellenwood To Star In Guild's 'Oklahoma' Show

BY NANCY HANNAFORD

"Oklahoma!" the musical comedy that was described by one of many ecstatic critics as the show that has "... all the polish and precision of Broadway at its best, but has escaped the dull deril of formula that so often haunts the local comedy group . . ." will be presented December 13 by FSU's Light Opera Guild.

Senior Norman Turner, a second-music major from Tampa, will star in this musical as Curly. Turner appeared last year in the FSU production of "The Mikado" and "The Bartered Bride."

Laurey will be played by Frances Ellenwod, a music education major from St. Petersburg. This senior girl has had much musical experience through parts in "Mikado." "The Desert Song," "Naughty Marietta," and "The Bartered Bride."

TWO AUNTS

The irrepressible Aunt Eller was extremely difficult to cast because, as director Richard Collins stated, two girls, Claire Kimmel and Nettie Black, were both so good it was impossible to choose between them.

A freshman, Miss Arment is a journalism major from Michigan. Nettie Black, a sophomore is from Lake City and is studying music therapy. Both girls have had high school stage experience.

Steve Kleid, who will take the part of Villain Jud Fry, has had extensive stage experience He has played parts in "The Bartered Bride," "The Bisser They Come," "The Skin of Our Teeth," "Laura," "Game of Chess," "Claudia," and "Miss Julie."

Kleid, a drama major from Miami Beach, also appeared in a summer camp production of "Oklahoma."

Playing Ado Annie will be Beverly Brown, a voice major from Atlanta A senior, Miss Brown took parts in "South Pacific," "Carmen," and has had experience in musical comedy summer stock.

Voice-major Fred Scott, a senior from Port St. Joe, will play the part of Will Parker. A sophomore Scott appeared in "The Bartered Bride" last fall.

Eli Ask, a senior from Tallahassee, is slated for the part of Ali Hakim, school therapy major. Ask has taken part in the following productions: "Five Finger From the Bridge," "Teyya and His Daughters," "Oedipus the King," "Aladdin and His Lamp," "The Skin of Our Teeth," "Lilliom," "The Rainmaker," "Down in the Valley," and "Twelfth Night."

In addition, he has had three years of professional stock company experience in and around New York

Sophomore Ruth McLester will play Gertie Miss McLester, who has played in high school productions of "Annie Get Your Gun" and "South Pacific," is a voice major from Ft. Lauderdale

Andrew Carnes will be played by Martin Lies, a Tallahassee sophomore who has had stage experience in "The Bartered Bride" and "The Merry Widow."

Richard Collins, head of the Light Opera Guild, will direct the entire production. Miss Betty Jane Grimm will assist in direction. work as associate stage manager, and direct the chorus

Graduate student Max Estes, a drama major, will design the lighting. Tom McMullen, also doing graduate work at FSU will build all of the sets.

Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson, head of the Theater Dance Group, has announced that this group will do the dancing in "Oklahoma!" She will supervise the choreography of all dance routines.

The musical chorus will be made up of the following: Ray Markel, Dic, Lonnie Keene, Sim, Robert Westbrook, Fred; Kay Taylor, Ellen Jeannine Talley, Kate; Nettie Black, Sylvie, John Blanchard, Armina; and Julie Leonard, Aggie.

Others include B Carroll Cord Elam, Brom Setterlind, Jess; Robert Wilder, Chalmers; Carl Rosenbuh, Mike, Cade Ritchie, Joe and Jack Rice, Ike.

Why was "Oklahoma!" chosen for production? Director Collins answers this question easily: "It's been the most successful and outstanding musical comedy of the century."

He goes on to say that "it's the type of musical that's suitable for college production in that the characters are all human; fresh and appealing. In many musicals you find unnatural or faded types that make casting difficult."

"Oklahoma!" is a Rodgers-Hammerstein production and was adapted as a musical comedy from the play "Green Grow the Lilacs." by Lynn Riggs

In 1943 "Oklahoma!" took Broadway by storm and has since been almost constantly in production. The lack of stock characters and plot and the spontaniety of the music have always been a critical rave

Film Series Opens Tonight In Dem School

The Florida State University Film Club opens its 1957-58 season tonight with "The Sheep Has Five Legs," Rhapsody, a classic portrayal of a French wine merchant and his quintuplet sons.

The award winning comedy will be shown in the at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m., in the demonstration school auditorium.

Attendance at the showings is limited exclusively to members of the FSU Film Club. Season membership is available at the Westcott Building ticket office, or by mail addressed to Film Club, P O. Box 3049, FSU.

The General Extension Division of Florida, in cooperation with the Florida Film Classics Council, sponsors a Film Classics League at the University of Florida, as well as at FSU and in various Florida cities.

The year's program includes French, Italian, and Swedish as well as American films, for a total of 12. All foreign films have English subtitles.

Carr Ideal For Dean

Florida State University lost its dean of men this week.

In most cases, this would be a disaster, since the ranks of available guidance personnel within a university are usually devoid of capable successors to such a position.

IN THE CASE of FSU, however, the ranks are not as depleted when you consider a possible replacement for such a responsible position.

There is really no great wealth of administrative talent within the ranks of the student welfare staff below the dean's level, except for one particularly well qualified man.

And he is the reason we say that the resignation of Dr. Neel should not be as disastrous as many think.

HIS NAME IS Dr. James Carr, and he now serves as assistant dean of men.

Dr. Carr is every inch a man's man. He owns the respect of nearly everyone who has ever come in contact with him in one way or another.

If ever a man was qualified to hold a position of large responsibility in the area of student welfare, it is this man.

He knows personally most of the men on the campus, and has dealt with the problems that have come his way in a most exemplary fashion.

THE ONE CRITICISM that has been heard from several sources concerning his possible appointment to the position has been that he is too nice a guy to occupy a position that sometimes calls for harsh disciplinary action. It is said that he would take too much interest in each case for his own good.

But this attempt at criticism is the main justification for appointing him.

DEAN CARR IS not a sentimental softy. He is a man who is capable of administrative action without losing his gentlemanly personal interest in the welfare of each student.

Is might be hard for him to bring himself to suspending a student. It would probably wear on his conscience to do so. But being conscientious is not a fault. In an office such as the dean of men's it is a necessary virtue.

To accuse him of not being able to dispense remedial action is to say that he has no sense of responsibility toward the university and the welfare of the student body in general.

NOTHING COULD be further from the truth. His sense of responsibility goes beyond the individual and sees the university community as a whole.

Dr. Neel has done a fine job during his tenure here. We congratulate him on his new appointment, and rest assured that he will make his new school into a great one.

But before the university administration goes searching far and wide for a possible successor to his position, they should look down the ladder just one notch to Dr. James Carr.

They will find no better man for the position no matter where they look.

Last Chance For Tally-Ho

Students will save themselves a lot of disappointment and the Tally-Ho staff a lot of headaches if they register for the yearbook this week.

THE DEADLINE for registration was extended and will be held until Friday in Westcott. This is for those who neglected or forgot to sign up at Registration. Seniors are the only ones who may still get their picture in the Tally-Ho; others may buy the book, however.

For the past few years this system has been in operation, but the deadline still turns up at the end of the year wanting to beg, borrow, or buy a Tally-Ho. An exact number of books are ordered and unless a student has registered at the first of the year, he will be unsuccessful in his venture.

THIS METHOD of registration for the Tally-Ho is entirely necessary. It is capricious for students to think they are entitled to a book because they have paid for it in their activity fee.

When this method was in operation, hundreds of Tally-Hos were left over at the end of the year to be dumped in an empty lot somewhere. This could also be attributed to the books being three months late; nevertheless, books were always left over when the money that went for the extra copies could have been spent on improving the publication.

EVEN THOUGH the Tally-Ho is subsidized through student activity fees, its budget is not adequate to produce a yearbook of quality merited by a university such as FSU.

The dollar registration fee enables the Tally-Ho staff to plan a bigger and better book for those who want it.

There are only a few days left, so may we urge those students who want a Tally-Ho for this school year, to register for it now.

It is the last chance.

Emory Too Seeks Long Library Hours

Emory is one of the best equiped universities in the country but we have often found that students are not given the opportunity and privilege of fully using its facilities.

The Den, for instance, has realized that students would like to use it Sunday evenings and has agreed to arrange its schedule to do so. Soon the book store will be staying open Until 11 p.m. to serve the students. These innovations have been received with enthusiasm but we hope the changes won't stop here.

The Wheel feels that students should have access to the Library until midnight.

There is a great demand for reference books, reserve books and various other sources for study which cannot be found elsewhere. We know too that it is a big expense to keep the Library open evenings but we believe it could be accomplished.

Most students have many more hours of study ahead of them at 10 p.m. when they are usually rushed out of the Library. To add two more hours for the use of its facilities would be a great convenience to many students—enough, we believe, to suggest a change if only on a trial basis.

Five Factors Harm Integration Progress

By L. A. HESTER

Certainly more than enough has been said about integration and segregation to last us all a lifetime, but I won't be happy until I have thrown my two cents worth in, so here it be.

ORVAL FAUBUS' actions in Little Rock are of course the talk of the moment. It's ironic that he labeled calling out the National Guard a measure to prevent violence. In retrospect it had just the opposite effect. Two years ago the campus Mattey Club (I can't remember their fraternity name) devoted one of their meetings to the topic of integration and at that time one of the professors, from the sociology Department, who was one of the guests, made the statement that integration of the schools presented no problem if the authorities in charge were far ahead and did it forthwith and with a firm policy.

Time and time again this has been borne out. People are basically lawful and accept the law and unless an undue amount of agitation from opinion leaders, etc. is present the law will be upheld, even though it may be dont begrudgingly.

THE MOTIVE attributed to Faubus' actions is political expediency and I question the success of his maneuvers. One thing for sure is that seventy-nine per cent of the people of Arkansas are anywhere else for that matter, deplore violence. And although the people of Arkansas are basically opposed to integration I'm not to sure that they are willing to have storm troops take over their schools, etc. Well people get struck to the ground by bayoneted rifle butts it is time for a moment of sober reflection.

Although prejudice is a strong and prevalent factor in the whole agitation school integration, I think it is safe to say that a good deal of the prejudice and a large part of the objections raised against integration of schools results from the following five factors: health hazards, the Negro, home environment, the Negro, marital habits of the Negro, crime among Negroes, and the poor intellectual development of Negroes in general.

PEOPLE HAVE done a lot become alarmed when they see that integration in Washington D. C. schools has seriously impaired the educational standard because Negro pupils on a basis are two to three years behind white students of the same chronological age. The point I was trying to make here is that I cannot see how any agitation of an already severe problem is going to win votes for Faubus. People are always display emotional bursts when one of a large crowd, but when it comes time to step into the voting booth they will have ample time in which to realize the futility of the events in Little Rock.

THE ANSWER to a significant portion of the problem is to be found in the correction and prevention of the above five factors listed above. Educational opportunities for Negroes is another is the South's industrial expansion which will help to alleviate the problem by raising Negro economic status.

But the real answer can only be found in hard work and patience by whites and Negroes in the time, effort, money and determination that are expended in attaining by the two races some of the needed and constructive measures to alleviate the above mentioned significant problems would be made.

Scoggins' Nightwatch Best Radio Program

By MARSHALL LACOMBE

Mainly because of our beautiful campus and its avid music fans, Tallahassee supports three radio stations. WFUS-FM is included in this unholy trinity, and is in a class all its own.

Their program director, Godfrey, The Fool, Road Show and evening commercial. The Woolworth Hour, Robert Lewis, Astronomer, and most all the daytime soap operas.

WTNT, headquarters at the Leon Hotel, is affiliated with NBC, and so I've noticed, pulls in some ABC shows too.

Advertised as "radio-active" (I'm not sure there's still such a word), WTAL is the home station of my favorite newscasters, Paul Harvey.

WTAL broadcasts the radio news king, Ed. R. Murrow; Bess Truman and TAL pulls in most school games and big college pigskin events.

WCOA, situated in the Floridan Hotel, is almost guaranteed constant noise and, unfortunately, competing with the music in the other two stations as well. WCOA markets products like CORN MERCIALS. Out wet! Such commercials!

Radio-MEN's electonic newscenter gimmie rather amuses me. It has no more than some of the inner-catching antics of TNT and TAL, such as Foremost milk shakes and car mileage spiels.

Above, beyond, and between all this business, I must admit there is some locally originated stuff.

Mighty Good Writin'—Country Boy

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

I read that there editorial by this feller Hester, and it was a humdinger too. You know the one that says as how President Stronzer is like the Queen of England, and he can't talk neither? Well, that was mighty good writing.

You see, I didn't know before that this Mr. Stronzer guy couldn't make speeches and stuff (I heard him a couple a times at Freshman Week an I thought he was saying lots a stuff—but then, I'm from south Florida and we don't get all the news back there.)

That editorial feller was pretty smart to figger out Stronzer weren't saying nothin —sure had me fooled. But then this Hester must be a city boy, else he wouldn't be on your paper.

Anyway, Hester sure got me thinkin, so I sat down an figered it all out. Its this way. Stronzer guy, he may be Big Boss at this book ranch, but he's a still jest a ordinary guy jest like me An, shucks, what but don't I talk sometime and don't say a whole lot, too. So if Stronzer talks as good as I am (and, ain't it the truth—there ain't none a us what thinks they's a whole lot of folks bettern we are), then, shoot! Ain't no reason but what he should talk funny once in number in a hurry.

How bout G. Washington? Well, we might not a got a United States, but Hester could a told him a thing or two.

Anyway, It's great that we got a free country where all us little people can speak up against injustice and all. Hesler oughter write somethin else bout corruption in high places.

Calling The Card

Film Club Offers Entertainment, Culture

It's surprising how little attention is given to and how poorly to outstanding cultural pursuits in our own midst.

CONCERTS would often go begging were it not for faculty, staff, and student support.

Outstanding plays often have to take second place to challenging activities, and coffee hours are generally attended by those who could benefit most from them.

Small wonder, then, that the FSU Film Club program usually goes begging as far as student attendance is concerned.

THERE IS usually a large group of professors and their families on hand for the showings, but student attendance is at a minimum.

The real shame of it is that the films offered by the film club are all classics in motion picture production and offer not only a little culture, but delightful entertainment as well.

LAST YEAR was an excellent year as far as scheduling for the film club, but attendance didn't quite come up to the expectations of those responsible for the programs.

Probably the outstanding aspect of the program is not simply the scheduling itself, but the price of membership in the club.

For only $7.50, a student may purchase a membership and be admitted to all further cost to all 12 of the movies during the year. This amounts up to only a little over 20 cents per performance. Try to beat that dominion or any where.

"MIRACLE IN MILAN" was one of the most fascinating pictures these old eyes have seen in many moons. It was one of the offerings of last year's series. It was philosophical, but entertaining, and was in the realm of pure fantasy in many places.

"Monsieur Vincent" was a French film. It wasn't funny, crazy, sexy, or anything of that like. It was just simple heartwarming story of one of the great men of history, a priest whose devotion to all of life made each person present do some rethinking of his own life. It was touching, but it was also motion picture making in the highest development.

THERE WERE no Hollywood libraties, no cast of thousands, no love-out scenes, and no stereophonic sound. There was the movie, and there was the audience. The impact was that simple, and by the same token, that great.

Tonight begins a new year's series. The great French comedian Fernandel will be playing six roles in "The Sheep Has Five Legs," a story of a French wine maker and his outraged town. It's delightful, humorous, and entertaining.

Teaching Not All Goodness And Light

DEAR NANCY GENE:

Why indeed! Pick teaching.

I mean?

Forgive me for disillusioning you, but be sure you see the whole picture of teaching before you pick it.

If only it were as ideal as the good Professor Whitehead paints it! We all thought it was when we were younger.

We didn't know then about the cruel, unwritten taboos with which the profession abounds. We didn't know there was one kind of smile for fellow "professionals", but quite a different aloof smile for "staff members."

We didn't know that "heads" could delight in making "instructors" so miserable that no instructor must be bereft of all sensitivity to remain anything less than a Ph. D.

Dear Nancy Gene, be sure you know how so educational institution works; not how the text-book says it should.

If I am ever fortunate enough to have any children, I shall not pay my money to have them "take education."

Doctors, actors, missionaries, yes, I'll gladly work to pay for such educations, but I hope I can teach them how foolish they would be to deliberately put themselves in a position of unbelieveable misery.

And the pity is that it could be so different.

Show me an educational institution, be it large or small, where there is hearty appreciation while from inside comes an audible rumbling of potential violence.

Perhaps violence, in the case of Florida, is an unfortunate word to use, so we'll just call it an exaggerated means of expressing an idea.

FLORIDA SHOULD present a united front on an issue, such as the racial one. It does. Do out saying that this is a ra ser difficult thing to accomp sh with so many deprooted i.d varying ideas on the subject

Governor Caught In Kind Of Paradox

By PIERCE LEHMBECK

It was interesting to note a news story out of Milwaukee recently which told of an automobile factory manufacturer's plans to establish a million dollar plant in Florida.

some, however, it's a thing of values; for others, it's perhaps individual gain.

THERE HAS been around theatre of late drawing talk that Collins has only political aspiration behind his actions that he's trying to be the calm voice drifting out to the young populace from an ivory easy south.

Collins has neither, denied nor acknowledged these accusations. He's said only that he will consider no political office until the job has been done in Florida.

FOR COLLINS, it must be a thing of value when he spends time racial issue. He grew up in this area where the anti-integration feeling is perhaps as strong as it is anywhere in the south.

His background is literally seeped with the old south tradition.

His an idea experience to talk with those who know the Governor best — those with work daily with him. They don't always agree with him, but they always respect his decisions.

And most of all, they never question his motives. It's a fitting compliment to an outstanding gentlemen who believes, most of all, in himself.

"Moderate, heil! We'll pass a resolution telling them to keep their de-plant in Milwaukee. We don't have any moderation down here."

WHICH POSES, we might assume, some sort of a paradox.

The governor might be pictured as sitting on a box talking moderation and pacification while from inside comes an audible rumbling of potential violence.

Perhaps violence, in the case of Florida, is an unfortunate word to use, so we'll just call it an exaggerated means of expressing an idea.

FLORIDA SHOULD present a united front on an issue, such as the racial one. It does. Do out saying that this is a ra ser difficult thing to accomp sh with so many deprooted i.d varying ideas on the subject

A Tough Fight

VILLANOVA, Pa.—It was a beautiful day for football Saturday afternoon and a capacity crowd of over 13,000 people were in the stands.

However, it was Villanova's homecoming.

And the Wildcats were determined to stop the Seminoles this time. They did, but they knew they were in a tough football game.

It was a game marked by vicious tackling on both sides which caused costly fumbles on both sides. And the injuries didn't help either.

Bobby Renn dressed and came in to boot the ball in the first quarter. He didn't come in again.

He was the man Villanova had to stop and they didn't even come to bother. Renn was hurt in Wednesday's practice. It was a big injury and he himself doesn't know if he'll be ready for N. C. State game.

First string guard Jerry Graham, a casualty of the Boston College game didn't even make the trip.

CHANGES

It was quite a different Seminole team that took the field today. Bob Fountain, formerly a guard started at tackle along with Lou Wallace.

The guards were Abner Bighe and Joe McGee. And the backfield also had a different look.

Jerry Henderson got the call at quarterback. Stan Dobosz was switched to right half, and Fred Pickard drew the starting left half assignment.

But Pickard's jump to the first team was a short lived one. Each time he carried the ball turned out to be the last time. He was piled up by the Wildcats and was forced to leave the game for good.

It was a game that saw the Seminoles use a drive series, gaining strictly possession ball.

Most of the passes came in the last quarter as the Tribe tried to close a 14-point gap.

Joe Majors, who shared the quarterback post with Henderson during the first half threw twice—both incomplete.

But they both did a good job of directing the team. And even surprised many people with his running, the few times he did carry the ball.

MAN THE BULL

But the brunt of the running attack fell on the shoulders of Jerry veteran Stan Dobosz and a fourth-string back named Simmons.

Simmons was the bull for the Tribe and put out a tremendous effort which turned out to be a losing cause.

Three times he almost went all the way returning a punt and a kickoff. He averaged over 30 yards a return and on his punt return it took six Wildcats to finally bring him down.

It was his finest effort, said Coach Nugent. "He gave that game everything he had And Carnes did a very respectable job as was the other halfback."

Bill McGrotha, local sports editor told Dobosz "it was the best game I've ever seen you play."

And that it was.

Another bright spot of the game was the playing of Jerry Sapienza. Everyone in the press box almost passed out when Jerry threw to Ron Schomburger for the lone Tribe touchdown.

It was a fourth down and one yard to go situation on the Villanova 14. But he got away with it.

Henderson also made the game's most spectacular defensive play when he hurdled the Villanova line to bring down halfback Bob Halligan with an around-the-neck tackle on the FSU end line.

But it only delayed the crushing blow. On the next play fullback Jack Devereaux, a thorn in the Seminoles' side all afternoon, crashed over with the Wildcats' third tally.

And that was the ball game.

It looks like it will be a long season.

Wildcats Pounce On FSU, 21-7

Rough Line Play Dominates Game

By ALAN WHITMARSH
Flambeau Managing Editor

VILLANOVA, Pa. — Two of Florida State's old football woes, inadequate pass defense and a battering ram fullback, came back to haunt them here Saturday as Villanova ground out a 21-7 victory.

Spurred by their second annual Homecoming celebration, the Wildcats scored twice before the Seminoles found paydirt, and then it was too late.

Jack Devereaux, a 190-pound senior, was the fullback who took up where Bill Barnes of Wake Forest and Bo Dickinson of Mississippi Southern left off last year—in battering the middle of the Seminole line.

Devereaux ground out 82 yards in 20 carries at the Tribe forward wall, and scored one of the Villanova touchdowns.

Stan Dobosz

The play which broke the visitors' backs was a pass from Jim Graziono to Rick Sapienza in the second period though.

After a third and 14 situation, Graziono hit Sapienza beyond the Seminole defense at the FSU 25, and from there the latter raced to Villanova's second touchdown.

Coach Don Nugent's forces went into the contest with two regulars hurt—Bobby Renn and Jerry Graham—and came out probably none the better off physically.

HENDERSON STARTS

Starting quarterback Jerry Henderson left the field on the second play from scrimmage and halfback Fred Pickard later in the quarter, as the bruising line play of the two teams took its toll.

Henderson later played quite a bit, but Pickard received a hip injury which could keep him out of this week's battle with North Carolina State here.

The Seminoles took the opening kickoff, but got only four yards in three formations and Renn, making his only appearance, punted out of bounds at the Wildcat 31.

Villanova got one first down before their attack fizzled but when Pickard fumbled Sapienza's punt at the Villanova 43, the Cats got another chance.

They couldn't capitalize though, and Sapienza kicked, this time taken by Joe Majors at the FSU 22, who brought it back to the 33.

With Majors, Pickard and Stan Dobosz carring the mail, the Seminoles marched to a first down at the Villanova 30 before an offside penalty and an incomplete pass stopped their drive.

Henderson was belted for a 19-yard loss attempting to throw on fourth down, fumbled and Ed Michaels grabbed it for Villanova at the Wildcat's 38.

DANIELS SCORES

At that point, Graziono got his attack rolling and in six calls rolled 62 yards in 18 formations to score, with John Daniels hitting paydirt with 3:26 gone in the second period.

After an exchange of punts, Villanova took over at its own 32 and began to march again. Two first downs carried them to the 50, and then they stalled.

Sophomore center Paul Slator of the Seminoles threw Graziono for a six-yard loss, then the Cats lost five for delay of the game.

At this point, Graziono threw his home run ball—41 yards to Sapienza, who outraced Seminole defenders Henderson and Lenny Levy to paydirt, making it 14-0 at the halftime.

The Seminoles tried their first combination kick to work off the second half, and it worked. Dobosz falling on Bob Nellums' boot at the Villanova 40.

Two plays later, Stan fumbled though and Mike De Lucia fell on it for Villanova at the 30. On the following play, Dave Parr returned he favor for the Cats and Ron Schomburger grabbed it for the Tribe at the Villanova 45.

From there, the Seminoles used 18 formations to go over, gambling on a 14-yard fourth down pass from Henderson to Schomburger for the score with 6:17 gone in the third period.

Johnny Sheppard's fourth straight extra point kick of the season made it 14-7.

Nellums again tried the onside kick after an unsuccessful attempt by Slaton went out of bounds. This time, however, it failed and Delaria fell on it for the home club at its 45.

It turned out to be a key point in the game as the Cats rolled 55 yards for their final touchdown. Devereaux going over on the 1 yard down play from the two.

A bad pass from center trapped Sapienza behind the line of scrimmage on the extra point attempt, but he passed successfully to halfback Bill Halligan for the point anyhow.

The Seminoles still had a couple of times left, but a fumble by halfback Bob Bryan and a pass interception by Villanova 20 cost them one scoring chance and an interception of Ted Rodriguez's arrie by Dave Chaverini cost them another.

Probably the brightest spot in the Seminole cause was the running of Dobosz and Carnes. Stan led the Tribe in rushing with 63 yards in 15 carries as Carnes picked up 41 in 10 trips.

Dobosz brought the crowd to its feet a couple times on kickoff and punt returns, including a 45-yard return of the Cats' second kickoff, when the last man got him.

Nugent's heroes turned loose a new hard-driving, quick play offense on Villanova, with the quarterback often calling three plays at once, to avoid taking time for huddling and offset the defense.

Frosh Football Team Rips South Ga., 43-0

After being held to seven points in the first half the Florida State frosh team roared back and scored 36 points to trounce South Georgia College, 43-0 last Saturday night.

It marked the second straight victory for the baby Seminoles who have not been scored upon this season.

The first frosh victory was over Georgia Military Academy by the score of 31-0.

FSU picked up a quick touchdown on the opening kickoff as halfback Bud Whitehead took the ball on the 10 yard line and raced down the middle behind savage blocking by his teammates.

After Bob Conrad kicked the extra point the baby Semi could not mount an offensive threat for the rest of the half.

At the same time the South Georgia team was held in his territory most of the time.

FSU coach Paul Odum must have injected some of that old "Seminole spirit" into the frosh during the half because they seemed to open up and tear the South Georgia team to pieces.

George Versprille, Tribe halfback, scored from one yard out after guard Ray Lamb had on pounced on a South Georgia fumble.

John Espenship then threaded his way through the South Georgia defense and went 32 yards for the third FSU score. The Georgians then were stalled drep in their own territory and decided to punt.

Again the cards fell right for the baby Seminoles as the punt attempt was blocked. Jim Calhoun, 195-lb. fullback from Arcadia, then carried the ball for seven yards and a TD. And the scoreboard read 25-0 in FSU's favor.

Early in the fourth period Calhoun scored his second touchdown of the game and his fourth for the season.

Basketball Practice Scheduled Oct. 15

All varsity basketball candidates should report to the basketball court in the men's gym at 3:30 on October 15.

All freshmen and transfers who want to try out should report to coach Jim Ofer at 3:30 on the same day. Anyone may try out, you do not have to be on a scholarship.

All candidates must bring their own equipment except for basketballs.

Homecoming Open House Not Formal

The calendar of campus-wide activities planned for the two-day Homecoming period, October 25-26, remains fairly consistent with that of past years.

One rather important change, however, will be the elimination of formal open house which normally came between 5:30-6 p.m. Saturday, following the football game.

Students and alumni alike, have indicated that there is insufficient time between the end of the big game and the start of the final event of the week-end, the homecoming dance, to satisfactorily conduct an open house period.

Still very much a part of the events of the weekend will be the open houses and informal dances to be held on Friday night. Additional emphasis will be placed on these open houses in view of the above decision to eliminate Saturday afternoon house festivities.

The twenty-two homecoming chairmen, along with General Chairman Donald Lourks, at an organizational meeting held in July, were unanimous in recommending that the IFC continue its policy adopted last year against private dances being held on Saturday nights.

Vets Plan Active Program To Tackle Housing Plight

By JOHN RAY

The Vets Club's new staff of officers are outlining an active program for the club this semester. The new officers, through suggestions made by old officers and various club members, will attempt to make the three-year-old Vets Club one of the most active organizations on campus.

President Joe Moffa stated that the club's program will be designed to be of a bigger service to the university as well as helping to solve many veterans' problems.

The extremely poor housing situation for veterans in Tallahassee will probably be one of the biggest problems facing the club this year.

President Moffa announced that the program will be formulated at a meeting of the executive committee this week. Plans for a membership drive will also be discussed by the committee.

Other new officers who will guide the club this year are Pedro Zeko, vice-president; Bill Johnson, treasurer; Margie Wells, secretary; and Fred Spears, sergeant-at-arms.

CHECK YET?

"Have you signed for your check?"

This question is posted at the 16 per cent who might not have gotten the word. In case you happen to be in this group, the monthly check winning procedure was held last Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mrs. Don Mathis, veteran counselor at the university, however, is an understanding lady and if you are her immediately you probably can receive this error.

The checks will be mailed directly to the veterans' homes about the 29th of this month. Those checks will include payment from the 12th to the 30th of September.

The large group of veterans on campus will be also represented in all intramural sports for the first time this year. Several veterans teams were entered in the intramural sports last year but the lack of players made it impossible for the vets to field a team in all the individual events.

Gary DuBois, newly appointed athletic director of the Vets Club, however, stated today that the vets will definitely be represented in every event this year. DuBois pointed out that a veteran does not have to be a member of the Vet's club to play with these teams.

Twelve players turned out for the first basketball practice. DuBois said that more players will be needed and urged all veterans who are interested in basketball to contact him immediately. Swimmers are also needed, he stated.

The initial response of the Vet's club indicates that they might be a dark horse for the intramural campus championship.

The Vets Club will sponsor a card party this Friday night, at 7:30 p.m. in the Trophy Room at the Student Center.

Sandi Sings Out

By Sandi Benkind

It seems to me that many of our inhabitants of Hollywood, (California, that is) are becoming very greedy. To explain the last statement, I'll just say that I believe actors should stick to acting, and leave the making of our hit records to the recording artist. Not that I'm moaning to be selfish or anything, but I just feel that these records are selling only on the actor's name from his last "swooning" picture, and not from his vocal ability.

Alas, the end of truly good music and the beginning of what is known as "The generation's good music." I'm getting so sick of hearing elder people shudder when Sal Mineo moans out a ditty, and having them state that this is a product of the younger set, and why doesn't he stick to "Rebel Without A Cause." In a sense I'm very much in favor of the very same thing. The actors are being pushed in front of the public for just one hit splash, not necessarily because he can sing, but because his promoters know that the teenage girls will just swoon when they know that Tab Hunter has made a record. And who buys most of the popular stuff put out today? The TEENAGE GIRLS! A sure way to make a buck.

To be a singer of any sort, one should have the inner quality to be able to give forth with that special kind of sound. It just to talk was to sing, then anyone with the needed capital would be able to record, and everyone would then be a singer. Doesn't this apply to our actors making records? Therefore my point is that not everyone can sing, and he or she should know enough to stick to his own field.

Lack Of Spirit Unfortunate-Prexy

The Student Body president's cabinet met Tuesday afternoon to discuss badly needed reform in school spirit, especially at football games.

"A problem in institutional spirit is indeed unfortunate," said Arnold Greenfield, student body president. However, he added, "since we recognize the problem, now's the time to get busy and do something about it."

Several courses of action were discussed by various cabinet members. These included having a special section at each football game with cheers to accompany card formations. A section by type was formed several years ago but was discontinued when organizations were for pep rallies with a parade up College Avenue through the campus proper.

Greenfield suggested that to increase sort of competitive spirit the various organizations on campus could perhaps promote their school spirit.

"We could suggest a trophy for the group that did the most to show such spirit," he said.

It was also suggested that if the fraternities and sororities, which in some instances have been boosting their respective groups, would work with the band and Cheerleaders, a greater degree of school spirit would be achieved.

A committee of cabinet members was formed to discuss the problem further and to make suggestions to various campus groups.

The cabinet decided that a student government publication was necessary in order for the student body to be aware of what is taking place in the various govern mental offices. A stenciled mimeographed sheet was suggested by Greenfield, who previously studied the problem. He stated that the cost for one stencil would be $2.50.

'TRIAL RUN'

It was decided by Cabinet members to print one issue as a trial run. The sheet would probably be distributed in dormitories and fraternity and sorority houses and would be posted on campus bulletin boards.

The publication would include Senate, Judiciary and Cabinet news. Details for the sheet are to be worked on by the cabinet and will be announced at a later date.

Bonnie Blue, who has been working with Greenfield on this, was appointed by Greenfield to conduct an investigation of off-campus housing.

Secretary of State Priscilla Moon was appointed to assist university officials to serve with members of the committee and a welcoming group to the classes returning for the activities.

The next regularly scheduled Cabinet meeting is set for Tuesday, October 15.

Theft Reports Common Here

University establishments have been reporting many cases of theft recently according to Barton Burkhart, chief justice of university honor court.

These places have treated students. It's a shame to break down," Miss Burkhart reported.

She added, An honor system is good in that everyone supports it. The funny part of this case is that every university student has sworn to support it.

The chief justice also went on the matter of "fudging." Halfway stealing or lying or cheating is as bad as doing it right. In the sense that you are cheating yourself in the long run," she added with a wry smile. "It is bad enough to pull a fast one on other people don't kid yourself, too."

For example, Miss Burkhart stated that "When a student sees something it's as much his duty to keep it as it would to steal it from the owner in the first place."

There's no way to get around it. To give a thief if you keep anything that doesn't belong to you. There's no halfway.

"No one's no halfway about it. Under honor system every member of the student body has membership and sworn to uphold it," the honor chief concluded.

Frozier, Purkapile Guests At Meeting

The International Students Club will have a meeting Monday at 7:30 p. m. Oct. 14, in Leon Auditorium. Dr. Stronger, president of the university, and Ross Purkapile, secretary of the Committee on Friendly Relations among Foreign Students will be guests.

Momentous Occasion,' 'Cloak'

Experimental Drama Series Begins Here October 24

"A Momentous Occasion" and "The Cloak," the first of a series of experimental dramas, will be presented on October 24 at FSU.

The experimental dramas series is a new program of the Theater-Television Production Area of the Department of Speech.

The series will play an important part in the creative writing program," according to Dr. Ernest Bormann, instructor in playwriting.

New plays will be given a hearing and new approaches to production of unusual and experimental plays will be featured in the experimental area, he said.

Students will also be encouraged to direct and costume the productions. Some productions will include original choreography and music by students.

WRITTEN BY STUDENT

Maurice Matlock, an FSU student, is the writer of "A Momentous Occasion," a 3-act comedy to be directed by Dr. Bormann, who is also supervisor of the first experimental production.

The story centers around four high school girls, who have no plans for the prom. A boy who has to be of help gets them out of this dilemma and they know what to do with. They eventually arrive at the prom safely.

Ray Cranford, who has had experience in Little Theatre and high school drama, will play Susan Matthews.

Susan Caffrey will portray Charlain. Miss Caffrey is a transfer drama major from Stephensville Junior College, and has had one summer of stock company experience.

MORE CAST

Amanda will be played by Gloria King, who attended drama camp at FSU and has participated in several church plays.

Betty Seay, who played in "Seven Year Itch" in community theater and who also has had experience in summer stock and high school drama, will play Polly.

Bea West will be Mrs Matthews. Phil Johnson, Mr. Matthews. Stan Cheron, Bub Mathews. Walter Sario, Wilfred Walker. Bob Murray, Chuck Bennett. Alan Kaus, Larry Cheney, Bob Harris, David Hollis, Virgil Austin and John Venables will play the office boys, and Ann Chadwick will be narrator.

Steve Kleid, senior from Miami Beach, will direct "The Cloak," by Britisher Clifford Vax. It is a story of three ghosts, The Dead, Unborn, and The Angel, taking place on the path between heaven and hell.

The cloak represents the veneer of "personality" and The Dead reasoning it, wishes to enter heaven. Unborn tries to convince The Dead to give up the cloak.

Sue Caffrey, who also stars in "A Momentous Occasion," will play The Angel.

Betty Caldwell, who will play The Dead, had leading roles in "Sabrina Fair" and "The Bisser They Come" at FSU.

Unborn will be played by Kim Gravitz. Miss Gravitz has had experience in TV and high school drama.

The second drama series will be directed by Ira May Cobrn, and is scheduled for November 13 and 14. Tryouts for the drama, not yet selected, will be on Wednesday, October 16, at 7 p.m. in 122 History and Thursday, October 17, at 7 p.m., at Conradi Theater.

MISS FSU is 1956 Homecoming Queen Layte Bowden, who is shown in the finals Wednesday night. Layte is a senior from Fort Lauderdale.

'56 H'coming Queen

Layte Bowden Wins Miss FSU Contest

Layte Bowden, a senior from Fort Lauderdale, was named "Miss FSU" in the Talbhe's annual beauty contest.

Miss Bowden was chosen from a field of over 150 contestants for the honor. The contest is sponsored annually in order to choose the beauty section of the yearbook.

The contest was held Tuesday and Wednesday nights in Westcott Auditorium, with the preliminaries being held on the first night.

During the preliminary judging the contestants wore formal gowns, while the second evening they chose in skirts and sweaters and shorts and sweaters for the final judging.

The girls were judged by a four-member panel on the basis of beauty, poise, and personal appearance. There were 33 girls in the Wednesday night elimination. The field was pared considerably by the preliminary judging.

From the 33 second-night contestants, 7 were chosen as finalists. Their pictures will comprise the beauty section of this year's Talla-ha.

The finalists were Miss Bowden, Nan Chamberlain, Frances Colley, Wilma Copeland, Diane Davis, Diane Godin, and Paula Parsons.

Judges for the event included Miss Joan Guthridge, Foreign student advisor; Dr. Reid Montgomery, student publications advisor; and Dick Parks and Yvonne Streeman, Talbhe photographers.

Miss Bowden is a resident of Fort Lauderdale and reigned as Homecoming Queen in last year's festivities. She is a Journalism major, a member of Women's Judiciary, and a Flambeau staff writer.

New Stadium Walkway Done

Students walking to the Saturday night football game will have to fight neither traffic nor mud, according to Gerald Jones, asst. business manager for the University.

A concrete walkway and bridge has been constructed adjacent to the Delta Tau Delta house that will direct the pedestrians to the stadium without automobile traffic interference.

The walkway may be entered by walking through the Delta Tau Delta parking lot. Students will not need to use the streets either going to or from the football game.

"This is going to alleviate our traffic congestion a great deal," Jones said, "and will allow both pedestrians and automobile drivers to have better access to the stadium."

Jones also announced a new traffic control system for use at football games this year.

An officer of the Florida Highway Patrol will be stationed in the stadium pressbox with radio transmitter equipment to dispatch officers to congested areas before and after the games.

Parmelee To Appear In Graduate Recital

Paul Parmelee, widely known performer of chamber music and accompanist, will appear in his first graduate recital in Oppermal Music Hall Monday night at 8:15.

Parmelee, who is a member of the faculty at the University of Colorado, is a student of Edward Kilenyi and is working for the Doctor of Music degree.

Included on his program will be "Three Goldberg Variations," by Johann Sebastian Bach, "Caprice in F Minor," by Ernst Von Dohnanyi and selections from Chopin, Brahms, and Bartok.

Senators Plan Library Hours Investigation

Numerous requests from student body members have brought about a Student Senate investigation of the extension of library hours on Sunday nights.

Bob Murray, men's vice-president, introduced a resolution proposing that the library remain open until 10 p.m. on Sunday nights. Murray is to investigate the situation this week and report his finds to senate next Wednesday.

In discussing why the library should remain open, these points were made:

Most students do weekend studying on Sunday nights.

University regulations require women students to be in their residences at the same hours as during the week. This extra time for library study has already proved to be of great value and convenience to FSU students.

The creation of a senate seat to represent veterans on campus, was the bill introduced by Junior Senator Gerry Gordon. Gordon said, "There are 1200 veterans on campus today. Only one veterans was in Senate last year. This group should be more equally represented."

Polly Atwater, women's vice-president, replied with the statement that "Veterans should not fall into a special class. They have the same opportunities as anyone else to be elected to Senate from any of the other positions or sections."

Pat Mickler, junior senator, moved that the matter be tabled since it is too late to create a new seat for this year's Senate. The move was seconded and passed.

The matter will be brought up again at a later date after the election of new senators.

Jan Kamins, presiding officer, announced that all standing committees and their chairmen have been set up for the year.

PAVING PARKING LOTS. This is the scene at several FSU parking lots this week as construction equipment moves in to pave them.

Paving Of Five Lots Now Being Finished

Gerald O. Jones, assistant to the business manager, reported today that the State Road Department has begun the paving of the parking lots on the FSU campus.

Paving of the five lots will be completed some time this week," Jones said. The lots include the Home Economics Building lot, the Conradi lot, the Library lot, the addition on the Cawthon lot, and the lot adjacent to classroom building A "old Demonstration School."

The paving of these lots was to be completed before the start of the first semester, but due to the heavy rains the State Road Department was late beginning.

Jones pointed out that the school is having a road and new parking lot constructed behind the Student Center.

LANDIS LOT

"Some students have brought up the idea of making Landis Green into a jalaodet parking lot. The students must make their opinion on this due to the fact that the green is a cool spot and a black top finish to the area would ruin its present beauty," Jones said.

At the present time there are approximately four hundred cars on campus with just about one half that many parking spaces available to the students, state said faculty.

By the second semester there may not be as many cars on campus due to the sophomore ban it will not be known until that time whether the sophomores will or allowed to have cars on campus.

BAN IN QUESTION

"The second semester ban on freshmen and sophomores remains a central question," Jones said. Fi sident Stronger approved of not enforcing the ban until the second semester because the University literature that was sent to students prior to the ban stated that they were allowed to have them.

Many students brought their cars it good faith, and in order not to cause undue hardship on those students the ban was delayed. University officials will continue to review the subject, and a permanent decision will be made during the first semester.

Jazz Pioneers Specialize In Modern Music

By NANCY GENE BROWN

Progressive jazz a la Stan Kenton will provide the tempo for the 1957-58 Homecoming Dance October 26.

Sponsored annually by Gold Key, the event will take place from 8 till 1 in the men's gymnasium.

The appearance of the Kenton band was arranged through the Office of Special Events by Miss Kathryn Vernon. Miss Marie Williams, social director, was instrumental in bringing about the band, according to Jim McIntyre homecoming dance chairman.

The Kenton group, pioneers of progressive jazz played by big bands, specializes in modern music. They hit stardom with early recordings of "Artistry Jumps" and "Artistry in Rhythm."

Appearing with them will be the Modern Men, with the vocal stylings of Ann Richards.

Announcements of the dance have already been mailed to alumni, McIntyre said.

Tickets will be on sale from 9 a.m. till 4 p.m. Monday through Friday in the Westcott ticket office for $3 a couple. No single tickets will be sold.

"Fewer complimentary tickets than usual will be issued" said the dance chairman.

New President Robert M. Stronger, who will speak briefly during the intermission, will be the honored guest of the dance. Another feature of the intermission will be the introduction of the homecoming queen and her court.

Decorations are under the supervision of Kay Hufford Pavilion for each and hall check will be provided, and cokes will be sold at the concession stand, McIntyre said.

Novel Pep Dance Set Next Friday

FSU's most unusual pep rally will take place next Friday night in the men's gym.

"The emphasis will be on sports, rather than dancing," said Jim Julian, head cheerleader. The event will last from 9 to 12 p.m.

A radio broadcast will originate direct from the gym during the rally. Entertainment and the introduction of outstanding personalities have been scheduled to take place during the dance, Julian said.

We are asking the support of every organization, faculty member, and student for the success of the rally," Julian concerned.

Details will be announced in Tuesday's Flambeau.

Strozier Tells Grads

More Facilities Necessary For Top Graduate School

Florida State University will need "greatly extended library facilities, laboratories, graduate assistantships, and, above all, greater scholarships" if it is to have a great graduate school, according to Dr. Robert M. Stronger, FSU president.

Addressing a coffee hour of the Graduate Club recently, the university president said: "In as we increase our graduate enrollment we shall need more and more good housing for married students. I plan to keep before the Board of Control this requirement. If you are not adequately housed at the present time, perhaps your successors will have better luck."

The new university president told the graduate group that real university is represented by the graduate student alone in his laboratory or the library seeking with excitement for something that is new and interesting problems with imagination for new avenues of learning. trying new experiments having the courage to discard them when they fail, and with that fervor and intensity which characterizes the imaginative scholar beginning again with the same eagerness as though failure were unimportant.

addressing myself as soon as possible. It is inevitable that "These are the real graduate students who, with their professors, make a university great and important."

"There is another type," he added "men and women who are marking time to fulfill requirements to get a higher degree that will bring them an advancement in salary or rank, who have no real interest in research."

He said, "There is nothing immoral about procuring an advancement in salary or rank, mind you, but there is something degrading in being a graduate student with only this aim in view."

The life of the graduate student, Dr. Stronger said, is often hard. It is my firm belief that his life should be made as easy as possible and that every effort should be made to attract more and better graduate students to the Florida State University."

Leaders Must Be Sincere

While the Russian labelled Sputnik goes beep, beep, beeping around its orbit, American politicans, newspapermen, and plain ole citizens sit with their binoculars in hand trying to put the blame on Mame.

COLUMNIST Stewart Alsop says President Eisenhower is to blame for not telling the public the "blunt truth" about Russia's progress in the ballistic missiles area. Columnist Drew Pearson says interservice rivalry in the Pentagon is the reason the U. S. lost the satellite race.

Senator Richard Russell, head of the Armed Services Committee—a man who should certainly know the facts—announced that an investigation is planned. And Senator Stuart Symington has asked lke for a special session to ask, "What Hoppen?"

WHAT HAS happened is a simple, undeniable fact. Whether it be the fault of Eisenhower, of his administration, an Army-Navy feud, or Mrs. O'Leary's cow; the truth is apparent—the Russians are the victors in launching the first earth satellite.

For this we must give them due credit. They have accomplished a feat which will benefit all mankind—or which can be used to destroy it. In a few months, we too will have a satellite, although it may not be as advanced as the Russian Sputnik.

LET US HOPE that when the time comes that both nations possess this fantastic scientific achievement, it will be used in ways beneficial to mankind.

There is a fork in the road. One turn will lead to space travel and an unveiling of the mysteries of the universe—the other will lead to wars and world wide destruction.

Both nations must be sincere, however, in their desire to avoid the latter path. And that's asking a lot.

Trouble In Warsaw

The current news from Warsaw is not what the world anticipated a year ago, when friends of Poland greeted the elevation of Wladyslaw Gomulka to leadership in that country. During the past few days the clearest voice of the Polish people's desire for a new and better life, the student publication Po Prostu, has been closed down. Protesting students have been set upon by policemen using clubs and tear gas. The threat of explusion has been used as another club against dissident students.

The students and their publication, Po Prostu, were leaders in the peaceful revolution that brought M. Gomulka to power last October. But since then a wide gulf has opened between them. M. Gomulka and his associates see the specter of Soviet intervention before them and apparently feel that no lengths are too great to appease the Muscovites whose troops are on Polish soil, as well as immediately to the east and west of Poland. The students, and we may suspect many urban workers as well, apparently feel that their hopes of a year ago have been betrayed, that the appeasement of Moscow has gone up to such lengths that all hope for real improvement has been lost.

This repression of the students seems clearly to have been born of panic—perhaps of fears that another Budapest was in the making. But it has put another moral stain on the escutcheon of the present regime in Poland, setting in motion forces whose final result no man can foretell.

SG Tries, But Doors Close At Five

Student government tried, but was not successful in its attempt to have the Library extend its hours on Sunday nights from 5 to 10 p.m. The reason given was a common one around a university—no available funds.

HOWEVER, last year when there was a slight surplus in the budget, Library officials okayed the Student Senate proposal to keep the building open for study on Sunday nights although the checking desk was closed. This way only a few library staff members had to work during the extended time.

This was very much appreciated by students and it proved to be convenient and reasonable. It is unfortunate that funds could not be found somewhere to continue this schedule.

IT WAS suggested that the library close Friday nights and remain open Sundays, but the Library staff vetoed this idea, Dick Crawford, secretary of student welfare, reported. Perhaps if students voiced their opinions on whether or not they approved of switching the Friday hours to Sunday, the Library staff would relent.

We sincerely hope this extension of hours on Sunday will be taken into consideration when the next Library budget is drawn up

'Jet Pilot' Was On Shelf For Years

By ALAN KASS

To give you an idea how old "Jet Pilot" is, an answer I fear, that Howard Hughes and Universal-International don't care to have mentioned, a clue might be in order It was long before Milwaukee left Boston to become the land of the Braves and home of the brew Anyhow, it set some sort of record for years on a shelf in the film closet of RKO Pictures It is funny that now the picture is in release the powers in Russia have given the United States such fright with their new weapon of the sky

SOME OF THE ideas and values have changed from the picture in the last several years Jets and uniforms are vastly refined As for John Wayne, the star, his face is one of the few constants in a shifting world

Janet Leigh in about 1950, then 22 was a beautiful figure of a model girl Howard Hughes, picturing another Jane Russell, wasted little time peeling off her flying togs to reveal the true animal out with a title tune by Frankie beauty like this wearing a uniform in the first place? You won't believe the answer, but anyway here it is: Miss Leigh plays a Russian jet pilot

Together they soon make beautiful talk in the air.

"It's a kind of turn I've never seen," Wayne says as he loses her with a fast loop But it takes more than that to soften Janet

"One minute I want to kill you, the next minute I want to kiss you and kiss you"

Well, sir, borrowing the words of a popular song, "One kiss led to another, and another and another," and before you could say "Enemy Alien Act" they were married and in Russia.

MR. WAYNE finds the Communists cruel He is almost brainwashed. They put him and his wife in separate barracks This act finally shows that the enemy is playing for keeps and they resolved to escape "Haven't I got you in enough trouble," Janet asks.

The question could be addressed to the whole movie audience

If people have missed "High Noon" they now have a chance to view almost a carbon copy entitled "3 10 To Yuma" Starting out with a title tune by Frankie Laine, the picture resembles the Gary Cooper starrer in many, many ways

It is a superior western starring Glenn Ford as the leader of an outlaw gang and Van Heflin who nails him for a reward to help out his family back at the ranch.

Here is where the picture reveals its "High Noon" flavor. One of the outlaw gang discovers the hideout. Then one by one the rancher's friends fall or hide or just plain get killed. This leaves Heflin to face the gang by himself at the time of 3.10. The usual battles follow, then a quick turnabout occurs that has no clear motivation, but which gives the ending an unusual twist.

The picture is well worth viewing even if you did see "High Noon."

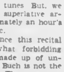
Anna Kaskas Superlative Contralto



By LOWELL RODDENBERRY

Anna Kaskas, called America's greatest concert contralto, with the golden voice, golden hair and golden personality amply is ... just that

OUT OF THE wealth of her extensive background, one very simple anecdote will have to suffice. Admiral Byrd, before an expedition to the North Pole, asked Miss Kaskas to record for him some hymn tunes which he carried with him. The air-conditioning in Opperman Music Hall is not so frigid as the North Pole, most assuredly, and we are not to hear hymn tunes But, we are to hear a superlative artist in approximately an hour's worth of music.

On first glance this recital appears somewhat forbidding in that it is made up of unfamiliar songs. Such is not the case, however. The programming, an art in itself, is well balanced and if anything, this concert is of a moderately light nature and imminently listenable

THE PROGRAM opens in a traditional manner with the aria "Ahi, Che Forse Ai Miei Di" from an early, little known opera Demofoote, by Cherubini. The opera itself is of interest in that it forecasts a transition from the Neopolitan school of composition to the grander French style.

This particular aria is fairly indicative of Cherubini's style, for even in its more passionate moments, it never oversteps the bounds of artistic moderation.

EVEN ON FIRST hearing it becomes evident that this aria bears out the operatic necessity that music is the servant of the text This idea pervades Cherubini's vocal works so successfully and masterfully that they led Beethoven to esteem Cherubini above all other operatic composers then living.

For those who don't speak Italian fluently, a translation would be in order. (That includes this reviewer too).

"Ah, I would be put to death if it were known that the prince is my lover and husband. Ah! The days when I was alone and never knew the feeling of fear and trembling"

SECOND AND last in the first group is an aria from Rossini's Semeramide, "Ah! Quel Giorno Ognor Rammento". ("Ah! The day in memory shining thy life did save. From the oppressor I tore thee. In my arms I fondly bore thee. Ne'er may thy image fade away.")

Dated though Rossini's music might appear to us now, he was much championed in his day and obliged his public by writing prolifically.

Semeramide was written meticulously and possibly for that very reason lost the spontaniety that would have made it a success. Only its overture is still performed.

THIS PRODIGIOUS contralto role was written as a vehicle for Rossini's wife and this particular aria exhibits what versatility is possible for the lowest of female voices. Its florid nature gives astounding proof that this generally conceeded sluggish voice can assume the technical virtuosity of a more facile voice

"Alle Dinge Haben Sprache" ("All things hear speech since thou art near") opens the next group. The song is by Erich Wolff, a composer steeped in lush Wagnerian harmony

HIS WAS A short-lived popularity. At one time, a movement was afoot to establish him in the succession of great German song writers. His songs are notably deficient for their excessive sentimentality and rather superficial melodic lines. Albeit, this song is immediate in its appeal and deserves many hearings

The lied reaches its consummation in Hugo Wolf who is represented by "Verachling der abgrund" from the second book of Italian Lieder. There is nothing Italian about this song. It is refined and transfigured into a declamatory style that is less a melodic line than a rise and fall of phrases which give an impression of the infections of the speaking voice.

Heyse's poem on which this song is based is delivered in a sort of free melodic rhapsody over a highly elaborate piano part. The collaboration of the voice and piano is one of ensemble as opposed to voice accompanied by piano.

It is only fitting to give recognition here to Miss Kaskas' accompanist, John Boda, who is a fine performer himself.

"MAY HEAVEN send fire from above, and snakes and vipers may they within his dwelling move and bring him death who did my live betray."

"Quelle Souffrance" of Leonormand and "Hymne au soleil" of Georges will have to suffice with few comments. Neither is familiar to us although it is safe to assume that their idiom is highly romantic judging from the dates of their composers.

The Lenormand song deals with 'romantic' love: romantic in the sense that it is the French version of the Victorian disinclination to state an avowal of love openly. "Quelle Souffrance" literally means "What Suffering".

INFANTICIDE sets the tone of "Hymne au soleil" ("Hymn to the sun"). This is the second song in the cycle, Les Chansons de Miarka," and being second in the cycle, we gather that the Infant Miarka, who is being offered to the sun, is spared to go on to other adventures

The following Russian group will be sung in English and thus made easily accessible to the listener. Programmed are two songs of Arensky, "On Wings of Dream" and "Autumn" plus the Russian equivalent of a novelty song, Glinka's "The Journey".

The major offering of the evening is the aria of Abigail from Giuseppi Verdi's Nabucco. The libretto or play is based on a Biblical text . . . Nabucco meaning Nebuchadnezzar.

VERDI'S MUSIC has fallen heir to the most scurrilous attacks and also received paens of praise. George Bernard Shaw accused him of ruining the Italian singer because of his excessive use of the upper vocal register. But, the elusive Mr Shaw freely admits that Verdi writes opera in its truest sense and as such is great art.

"Anch'io Dischiuao un Giorno" is blatantly and unashamedly early Verdi. It is lyrical and highly florid in the Bellini 'bel canto' style with the simplest of accompaniments replete with tremolos and brass brand effects. It is Verdi, for the first time, truly inspired with that ring of sincerity and strength that makes his music good lyric theatre

THE ARIA deals with the vindictive Abigail, heir apparent to the throne who swears vengeance on her daddy, Nebuchadnezzar, for selling her down the river and installing her younger sister Fenena on the throne

The closing English group holds no terrors for the concert-goers. It will speak for itself

Since this marks Miss Kaskas' debut here, capacity attendence is to be expected. Those unfortunate enough to miss a seat can hear the concert live over WFSU-FM.

Entry Blanks Due For Parade

Organizations which plan to enter a float in the homecoming parade October 25, must submit entry blanks along with sketches of its float to the Float Decorations Committee prior to 5 p.m. Friday.

These sketches will be reviewed by representatives of the committee and may be picked up soon after they are turned in. Entry blanks should be submitted to Dr. Hugh Hinely in 102 Education Building. Additional forms may be secured in the same room.

FSU-A&M Merger As Seen By Writer

By ARTHUR ALBRECHT

Let's face it! There's not much sense saving Confederate dollars anymore—the South isn't really going to rise again At least it won't rise enough to hold back the inevitability of integration

JAMES Stahlman, publisher of The Nashville Banner, datelines his Little Rock stories "With the Armed Forces in Arkansas" And it's possible that similar datelines will be originating from other states in these parts before integration is complete, but, even the most staunch segregationist is forced to admit that it's coming eventually.

Personally, although I can't rationally back up my beliefs, I favor segregation. Now when something I'm opposed to is inevitable I have two choices—I can refuse to admit it and fight or reevaluate my arguments and search for something good in that which is bound to happen.

MOST OF US tend to look at the darker sides of desegregation We see it as something repulsive to our way of life in the Deep South. While we believe in the equality of man, we can see nothing good arising from mixing the races. Maybe it would help if we looked at it from another angle

For example, what would integration mean to Florida State? It might mean some minor racial incidents but that would be over and done with in a short period of time What we should do is look at the long view

Lets' suppose for a few moments that Florida capitulated to the "whims" of the Supreme Court. It would be reasonable to assume that Florida A&M would become a part of FSU—indeed it would probably become known as the south campus.

WE'D GAIN approximately 4,000 students, boosting our enrollment to almost as much as that other state school in Gainesville For a number of years, university officials have been fighting for the addition of a School of Engineering at FSU. Integration, assuming that we'd tie up with A&M, would give us this school as well as a College of Law and Schools of Pharmacy and Agriculture

Frosh Aren't Keeping Old West Hall Spirit

By BUCKY CANON

One can't help but wonder if this year's freshmen possess any of that good old hell raising spirit that has marked the freshmen of the past. The newcomer seem to have little tendency to rowdiness. In fact they hardly are noticed talking to one another In West Hall, where a good many reside, it is almost as quiet as in the library.

WHEN I FIRST arrived at West Hall, I was one of those unfortunates who did not realize that standard equipment for every freshman was a water pistol and a year's supply of push button shaving cream. But I soon learned how to survive.

Instead of using water pistols, I used whole bottles of water. And sure enough, before two weeks were out part of the second floor was on probation for having doused the counselor with water

BUT OUR wars were not limited to water and shaving cream. Soon newer and more modern weapons came into use. Some of these were pies, firecrackers, burning newspapers, and balloons full of red ink.

Then we discovered that we didn't have to go over to the alleys to bowl. We had our own. A hall 125 feet long and 5 feet wide made a wonderful alley and coke bottles made good substitutes for pins. We didn't even have to clean up the mess afterward. Why do you think the university hired janitors?

OTHER LITTLE gems which we pulled to add excitement and zest to our freshman year in West Hall included the occasional ringing of the firebell just for fun, setting doors afire ... lighter fluid and the lighter ... the stringing of toilet pape... and down the hall from do... door (They no longer ... toilet paper in rolls in the ... From Frying Pan Into The Flames

Out of the frying pan into the fire.

It's an old saying, and a dead one, but it probably fits Florida State's situation better than any other one at the moment.

If the Seminoles are not discouraged by now, it is to their credit, for they certainly have a few reasons to be quite downcast about their season prospects.

They went up against two clubs in the past two weeks they had counted on beating at the start of the season, and fell hard both times.

Now they meet North Carolina State. The Wolfpack hasn't beaten FSU in the last four years. They haven't scored on us in the last two tries.

But they came in here 13th in the country, with probably the strongest aggregation they've assembled in many years—and possibly the fastest two halfbacks in the south.

This is definitely not encouraging to a bunch of local athletes who've had little to build up their morale recently.

At the beginning of the season, I said in these columns that the Seminoles could go all the way from 3-7 to 7-3, or anywhere in between.

SHORT END

Best guess from the experts at the moment is that they will be on the short end of that ladder.

This is not that bad a football team!

It is a football team which has failed to jell from the word go and nobody seems to know why it hasn't clicked as it can.

Even in the victory over Furman, the team was sluggish, at times the offense nonexistent—and the 172 yards of penalties speaks for itself.

At the time, the penalty total was blamed on lack of experience, playing too many sophomores. In the next two games, the sophs were the men that stood out in many cases.

Potentially, this is a better ball club that the one that produced a 5-4-1 mark last season. I've had members of last year's team tell me just that.

This year's team evidently doesn't realize it because they certainly have not showed it on the football field.

INJURIES HURT

A share of the loss to Villanova may be attributed to injuries, as no team can expect to roll with its number one man sitting on the bench hurt.

To my knowledge, none of the first string backfield was hurt during the Boston College game. Yet, our offense was nonexistent until the dying stages of the game.

What's the answer?

Looking at another aspect, our pass defense as per usual, has been bad in the last couple of games, contributing heavily to the defeats.

With the exception of the first couple of games last season (at one time we were in the top ten in the nation on pass defense), FSU hasn't had an adequate pass defense for some time.

This is another factor contributing to what could well be Tom Nugent's worst campaign here.

Well, tomorrow night, the team should be reasonably close to full strength, at least closer than last week against Villanova.

Renn will undoubtedly see some action, though he may still be slowed by his hip, and Jerry Graham should be ready. Fred Pickard may be out with a similar injury to the one Renn had however.

HOME GROUND

Possibly the inspiration of the home ground will make the difference. Possibly the incentive to beat N. C. State for the ... straight time will do it.

Possibly, and we certainly hope not, there won't be any incentives at all, and the Seminoles will fall hard for the third straight time.

One thing is certain—the Tribe will be playing teams of about the caliber of N. C. State or better the rest of the season, with the exception of Abilene Christian and Tampa.

If they don't get by the Wolfpack somehow, anyone predicting a record better than 3-7 is a fool.

Sophs Dominate Lineup; Bob Renn Doubtful Starter

By FRANK RAMOS

Florida State's Seminoles play at home tomorrow for the first time in three weeks and are faced with their toughest assignment of the year when they meet North Carolina State's Wolfpack.

The Seminoles will be pointing for an upset victory over Coach Earle Edwards' 13th ranked Wolfpack.

Tom Nugent's forces have had their best week of practice as far as the weather is concerned. Nugent's gridders are now 13 days behind practice schedule because of the weather and the flu, but the amiable coach is hoping to catch up before long.

Before the season got underway N. C. State coach Edwards said, "If I were a sportswriter I would say that North Carolina State is going to be an improved football team in 1957." It seems Edwards was right.

UPSET N. C.

His State eleven shocked the football world when they upset Jim Tatum's North Carolina Tar Heels 7-0. But the big upset was yet to come.

The next week the Wolfpack mauled favored Maryland 48-13. Then Edwards' boys went out to prove their previous wins weren't flukes and beat Clemson 13-7.

Now there is talk in Raleigh of the Wolfpack possibly going to a bowl game. Since the ACC does not have a tieup with any bowl all games are going to be important for Edwards' gridders, conference or non-conference.

And the word from Raleigh is the Wolfpack wants this game badly.

Nugent has had to do some quick patch work in this week's lineup and has done it with sophomores. The Seminoles' mentor finds himself without his number one back, Bobby Renn and his replacement, halfbacks Billy Weaver and Fred Pickard.

RENN TO SUIT

Nugent said, "Renn will be suited up for the game and we hope he gets to play, but Weaver and Pickard will not dress. Weaver is out with the flu and Pickard has a hip injury from the Villanova contest.

Ronnie Schomburger and Bob Nellums will start at left and right ends respectively. Expected to alternate with them are two sophomores, Clare Bagnell and John Spivey.

Getting the call at the tackles are Bill Musselman and sophomore Louis Wallace. Musselman will alternate with another sophomore Jerry Lane.

Alternating with Wallace will be George Boyer who held down the starting position until last week's contest.

At the guards will be sophomore Al Ulmer and junior Joe McGee. Nugent pointed out that still another sophomore Abner Bigbee was rated even with McGee, but decided to start the junior because McGee comes from Raleigh, North Carolina.

Backing them up will be the jack of all trades, Bob Fountain.

Paul Slaton another sophomore will start at center with Troy Barnes who has an elbow injury filling in for some duty.

HENDERSON QB

Taking over at quarterback now that Renn has been switched to halfback will be Jerry Henderson. Henderson shared the quarterbacking duties with sophomore Joe Majors last week against Villanova and will do the same this week.

Opening at lefthalfback is (you guessed it) another sophomore. This one is Bob Carnes who played a good game for the Seminoles against Villanova.

Stan Dobosz has gotten the call to start at right half. Dobosz was the leading ground gainer for FSU against the Wildcats. Holding down the fullback position once again is Eddie Johnson.

In reply to the question is there any difference in playing at home and playing away, Nugent stated, "It gives the football team a tremendous lift to see the student body in the stands and the football team would deeply appreciate the backing of the student body in a game as vital as this one."

Dobosz Hits Peak In Villanova Contest

A bright spot in Florida State's loss to Villanova last weekend was the running of senior halfback, Stan Dobosz.

Stumpy, as he is called by his teammates, was the leading Tribe ballcarrier as he picked up 63 yards in 18 attempts against the rugged Wildcat line.

Dobosz has been one of those consistant backs who doesn't get the headlines, but can always pick up the needed yards in the clutch.

Coach Tom Nugent said that "it was Stan's finest game, he gave everything he had." Standing 5'8" and weighing 180 lbs Dobosz is rated as a hard runner and a rugged defensive player.

In the Villanova tilt Dobosz electrified the crowd with his flashy punt and kickoff returns as he returned four kicks for a total 121 yards.

CAME IN '52

Dobosz entered FSU in 1952 on a football scholarship. He played fullback on the varsity that season and lettered at that position.

In the Georgia Tech-FSU game that season he picked up more yardage than any Seminole back. In 1954 Dobosz left FSU to serve with the U.S. Army.

He did not play ball while in the service.

When he rejoined the Tribe in 1956 he was placed at the halfback post and has played that position ever since.

Dobosz thrives on conditioning and his spirit and energy make up for any lack of size.

AVERAGED 4.3

Last season he gained 142 yards rushing for an average of just over 4 yards per carry—good enough to place fourth in individual rushing for the Tribe.

Dobosz is a business major and plans to be active in Newman Club activities this year.

Intramural Basketball Opens; Swimming Scheduled Next

The Florida State University Intramural sports program for the 1957-58 season swung into action this week, with fifteen Greek teams and twelve Dorm-Independent teams reporting.

Basketball first on the agenda opened Monday night, October 7, in the Men's Gym. All teams have been divided into two divisions, Greek and Dorm-Independent.

Dorm-Independent teams play on Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday nights. Greek teams play on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday nights. All games start at 7:40, 8:55, and 8:30.

The first night of play, found eight of the Independent teams giving their fans some interesting results.

MAGNOLIA WINS

Magnolia defeated Veterans 31-20; Rebels toped the Federals by a score of 31-27; B.S.U. handed the Lutherans a 34-23 loss; C.L.O. tounced the International Club 40-23 in what was the most one-sided game of the evening.

Wednesday night, sizzled with one-sided games. Penthouse pounded goal after goal to give them a 50-23 win over the Playboys; Newman House came through on a 41-21 victory over Senior Hall.

Rebels handed the Lutherans their second defeat to the tally of 31-25; and B.S.U. scored their second win by holding International Club 38-21.

SWIMMING

Swimming is the next event scheduled, with practice sessions being held October 14, 17, and 21 from 8:30-9:30 at the Women's Gym.

All entries must be filed with the Intramural office by 5:00 p.m., October 17.

The Swim-Meet itself will be held October 22 & 23. Other sports to be played this semester are: tennis, table tennis, horseshoes, football, and bowling.

Flu Cancels Frosh Game

Flu has given Florida State's unbeaten freshman team a respite here this week, forcing postponement of its scheduled game tonight with South Carolina's Gamechicks.

At least 16 South Carolina freshmen are bedridden with flu, including the top six backs.

"We're disappointed the game had to be postponed," said FSU frosh coach Paul Odom, whose Baby Seminoles have rolled up 94 points and allowed none in waltzes over Georgia Military College and South Georgia.

"But we'd rather play South Carolina at full strength," Odom continued.

The teams will confer Monday on rescheduling the game here at a later date this season, possibly next Friday night (Oct. 18).

The Gamechicks blanked Wake Forest, 18-0, then dropped a 19-0 decision to Georgia Tech's yearlings before the flu moved in.

The Baby Seminoles, yet to lose a collegiate game in two seasons, walloped Georgia Military, 51-0, and repeated last week by thrashing South Georgia, 43-0.

Tech, Miami In Key Tilts

While Florida State takes on high ranking North Carolina State tomorrow night, its remaining six opponents will be seeing action all over the country.

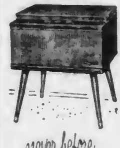
Abilene Christain, the Seminoles' opponent next week, meet North Texas State, in a game that is rated a toss-up.

Christain beat McMurray last week, and tied Chattanooga in its opener.

After losing its last two games VPI, the Tribe's homecoming opponent, clashes with Villanova. The Wildcats beat the Seminoles last week, and a comparitive score should be interesting.

Villanova is listed as a 12-point favorite.

By stunning Baylor, 13-7, last week, the Miami Hurricanes showed the experts that they may still be one of the top independents in the nation.



Tonight the 'Canes take on the Tar Heels from North Carolina, recent victors over powerful Navy. FSU plays host to Miami on November 8.

Sporting a 3-0 record, Mississippi Southern vies with Southeastern Louisiana. The Southerners are rated as 28 point favorites.

The Tribe travels to Hattiesburg, Miss. on Nov. 16 to play the Southerners.

In one of the toughest battles of the weekend, Auburn, FSU's foe on Nov. 23, meets luckless Kentucky.

Meteorology Dept. Seeking Thunderstorm Causes Here

The Florida State University Meteorology Department continues its work in the fields of radar weather forecasting and hurricane analysis again this year.

Unknown to most students, a Beech, accompanied by several war surplus radar set is located at graduate students, does active on the third floor of Weston's hurricane flying during the summer months and continues research work back at the university.

The three hurricane planes, which have been supplied by the air force, are equipped with the most up to date mechanisms available, including IBM cards similar to those which are familiar to FSU students.

It is hoped that by gaining existing details of hurricane structures, the meteorologists of tomorrow will be able to provide much surer hurricane forecasts.

Bormann Runs Theatre TV Programs Here

A series of three educational theater television programs are currently being directed by Dr. Ernest Bormann, associated professor of speech.

Held on channel 6, WCTV, these shows are part of the Barbara Young program, from 2 to 3 p.m. on Tuesday.

One of these programs, presented last Tuesday, dealt with the pre-try-out planning of a school play.

Next Tuesday the second in the series will center around trying out for a play.

Last in the group of programs, which are sponsored by the university speech department, will be a show demonstrating the interpretation of lines and the blocking of action.

Mr. Richard Fallon, director of theater at FSU, is heading the on-camera demonstrations.

Senior June Billay, a speech major, is working on the scripts for the shows.

Women's Veep Is Real Lady

This is the story of a young lady with a soft voice and a brain that certainly doesn't match it. Miss Polly Atwater, a 21-year-old senior, can be described only as a lady. All 5'4" of her pretty Miamian fairly shine as the model of a Southern Lady.

With one exception: — Polly is a politician. A politician from the word 'go' too. From her first month at FSU, Polly has been a Woman Senator. That is, until this year.

Senate became "old hat" after three years, so Polly decided to try her talents as woman's vice-president. The student body also had a hand in the decision, for they gave her the O.K. in the spring elections last year.

MORE PARTICIPATION

Now that she is top man among the women, what does Polly plan to do? "I'd like to see more of the women on campus participate in Student Government, and all of them to be aware that they do have a say-so. Women's Senate newly represents all of the women," she started out the whirl of campus activities which kept the pretty miss busy that year, as did a convention in California which she attended as FSU representative. Pretty good for a mere sophomore.

A member of Senate again, Polly also served as the Junior Counselor vice-president of Bryan Hall. Last year she was tapped for Sigma Tau Delta (the English honorary), Garnet Key, and Mortified.

When asked what her hobby was, Polly replied "wasting time." That is wasting time? Sure would hate to see her when she is busy!

Polly is also a convention fiend. So far she has represented the school at five of them. The first one was the one in Oklahoma which was previously mentioned. She attended the National Intercollegiate Association of Women Students convention at Michigan State University. The University of Georgia found her there also.

And her pretty presence was present at two Florida Intercollegiate Student Government Association conventions, one of them at Florida Southern and the other at the University of Miami. Polly ran for the office of the national vice president of I.W.S., but missed the boat on that one.

There she is, one of the campus's greatest Lady Politicians.

Panel Discussion

Educational TV Will Have Strong Impact On University

"Educational TV will have a strong impact upon Florida State University and its classes," stated Roy Flynn, director of university broadcasting.

Flynn led a panel composed also of William Razzada, chief engineer of University Broadcasting and Thomas Wright, coordinator of instruction for the FSU Educational TV program, at a meeting of the American Association of University Professors, Oct. 7. The panel was introduced by Dr. Sidney Kobre, journalism program chairman.

FSU will have a low-power 100-watt, open-circuit station soon, Flynn announced. The University will use this station as an extension of its resources in the surrounding areas, for classroom instruction on the campus, and as a lab for radio-TV majors.

USED BY HUMANITIES

For courses such as the Humanities, which have an enrollment of 1,300 students a semester, it may be used as the entire means of instruction, as an audio-visual aid to instruction, or as a supplement to instruction, said Flynn. Time scheduling will be no problem, he added, as programs may be repeated by means of vidio tapes at any time.

The next question discussed by Flynn was about the teacher and TV. The classroom teacher is not necessarily a good TV teacher, he said. New methods of teaching will have to be developed by the instructor. Probably a rotation system of selecting instructors will be used.

TV TEACHERS BRIEFED

The TV teacher must learn about the media and be proprietary briefed on its many possible uses, Flynn continued. He must learn to work under direction so that his lectures will be televised effectively, but he is still fully responsible for the preparation and presentation of studios.

Wright stated that this station will be used by journalism, speech, music, and Radio-TV students for their applied studies. If these plans are approved, he added, Radio-TV majors will be able to get their degrees in this field.

"Television is the most complex and effective medium of communication," said Flynn. "We are using the least expensive method open circuit TV, which costs one-third of what closed-circuit TV would cost. In view of the far-reaching implications, it is well worth the money."

Lost And Found Department Active

Within our midst is an establishment that always has "in stock" a wide variety of useful, attractive merchandise.

This concern has unfortunately received little or no promotion, and thus is relative unknown to many students.

The place referred to is the Lost and Found Department, located on the main floor of the Lonzmire Building. Here items found on campus are tagged, sorted, and stored until claimed by their owners.

The list of articles which eventually find their way to the lost and found includes wearing apparel of all kinds (especially raincoats and sweaters), coins, costume jewelry, umbrellas and books.

An effort is made to return every item to its owner, Miss Jane Adams, Director of Lonzmire, stresses that "labeling books and personal possessions will make it easier for us to return them to the proper persons."

Because of limited storage space things unclaimed after a year has elapsed are put into a rummage sale, and the proceeds used to buy something worthwhile for the school. The two television sets in the Lonzmire Building have been purchased from the "Lost and Found Fund." According to Miss Adams, proceeds from this year's sale will be saved toward a hi-fi set and f.m. radio.

Christian Science Organization: Student Conducted Meetings

By ANNETTE McINTOSH

A recent trip to the Christian Science Organization House at 535 W. College resulted in a stimulating visit with Miss Laura Lee, local faculty advisor, and Rosemary Yarr, president. Other officers are Sue Lovell, vice-president; Arielou Johnson, corresponding secretary; Phyllis Halsey, recording secretary; and Jill Jordan, treasurer. These leaders supervise house activities since a regular minister is not part of the Christian Science program.

This university organization, which was started on our campus in 1946 by interested students, met in classrooms until February three years ago when a local church member donated the present house.

ORGANIZATION FUNCTIONS

The Christian Science Organizations on college and university cities everywhere were provided for by the founder and leader of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy. In the Manual of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. Thus here and ALL all college houses as set up in the original provision, the program consists of three functions: readings, testimonies, and a yearly lecture, all free and open to the public.

At the student-conducted testimonial meetings, Thursday from 7-7:45 p.m., officers read alternately on one certain subject from the King James Version of the Bible and from the textbook, "Science and Health," which has a key to the scriptures by Mary B. Eddy.

These readings are followed by spontaneous testimonies of how those attending used Christian Science in their college life—healing, academic work, and human relations. Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need," as stated by Mary Baker Eddy, illustrates the group's belief that Christian Science, when rightly applied, can solve all life's problems.

YEARLY LECTURE

Once yearly a lecture is given on the subject of Christian Science. The speaker is a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist. These men and women give their entire time to Christian Science practice and lecturing, traveling all over the world. January 9 is the date for this year's lecture, to be held in Lonamire Auditorium.

All authorized Christian Science literature, including periodicals and "The Christian Science Monitor," may be read or borrowed from the organization's study room. This also provides a quiet spot to study the Daily Lesson from the Christian Science Quarterly. Everyone is welcome to find information and inspiration here. The hours are Monday-Saturday, 2-4 p.m.; Monday and Tuesday, 7-9 p.m.

A little-known feature of this particular religion is its lack of social functions. The Bible passage, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of Heaven and all these things will be added unto you," by Christian Scientists means to find God and all other things will follow. However, such projects as painting the meeting room, working on the backyard green house, and planning future improvements are a part of Florida State Christian Scientists' activities.

Men's Fashion Developments Ivy League Look Is Favored

By MARGARET McLEAN

Men have recently come into their fashion own.

No longer is it necessary for a roomful of the stronger sex to look like so many peas in a pod. Since male fashion has developed tremendously in the last several years, it has become somewhat of a vogue for men to maintain a semblance of individual.

There has been an innovation of a new range of colors—previously unheard of for men—new trends in cuts, i.e., no more double-breasted suits, more narrow look in jackets, and slacks. The sight of the sports jacket is relatively rare. New fabrics are more comfortable and easier to care for, lighter in weight, and entirely different in blend.

Accessories have changed a great deal, too. Dress shoes are usually some version of the old "loafer," but the standard loafer for casual wear has been replaced with the "desert boot" and is a once-before-popular saddle shoe.

Sweaters are no longer the expensive cashmere, but bulky in weight, 'crew neck line'," and pretty neutral in color, green, pointed collar shirt traditionally worn under a sweater.

Socks are "argyle" or modified patterns that blend in with the whole ensemble. Ties are worn only with suits and are usually "regimentally stripped." Bow ties are out of the picture, and the new tie is very narrow and shorter than before. Jewelry is highly conservative and is kept to a minimum.

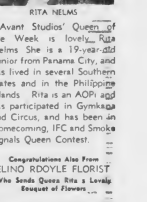
The word conservative is the common denominator for the current trend in men's clothes. The trend is referred to as "Ivy League" because it was first worn on the campus of the Ivy League, Harvard, Yale etc.

THE NATURAL LOOK

The "natural" look is another attribute of the Ivy League. Thank heavens, the sombre shoulder is a thing of the past. The broad shouldered gentleman undermined it all and not so impressive, and disappointed every pounding feminine heart in the place when he removed said jacket.

The new ideal among the male kingdom is tall, tapered, and clean-cut. He wears his "duck tails" of yesterday, close cropped. He no longer reeks of Vitalis and his key chain doesn't drag term from it. He is fastidious in his dress, and everything is neat and compatible. He wears Bermuda shorts in public and saves his levies for washing his M G the smells just faintly enough of a good after-shave lotion and his white bucks are beige.

IVY LEAGUE IDEAL



He doesn't have thousands of clothes, but those he does have fit him properly, are pressed, and he selects them carefully. Strange enough, he takes care of them too. He prides himself on his courtesy to others, and he has to endure his dinner companions with the world's most slovenly table etiquette.

He keeps up with the national and international scene and when a campus co-ed says hello, he clever lad, has an answer all ready for her.

Merely on virtue of being clad in "buckle - backs," "button-down," madras belt, and saddle shoes doesn't make a man, young man out of a boor. The smart young man is part of an atmosphere that he creates himself as effortlessly as breathing.

The average man between 18 and 25 is nothing like the doll just described. He is pretty rude, pretty careless, a general clod. It is, however, the other fellow who makes the impression on his peer group and usually comes out on top.

Kuder Preference Test Set Oct. 23

FSU students undecided about their majors or vocations may soon find help in a new service to be provided by the office of Coordinator of Counseling and Guidance.

It is the Kuder Preference Record, a test designed to review a student's interests and to relate these interests to a specific vocation.

"These tests are strictly to indicate interests, not abilities," said Vallia Mock, newly appointed vocational counselor. "They will help a student to clarify his own mind just what he wants to do, by telling him whether he is interested in artistic, mechanical, sales, or any other type work."

The tests, to be administered seven times throughout the school year, are followed by individual interviews when scores are interpreted and students shown their "interest patterns."

FIRST TEST OCT. 23

The first testing session is scheduled for Wednesday evening, October 23, at 7:30 in 303 Westcott. Anyone in doubt about a major or vocation is urged by Miss Mock to register on the bulletin board outside 208 Westcott.

What if a student took Kuder tests in high school? Should he consider sighing up again?

"If he is still in doubt, by all means!" Miss Mock emphasized. "A person's interests often change as he matures. His likes as a sophomore in high school may not even resemble his interests as a college sophomore."

APTITUDE TESTS

Once a student has discovered his interests, what next? A battery of aptitude tests designed to indicate his specific abilities are also available, according to Miss Mock. "But we don't insist upon his taking them, unless he desires to do so. Many students think that vocational guidance merely means a series of tests. Often we try to discourage just that, and emphasize individual counseling."

Miss Mock concluded that the Kuder tests, given free of charge, are an excellent opportunity for the student who needs help. As he would pay a large sum for the same tests given at a profession al counseling agency.

Four Freshmen Set Two Concerts

The Four Freshmen, sponsored by Alpha Tau Omega, will visit the campus for two concerts November 13.

Scheduled to appear here last year, the popular modern jazz quartet was unable to come because of a ruptured lip on the concert contract.

Under that arrangement, the Freshmen were enabled to cancel all appearances with any re ceived a week's TV guest. The same agreement is in effect this year, but it is not probable that the same thing will occur again, according to Ray Reinhardt, ATO representative who is in charge of the show.

Cost for either of the concerts will be about $1 per person, Reinhardt said. All proceeds will benefit Campus Chest.

Buffet Dinner Will Replace Soph-Senior Breakfast Oct. 22

A buffet dinner honoring the senior class will replace the annual sophomore-senior breakfast this year.

The event will be held October 22 at 6 p.m. in the Suwanee Room.

For the convenience of both student and faculty, the dinner is being held in conjunction with Investiture, the traditional capping ceremony for seniors "by brothers and sisters."

The capping symbolizing recognition of scholarship, is an event anticipated by both seniors and sophomores. Sophomores are encouraged to invite seniors and both classes are urged to attend both dinner and investiture even though some seniors may not have a cap and gown yet.

Investiture will be held at 8 p.m. in Westcott auditorium immediately following the dinner. The ceremony will include an organ processional lead by the executive council and heads of the departments, followed by the class of 1958's Mortar Board, Gold Key Garnet Key, ODK and the seniors.

Speaker for the occasion will be Dr. Martin Roth, head of the physical science department. Presi

Travelers Sought 'Adventurous Summer—They Got Their Wish

By SHARP MERRELL

When Jerry Dye and four other Florida State students made plans to spend "adventurous summer" in Alaska, none of them dreamed they'd find such things fighting fires "300 miles from nowhere" and mining gold on their itinerary.

Dye, Gerry Gordon, Phil Knight, Alan Howell and Tom Mann, all Sigma Chis, drove a rental car from Miami to Anchorage, where they'd been assured they could find construction work.

"We were flat-busted when we got there and couldn't find a job," Dye, a senior in radio and TV, recalled. "The gasoline from the 1,000 mile trip cost each of us ten $25—the rental company shared expenses with us—but when we got on the Alcan Highway in Alaska, prices were really unreasonable. Gas was 75 cents a gallon and a hamburger was about $1.50," he said.

FOUGHT FIRES

Since they were unable to find construction jobs, the five agreed to be three 200 miles into the uncharted interior of Alaska where forest fires had broken out. They spent about a week in the forest, working as many as 20 hours a day. "Once we were lost in the woods for two days without food," Dye recalled.

That experience was enough to convince them they could find a better job and they returned to Anchorage. Still unable to find work there, the five students established to Fairbanks, some 400 miles.

It was there they agreed to work for the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Co. "We were hired to a gold mining camp about 35 miles down a backwoods road from Fairbanks. Since it was mostly snow and ice during the hour and a half to get into town, we only went in twice in the ten weeks we were there," Dye said.

OUT OF THIS WORLD

"The worst part of it was that we were really out of contact with the world," he said. "We didn't see a newspaper, or hear a radio or see a movie."

After three weeks, Gordon and Howell flew back to the United States and Knight found a construction job in Fairbanks. "Tom and I stuck it out at the mine until Labor Day, living in camp for five weeks, and then in an abandoned trailer I found," Dye said.

When questioned about his work, Dye explained, "The ground was frozen and in order to reach the gold dust in a stream about 25 feet below the surface it had to be thawed. I ran a machine called a thawpoint which thawed the ground."

"Our entertainment was pretty different from what it is here," he recalled. "The things we enjoyed most were getting mail from home, taking a good shower and just talking. We were so tired we just didn't want to do anything but eat, sleep and work. We even grew beards since we didn't have anyone to impress," he added.

FINDS PIANO

"We were really glad when we could use one Eskimo word," he learned to "dingmachoo," meaning "depart by airplane."

The Summers really didn't like their expectations. It certainly was an adventure," he said.

'Repeat' Show On 36 Stations This Year

The best in music offered by Florida State University's School of Music will again be available this year to a nationwide public through the facilities of Repeat Performance.

Repeat Performance, according to an announcement today by Raymond D. Cheydleur, assistant director of the University Broadcasting Services, will make tape recordings of musical programs available to 28 Florida radio stations and stations in 11 other states, Guam and the Virgin Islands.

Half-hour recordings will carry music ranging from classical to contemporary. The 80-member Symphony Orchestra, the University Singers, and the 100-member Band will be among those heard.

The Women's Glee Club will offer its annual Christmas vesper services. Small musical groups—from a classical string quartet to a jazz combo—will make their appearances on Repeat Performance. The famous Horace Heidt concert-conductor-pianist Ernst von Dohnanyi, a professor at FSU, will be heard.

This is the seventh year that radio listeners throughout the United States have enjoyed music recorded by the University Broadcasting Services and presented by local stations.

In addition to the Florida listeners, Repeat Performance has audiences in Guam, the Virgin Islands, Colorado, Oregon, Wyoming, New Mexico, Nevada, North and South Carolina, Ohio, Virginia, and Georgia.

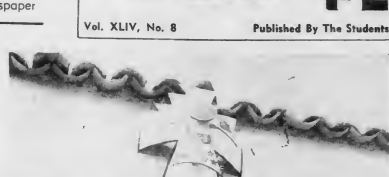
SIGMA CHIS Evicted (Story Below)

Sigs' House Slips, Slides, They Move

"Everybody's Got A Home But Me" might be the Sigma Chi fraternity's song this week.



The Greek group had to move out and baggage from their house located on West Pensacola Street the latter part of last week after it had been condemned as unsafe to live in.

The house is situated on a patch of Fuller's earth which causes it to slip and slide each time this locality has heavy rains. Some of the rooms have cracks as large as three inches in the walls.

Lloyd Anderson, fraternity official, said, "We are now staying at the university reservation on Lake Bradford until we can find housing on or near the campus which will provide sleeping quarters for our officers and active mother. We also want a place with a kitchen and space to eat together as a group."

As yet, definite plans for a new house have not been made. The national treasurer of the group will meet with university officials soon to discuss the possibility of buying land for a new fraternity house.

The Sigma Chi's own their present dwelling. They will have to sell the property this house occupies before progressing with plans for a new location.

THE BIG HOLDUP. Sigma Chi Fraternity members lend a helping hand to prevent immediate disaster at their former house. They were forced to move hurriedly when the building was declared unsafe. Shown, left to right, are Britt Landrum, Cal McGoogan, and Tom Willard.

Elections Body Requests Late Campaign Start

By JOHN RAY

Five candidates are seeking the Freshman Class presidency, John Harmon, secretary of elections, announced today. The primary will be conducted October 22, with the finals slated for October 29.

A total of printing of posters has resulted in a plea from the elections committee to postpone the beginning of the campaign until 5 p.m. tomorrow.

49 of the candidates, who were having their printing all done in one shop, have been delayed in receiving their materials by an airline strike.

The pictures for the posters had been sent to Jacksonville to be engraved for use and were to be returned by air express.

In order to be equitable to all concerned," Miss Harmon said, "We are asking all candidates to delay the opening of active campaigning until tomorrow at 5 p.m."

The posters may be placed on the special student election boards on campus, with a limit of one poster per board per side.

OFF-CAMPUS POSTERS

They may be posted on off-campus establishments, as long as the candidate has obtained the permission of the owner of the property.

Posters for the bulletin boards are limited to a size of 12 by 18 inches. There is no limit to the number of handbills that may be distributed in residence halls, unless imposed by the director of the dormitory.

Competition for the top political position in the class are Bruce Brown, Bill Jurney, Ev Marsh, Claude Pylant, and Tom Stephens.

Vice-presidential candidates are Jack Brand, Tom Burkhardt, Jim Freitag, Phil Howard, Peter Mecca, Warren Moody, Bud Prekop, Chuck Sylvania, Bill Tichenor, and Betty Jean Williams.

The race for class secretary promises to be the most heated of the elections with 16 persons entered. Candidates are Dana Bal, Martha Bedell, Laura Burton, Alison Cann, Kay Davis, Marsha Erwin, Elisa Garcia, DeeDee Goff, Joan Golson, Ann Perry, Kitty Wade, Judy Wallace, Carolyn Webb, Carol Sue Wehmeier, Jane Wells, and Sonnie Wright.

Jane Burka, Claire Brightwell, Sheila Cordell, Sandy Flynn, Jane Hamilton are Dana Bal, Martha Bedell, Laura Burton, Alison Cann, Kay Davis, Marsha Erwin, Elisa Garcia, DeeDee Goff, Joan Golson, Ann Perry, Kitty Wade, Judy Wallace, Carolyn Webb, Carol Sue Wehmeier, Jane Wells, and Sonnie Wright.

Jane Burka, Claire Brightwell, Sheila Cordell, Sandy Flynn, Jane Hamilton are candidates for treasurer.

Jerry Williamson Jr. and Donald Hall are running unopposed for the men student senate seats.

Fifteen women are competing for the two women senatorial seats. They are Diana Dale, Nora Nell Hardy, Linda Hooks, Margaret Sue Hooten, Leslie Lowell, Judy McMillan, Dot Mann, Peggy Pickels, Glenda Powers, Beth Tebault, Pat Thurmond, Mary Ann Vickery, Roberta Warren, Cherie Williams, and Barbara Youmans.

In addition to the Freshman class offices, 18 senatorial seats will be elected on the election.

Students will be required to show their ID cards when they vote and will be permitted to vote only for the senatorial candidates who are running in the precinct in which they reside. Eighteen precincts will participate in the election.

SENATE CANDIDATES

Senatorial candidates, according to the precinct in which they are running, are:

1: Nancy Bird, Edna Ray Black, Margie Georgacharis, Marty Hampton, Joyce Nuckolls, June Rhoades, Harriett Scarbrough, and Karen Shanor. 2: Ann Cone, Shirley Ann Inscho, Sonia Moreno, Sylvia Oneal, and Carolyn Sturtrunk.

3: Joy Cocchi, Nancy Jo Harbert, Mirth Kirby, Mary Lou Neade, Penny Seydel, Phyl Williamson, and Kay Wirth.

4: Sandra Beese, Andee Huntly, and Sheila Nichols.

5: Norma Brown, Jan Dawson, Winnie Mae Douillac, Mary Golda, Sally Hutsinpiller, Annette Mitchell, and Charlotte Stoker. 6: Rachel Archibold, Susan Knight, and Marianne Talley.

Frat, Sorority Skit Contests Slated Oct. 23

Preliminary contests for fraternity and sorority Pow-Wow skits will be held October 23 and 24.

Using the theme, "Mr. President: Here is Your University," Pow-Wow will feature the fraternity and sorority skits chosen in the preliminaries.

The two winners will also receive a trophy, which will remain in their possession until the next Pow-Wow.

Fraternity skit preliminaries will be held Oct. 23 in the amphitheater. Sorority preliminaries will be held Oct. 24 in Opperman auditorium. One winner will be chosen from each. Time will be announced later.

RULES FOR SKITS

Judging will be done by a faculty-staff committee, on the basis of originality in interpretation of the theme, clarity of presentation, cleverness of the execution of the theme, adaptability of the action to the physical surroundings in which it takes place (to be meaningful in a place as large as the stadium, action should be broad and pantomime with little dialogue; originality and appropriateness of the costumes. 3-5 minutes in length, clearness and quietness of the dialogue (this issue must be tape recorded in order to be transmitted over a public address system).

15 MINUTES LONG

Each skit is limited to 10 minutes, including setting the stage, presenting the skit, and clearing the stage. Costumes may be used with expenditures limited to $25. A list of costs will be presented to the judges at the time of the preliminary contest.

There is no limit as to the number of participants in any one skit.

Entry blanks and rules have been distributed to the fraternities and sororities. They must be turned in at the directors office in Longmire by 5 p.m. tomorrow.

Tarpon Swimmers Tap 17 Women

Tarpon Club, campus women's swimming organization, has tapped 17 "minnows" yesterday.

They were selected following tryouts held by the present members of the club on the basis of execution of swimming ability.

The new women were selected from a group of 39 participants. They are: Cissy Archibald, Sherry Brown, Abby Brownrigg, Holly Chapman, Maryellen Cox, Ann Ellery, Eleanore Friel, Hellen Greenlaw, Kathy Knapp, Linda Leeper, Jane Mims, Patsy Morley, Marsha Lee Newsmith, Jane Newton, Virginia Reynolds, Betsy Sharpe, and Jennie Wood.

There will be an informal party this evening in the pool room of Florida Hall honoring the new Tarpon members, according to Nat Hobbs, Secretary.

Seven Seniors, Two Juniors

Gold Key Honorary Adds Nine Members

Nine men, all of whom have been active in university affairs, were tapped by Gold Key in formal ceremonies Sunday.

The list included seven seniors and two juniors, and swells the ranks of active members in the organization to 14.

The new taps, as announced by Gold Key President Laird Anderson, are Phil Conner, Dick Hoeker, Bob Johnson, Pierre Lehmbeck, Don K. Lewis, Jim Moore, Bob Murray, Ron Schomburger and Joe Westhafer.

"The taps are chosen by the old members on unanimous vote only," said Anderson. "Each man chosen must be outstanding in his area of activity and meet set standards of scholarship and service."

ACTIVE TAPS

Clendinen, a junior from Fort Lauderdale, has been active in class and fraternity affairs. He was formerly the president of both his freshman and sophomore classes and is a fraternity officer.

Hoover, a senior from West Palm Beach is active in fraternity affairs and athletics. He was named to the NCAA All-American Baseball Team last year at shortstop.

Johnson is a senior from Tampa who has held positions of leadership in many affairs and student government. He is at present the secretary of organizations in the president's cabinet.

Lehmbeck, a senior from Jacksonville, has participated actively in campus publications and sports publicity. Next he is a former Flambeau sports editor and is responsible for both brochures and programs in the Sports Publicity Department.

FORMER SENATOR

Lewis, who is from Coral Gables, is active in fraternity affairs and student government. He is a former student senator and has participated in student-faculty committee work.

Moore, who is now attorney general of the student cabinet, has been a student senator and is active in religious affairs. He is a junior from Tallahassee.

Murray serves presently as men's vice-president of the student body, and has been a member of student senate.

FOOTBALL CAPTAIN

Schomburger, a senior from Pittsburgh, Pa., is captain of the football team, scholastic all-American end, and has served on the Student-Faculty Honor Committee, being active in the recent revision of the honor code. He is also a member of the "Who's Who?" selection committee.

Westhafer a senior from Cincinnati, Ohio, is a member of the varsity basketball squad, fraternity president and president of the Inter-Faith Council.

The men will be formally initiated after serving a period as neophytes. The formal initiation will be held at a special banquet later in the fall.

Students May Attend Banquet At H'coming

The annual homecoming banquet, held each year on the Friday of homecoming weekend, will be open to all students for the first time this year, according to spokesmen for Garnet and Gold Key, sponsoring organizations.

The banquet which will be held Friday, Oct. 25, at 5:15 p.m. in the Suwanee Room, will feature the presentation of honorary memberships in both organizations to outstanding persons in government and education.

Garnet Key annually presents an honorary membership to an outstanding woman on the FSU faculty.

Gold Key presents two honorary memberships, one to a member of the faculty. The other will be presented to an outstanding figure in Florida government.

Toastmistress for the banquet will be Joyce Weatherup, president of Garnet Key. Special guests will include distinguished alumni and friends of the university.

Tickets are now on sale in the Longmire Alumni office. Any student, alumnus, or friend of the university may purchase a ticket for $1.75.

Honorary membership in Garnet Key women's honorary, was presented last year to Dr. Venia Shores of the history department.

Gold Key honored Dr. Milton Carothers, dean of the graduate school, and State Representative Perry Bryant of Ocala.

Honorary memberships to be presented this year will be kept secret until the evening of the banquet.

The session exclusively for freshmen will be divided into four phases.

PUBLICATIONS TOPIC

Student publications will be the first topic with Laird Anderson, a member of the Board of Publications, and Dr. Reid Montgomery, publications advisor, in charge.

Religious organizations and activities will be taken up by Joe Westhafer and the Rev. Mr. Harcourt Waller, director of the Canterbury Fellowship.

Martha Grizzard, chairman of judiciary, and Arnold Gerwig, student body president, will preside over the third phase, which will comprise the various opportunities for leadership in student government.

Leadership and scholarship honoraries will be the subject of the fourth discussion, and is to be led by Jan Kaminis, student body vice president, who is also a member of both Garnet Key and Mortarboard.

UPPERCLASS GROUPS

The three discussion groups for upperclassmen will be led primarily by students.

One of the groups will view the place and functions of campus political parties in the overspunt and will be headed by all university picture, and will be headed by Jim McIntyre. Flambeau news be led by Art Moore, attorney editor, and Dr. William Tait of general of the student body, and the men's physical education Dr. Elston B. Roady, professor department.

of political science.

Barbara Burkhardt chief justice of honor court, and Dr. Dany Parker, assistant professor of political science, will be in charge of the discussion of the FSU honor system.

The final topic will be school and will be headed by Miss Sylvia Kearson, chairman of the Jonin committee of all students who are in any way interested in the topics to be discussed to be present for the entire program.

Described by the New Yorker as "A lovely and wonderful thing to see and hear," "Amahl and the Night Visitors," with Anna Kaskas and a New York cast, will be presented on the Westcott stage December 4 at 8:15 p.m.

Miss Kaskas, who will substitute for Rosemary Kuhlmann in the FSU presentation of the opera, appeared as the mother in the 1951 production of the Christmas program, which is annually televised over a national network.

Appearing with Miss Kaskas in "Amahl and the Night Visitors" will be nationally-known Andrew McKinley, David Aiken, and Leon Lishner.

TYRONE POWER STAR OF ARTIST SERIES

BY NANCY HANNAFORD

A Theater Guild production of George Bernard Shaw's "Back To Methuselah" starring Tyrone Power is only one of a number of brilliant performances planned for this year's Artist Series.

According to Director of Special Events Kathryn Vernon, the 1957-58 season, which also includes a Broadway production of "No Time For Sergeants," will be "the best in years."

Leading off the series will be a Grass Roots Opera Company presentation of Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus" (translation: "The Bat"), the story of a party-ing man who unknowingly purchases his own wife, who is also a bat.

One of the Waltz King's gayest operas, "Die Fledermaus" will be sung in English, in accordance with the Grass Roots Company's basic policy of "down to the people."

To be presented in Westcott Auditorium November 11 at 8:15 p.m., this opera will be free with an activity book, $2 without.

Foreign Students Offered Science Fellowships Abroad

The Ford Foundation is offering a limited number of fellowships for the academic year 1958-59 for graduate training in the social sciences abroad.

Fields of study in the social sciences include law and the humanities relating to Asia and the Near East, the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, or to Africa, north of the Sahara.

The fellowships are part of a broader Ford Foundation program to help meet the need in the United States for the knowledge and understanding of foreign areas, in otherwise foreign relations.

Grants will be made primarily on the basis of the quality and promise of the individual applicant. Previous training relating to the foreign area of interest is not required. Applications are invited from

SENIORS COMPETE

College seniors who will complete undergraduate work during the year, graduate students in social sciences or humanities who wish to combine training in their fields with foreign training; holders of doctorate degrees, and persons of promise or demonstrated ability in government, communications, or professions.

The Asian, Near Eastern, and African programs may be undertaken in the United States or abroad or both. Programs involving study abroad will be considered only if the applicant has already acquired the necessary language facility and a minimum knowledge of the culture and history of his area of interest.

WORK IN U. S. FIRST

College seniors and graduate students who are in the early stages of training will be encouraged to work in the United States before going abroad.

The fellowship carries a stipend sufficient for living expenses for the recipient and his dependents, and for tuition and transportation costs.

The results of the African Program competition will be announced around March 1, 1958; results of the Asian, Near Eastern, Soviet Union and East European programs competition, will be announced around March 15, 1958.

Applications must be submitted on or before November 1, 1957. Forms and further information may be obtained from The Secretary, The Ford Foundation, Foreign Area Training Fellowships, 477 Madison Ave., 15th Floor), New York 22, New York.

Miss Gymkana Contest Set Tomorrow

Preliminary judging for the Miss Gymkana contest will be held tomorrow night in the Florida gym, according to Dr. Shirley Price, Gymkana director.

The deadline for submitting entries has been extended until tomorrow afternoon by contest officials in order to give all girls desiring the opportunity to register.

The preliminary judging will be based on beauty, poise and charm. The finals will be judged on the basis of costume and appearance.

Directors for the contest are Linda Jean Hayden, Beverly Bennett and Jeanie Kitchens. All of the former contestants in the event.

Miss Gymkana and the court will preside over the annual Gymkana shows to be held Nov. 21-23 in the Florida Gym.

The show, this year entitled "Headlines," is presented each year by members of the gymkana group. Gymkana is made up of members of the varsity gymnastics squad, Seminole cheerleaders and other interested students.

Clown Tryouts Set Thursday

Campus clowns are invited to attend their efforts to FSU's Vivian Hall.

Tryouts for circus clowns will be held Thursday at 4 p.m. in the practice lot, according to Circus Coach Jack Haskins. Anyone interested is invited to try out.

Green, Or Not Too Green?

Long has the idea of constructing a parking lot on Landis Green been circulating around campus. Now the notion has been brought up again by Gerald Jones, director of service un.ts, and chief of all campus traffic headaches.

Jones said recently that students must voice their opinions on whether or not they approve of the idea of making the scenic Landis Green into an islanded parking lot.

Students seem to pair off into two camps when this particular subject is mentioned; there are those who want to utilize the space for parking and those who want to retain it as a campus beauty spot.

WE CAN see merit in both sides of the question, but if worse comes to worse in the congested, crowded parking situation, students will no doubt wake up one morning and stare upon a flat, paved, asphalt Landis "Green" filled with shiny Fords, Oldsmobiles, and Chevies.

If the Green is ever converted into a parking lot, we do not feel it will be necessarily ugly. Many municipal lots in large cities are the pride of the area and are beautified with shrubbery, grass and flowers. This could be done effectively with Landis Green and at the same time make use of the area, in a way that will soon be sorely needed.

THOSE STUDENTS in the negative camp object to any mention of such a solution to the growing traffic problem, but they cannot deny its practicability. These are the students who had better raise any objections against the project now before they encounter a bulldozer tearing up the ground one day, to make way for the surplus automobiles.

We are sure officials would like to hear some opinions from students on both sides of the controversial proposed "Project Landis Green," and we would like to offer the services of the Flambeau as a means of communication.

It should be interesting as well as beneficial to hear student opinion on the subject before any drastic changes are made.

Student Lounge Not For Study

The World Series and it. It turned the once somber student lounge in the Longmire Building into a gathering place for students with a few minutes to spare between classes.

THE TV SET, brought from lost and found sales, was recently installed in the lounge and students have been taking advantage of it, according to Longmire hostess, Miss Jane Adams. The set has frequently been turned on in the lounge, and now students are beginning to meet there to play records, watch TV, and participate in other parlor games.

The large and comfortable air-conditioned lounge is an ideal place to relax, meet friends, play cards and chess, or listen to music.

AS POINTED out by Miss Adams, the lounge is not intended to be a study hall; rather, it should be used solely for the enjoyment and entertainment of the students.

We hope the TV set has broken the ice, and students will not hesitate to enjoy the lounge for what it is provided.

Investiture Is Senior Kick-Off

Next Tuesday the Senior Class will meet together for the first official time and give a send off to senior activities for the year.

THE OCCASION is the traditional Senior Investiture service in which Sophomores will cap their fellow Seniors and treat them to a banquet prior to the event.

This year the banquet is planned for the occasion as a substitute to the usual Breakfast. It will be held before the capping ceremony and will feature light entertainment and dinner music.

Dr. Marian Irish, head of the political science department, will be the speaker at the Investiture and the university's academic deans and executive council will be present in academic regalia.

IN THE past, this service has been an inspirational event—one that brings a feeling of unity to the Senior Class. It is the first time Seniors wear their caps and gowns and so it also serves as a true initiation into the Senior class.

We hope Sophomores and Seniors both participate enthusiastically in this program next week.

Spirit At Game Was Incomparable

TO THE EDITOR:

No doubt about it. We know it, you know it and everyone else who attended the football game Saturday night knows it. The school spirit that was displayed in the student stands of Doak S. Campbell Stadium was magnificently incomparable.

We want to thank each and every student for the part he played in supporting our team, and more particularly, our university. We want to thank the cheerleaders. A tremendous amount of effort is being put forth by these groups to make Florida the largest and most unusual rally ever organized on the SIU campus.

Columnist Wrong About Merger

TO THE EDITOR:

Integration between Florida State and A and M universities "might mean some major changes." Incidents but that would be over and done with in a short period of time," states Florida columnist Arthur Albrecht Oct. 11.

If the merging of students, interests, and facilities that Albrecht participates in his column could take place as he imagines, then it would indeed be a bright day in the history of the South.

Experience, however, both of past incidents and those which are now occurring in the South, indicate that integration of FSU and A&M would not take place in a "some minor racial incidents" that would be ended with in a short period of time. If the present situation in Little Rock is any indication—and Little Rock is setting a precedent for future integration in the South —then integration of Tallahassee's two universities would increase incidents that would be anything BUT "minor" and "short."

"It's A Nice Trick But It Has No Significance"

Discuss Intelligent Questions

TO THE EDITOR

I am neither an expert nor an authority on education or literacy. I am, merely, a college student voicing an opinion. I hope each reader will evaluate, meditate on, and draw their own conclusions from this article.

ANY PIECE of literature, written by the hands of an individual, should be viewed objectively, evaluated critically, and passed on to others for what it is worth. They in turn should repeat the same process with all written media. The worth of a particular piece of material will vary among the majority of people who read it because of individual differences, abilities, and opinions. Some pieces with documental principles should be accepted as truth, an example of this type material is the Bible, without individual interpretations.

Many writers will tend to view as a biased account of certain issues. Newspapers and magazines are often accused of such bias. These are not to be condemned because individual free will and the freedom of speech provided for in the Bill of Rights permits them to express themselves freely. However, one need not and should not accept their manuscripts as total truth. Adam, the individual must read, study, and evaluate what the author has to say and arrive at his own conclusions. A biographical sketch of the author and by one putting himself in the author's place will prove valuable in evaluating any written work. The only restrictions which we may place on such writers, is that their literature conform to the standards which have been set down by our democratic society.

WHEN CAN these evaluators be termed "educated"? When is a person truly educated? I feel certain that the majority will agree that a person will only be broadly and truthfully in the realm of knowledge only if he is able to select or acquire a piece of printed media, look at it objectively selecting the good from the bad, that which is biased from that which is not, the factual from the fictitious, and the truth from that which is untrue. Only then will he be worthy of the term "educated."

In education classes, future instructors are often taught to "educate for what is real". In this education for reality they are urged to include a variety of experiences which will assist the child in wise choice, will expand his learning power through the use of his thinking mechanisms and his imagination, and will broaden his education outlook. From such instructions, we might conclude that one must read extensively. A large variable reading program will assist the individual in acquiring sufficient data so that he might be able to eliminate that which is negative or untrue and concentrate on those statistics which he feels secure in accepting as truths. This is a difficult task which gives reference to the Creator must be accepted without doubtful questions.

MOST OF the above thoughts have been told in class or written in other manuscripts at one time or another, perhaps not in the same fashion. I hope, however, that they will inspire students, faculty and other adults to discuss important issues intelligently and discard arguments and discussions of these which are irrelevant. We might also only recall in bitter hate, antagonism, and confusion.

Be open to alert, truthful, honest, and wise, I feel certain he will have a world of opportunity at his disposal.

School Spirit More Than Rah At Games

By JIM MCINTYRE

The cheerleaders jumped up and down, turned cartwheels, sounded sirens and in general had the crowd in a frenzied enthusiastic about their team.

AND MIKE Mc-Donough, the cheerleader, was the only one who could be heard shouted their approval as the lowly-ranked Seminoles went on to beat a nationally ranked North Carolina State team. It was a sight to see.

But before one begins to think that the cheerleading section is now a permanent fixture on the FSU scene, however, one has to think about some of the contributing factors in the demonstration.

FIRSTLY, any show of emotion on the Furman game was not only necessary, but also unnecessary. It was a contest between a good, but sluggish FSU team and a definitely outclassed opponent.

There was simply nothing to get excited about. The only students who seemed to have any spirit were those who were busy cheering for their fraternity.

In the N. C. State game, however, someone slipped the fraternities the word, and there was little, if any, of that type "spirit."

SECONDLY, the game with the Wolfpack was a clash of a superior team with a tremendously inspired outfit that finally found its stride. It was a battle of the giant and the giant killer, and with little help from any type of organized spirit.

The cheerleaders outdid themselves, but were quite often not even heard over the spontaneous din of mass participation.

WHEN IT PROVES, if it proves anything, that students do not cheer wholeheartedly unless they have something to cheer about. When they get emotionally worked up by the action on the field they seek other means of expressing themselves, and usually find a rather unique methods of doing so.

Witness the cool new bathrobes "Get 'Em" cheerleader Jim Julian, got that frantic ball.

ALL OF WHICH brings us to the real problem of creating at football games the major indication of school spirit or is it something more intangible?

If school spirit is to be measured only by cheering for the football games, then it has no place at all on the campus.

You can cheer just as loudly for a completely professional team with no school spirit at all. And you can probably hear louder cheering than that.

FOOTBALL GAMES are not the sole indicator of school spirit. They are not even the most important indicators of it.

The real germ of school spirit comes in one's attitude toward the campus as a whole, and not in his ability to get emotionally overwrought to the situation. A football game is exciting, but actually represents an almost completely detached segment of university life.

SCHOOL SPIRIT is more accurately measured in student election turnouts than in football turnouts. It is better judged by the critical interest of the students in the university as the seen more directly in the awareness of students to the totality of the college community.

Before we get too worked up over our football show of "school spirit," we had best remember where our true allegiance really lies.

Then we will be on the way to a genuine "school spirit."

Investigation Isn't What U.S. Needs

By L. A. HESTER

When "Auld Lang Syne" has been sung for 1957 and the year's new events are scanned for the funniest feature of the year surely "Symington Declassifies the Investigation" will take top honors not only for the year, but for the century as well.

WHEREAS the Pentagon may be worried about the military aspects of the launching of Sputnik, what worries me is the ludicrous publicity campaign that has resulted. The feeling that there has to be an explanation of government bungling is absurd. And what's even worse than government officials have added to the hysteria, so much so it deserves the description that it is apparently impossible for us to believe that anything in the world could have actually made a scientific discovery before we did.

THE LAUNCHING of the first man made earth satellite is indeed a major scientific accomplishment and should be recognized as such, but the feeling that there should be a reason for U. S. failure not to have been first is ludicrous. Apparently U. S. projects alone this time have been on the drafting boards and in the planning stages for a number of years and a scheduled launching date is only months away.

All this hardly adds up to a U. S. lag in the ballistic missile field. Indeed any explanation that has not been offered is that probably our heavy expenditures of time, money and time on war orientated missiles have temporarily slowed down work on less functional missile research projects. Hardly a newsreel goes by that a demonstration of some kind of defensive missile is not included.

ONE THING that has added materially to the furor is Interservice rivalry. Colonel Nickerson is being boomed as another Billy Mitchell and I don't doubt for a minute that if he parked his boats and left Panama this present station he would be greeted in New York by a ticker tape parade just as MacArthur was.

In Sunday's paper a headline reads, "Army Scientists take Satellite Defeat Hard." The Army instead of giving a forthright answer to these charges has only complicated matters by refusing to give any answer and at the same time placing a veil of secrecy on all ballistic matters.

LOOKING AT the thing realistically, Colonel Nickerson sat just what he deserved. The public is continually crying for efficiency in government; this is exactly what we got in ballistic missiles. The work was consolidated under one department, in this case it was logically the Air Force.

This prevents duplication of work, and gives maximum efficiency in expenditures, and coordinates and integrates an important field of government research. This is all the Pentagon need say, but instead they say nothing and continue to let rumors leak from whenever the press can find some malcontent willing to sound off.

We don't need an investigation. We can't need an explanation. We don't need hysteria, but we do need more diplomatic negotiations and more international cooperation and drives towards these goals we should constantly strive no matter how dark and futile the road sometimes seems.

The real germ of school spirit comes in one's attitude toward the campus as a whole, and not in his ability to get emotionally overwrought to the situation. A football game is exciting, but actually represents an almost completely detached segment of university life.

SCHOOL SPIRIT is more accurately measured in student election turnouts than in football turnouts. It is better judged by the critical interest of the students in the university as the seen more directly in the awareness of students to the totality of the college community.

Before we get too worked up over our football show of "school spirit," we had best remember where our true allegiance really lies.

Then we will be on the way to a genuine "school spirit."

Wolfpack Sneaks By Seminoles, 7-0

Larry Block

No Walk Over

I think somebody has been pulling our leg.

That team wearing the red jerseys Saturday night was supposed to be the number 13 team in the nation and except for one touchdown in the last few seconds of the first half would have had to settle for a tie.

You must have been reading their own press notices and found all they had to do was walk on the field and the game was theirs.

They found out they had another think coming.

Here was a team that humbled Maryland, defeated Clemson and dealt a key upset over arch-rival North Carolina, the recent victims of Miami.

But football games are not won with newspaper clippings and some how good you are and undoubtedly the Wolfpack is a better team Saturday night.

So all come out when the weekly Associated Press poll appears in today's newspapers throughout the nation

LIGHTNING STRIKES AGAIN

The old saying about lightning never striking the same place twice is sort of boomeranged for the Seminoles.

Last week in Villanova, a last minute pass in the first half was the key play in the Wildcats' victory over the Tribe, and history repeated itself just seven days later.

Eight seconds is just a twinkling of the eye, but to 11 fired-up Seminoles it must have seemed an eternity.

Dick Christy, one of the Wolfpack's touchdown twins, was going down the sidelines with a Seminole defender right with him.

Suddenly he left his shadow in the wake by putting on a last burst of speed, grabbed quarterback Ernie Driscoll's pass and was all over.

FIELD GOAL ATTEMPT

The Seminoles almost had three points as point after touchdown specialist John Sheppard attempted a field goal in the first quarter, but confusion reigned when Sheppard entered the game.

When play finally resumed Florida State was penalized five yards for delay of the game and Sheppard's kick was just to the left.

The Seminoles picked up those three points there's no telling what might have happened

Coach Bill Peterson might have lifted them to greater heights—they just might have rolled and added more points.

The loss of a key scoring play can do more to upset a team mentally and deot their morale just enough so as to keep the other team in the game.

Look at last year in the Georgia game when a touchdown was called back.

The first score had stood I think there would have been no doubt the Seminoles back from easily defeating the Bulldogs.

However, on the other hand, had Christy scored early in the first quarter and not fumbled on the FSU four yard line, that could have provided the spark to ignite the Wolfpack

But that's just second guessing.

The return to form of Bobby Renn was certainly a boon to the Seminole players and fans alike but one of regret and futility for the Carolina players

Renn's running but mainly his booming punts, were a constant thorn in the Wolfpack's side all night.

Every head coach in North Carolina must shake his head and if to say, "How did I ever let him get out of this state?"

The Seminoles played a fine game and N.C. State was damn lucky to win.

THAT'S ALL FOR NOW. Florida State halfback Bobby Renn is brought down by North Carolina State after picking up yardage in Saturday's game. Lou Wallace (79) tries to offer assistance

Greeks Open Hoop Season

The fraternity division of basketball opened Thursday October 10, with six games being played the opening night.

PKA held DTD 24-20 in a very tight game Chamberlain and Earl racked 15 points each for the winners and Charlet made 7 points for the losers

TC edged PKT 41-36 as Lewis and Herndon sacked 11 points each for the TC's and Hogan laid-up 16 points for PKT's.

PDT nosed out SPE in a very loss score game to the tune of 24-19. Ellis made 13 for the winners and Midgette loosed 6 in for the SPE's.

KS easily defeated TEP 30-18 Cook scored 12 points for KS and Shaw made 8 for TEP.

ATO WINS

ATO had no trouble with PKP and ended the tilt with a 24-18 tally Corso sacked 12 points for the ATO's and Tesser bagged 9 for PKP's

KA handed LC their defeat to the tune of 24-25, with Horne scoring 10 for the winners and Nedley added 12 for the losers

Friday night exploded with action. PIT easily racked their second win by crushing KS 44-29 With scored 10 for the winners and Elam made 12 for the losers.

SN handed SPE their second loss to the bitter tally of 40-14 McLean and Jones bagged 14 each for SN and Cameron managed 5 for the losers

ATO spelled defeat to TC at the tune of 34-23. Corso led his team for the second night with 14 tallies. Lewis added 10 points for the TC's.

PKP FALLS

SAE so nosed PKP into their second fall by a narrow margin of 37-31 Marsh easily racked up 16 for the winners and Dannelley pushed his team with 14 points

PKA cooled the highriding KA's to the tally of 30-24 Chamberlain led the PKA's again with 12 and Clendenin aided the KA team by making 8 points.

DTD squeezed by SC 22-18 in a game that is being protested by FC Elliott and Barry tallied 7 each for DTD and Donnaly racked up 8 for SC

STRAIGHT UP. Seminole right end Bob Nellums is caught straight up by an unidentified Wolfpack player after grabbing a pass from quarterback Jerry Henderson.

ACC Downs N. Texas State; Virginia Tech Beats Villanova

The Abilene Christian Wildcats, Florida State's next opponent, won their second game of the season last weekend as they beat North Texas State, 28-20.

The Wildcats have not lost a game yet but tied Chattanooga 6-6 in their opener.

The Seminole Homecoming foe, VPI, whipped Villanova, 21-14. Villanova beat FSU 20-7 in an early season game.

Virginia Tech just did put the game out of the fire with a last period score.

They got the ball on their own five and marched to the Villanova goal. The drive was highlighted by a 35 yard dash by halfback Ray England.

MIAMI UPSET

The Miami Hurricanes, who are having an up and down season, lost a touch one to North Carolina last Friday night in the Orange Bowl.

The 'Canes were losing 13-0 at the half but came back to tie up the game only to have North Carolina score once more.

Miami comes to Tallahassee on Nov. 9 to play the Seminoles

Mississippi Southern won its fourth game of the season as it rolled over Southeastern Louisiana 14-0. The Southerners, led by fullback Bo Dickinson, had long touchdown drives of 49 and 62 yards.

AUBURN WINS, 6-0

Auburn continued its win streak by edging a very stubborn Kentucky squad 6-0. Billy Atkins, fullback for the 9th ranked Tigers, scored their only touchdown early in the third quarter.

Auburn plays FSU here on Nov. 23.

Tampa University, led by halfback Don Herndon who scored four touchdowns, clobbered Presbyterian 39-14. It was the second win of the season for the Spartans.

FSU Cagers Start Practice

Florida State's varsity basketball team, under the tutelage of head coach Bud Kennedy, opens practice today for another gruelling schedule, which opens with Tennessee Tech here on December 2nd.

Hugh Durham, the flashy point-misker who paced the Seminoles as a sophomore, will be back again this year to help the Tribe immprove on their 9-17 record in 1957.

Durham holds the FSU record for most points scored in one game which is 42. He also ranks second in most points scored in one season at Florida State.

The scrappy guard was picked on the all-state and all-FIBC squads at the end of the year.

Jimmie Oler's freshman aspirants began practice today at 5:30. The frosh will seek to better a 1-7 record left by last year's squad.

Lone Touchdown Scored On Pass

By JOE GREENE

A last ditch despiration pass in the closing seconds of the first half nipped Florida State's hopes of pulling an upset as the Wolfpack of North Carolina State clipped Seminole feathers, 7-0.

With 16 seconds remaining in the first half, Ernie Dracoli faded back to his own 40 and flipped a pass to N. C. State halfback Dick Christy on the Seminole 20 and he scooted the remaining distance for the winning touchdown.

Following the opening kickoff N. C. State drove all the way to the FSU four yard line as the Wolfpack neared paydirt.

Halfback Christy tried to go through the left side of the FSU line but met with little success as he fumbled and FSU's Al Ulmer recovered.

From that point on, the outcome of the game was in doubt right up to the final gun, which saw N. C. run out the clock on its own 20 yard line.

Florida State's major threat came early in the second period when the Seminoles drove down to the Wolfpack 12 yard line and with a fourth and two situation, attempted a field goal that missed

The attempt was made from the 16 due to a five yard penalty against the tribe.

Florida State passing kept the Wolfpack in continuous trouble throughout the game.

On one occasion Bobby Renn kicked and the ball rolled dead on the N. C. State 3 yard line.

Two other times he quick kicked and the ball went out of bounds on the Wolfpack seven and rolled dead on the four.

FSU hit a little better than .500 in the passing department but had three interceptions N. C. State picked right on the 30 mark, but did more damage through the air than did FSU

The Wolfpack gained 117 yards and the winning touchdown via a pass.

Florida State fullback Eddie Johnson along with Ulmer and George Berry did a tremendous job defensively for the Seminoles according to scouts as did Nino Dubosz.

Offensively for the Seminoles, Renn who was back at his halfback position after playing quarterback at the start of the season, seemed to balance out the FSU backfield somewhat better than in previous games.

Jerry Henderson, who took over the quarterbacking chores for the Seminoles, and Joe Majors who aided him, turned in good performances keeping the N. C. State defenders on their toes.

From all appearences, FSU found its self in the N. C. State game but Florida State fans will have a chance to draw their own conclusions when the Tribe meets sueb teams as the University of Miami Hurricanes and the Auburn MABRY HEIGHTS SCHOOL. With Miss Marie Hinman conducting, a session of the new Mabry Heights nursery school and kindergarten is shown above. The school was organized for working mothers in Mabry Heights, and takes children from 2½-5½.

Marie Hinman Instructs

Mabry Nursery School Has 14 Children Now, New Teacher

BY MARTHA VEVERKA

Married students in the Mabry Heights housing development were finding it increasingly difficult to secure places for their children to stay while they attended classes at Florida State University.

So, they decided to do something about it.

Last June a group of the parents formed a co-operative nursery school which was to run during the summer school season on a trial basis. Under the proposed plan, each mother was to contribute one morning a week to assist the instructor.

The school proved so successful that it was decided to begin again in September.

ROOM FOR MORE

Now in the second month of operation, the nursery school has 14 children between the ages of 2½ and 5's attending daily with a capacity of 18 expected to be met soon.

Miss Marie Hinman, who holds a master's degree in child development, serves as teacher and instructs the children in various arts and crafts and unit programs.

According to Miss Hinman the cost is $12 per month for one child and $18 for two from the same family.

Stressing the fact that the school is run on a co-operative basis, Miss Hinman explained that each mother contributes her time one morning a week.

If she is unable to assist in the morning operation of the school itself, because of work or classes, she may pay an extra $2 or help at night in cleaning the building.

DAD HELPS

The fathers also help in the program by building equipment for the children in their various activities.

A parent and teacher guidance class is held once a month for the purpose of discussing any problems which might arise and going over the child's instruction program.

Instruction varies for the different age groups and a mother in the nursery each day will assist with the group in which her particular interest lies.

"When we find a child becoming uninterested in a project," said Miss Hinman, "we immediately move on to something new."

She added that instruction was usually based on unit projects. The current project is "Autumn" and the children find much pertaining to this in their daily walk.

ALL PROFIT

It is found that both parents and children are profiting by this type school. "It's amazing to notice the change which takes place in the child and parents," Miss Hinman said, pointing out that it is especially noticeable in the child.

"We've found that the child's vocabulary and imagination has greatly increased after a short time in the school," she added.

The school building is opened at 7:45 each morning and parents return for their children at 12:00 noon. Teaching hours are from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m.

"We support a very flexible program. Miss Hinman said, "which is more or less graded to the age level of the child. There's where we don't attempt to carry out a rigid schedule each day."

A typical daily schedule is as follows:

From 8:30 to 9:10 a.m. the children are engaged in supervised indoor play. This includes cutting, pasting and putting puzzles together.

Outdoor play is enjoyed from 9:10 until 9:30. The children combine their activities to a degree in back yard in which are placed see-saws, climbing equipment and toys.

According to Miss Hinman the cost is $12 per month for one child and $18 for two from the same family.

Hall Of Fame Pix Planned

Plans are underway for the establishment of a Hall of Fame to display pictures of those distinguished students selected for the Florida State University Hall of Fame each year, says Pat Finlay, Secretary of the Interior.

Lonsmire Building will probably house the collection. Plans call for a composite picture of each year's Hall of Fame.

The Hall of Fame appears in the Tally Ho, Florida State University's yearbook. It is composed of 10 persons who are selected by a committee made up of members of the junior class and the faculty staff.

Selection is on the basis of distinguished service to such areas as politics, organization, publications, scholarship, athletics, drama and the speech arts, music, and University functions.

The honor of being included in the group is one of the highest accorded to students on the University campus. Nominations are made by the organizations within the categories listed. The students finally selected are those who have made outstanding contributions to F.S.U.

back and relax to your favorite music. It's not hard to do that needed studying when you have something like Frank Sinatra's new album "Where Are You?" to set the mood. Honestly, this album which is backed up by the music of Gordon Jenkins is good in listening, because the arrangements are all new and exciting making it all the more interesting to listen to.

Another new release which caught my eye, as well as my pocketbook when I was in the Robin's Nest yesterday afternoon, was an album by the misty Miss Christy entitled "June, Jazz and Jazmine" which is arranged and backed up by the inimitable Pete Rusolo. June is the "When Sunny Gets Blue" with the warmth and feeling that the Christy style portrays.

By the way, start getting dates for Homecoming because Stan Kenton is going to be band for the dance. Also those who haven't heard the Tau Omega is bringing the Platters in FSU Wednesday November 13. That gives plenty of time to stop in at Robin's Nest, one half from the campus on Park to get a preview of what be hearing. If you're enough to go. "In a big company, a young man can get to tackle big jobs"

Yusuf A. Yoler joined General Electric's Missile and Ordnance Systems Department in 1955, after receiving his B. S. in E. E. from Roberts College, Istanbul, Turkey (1949), and his Ph. D. from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (1954).

"The thing that has impressed me most in my two years at General Electric," says 28-year-old Yusuf A. Yoler, manager of Aerodynamics Laboratory Investigations, "is the challenging opportunity open to young people here. My field is guided-missile research — the nation's top-priority defense job. Because of the scope of the company's research and development program, I've had the opportunity to work with technical experts in many related fields. And I've seen at first hand the responsibility which General Electric has given to younger men — proof to me that in a big company a young man can get to tackle big jobs."

The research being done by Dr. Yusuf A. Yoler is significant not only to himself, but to General Electric and the security of the nation as well. At present, the company is participating as a prime contractor on three of the four long-range ballistic missiles programed by the U. S. government. Yoler, who is playing an important role in this work, directed the design and development of the world's largest hypersonic shock tunnel — a device which will "test-fly" missile nose cones at speeds over 15,000 mph.

Progress in research and development — as well as in every other field of endeavor — depends on how well young minds meet the challenge of self-development. At General Electric there are more than 25,000 college graduates, each of whom is given the opportunity to develop to his fullest abilities. In this way, we believe, everybody benefits — the individual, the company, and the country.

School Officials Urge Halt To Chain Letter Circulation

By CHARLET POTTEVENT
Flambeau Editor

University administrative officials and student government officials said yesterday persons circulating chain letters on campus are violating Florida law and should stop such activity immediately.

The chain letters, one type of which promises the purchaser a return of $38,400 in defense bonds for the price of a $25 bond, violate chapter 849.091 of the Florida Statutes.

The law states that persons participating in chain letter plans, pyramid clubs or any organized device of that nature, are guilty of a felony and are subject to be punished by a fine of not less than $100, nor more than $500, or by imprisonment from one to ten years.

A warning was issued yesterday in a joint meeting of Florida Blue Key University deans and student government officials to discontinue their participation in chain letters immediately.

No action will be taken unless participation the illegal clubs does not cease at once, they said. Letters are being sent out by the offices of the dean of men and the dean of women to persons known to be involved.

Florida Asst. Attorney General George Owen told the Flambeau persons who continue to send these letters will be subject to criminal action, by the state attorney's office or the sheriff. This law has been in effect since 1949, he said.

CLUBS INVOLVED

The chain letters were brought to the attention of the administration by various student government leaders Barbara Burkhardt, chief justice of Honor Court, said fraternities and sororities and other campus organizations known to be involved have been informed that the letters are illegal. "We expect this to stop once the students learn it is against the law," she said.

Miss Burkhardt also said she learned that student government officers, sorority and fraternity members, residents of Senior Hall, and members of the faculty and staff were among those participating in the chain letters. "There was an unsuccessful attempt to include dorm and house counselors," she said.

She and students involved claimed to have obtained permission to circulate the letters frm reputable lawyers in town and from the U. S. Post Office. "The letters are not in violation of federal law as they are not sent through the U. S. mails."

SEVERAL TYPES

Several types of letters were brought to Miss Burkhardt's attention including letters costing $1, $5, and $37.50.

The most popular type works this way A person buys the chain letter for $37.50. This entitles him to duplicate it and sell each copy for the same price he paid for it.

For each copy of the letter the person sells he must buy a $25 government bond, and in the presence of the new purchaser must send the bond to the person on the top of the chain letter list.

The letter promises the buyer he will receive in a few days $38,400 in defense bonds which will "be worth $51,200 in ten years."

"There are no gimmicks attached to this campaign," the letter states "Give these lists to responsible people whom you know will follow the rules and who already know to whom they are going to give their list."

The letter also warns participants to carry on the letter by way of mouth or railway express.

"Those students already implicated will lose money, but we feel it a duty to inform them of the much stiffer penalties for participating in chain letter activities," student government officials said.

Students were also warned not to participate in football pools which are considered illegal in Florida.

STATE STATUTES 849.091

Chapter 849.091 of the Florida Statutes states:

"The organization of any chain letter club, pyramid club, or other group organized or brought together under any plan or device whereby fees or dues or anything of material value to be paid or given by members thereof are to be paid or given to any other member thereof, which plan or device includes any provision for the increase in such membership through a chain process of new members securing other new members and thereby advancing themselves in the group to a position where such members in turn receive fees, dues, or things of material value from other members, is hereby declared to be a lottery, and whoever shall participate in any such lottery by becoming a member of, or affiliating with any such group or organization or who shall solicit any person for membership or affiliation in any such group or organization shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100, nor more than $5000 or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not more than 5 years or be in the state penitentiary not less than one year nor more than 10 years.

Senate Plans Investigation Of Mecca And Sweet Shop

Student Senate voted Wednesday to conduct an investigation of food handling and preparation in the Sweet Shop and Mecca, campus eating establishments.

Sophomore Senator Diane Godin moved that the investigation be forthcoming. She said that many students have been complaining to her as a senator. Senate, after voting to conduct the investigation referred it to the Labor Services Committee.

A report will be made either at the next Senate meeting or the one following.

LIBRARY HOURS

The committee investigating the possibility of extending library hours on Sunday night recommended that the question be tabled until new senators are elected.

Bob Murray, men's vice-president reported that he had discussed extending the hours with head librarian Norman L. Kilpatrick, who stated that the main obstacle was a financial one.

According to Murray, the library appropriation has already been budgeted with no allowance made for extending hours.

"There might be a possibility of shifting the library time on Friday nights to Sundays," Murray said He recommended that since student opinion on this issue is not known it would be advantageous to discuss the extension after the new senators are sworn in.

A bill concerning the temporary waiving of the election statutes was introduced by Junior Senator Gerry Gordon and Women's Vice-President Polly Weaver and was passed by the Senate

Gordon moved to waive the statute article which reads as follows:

"Expense estimate may be accepted by the Secretary of Elections no later than 5 p.m. the Friday before the date of the race."

The purpose of this waiver was to allow candidates in the Homecoming election to file their expense sheets a day late.

According to Jan Kamins, presiding officer, the time that election posters were to go up was extended one day due to the fact that printers encountered difficulties in having them ready.

"Many students running for offices misinterpreted this extension, believing that the deadline for turning in expense sheets had also been extended," she explained.

SHERMAN ADAMS?

A bill to create a presidential assistant in the president's cabinet was referred to the Senate Elections and Appointments Committee The bill was introduced by Gordon, Murray and Atwater.

The passage of the bill would allow the president to appoint an assistant only if he felt it mandatory

The assistant would not take duties away from regular cabinet members, but would assist and advise the president on several matters of business. He would also be responsible for new projects arising during the course of his term of office

A bill to create a secretary of honor in the president's cabinet was also referred to the Elections and Appointment Committee for further study. The bill was introduced by Gordon, Murray and Atwater.

The passage of the bill would create a new cabinet position The secretary of honor would serve as chairman of the Honor Committee, promote an understanding of the honor pledge and in general promote the honor system at FSU.

The holder of this position has formerly been an undersecretary in student government.

Green Will Serve On Alamos Staff

Dr. Dyke E. S. Green, acting head of the physics department at Florida State University, has been granted a leave of absence to do research and serve on the staff of the Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico.

He left Sunday and will be at the laboratory until August, 1958. Dr. Green will work while at the laboratory with two nuclear accelerators, a horizontally operated one with the 10 million electron volt tandem Van de Graaff accelerator which has been ordered from FSU.

The physicist, who is scientific director of the tandem accelerator program here, will serve as visiting staff member in the theoretical division of the New Mexico installation.

While there he will continue his research into the nucleus of the atom and will participate in an extensive team effort involving the use of several of the fastest electronic brains now in existence.

At FSU since August, 1953, Dr. Green has participated in formulating plans for FSU's nuclear physics program which was implemented by the 1957 Legislature, and served as a scientific consultant in developing the state nuclear development program and has served as a member of the Southern Regional Accelerator Committee.

The New Mexico laboratory, operated by the University of California for the Atomic Energy Commission, developed the A-bomb and the H-bomb.

1st Pep Dance Slated Tonight In Men's Gym

"Go, Seminoles! Beat Abilene!" will shake the rafters of the Men's Gym tonight from 9 to 12 at Florida State University's first Pep Dance.

With an emphasis on building enthusiasm for tomorrow night's game with Abilene Christian College, the pep dance will be sponsored by the cheerleaders, Kappa Kappa Psi, and Tau Beta Sigma, national band honoraries. Music by The Commodores and The Hurb Hats will be featured.

"We're inviting everyone to attend, not only because it will provide an entertaining evening, but mainly because we hope to promote more school spirit at the game," said Jim Julian, chairman of the dance planning committee and head cheerleader.

President Robert M. Strozier and Coach Tom Nugent will speak briefly during the rally, and the football team, coaches, and cheerleaders will be on hand.

Intermission will be highlighted by the Flying Semnoles, Ted Daniels and "Bo" Carroll on Daisy Zech; Chick Cicio, gymnast who holds the title of "Mr. Florida"; and vocalist Carol White.

Radio Station WTNT will broadcast the rally from Bill Shuler, announcer for all FSU games, on hand to talk to the crowd.

Phillip Gallagher, band president of Tau Beta Sigma, acted as assistant chairman to the planning committee

Cost of admission is 25 cents.

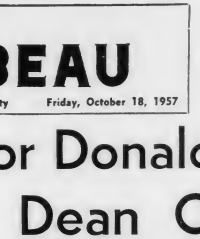
Chiefs Head Band Parade

Led off by Florida State University's famous marching chiefs, some 24 visiting high school bands will parade in downtown Tallahassee tomorrow afternoon offering the city a colorful preview of the big football game to be set next week's Homecoming.

Saturday night all the football game in Campbell Stadium, the high school bands will join the band in a gigantic salute to Irving Berlin

All part of FSU's seventh annual band day celebration, the music, marching and showmanship will start with a parade which will move south on Adams Street from Pensacola at the Capitol entrance at 4 p.m.



Down Adams to Madison, the bands will pass the reviewing stand and will proceed south aeain, on Monroe Street to Pensacola

The principal parade will be reserved for the football game. Starting at 1:30 p.m. game-attending public at 7 45 p.m. will see a show by the Marching Chiefs at half time.

The show, "Bands Through the Ages," will feature "Quo Vadis" by the Rotary Ronks band; "Beer Barrel Polka" as an Irish band; "Dixie" by Dixie Sainls Go Marching In" as New Orleans dixieland; "The Corsair" by Marching from Bach to Stravinski; and the finale, "Stars and Bands," with "El Capitan" and "Stars and Stripes Forever."

At half time the high school bands will put on their living Berlin show. They will spell out M-U-S-I-C while joining in "Say It With Music."

A big Christmas tree surrounded by two bells, a star and a wreath will be formed as they play "White Christmas." The final formation will be two huge Xmas trees with the band playing antiphonally "God Bless America."

Seven Honor Cases Reported For Spring

Seven cases, including lying, cheating and plagiarism violations, were handled in the closing days of the Spring semester by the Student Honor Court, according to Barbara Burkhardt, chief Justice.

Two of the cases were voluntary confessions, two were turned in by a professor, and the other three reported by members of the class involved.

The two voluntary confessed cases concerned intentionally receiving persons in authority. The formal charge was listed as "Lying to Persons in Authority."

The two students were found guilty and given honor court probation for the remainder of the semester.

ADMIT GUILT

On May 25, two students were turned in to the court by other members of their class for cheating on final exams. Under questioning, they admitted their guilt to the chief Justice.

They were placed on probation for one calendar year and given an "F" in the course in question.

Another student, turned in for cheating in the same course, was found guilty upon admission and was recommended for immediate suspension to the university administration It was the second honor violation for the student.

PLAGIARISM CHARGE

The plagiarism charges were turned in by a professor with evidence of copying exact information too for a term paper for reference books and passing it as original work.

The students were given "F's in the course and reported to the honor court probation for a period of one semester.

Honor court probation, under the recent constitutional revision, carries with it exclusion from holding office, receiving scholarships or representing the university in any way during the period of probation.

All honor court action is subject to approval by the Faculty Review Committee and the president of the university.

Second Film Club Offering Tonight

The FSU Film Club will present the second offering of the season, a Japanese film entitled "The Phantom Horse," Tuesday.

Two screenings will be given, at 6:30 and 8:40 p.m., in the University School auditorium.

This picture strays from the pattern of period drama-costuming travesties which are familiar to U.S. audiences. It is the story of a modern-day rural life and a boy's love of a horse.

The plot is a "stock item"—the training and racing of a horse to redeem the family fortune. However, it is done with freshness and simplicity, making the English sub-titles almost unnecessary.

The locale is a seaside farm on Japan a northernmost island, and the picture photography emphasizes the beauty of the region.

Former PE Prof Came Here In 1936

Dr. Donald Loucks, associate professor of physical education, has been named to succeed Dr. Sam Neel as the Florida State University dean of men.

The appointment came as a culmination of a week's review of possible personnel by Dr. R. R. Oglesby, dean of student welfare. It was affirmed by the university executive council earlier this week.

The naming of Loucks to the position came as an unexpected move, but is completely in line with Dr. Robert M. Strozier's policy of "A university growing by its own deans."

Stromer was quoted, while serving as dean of students at the University of Chicago, as believing that "A dean should have a thorough knowledge of the students and the campus. He should, in fact, be a product of that university."

Loucks attended the FSCW Demonstration School, the University of Florida and has been on the faculty at FSU since 1936. He is a former coach of the University School, having served in that capacity for two years.

FEELS HONORED

In response to his appointment, Loucks said "I feel very honored and flattered Certainly no one has a greater love for school than I."

"I've been associated with it in one way or another since 1930 when I first entered the Demonstration School," he said

"I do not propose to follow in the footsteps of Sam Neel," he continued. "I expect to bring with me my own pair of shoes. With Sam I'll form a deep sense of his worth and dignity of every student and a firm belief in the democratic processes of Florida State University."

Dr. Loucks first joined the faculty at FSCW as an instructor in physical education in 1936 He was at that time one of the two unmarried men on campus

He served as coach of the University Demonstration School athletic teams for six years, joining the faculty at the United States Military Academy in 1942 as an instructor in mathematics and physical education and tennis coach.

He remained in that position until 1946, when he became physical education director at Peekskill Military Academy, returning to FSU as basketball coach in 1947.

His 1947 basketball team was the first FSU varsity squad to coach any victory in intercollegiate competition defeating Spring Hill College of Mobile, Alabama in their opening game.

He married the former Mary Etta Thistlethwait in 1938 She is a graduate of Florida and a former Latin and Greek instructor at Tallahassee High, retiring at the time of their marriage.

Dr. Loucks, in a prepared statement released when he was the Flambeau, said about his new appointment, "One must necessarily accept the task of trying to replace a man like Dr. Sam Neel with mixed emotions."

"On one hand," he said, "one can enter into the office of dean of men with a feeling of inadequacy that he will find a similarly distinguished record already doing the job well."

"On the other hand," he continued, "to be asked to follow Dr. Neel is a stimulating challenge to a man of any calibre I hope to be equal to that challenge"

Dr. Loucks is now meeting with Dr. Neel in order to become oriented in the position before the departure of the present dean. He will assume his duties on Nov 1.

Senior Investiture Tuesday At 8

The Senior Investiture, an annual and traditional ceremony, is to be held Tuesday at 8 p. m. in Westcott Auditorium

The affair is the official recognition of the seniors by the University.

Prior to the Investiture the Sophomore-Senior Dinner will be served in the Suwannee Room. Sophomores will invite a freshman who is a close friend and escort him to the dinner at 6 p.m. The sophomores will be required to pay for their dinners, and also the dinners of the seniors.

After the dinner, the seniors will be escorted to the auditorium for the Investiture and the Processional.

The chief speaker of the ceremonies will be Dr. Marian D. Irish, President and Mrs. Robert M Strozier, the dean of students the dean of men, and the dean of women will be the honored guests.

It is the first time that the seniors have had the opportunity to invite their family and friends to the Investiture.

Stop Circulating Chain Letters

Students who are participating in the campus chain letter craze should immediately heed the warnings of University deans and student leaders to halt such activities.

THE PENALTY could be severe—fines up to $5,000 and-or imprisonment from one to ten years under Florida laws. But students or other persons involved in circulating the campus letters are being given a chance to stop these activities before state authorities might take action.

It is a shame those persons involved were not aware of the illegal nature of the chain letters. Many have invested up to $25 or more hoping to get a return of $38,400 from the letters, but now they will receive nothing but a loss of their original investment.

THE LETTERS were bought by people who believed it to be a "sure fire" deal. The most popular type of chain letter cost the buyer $37.50. Although he is entitled to sell two copies of the letter for the same amount, he must purchase a $25 defense bond to send to the person at the top of the letter he bought.

Letters of this type are correctly tagged as "lotteries" because the buyer is taking a gamble that the letter will continue to circulate and he will eventually receive a greatly multiplied sum first invested.

FUTURE victims of the letter clubs and participants should be grateful to student government leaders who investigated the legality of the chain letters. Persons involved stand to lose their standing in the university as well as being subject to criminal action by the state.

The number of students involved at this point is small; many more could have suffered financial losses had it not been stopped this soon.

We hope students become well informed of the consequences of participating in the chain letter club and take seriously the warning issued at yesterday's joint meeting between university deans and student government leaders.

Loucks Wise Choice For Dean

The appointment of Dr. Donald Loucks as new dean of men came as a surprise to many.

IT WAS NOT, however, a spot appointment made with the idea of filling a vacancy alone. He was carefully screened by administrative officials, Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby in particular.

The refusal on the part of Dean James Carr to accept the position seemed regrettable at first, since it seemed that the administration would go outside the university for a new dean.

THE APPOINTMENT of Dr. Loucks, however, brought the picture into clear and bright focus once more. Dr. Loucks is probably the only man in the university who has been connected with it since his high school days at the dem school.

He is a splendid organizer, a tremendous personality and possesses a fine sense of humor.

His work on the Homecoming Committee has been exemplary. He has coordinated the multifarious sub-committees with an administrative ability that belongs to qualified guidance personnel only.

HE HAS BEEN director of the professional curriculum in physical education and in that capacity has been primarily concerned with counseling.

He is a man of experience. He is a product of this university and knows it well. The administration has chosen wisely.

Senate Should Give Issues More Thought

"We owe it to the students to be aware of their needs," said Student Body Vice-President Jan Kaminis at the opening session of the Student Senate, but already the Senate members have apparently forgotten this advice.

LAST WEEK the Senate tabled a bill which would create a senatorial seat to represent the large number of veterans on campus after only a brief discussion.

The bill probably did not have strong support from the majority of the members of the Senate, who are not veterans, but it seems that anything pertaining to a group of students which numbers 1,235 would be considered worthy of a Senate investigation before being tabled.

THE BILL will undoubtedly be brought up again before the Spring elections and the Senate may find time to investigate the need of such a seat. Then they will be wiser and more capable of acting on the proposal.

The Senate should exercise more caution with future issues, giving them careful thought and not hasty action.

Who's Georgie? Staff In Dark Too

By ART ALBRECHT

It was bound to happen. It did in 1953 and again in 1955. One starts hearing inquiring voices both on and off campus asking "I wondered who writes it?" A few whisper confidentially "I happen to know—but keep it quiet—that he's a faculty member or he's a member of a certain fraternity or a student senator from West Hall." Others simply ask "Who the hell is Georgie Seminole?"

Georgie III, as most of you regular readers know, is a Flambeau columnist. Traditionally the various writers who have penned these heap big editorial gems have written under the guise of anonymity that the name, Georgie, offers.

Supposedly he represents the voice of FSU. Supposedly! In the past his weekly letters to Dear Mama Seminole have occasionally helped to expose irregularities and campus corruption. Quite possibly he'll do the same this year.

Now not only is Georgie's identity kept a secret from you the readers, but the Flambeau staff as well is kept in the dark.

ALL WE can do is read between the lines, analyze and hope to discover enough about him to deductively figure out his identity. What do we know?

His first column this year indicated that he drives an auto with a black sticker. This eliminates the blues and the garnets and golds. He's disgruntled because he can never find a parking place. This fails to eliminate any campus driver.

He doesn't like the food nor the prices at the Seminole Club. Who does? But now we get to some concrete, incriminating evidence as to his identity. He's a blackfeet lover!

IF YOU'VE been on this campus long enough, it becomes obvious that this eliminates all true blue Southerners and intelligent Yankees — at least that's what the true blue Southerners say. On the other hand there are some up there as well as down here who, as Georgie says, "don't mind asking them to visit friendly village for pow-wow and friendly stay."

Let's add it up. He's a blackfeet loving, Seminole Club hating, disgruntled automobile driver with a black sticker. Who the hell is Georgie Seminole? You got me.

Bible Should Also Be Interpreted

TO THE EDITOR:

In rebuttal to the letter printed in the Florida Flambeau (Oct. 15). I accept the invitation to evaluate, meditate, and draw my own conclusions on that letter.

I AM IN complete agreement with the anonymous student who states that "any piece of literature" should be taken with a grain of salt.

But then be says "Some pieces with documental (principals?) should be accepted as truth, an example of this type material is the Bible, without individual interpretations."

Why should the Bible be accepted without reservations? The men who wrote the Bible were just as human and prone to mistakes as you or I. If the Bible was introduced as evidence in a case in court, it would be thrown out as being merely hearsay.

If WE accept the Bible as basic truth, why should we not accept the Koran as the divine truth? There as just as many Moslems—if not more—as Christians.

If we accept the Bible "without individual interpretations," what or whose interpretation must we accept? Might not he (the interpreter) be wrong too?

And the Bible does have to be interpreted. No one can understand it otherwise. I suggest the Bible is like an impressionistic painting. No one can understand it except the author or painter.

MY CREDO IS question EVERYTHING, analyze EVERYTHING, even the sacred cow of Christianity, the Bible, and then draw your own conclusions.

If you are unable to draw a worthwhile conclusion, as in the case of the Bible because of lack of evidence, than the material is worthless as the Bible is worthless.

MY SUGGESTION is to accept the Bible as an actuality but don't read it.

The only faith you need is faith in yourself.

Every man and woman should find his own god in his own way. If it is the wrong god, then it will fail him—as all gods will in the end.

There is only one god and one faith — not Jesus Christ, Allah, Buddha, or Zeus but YOURSELF. "Know thyself."

Coeds Fret: No Homecoming Dates

BOYS, BOYS!

Get on the ball! I was amazed last year at the number of boys and girls that didn't have a date for Homecoming. Whose fault is this terrible catastrophe? Certainly the girls can't ask the boys for dates.

If FSU has a bunch of bashful males, what are we going to do with them? Some of us have tried all the tricks we know and they didn't budge. Homecoming is just a week off, so come on boys, make like a firecracker, and sweep some of these cute coeds off their feet.

Naturally, we can't sign our names, but we consider ourselves the "Two Bewildered Coeds," and since this is time for school spirit, we also think we need date spirit.

Thank you for your undivided attention.

Writer Gets DGs' Wrong Number

TO THE EDITOR

The Delta Gammas are very popular girls. They would undoubtedly prefer that their callers use the Delta Gamma telephone number but the wrong number has been printed on a list of general circulation. My family has already answered more than a hundred misdirected calls. I'm sure the Delta Gammas' hundreds of friends would appreciate your printing their correct phone number—to say nothing of the people who are disturbed even late at night by those "wrong numbers".

Sincerely
ALBERT LEDUE

(Editor's note: The Delta Gammas' correct number is 2-8269, not 2-8629, as listed in the faculty-staff directory.)

FSU-A&M Merger Would Sacrifice Our Way Of Life

TO THE EDITOR:

My—but Mr. Albrecht in his Flambeau article of Oct. 11 sure paints a bright picture for the future. He says he is really a segregationist but goes on to give us all of the advantages of a merger with A&M.

SURE, I know the fraternities and sororities on campus would just love to have some colored houses on campus. We might even get up a few parties together. Meet friends and influence people you know.

Why, with all of A & M we would be almost as large as Gainesville, imagine that! What a way to gain bulk.

NOT ONLY that, no sir, we haven't got to the goodies yet, we would get more books for the library. I am afraid we don't use all we have now.

As for the football team angle—I am sure black would go with garnet and gold something swell. Anything for progress you know. Look to the future, take a broad view, oh hell!

BUT THIS is not all! The music school would get a new organ, imagine that! And all we have to sacrifice is our way of life, our traditions and our ideals.

To bad this system isn't already in effect, it would add color to the homecoming dance this year.

And last of all—he seems to have overlooked the fact that if A&M was part of our campus you would have to have a helicopter system set up to get to class.

Parmelee's Recital Ideal Performance

By LOWELL RODDENBERRY

Last Monday evening's piano recital by doctoral cand[...] Paul Parmelee was an occasion long to be remembered by [...] fortunate and wise enough to attend. Unfortunately, it was[...] much publicized and the attendance was hardly overwhelmin[...]

This review is quite frankly a eulogy in praise of Mr. Parmelee. All we really need do is describe each composition performed, what makes for an ideal performance and then say that Mr. Parmelee did just that.

HIS OPENER, the "Goldberg" Variations are incredible not only for their great length but for the artistic value that suffuses every note. It follows that the reading that succeeds in being convincing and that sustains the listener's attention has the self-same attribute.

Mr Parmelee negotiated its assorted and sundry problems with such ease that the unwary might underestimate the difficulties involved. Actually the work, as any keyboard composition of J. S. Bach, is a transcription and its transference from the harpsichord to the piano creates stylistic and technical hazards that might well daunt any but the most accomplished of musicians.

LIKE A chaconne of monumental proportions, all thirty variations are based on a repeated harmonic formula. Each variation contains independent thematic material which is accordingly governed and regulated by the implied harmony. All of which simply means that the writing of these variations could only have been composed by a consummate master.

The audience, we might add, turned in a fine performance as well. They responded with thoroughly rapt attention and, like this reviewer, seemed loath to have the variations end. CLOTHES MAKE THE BMOC

Last week we passed along some fashion hints for coeds. Today we will do the same for college men.

The most important thing to remember, gentlemen, is to dress with verve, with dash, with inventiveness. Don't be imprisoned by the traditional conservatism of men's clothing. Brighten up your appearance with a single earring, or a cavalry saber, or a gold derby.

Guard Against Gaudiness

However, guard against gaudiness. If, for instance, you are wearing a gold derby, do not also wear a cavalry saber. This is too much. Wear a dagger instead, or, for formal occasions, a bowie knife.

Let us turn now to a persistent rumor that a garment called the "suit" is on the verge of making a comeback. Some of you older students may remember this "suit." It was an ensemble consisting of a jacket and trousers, both of which—this'll kill you—both of which were made out of the same material!

The last "suit" ever seen on an American campus was in 1941—and I ought to know because I was wearing it. I was an undergraduate then, and in love—hopelessly in love with a beauteous statistics major named Harry Sigafoos. (She is one of the two girls I have ever known named Harry. The other one is her sister.)

I loved Harry madly, though her expensive tastes were the ruin of me. Bit by bit I sold off my belongings to pursue this costly courtship—first my books, then my clothes, until finally I was left with nothing to wear but a "suit". One night I came calling for her in this garment and she, of course, slashed me across the face with a riding crop and sent me from her door.

I slunk home and lit a Marlboro and sat down to think. I always light a Marlboro when I sit down to think, for their good mild flavor is a great aid to cerebration. I always light a Marlboro when I don't sit down to think, too, because Marlboro is my favorite cigarette, and I know it will be yours, too, once you make the acquaintance of that filter, that flavor, that fliptop box. As the man says, you get a lot to like with a Marlboro.

Well, sirs, smoking and thinking thus, my eye happened to fall on an ad in a campus newspaper which said: "WIN A COMPLETE WARDROBE! Touhy's Toggery, the campus's leading men's store, announces a contest to pick the best-dressed man on campus. The winner will receive absolutely free a complete new wardrobe!"

Struck by a sudden inspiration, I took pen in hand and wrote a letter to Mr. Touhy of Touhy's Toggery:

"Sir: I see by the paper that you are giving a complete new wardrobe to the best-dressed man on campus. What a ridiculous idea!

"Obviously, to be the best-dressed man on campus, you must first have a lot of clothes, and if you have a lot of clothes, what do you need with another wardrobe?

"Touhy's Toggery should give a new wardrobe to the worst-dressed man on campus. Me, for instance. I am an eyesore. There isn't a crow in town that will come near me. Three times this month the Salvation Army salvage truck has picked me up. Esquire has canceled my subscription.

"I submit that a vote for me is a vote for reason, a vote for equity, a vote for the American way!"

With a flourish I signed the letter and sent it off, somehow feeling certain that very soon I would be wearing a complete new wardrobe.

And I was right—because two weeks later I was drafted.

Tribe Hosts Unbeaten Wildcats

Alan Whitmarsh — The Florida Flambeau — Friday, October 18, 1957 — 3

Gridiron Prestige Takes Big Steps

Florida State's rising gridiron hopefuls have made several big steps in prestige during the past couple years. Saturday night's battle with North Carolina State was certainly another of them.

That 3-0 loss to Georgia the 14-14 tie with Wake Forest, and frantic fourth quarter against Miami and the 13-7 loss to Auburn were last year's biggest prestige builders for the Seminoles.

For those observers who watched the games aforementioned quickly realized that these were no longer "little" Seminoles. They were coming of age and rapidly.

For instance, a touchdown called back cost them a 7-3 win over a Georgia team favored by 14-20 points.

A field goal attempt which failed in the fourth period cost them a 17-16 win over Wake Forest, also favored.

And though they scored only one in the fourth period against Miami, another was called back and they were knocking on the door when the game ended.

LUKE PLAY

The Auburn story is similar—a fluke play in which Billy Atkins ran into his own man with an open field in front of him possibly cost the Tribe a winning touchdown.

Against North Carolina State, the Seminoles played undoubtedly one of the finest games I've seen them play in my four years here.

They lost—on the field. They gained in national prestige. Tomorrow night is a different situation entirely.

The Seminoles have little or nothing to gain by beating the Christian—except their second victory of the season.

Should they lose, all of the favorable publicity gained last Saturday night could well vanish.

LOOKING FORWARD?

The fear here is that the boys are looking forward to the homecoming clash with Virginia Tech next Saturday, and may thereby be "outgrown" Christian.

No Texas team is a squad to be taken lightly.

The Seminoles found this out, much to their sorrow, two years running in 1953 and 1954 when the Wildcats beat them, 20-0 and 13-0.

Advance notices said that Abilene expected one of its best teams in several years. A 2-0-1 mark seems to bear out their advance publicity thus far.

To Tom Nugent goes the unenviable task of getting his team ready for the second week in a row, and for that matter for the remainder of the season.

NO SOFT TOUCHES

There are no soft touches in a group including Abilene YPI, Miss. Mississippi Southern, Auburn and Tampa. Yes. Tampa. The Spartans have been lashing for Seminole blood for some time.

I've said previously I thought this team had the stuff to make a winning campaign out of this slate.

I still think so, and against N. C. State they showed it.

The luck of the Gods went the other way, though, and they didn't foment themselves with a moral victory.

In every one of the four games I mentioned previously from last year, the luck also went the other way.

The odds are the Seminoles are about due their share.

HOMECOMING SKEIN

Next Saturday Tom Nugent places his never been beaten homecoming record on the line.

The Seminoles have won three and last year rallied to tie a tough Wake Forest team in the mud of Campbell Stadium.

It took a superlative effort to offset the running of all-American Bill Barnes.

But the forthcoming game with Virginia Tech should be a breeze.

The Tribe have met the Gobblers on two prior occasions, and both times have been on the short end of the score.

The first game ended 24-20 with the Techmen being all but off the field in the final quarter as the Tribe scored three touchdowns.

Last year's game was much less exciting as a 20-7 score indicates.

Let's hope the homecoming string won't be broken.

HUNTER HUNTS. N. C. State halfback Dick Hunter had to come up from the secondary to bring down FSU's Bobby Renn and halt an end run in Saturday's game.

Flambeau Art Ira Gibbs

Nellums To Start At Fullback Post

By FRANK RAMOS

Tom Nugent's "big switch" will be in operation Saturday night when Florida State's Seminoles meet undefeated Ailene Christian College in Campbell Stadium at 8 p.m.

The "big switch" is the moving of Bobby Renn back to starting quarterback and the moving of Bob Nellums from end to starting fullback.

Nugent plans to use Renn at quarterback and halfback throughout the game.

His reasons are that Abilene won't be able to set their defense for Renn if he shifts positions on the different formations that will be employed against the Wildcats.

The necessity of having a good linebacker prompted Nugent to switch Nellums to fullback. "Nellums is making good progress in practice and should be ready at game time," stated Nugent.

With the moving of Nellums to fullback, John Shivey was moved to first string right end. Another minor change was switching Jerry Graham from guard to tackle.

Graham has been out for three weeks with an injury but will be ready for the ACC contest.

Nugent came up with another new plan; that of dressing only 28 or 29 men for the Wildcat game.

"We used only 27 men against N. C. State and we figure this way we'll develop better operating one and two teams." This is the smallest squad number to be used by FSU while under the coaching reins of Nugent.

ACC will have 23 lettermen with their squad when they come to Tallahassee Saturday night.

Heading their offense which Nugent labeled, the best we've seen so far this season, is right half Jimmy Hirsh, a service returnee who is averaging better than eight yards per carry this season.

Also helping to supply the offensive punch for the Wildcats is fullback Bill Lovelace who gained 135 yards in 21 rushes against North Texas State last Saturday when ACC won, 28-20.

Nugent is planning on using the quick kick as a regular part of the Seminoles offense. Renn who did the punting against N. C. State will handle the punting despite his first kick going only 7 yards. For his performance kicking wise and running wise Renn was selected as the "Back of the Week" in Florida.

Florida State not only got the "Back of the Week" but also "Lineman of the Week," Al Ulmer sophomore guard from Clearwater, Fla. got the honor for leading FSU tacklers with 7 tackles and recovering a fumble.

Operating in the backfield with Renn and Nellums will be Stan Dobros and Fred Pickard.

Starting at left end opposite Spivey is Captain Roo Schomburger. Holding down the tackle posts will be Bill Musselman and Grahan.

Ulmer and Asner Bizbee have drawn the starting assignment at the guards, slated to open at center is sophomore Paul Slaton or George Boyer.

VPI Favored Over Virginia; Auburn Meets Georgia Tech

Virginia Tech, the Florida State homecoming opponent carries a 2-2 record into its game with twice beaten Virginia tomorrow.

VPI holds victories over Tulane and Villanova. The Gobblers have lost to West Virginia and William and Mary.

Virginia, on the other hand, tied West Virginia and whipped Wake Forest. They were beaten by Duke and Clemson. The experts have rated VPI and touchdown favorites.

North Carolina State, ranked 12th in the nation, takes on the University of Miami Hurricanes tonight in the Orange Bowl.

Although the Canes were beaten last week by North Carolina and lost to Houston in their opener, the experts still think they may have enough to hand the Wolfpack their first defeat.

Undefeated and unscored upon in four games, Mississippi Southern meets Memphis State in a game which most football gazers think will end up in a fifth win for the Southerners.

The top team in the Southeast Conference may Auburn Tigers lay their perfect record on the line tomorrow when they entertain the always dangerous Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech.

Frosh Gridders Oppose SC Here Tomorrow

Florida State's eager freshman footballers, yet to lose a collegiate game in two seasons, draw their toughest 1957 assignment here tomorrow against South Carolina Gamecocks.

The kickoff is scheduled for 2 p.m. at Tallahassee's Florida High School field.

Students attending the game must have their activity books as season number five will be required for admission.

Originally set for last Friday, the freshman game was postponed when 16 South Carolina yearlings turned up with flu. At the time of the postponement Baby Seminole Coach Paul Dietzel said "we'd rather play South Carolina when they are at full strength."

HOST OF INJURIES

Since last week, a rash of injuries have sidelined key Florida State freshmen during rugged scrimmage sessions. Carl Meyer, a promising quarterback, broke a finger.

Fullback J. Frye suffered a slight concussion and fullback Howard Bryant fractured a hand.

Center Jim Werthington is slowed with bruised ribs, and halfback John Espership may not play because of a bruised leg.

Quarterback Bobby Conrad and right half George Versgrille will co-captain the Baby Seminoles tomorrow.

South Carolina's freshmen will bring a 1-1 record to Tallahassee. The Gamecocks blanked Wake Forest, 18-0, before dropping a 19-0 decision to Georgia Tech frosh as the flue moved in two weeks ago.

The Baby Seminoles haven't yielded a point this season. They drubbed Georgia Military College 51-0, and South Georgia College, 45-0. From here in, however, the competition is stiffer.

Gymkana Court Of 24 Named

Gymkana Court was selected Wednesday night when judges narrowed the 90 entries to 24 for the 1957 Court. Judging was held in the men's gymnasium.

Members of the Court are Marilyn Harris, Jenny Zipperer, Carolyn Jo Hunt, Caryl Darmon, Bonnie Robinson, Barbara Bishop, Kitchen All, Willow Copeland, Roslyn Anderson, Caryl Ann Bodine, Nona Carpenter, Pat Ferguson.

Jackie Soud, Lynn LaGrange, Dorothy Morton, Jackie Stecker, Nan Chamberlain, Ann Williams, Kitty Kilner, Marilyn Shanks, Peggy Trench, Barbara Homer, Penny Pickles, Beti Seay, and Tom Harlan complete the list.

The Court will make several personal appearances on road shows before the final production is produced on campus. The girls will be judged the entire week of Nov. 18-23 during the Gymkana show.

Miss Gymkana will be selected on the originality of her costume and her participation in the production. Miss Linda Jones of Daytona Beach was the 1956 "Miss Gymkana."

Mortarboard–ODK Meet

Leadership Art, Not Science, Oglesby Tells Leader Group

"The price of leadership is high," said Dean R. R. Oglesby Wednesday night, speaking at the annual Mortarboard–ODK Leadership Training Conference.

"Leadership is an art, not a science, and it must be practiced in order to master it. The way to learn to milk a cow is to milk one. This applies to leadership, as well," Dean Oglesby continued.

"There are four necessary successful leader must make. He must sacrifice his ego and own drives, and have a knowledge of the desires of his followers," Oglesby said.

"A leader must accept people as they are, and not try to change them. The sacrifice of personal desires is also necessary to become a good leader. The last sacrifice is the greatest—that of time," he said.

TIME'S LIKE A PIE

"Time must be budgeted. It's like a big pie. It all depends on how you slice it. A leader must be able to give a good account of how he spends his twenty-four hours each day."

"The price of discouragement and disappointment must be paid by all leaders. A leader must be prepared and willing to accept criticism from big offices.

"Despite the high prices to be paid by leaders, there must be rewards for those who have risked all their responsibilities to the human race and are willing to accept them," he concluded.

After Dean Oglesby's initial remarks to the general session, the conference divided into two groups: freshmen and upperclassmen.

Upperclass attendees were then divided into three sub-groups, discussing school spirit, honor system and the political party procedure on campus.

The freshman group remained in a general session, hearing a series of talks on student government, publications, religious affairs and honorary organizations.

Martha Gossard, chairman of Judiciary, and Arnold Greenfield, student body president, opened the freshman session with a discussion of student government. Duties of the student government officers and committees were discussed, as well as various opportunities for leadership in student government.

To students interested in student government work, Greenfield said that anyone who is willing to work, has a real interest and a desire to work, speak to someone about it. Be active politically and you will have a good chance to get ahead."

Publications were discussed next with Laird Anderson, a member of the Board of Publications, speaking. Anderson emphasized the importance of publications on the FSU campus.

"FSU publications have had and will have a big part in the shaping and molding of public opinion," he said. The power to lead people to doubt or accept FSU is largely in the hands of our publications staffs. They, too, pay the price of leadership.

EDITORS SPEAK

Anderson introduced the editors of the three FSU publications, Charlet Pottorff, Flamboro ed. for Five Months; Tallahassee Rats Smoke Signals. The editors spoke briefly of the operations on their staffs and urged students interested in working on publications to come to see them.

The Reverend Mr. Harcourt Waller discussed campus religious organizations and told of the activities and programs sponsored by the different groups.

Rev. Waller said, There is no glory or publicity in the leadership of religious houses, but those leaders are important and necessary. Stay close to your church while here at FSU."

The final topic on the program was the discussion of honoraries by Jan Kamma, student body vice-president. The qualifications and organization of honoraries was presented. Miss Kamma said, "For people who become leaders there are honoraries, but honoraries should not be the ends in college life."

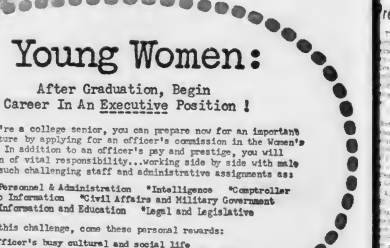
POSTER PLAN

A bill introduced by Sophomore Senator Pat Meckler to amend the election code was passed with unanimous vote.

The bill calls for the deletion of an article in the Student Body Statutes which reads as follows:



"Election placards shall be grouped on boards according to the office and class of the candidate."

Students running for office are now under no restrictions as to the placing of election posters in any special place on boards.

Radio-TV Major Program To Start Here In January

"A plan for an inter-divisional curriculum for television-radio majors was approved last week by the administration and deans of the colleges concerned, to go into effect next January," said Thomas Wright, associate professor of music and director of radio-television instruction.

Courses have been offered previously by the School of Journalism, the School of Music, the Speech Department and the School of Business for a minor in this area.

For the first time, the resources of these schools will be combined to provide a unified 4-year program leading to a degree for television-radio majors.

The degree will be either the College of Arts and Sciences or the School of Journalism depending upon the student's emphasis of courses.

BASIC COURSES

In addition to the regular general education courses, students enrolled in this program will be required to take basic courses offered by the five schools and departments. Advertising and sales management will be offered by the School of Business.

Basic courses in the fundamentals of speech, stagecraft, oral interpretation, TV production techniques (stage management, lighting and directing) will be given by the Speech Department.

The School of Journalism will contribute introductory courses in mass communications, TV and Radio, news writing and editing, program writing and station operation.

The School of Music has developed a course in radio and television music. The library service is providing courses in projecting materials for visual communications, cinematography and also two pertaining to educational TV.

WRIGHT DIRECTS

Wright will head the program coordinating instruction and counseling students wishing to enroll in this curriculum.

Wright has had much experience with radio and television having worked in the capacity of staff pianist, guest soloist, music director and producer for such stations as WNBC, WCBS, New York; WHAS, Nashville, and WTAL, Tallahassee.

He worked for NBC Radio and Television as pianist and music director. Some of the NBC television shows were the "Concert Hall" series, "The Chevrolet Show", and "Kraft TV Theatre".

28-Float Parade To Open Homecoming Frolics Friday

Florida State University will kick off its gala Homecoming celebration Friday, with numerous activities planned for the weekend.

The fun begins with the Homecoming parade leaving the main gate at 3 p.m. Friday, with 28 floats moving down College Avenue.

The parade sets the pace for two days of music, picturesque decorations, fireworks and football furnishing a festive Homecoming air.

STROZIER SPEAKS

A more serious tone will be set when Dr. Robert M. Strozier, FSU president, speaks at the tenth annual Homecoming Banquet, beginning at 5:15 Friday in the Suwanee Room. Alumni, students, and faculty are invited to attend.

Tickets, which are $1.75 a plate, may be obtained at the alumni office in Longmire Building.

The banquet is sponsored by two student honoraries, Gold and Garnet Key. Both organizations traditionally honor one or more members of the university faculty by inducting them into honorary membership. In addition, Gold Key bestows a like honor upon one or more persons in Florida government.

Sponsors of the banquet promise to free those attending in plenty of time to get to the Pow Wow at Campbell Stadium at 8:30 p.m. Friday night. This celebration will feature fireworks, skits, cheering, music and the crowning of the Homecoming Queen.

Five co-eds are seeking this honor, but the Queen's identity will become known only when Layte Bowden, the 1956 Queen, places the traditional white feathered headdress on the winner.

Following an alumni breakfast at 8 a.m. Saturday, alumni will hold a business meeting and elect officers. Dr. and Mrs. Strozier will hold an informal reception for them Saturday morning in their home, preceding the Homecoming Barbecue at the Men's Gymnasium at 11:30 a.m.

The football game, matching FSU and Virginia Tech, is at 2:30 and a dance at 9 p.m., featuring Stan Kenton and his band, will end the Homecoming celebration.

Music for the Homecoming Banquet will be furnished by the Florida State University Symphony Orchestra, Robert Sedore, conductor. Toastmistress will be Joyce Weatherup, president of Garnet Key. Arnold Greenfield, president of the student body, will welcome banqueters.

Rumor Wrong; Kenton Plays As Scheduled

Despite rumors to the contrary, the Stan Kenton Band will appear at the Homecoming Dance Saturday night, said Miss Marie Williams, university social director, this week.

Miss Williams, who has been heading the dance planning, said that several rumors have been circulating naming other bands than Kenton's as playing at the dance.

"The rumors have no validity," she said. "Stan Kenton was contracted last spring and will appear here Saturday night."

Miss Williams said, also, that there seems to be some misunderstanding on the part of students as to dress for the occasion.

"The dress for men for the dance will be tuxedos, dinner jackets or dark suits," she said. "Girls will want to wear their formals, however."

Miss Williams also issued a statement yesterday concerning corsages for the dance.

"We feel that for such a big affair corsages are unnecessary," she said. "We hope that the men will comply with our request to refrain from buying them for the dance."

The policy at past homecomings has been to request men not to obtain corsages for their dates.

The dance itself will feature an intermission presentation of the Homecoming Queen and her court, plus a few brief remarks by Dr. Robert Strozier.

Intermission plans are being handled by Layte Bowden and Betty Willmon, past Homecoming queens.

Barbecue Set In Men's Gym

Some 1,800 pounds of beef and pork will be served up next Saturday morning to the crowd of old grads, townspeople and politicians attending Florida State University's Homecoming Barbecue.

The meat will begin to simmer over coals of hickory logs which will be fired up at noon Friday at the Lake Bradford reservation. Then the food and fixings will be brought to the Men's Gymnasium for the barbecue at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

For the benefit of people who remember a couple of Homecoming barbecues which were held in the rain, Barbecue Chairman Rod G. Shaw said it was decided this year to have it indoors. The new gymnasium was selected because it can easily accommodate the big crowd.

Those attending will lunch at tables in the gymnasium to the music of the FSU band, the Marching Chiefs, seated in the corridor outside.

Among guests who already have accepted invitations are U. S. Sen. Spessard Holland, U. S. Rep. Bob Sikes, Gov. LeRoy Collins and many state, city and county officials along with members of the Legislature.

TO APPEAR SATURDAY. Stan Kenton, shown above, and his orchestra will appear for the Homecoming Dance this Saturday night, contrary to rumors claiming the appearance of other bands.

Queen, Senior Voting Only At Westcott

Voting will take place today for Freshman Class offices, Homecoming Queen run-offs, and 34 seniors for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

Homecoming Queen and "Who's Who" ballots will only be at the Westcott voting tables while freshman class voting will be held at the Student Center and at the Seminole Club, in addition to Westcott.

According to Joan Harmon, secretary of elections, Bruce Brown, Bill Jurney, Ev Marsh, Claude Pylant, and Tom Sharkey are vying for the position of freshman president.

Others in the running for freshman offices are Jack Brand, Tito Dawkins, Ruth Freitag, Phil Howard, Patsy McCall, Warren Moody, Bud Prekup, Chick Sylvania, Kip Tichenor, and Betty Jean Williams, all competing for vice-president.

Candidates for class secretary are Dana Ball, Martha Bedell, Laura Burton, Allison Cann, Kay Davis, Martha Erwin, Elbia Garcia, DeeDee Goff, Joan Golson, Ann Perry, Kitty Wade, Judy Kay Watkins, Carolyn S. Webb, Carol Sue Wehmeir, Janet Wells and Sonnie Wright.

MONEY-KEEPERS

Class treasurer contenders are Jane Burks, Claire Brightwell, Sheila Colwell, Sandy Flynn, Jane Newsom, Jackie Owens, Seranda Ralli, Donald Sabin, Carol Singley, and Judy Webb.

Barbara Bryan, Mary Catherine Buce, Barbara Cappins, Linda Coston, Joanne Hobbs, Thomas Wendell Hughes, Dovie Jean Kennedy, April Lee, Georges Ort and Jan Pearce are running for social chairman.

Jerry D. Williamson Jr. and Donald Bink are running unopposed for the men's senate seats while 15 women seek the two women's senatorial seats.

They are Diana Bule, Nora Nell Hardy, Linda Hobbs, Margaret Sue Hooten, Leslie Lowell, Judy McMillan, Dot Mann, Penny Pickels, Glenda Powers, Beth Tebault, Pat Thurmond, Mary Ann Vickery, Roberta Warren, Carole Williams and Barbara Youmans.

The other group of senatorial candidates are running according to the precinct in which they live. These are:

1) Nancy Bild, Edna Ray Black, Margie Gegenschatz, Marty Hampton, Joyce Nuckolls, Juna Roberts, Harriett Scarbrough, and Karen Shanor. 2) Ann Cook, Shirley Ann Inscho, Sonia Moreno, Sylvia O'Neal, and Carolyn Sistrunk.

3) Joy Cocchi, Nancy Joe Harbett, Mirth Kirby, Mary Lou Newde, Peggy Seydel, and Phyl Williamson. 4) Sandra Beese, Andee Husty, and Sheila Nichols.

5) Norma Brown, Jan Dawson, Winnie Mae Douglas, Mary Giella, Sally Highnam, Annette McIntosh, and Charlotte Stoker. 6) Rachel Arbuthnot, Susan Knight, and Marianne Talley.

PRECINCT 8

8) Milton Petty, Dick Wilson, and John Davis. 9) Don Hayes. 10) Ken Bowen and Carl Butler. 11) Stan Alford, Gary J. Kissinger, Dayton Roberts, Fehmi Zeko, Jack Ryder, and Charles Van ...

13) Sheldon Fretwell. 14) Pat Hendry and Allen Howell. 15) Julia Conkling, Charles Dean, Mary Louise Edwards, Gee Gee Mathers, Sue Shives, and Ann Wear.

16) Jackie Boyd, Barbara Watson, and Ann Williams. 17) Jim Apthorp. 18) Betty Willmon.

Only one candidate will be elected in each precinct except the eleventh, where two day students will be elected.

The five girls competing for Homecoming Queen of 1957 are Liz Armes, Barbara Bishop, Joyce Combs, Arielou Johnson, and Lynn LaGrange.

The queen will be announced Friday evening at the Pow-Wow.

WHO'S WHO

The seniors will choose 34 outstanding members of the Senior Class for membership in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

The list includes 130 names of outstanding students who have been active in fraternal organizations, religious affairs, athletics, student government, dramatics, music, publications, honoraries, dorm activities and department clubs and honoraries.

'Who's Who' Is Big Hoax

The Senate Class goes to the polls today to choose 34 popular members of the class for inclusion in an annual national publication entitled Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

UNDOUBTEDLY many of those chosen will be worthy of some honor for their contributions to the university in various forms of activity and of scholarship.

There will be, however, those who do not qualify for this particular honor. They are the ones who benefit from a popularity contest such as this.

THERE CAN be of real honor attached to membership in "Who's Who." To be elected to it is not a significant event in the life of any student.

There are many universities who participate in the program, and many students who are hoodwinked into believing they have won a place of national reknown among other students.

BUT WHERE are the really great universities standing in regard to student membership in the organization? For some reason or other, their names are conspicuously absent from the book.

Why? Because the entire operation of the national annual is nothing but a profit-making venture on the part of some opportunistic souls in Tuscaloosa, Alabama.

THE PEOPLE who print the book have little interest in students themselves. Their interest lies in the money the students pay them for the small keys and copies of the book.

There is much to be said for a true honorary. It chooses its members, usually, on the basis of their ability and their participation in student affairs.

BUT "WHO'S WHO" is not a true honorary. It is a commercial venture designed only to fatten the pocketbooks of a few people who are willing to take advantage of the American student's quest for popularity.

Student Senate could act constructively in this area. PSU is requested by the student statutes to be a member of the hoax. The senators would be doing a service to all students of the university, present and future, if they were to repeal the statute immediately.

It might be too late for the Class of 1958 to be saved from the sham. But it would be a boon to future classes in saving the money of those who might be elected for better things.

Federal Science Grants Needed

Now that the Soviet Union has beaten the United States in launching man's first artificial satellite, speculations have been hurled in all directions as to the reasons for this upset.

IN ADDING to the speculations, we would like to bring up the case of future American scientists vs. future Soviet scientists. In order for the United States to equal the productivity of the Soviet scientists in the future, it needs to expand a large scale program to entice students to the scientific field; for example, through the awarding to outstanding young men and women adequate scholarships with which to carry on their studies.

With the major problem in the free world today being the present race between the U. S. and Russia for scientific and technological supremacy and the fact that Russia is training its personnel four times faster than we are, it seems that something in the way of a large-scale national effort is imperative.

THIS PROBLEM was discussed recently at the Combined College Conference at Avery House, Harriman, N. Y., by Prof. John R. Dunning, dean of the Columbia School of Engineering.

The New York Times reported Prof. Dunning as saying that "while the Soviets have already begun their exploitation of this new and awesome age, we have not, because our people, our Government and our schools have not yet grasped its full significance.

"The Soviet Union has promoted its technology virtually without limits. The Communist System has been able to produce scientists and engineers in greater numbers and quite possibly of higher technical proficiency than our own," the professor asserted.

The reasons this is so are apparent. In Russia a scientist is a highly honored member of society, paid a higher salary than many important government officials. He is given a free rein on research funds, which already are quite ample and is the work of American scientists.

THE ASPIRING AMERICAN scientist is beset by many problems when he is deciding whether or not to pursue a position with the government. He cannot hope to achieve the status of the Russian. He is required to sign loyalty oaths and many undergo persecution if suspected of subversive activities, along with possible congressional investigations.

Some have made suggestions to producing harmful destructive weapons, and others prefer to work in more profitable fields for moral as well as economic reasons.

In our free society, wholehearted willingness of individuals to work in the scientific field is required. And to recruit young men and women to study in it, the government must offer a much stronger incentive. We believe this could be done, partly, through awarding promising students federal grants-in-aid.

The Critic's Corner

MTNA Sponsors Outstanding Events

By DIXON REDDITT

Music students have unique opportunities on the PSU campus. Those of us who have seen other campuses and their music school atmosphere immediately appreciate the difference in the size and emphasis of Florida State University and the School of Music.

It's a feeling of unselfconscious youth and easy-going cooperation between students and faculty.

What does this mean to the university community?

It means, of course, that students work as independents as possible, making mistakes, naturally, but growing immensely.

Outstanding examples of this are that students in the music school also are not required to give recitals since them that students not composition majors, write operas, for instance that student groups will themselves arrange and give programs, such as the String Ensemble will do.

One of the most influential of these groups on campus is the student chapter of MTNA. This was the group that sponsored that string quartet concert. This group, whose national history dates from 1876, has its local and regional conventions on our campus this coming February.

With many exhibits, concerts, and demonstrations. It should be an exceptional occasion for all who attend. Dean Koerstener of the School of Music, in line with his general philosophies, feels that student groups will themselves arrange and give programs, such as the String Ensemble will do.

One of the most influential of these groups on campus is the student chapter of MTNA. This was the group that sponsored that string quartet concert.

The Iconoclast

Educational System Is Misunderstood

By L. A. HESTER

The charge is mediocrity. Are you guilty? Alas, how often have we all had occasion to hear of the despicable and reprehensible state of education in the United States.

EXEMPLARY IS: Why can't Johnny read? Soviet Union surpasses U. S. in technical output. Russia's drive for progress in many subjects are slowly disappearing from secondary curriculums. Etc. And to bring the problem closer to heart, how often have you heard the chant that PSU is a mediocre university at best and probably could be more aptly be classified as a poor one.

The embarrassing thing is that there is more often than not substantial truth to be found in many of these charges. But the true substance of the question is whether these charges are a result of inherent weaknesses in our educational system or are they a result of public misunderstanding of the functions to which an educational system should be applied. I think the latter is more applicable.

THE ALL intent and purpose it appears that we prefer to hold our criterion for the functions that we expect our educational system to perform on that will best accommodate the mediocre. In other words we might apply group all of the charges of maleasance in education together and call them a case against mediocrity.

We cannot expect our educational system to be any better than what we put into it if we consume to persist in making the educational median accessible to the mediocre we need not be dismayed when the finished product do not measure up to our allusions of grandeur.

WE RATIONALIZE our approach as being "democratic." Democracy at best is an elusive term. Democracy might be described as being like a delicate flower and accordingly cannot be cultivated with a bulldozer. The analogy here is that we cannot be cultivated with a bulldozer and dictatorial measures that are often taken in the postwar Union to alleviate similar problems, but on the other hand there will be no accomodation without asking that bashful boy that "Name Withheld" was pleading for.

Letters Intercepted

To "In This Corner"

TO THE EDITOR

I find myself in agreement with Flambeau last week forecasting action on co-ed curfew.

In fact, I'm so much in agreement that I feel it necessary to call your attention to that we would be forced to make a few corrections.

TO BEGIN with, our scholastic pride would suffer terribly in bringing the potential impact of those that have the ability and the will to climb to higher heights. The counterbalance, we would be left to compete among themselves and if they should aspire for higher scholastic goals we would be terrible they showed their ability and a willingness to employ that ability in educational pursuits.

If we used ability and the use of that ability as the sole criterion for determining who has a right to specific levels of the educational system perhaps the magnasia now accorded the "date" would be transferred to the medium of attainability as based on mediocrity.

EDUCATION should be made available according to ability. If this was the criterion there would be no concerns, laggards, etc. holding back and significantly impairing the potential impact of those that have the ability and the will to climb to higher heights. The counterbalance, we would be left to compete among themselves and if they should aspire for higher scholastic goals we would be terrible they showed their ability and a willingness to employ that ability in educational pursuits.

If we used ability and the use of that ability as the sole criterion for determining who has a right to specific levels of the educational system perhaps the magnasia now accorded the "date" would be transferred to the medium of attainability as based on mediocrity.

Vets Vibrations

Vets Should Prove Charges Are False

Last week the Student Senate tabled a bill which would have created a senatorial seat to represent the 1,235 veterans on campus.

THE SENATE took the action after only a brief discussion on the merits of such a seat.

It appeared that the action would bring many repercussions from the vets but thus far none have materialized.

Maybe it is still too soon for the vets to bring about objections to the action, but one can only believe on the basis of the veterans silence in the past on matters of importance pertaining to them, that the bill will remain tabled without any argument.

IN SEARCHING for an answer as to why the large group of veterans remain unmoved by such action we might assume that they are unaware of the full importance of representation on the Senate.

Last year only one veteran held a seat on the Senate which included 35 members. As one senator pointed out last week in opposing the proposed creation of a Senate seat for veterans, the vets are represented and eligible to run in the general election.

WHAT THE woman senator failed to reveal, however, is that there are approximately four veterans who live off campus and who are represented by only two senators. That would mean one representative for 620 students.

So the past veterans have not participated in student politics and this has led many to believe that they are so that the vets just aren't interested in such things.

ON THE OTHER hand some veterans who take an active part in many campus activities, have pointed out that certain small groups on campus frown upon a veteran who attempts to run for office, claiming that the vets are trying to gain control of student government.

Whether or not such a feeling exists is not important, because it should be quite apparent that to accomplish such a goal would require a strong uniting group, and the veterans certainly have given no indication that they are by any means such.

JUNIOR SENATOR Gerry Gordon, who introduced the bill last week certainly recognized the role veterans should play. Why Gordon, who is not a veteran, presented the bill cannot be answered by this writer, but just the fact he considered a seat for veterans important should start many veterans to thinking.

WHY HAVE veterans been accused of feeling that fraternities are cliquish and have failed to resort despite the fact that over fifty per cent on campus is made up of 72 per cent veterans.

Many others also belong to other frats and some, including this writer, would be the last to offer an apology if they could afford the time and could easily become members.

Lack of school spirit is another accusation thrown many times at the group and still no retort.

ALL THESE FACTORS would lead an outsider to assume that they are true but the vets when in small groups claim them all to be false.

The challenge has been hurled and it is now up to the veterans to prove them false and this will require action. One action might be for veterans to take an active part in student government and politics, or support those who do.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Girls Too Bashful; Should Ask Boys

TO THE EDITOR:

In digesting the pleading, emphatic statements of "Name Withheld" in regards to dateless co-eds for Homecoming it occurs to me that the boys are not the only bashful persons on the campus. If the girls were not so, then it's doubtful that this pleading would have become necessary to be put in circulated print.

TO THE contrary of "Name Withheld's" opinion that "Girls certainly can't ask the boys," girls certainly can ask the boys. The old tradition, for whatever reason it was established, is slipping away slowly but surely in many parts of the country.

The reasons are many and varied but the predominant one is just necessary. In Washington D C for example, where the women outnumber the men roughly seven to one, a girl that doesn't take the initiative spends more hours going for the date she could have had than she spends on the ones she does have.

SOME OF you will abhore the thought because of its pseudo moral implications of primarily "What would the boy think if I asked him?" If it's a boy you are asking it would only be as many degrees as the color of marbles he has in his pockets or his collection of Mantle bubblegum cards if however, it's a boy you are genuinely interested in he then he not only would be flattered, he respect for your initiative and would be increased in proportion to his respect for you as a person of equal standing.

As a playboy self proclaimed I'm slow to add—with a legalized playmate—she doesn't deny it—I can say this from past experiences relatively.

So get with it women, don't let this pretty formal hang in the closet because of your shyness or fear of what others might think. Remember the girls among you that will protest the most are the ones that were bashful about asking that bashful boy that "Name Withheld" was pleading for.

Letters From Candidates

TO ALL OFF CAMPUS STUDENTS:

Today, as you may know, voting day here at campus used to think, "So what's vote, what good will it do me ever gets in won't stand up to anyhow." I've heard those make the same comment and all of us have seen them. Those we've been, haven't been doing much constructive for us as a group. It's time to correct this.

I'm a veteran, am single and have lived off campus. I have been a PSU student for I know many of our problems and I'm ready to fight for solution. If you are interested, I shall sincerely appreciate support at the polls today.

Sincerely,
GARY E. HIGGINS
Candidate — Day Student President

TO THE FRESHMAN CLASS:

Today is the big day for you the freshmen of PSU. It is a big decision to make. Who will be your class president? The election is a hard one so you have five well qualified candidates to choose from.

SCHOOL SPIRIT is the big interest. I want to see school spirit and plenty of it. It is up to you as freshmen, to recognize and PSU spirit. Remember apathy is contagious. This is what we have to accomplish if we are to give me a chance.

Remember also, voting is a big part of that spirit. Regardless for whom you vote VOTE!

SURE YOU WILL!

Letters Intercepted

To "In This Corner"

TO THE EDITOR

I find myself in agreement with Nolan Adams who wrote terrible consequences if ignorance is allowed to exist on the campus of the university.

Yes indeed! The very worst people already have on the basis of athletic ability rather than entrance requirements should be avoided. I am one thought suspect of being a dumb athlete. I was the stake in Campbell Hall during the half-time ceremonies of the homecoming game. Atmosphere music, while quaint, was provided by the Music Chiefs playing "Dixie."

INTEGRATION were carried out on a state-wide basis it would involve terrible injustice to most of the Negro citizens. These gentlemen have their passionate opportunity to raise their ability to raise their standard of living and social "image" looks good on their opponents. I believe Nolan were eliminated the fact that the Ku Klux Klan would probably break off diplomatic relations with

Accept The Bible

At Its Face Value

TO THE EDITOR:

In last Friday's issue of the Florida Flambeau there appeared a letter by Robert Randall on his views concerning the Bible. I think his evaluations were quite unfair and that his belief in himself is a faith and a god.

MR. RANDALL ASKS: "Why should the Bible be accepted without reservation?" Perhaps the reasoning behind this statement is that the Bible was written by men who claim to be authors but by men who were under the influence of divine guidance.

The Bible has been introduced as a debate topic against science, however, science has staged a losing battle each time Christianity might set firm believers in the Bible.

RANDALL REASONS that even if we accept the Bible as basic truth, why should we not accept the Koran as basic truth. Probably, if you were a Christian, you would not argue that the Koran is not the truth. But on the other hand you would not accept it as the truth, and vice-versa.

I have never heard of the Bible being paralleled with an impressionistic painting. The Bible, in my opinion, could have many interpretations but the best way to accept the Bible is at face value.

Most people accept the Bible as an actuality and many people realize the fact that the Bible was not written for the entertainment of the modern day college student.

Granted, one must find a god, whether it be Jesus Christ, Allah, Buddha, or Zeus, but never as long as you search will you find a god worthy to be a "faith or a god."

A New Addition

Something new has definitely been added to football here at Florida State University.

The thousands of fans watching Saturday's game were treated to a sight that this writer has longed to see since I came here 3 years ago.

It is not a unique item that is possessed by only one team or a secret weapon known only to a few select schools. Every team has one and finally so do we.

I'm talking about a fullback.

It was always the other team that had the fullback. No one could stop Wake Forest's Bill Barnes last year, no other team did either, for that matter.

Or how about Bo Dickinson of Mississippi Southern, Bob Connor of VPI, Larry Plenty of BC or Jack Dversaus of Villanova.

Anytime the opposition needed key yardage the ball went to the fullback. And the big men almost always made it.

Now it looks like we've got one too.

Some switches pay off, some don't, and from all indications this one's a winner all the way.

Bob Nellums, until Saturday a first-string end, carried the ball quickly more times from the fullback spot than any other fullback has since Coach Tom Nugent arrived on the scene five years ago.

"But we do have fullback plays" said Nugent after the game was interviewed by the members of the press. "It's just that our new runner carries the ball. In other words he's the fullback."

However, this to me is the difference.

It's one thing to send a 175 pound halfback into the line to pick up a badly needed first down, and it's another story to send a 200 pound fullback up the middle.

And that's exactly what Nellums did. Besides gaining roughly 75 yards he personally accounted for seven of Florida State's first downs.

BACKFIELD MORE VERSATILE

And just as important is the fact that the Seminoles' attack now has much more versatility.

In past games the ball carrying was done predominantly by two of the four men in the backfield, mainly the quarterback and the left half.

Occasionally the right half got in carry the ball, but the fullback—he's usually out in the cold.

What did he do? Well, he was used as a blocker and a pass receiver. On defense he's the linebacker.

But that's not what I consider a fullback and I hope I'm not in thinking that some people agree with me.

Now with Nellums holding down the position every man in the backfield is a threat to carry the ball. The defense can't themselves for only two men, they've got to be ready for every and for any type of play.

Not only did Nellums show he can do what a fullback is supposed to do, but he also has the other qualifications needed for the position.

He is a top pass receiver and a more than adequate linebacker. Many people believe he was a tougher end than Captain Bob Schoenburger.

And Schoenburger is a top-notch end.

It looks as if we've finally got that fullback

HAD TO WIN

Saturday's win over Abilene was a must for the Seminoles. A loss could have meant the crusher as far as the over-all season outcome.

It would have been doubly tough to get a team up for even a non-conferencing game after dropping four in a row. But obviously that's not the case.

And now the pressure has been shifted over to Virginia Tech. The Gobblers were soundly trounced Saturday by Virginia, 38-7.

That doesn't sound like the VPI teams we've seen in the past. I doubt if anyone in this vicinity is sad to hear that.

Especially the football team.

Tribe Pulls Wildcats' Tail, 34-7

Nellums Scores Two TDs; Renn Picks Up 150 Yards

By JOE GREENE

Florida State's Seminoles bounced back into the win column Saturday night as they turned Abilene Christian's Wildcats every way but loose to win 34-7.

Bob Nellums an end turned fullback, and Bobby Renn, back at quarterback for the Semi-noles, did the trick for FSU.

Nellums, who had been shifted to fullback by Coach Tom Nugent mainly for linebacking purposes, blasted the middle of Abilene's forward wall wide open and kept it that way throughout the game.

Renn crammed end runs down the throats of Abilene's players until they weren't sure just who he wildcats on the field were.

21-0 AT HALF

Before the first half came to a close, Florida State had nailed 21 points on the scor-board and led 21-0. And before the game ended added two more touchdowns in the fourth quarter.

Abilene's only score came midway in the fourth and final stanza of play.

Abilene may have been unbeaten before the game with FSU but the Seminoles had just too much power for the Christians to match.

The person in the Texas team's downfall came late in the first quarter when Renn, running from the I-formation peeled off around right end and scooted to the Christian 40 where he cut back toward the center of the field and went all the way to score.

In the last quarter he added 36 yards on two running plays from his own 46 to the Abilene one yard line, where Nellums a crashed over for the tally. Renn's total for the night was 150 yards in 14 carries.

Quarterback Ted Rodrigue and Nellums teamed together to score FSU's third touchdown. Rodrigue who appeared to be smeared at midfield eluded the Wildcat forward wall long enough to flip a 17 yard strike to Nellums on the Christian 37.

Nellums stepped on the gas, ran wide to the south of the field and cut down the sidelines for the score.

Also in the second period Stan Dobosz crossed the double mark-er from two yards out after Renn had recovered one of Abilene's fumbles.

The last Seminole touchdown was scored by Pappy Norman who climaxed a 37 yard drive from six yards out. He accounted for 41 of the 87 yards in four carries.

Johnny Sheppard kicked two extra points, but missed on his third attempt. It was his first and the Seminoles were again in the Wildcat territory when the game ended.

Baby Gridders Nip SC Frosh

Florida State's freshman football team led by fullback Jim Calhoun kept their winning streak alive by edging South Carolina's Gamecheicks, 13-12.

Calhoun kept his own streak intact, that of having scored two touchdowns a game. The Winston-Salem fullback gained 64 yards in 18 carries Saturday.

South Carolina started the scoring off in the second quarter with Harry Shiflet going over on a sneak from one yard out. The conversion attempt was wide.

The Baby Seminoles came right back with Calhoun eventually bulling his way across from the three for the score. Quarterback Bob Conrad's extra point try was wide and the score stood at 6-6.

The Gamecheicks relying on a strong ground game pulled into the lead in the third period. Larry Jollick streaked across for the second score and again the conversion was wide.

Bobby Conrad took charge of the second Tribe scoring drive with the key play being a 41 yard pass to end Sam Smith. Calhoun drove the final five yards for the score.

Conrad made the all-important conversion to give the Baby Seminoles the win. 13-12

Also standing out for the Baby Tribe was Conrad who completed 6 out of 8 passes and Bud Wentzel who picked up 64 yards in 17 tries.

Virginia Tech Bows In Upset

Virginia Tech, Florida State's homecoming opponent next week-end was upset 38-7 last Saturday by Texas Christian.

Virginia fullback Jim Bakhtiar was too much for the Gobbler defense, as he scored four times and gained 123 yards. It was the first time in five years that the Gobblers have been beaten.

Miami, the team the Tribe meets on Nov. 8, was tied last Friday night by the undefeated Wolfpack from North Carolina State, 6-6.

N C State could not break its speedy halfback, Dick Christy or Dick Hunter loose against the Miami defense. The Wolfback beat FSU 7-0 two weeks ago.

Mississippi Southern brought its win streak to five games as it edged a stubborn team from Memphis State 14-6. It was the first time the Southerners have been scored on this season.

The Tampa Spartans, the Seminoles last opponent of the season were idle last weekend.

Air Force ROTC Adds New Officer

Captain Jack C. St. John, newly assigned as assistant professor of air science at Florida State University, spent the past two years as a pilot with the Air Rescue Service a part of MATS (the Military Air Transportation Service) in Germany. His family accompanied him on the tour.

Captain St. John has had approximately ten years of active duty and has served as electronics officer, bombardier and pilot. He completed the Air University's squadron officer course in 1953.

He was awarded his bachelor's degree from Western Michigan College, with a major in education, in 1950.

During World War II he served as a B-24 bombardier and spent approximately six months in the Phillipine Islands in 1945.

His wife and two children will also make their home here with him in Tallahassee.

PROFESSOR EMERITUS, Elmer Riggs Smith, who taught mathematics and coached football at Florida State College in 1903, shows Mrs. Smith a picture of the Vtnderbilt football team of 1896 of which he was a m ember.

Assistant 1904 Grid Coach Among Returning Alumni

A retired mathematics professor, alight of build and mild a fmanner, may reminisce occasionally as he watches through rimless bifocals the Homecoming Game at Florida State University Saturday.

If he does, the memories of Professor Emeritus Elmer Rigg Smith, 86, probably will shoot back half a century (53 years to be exact) to the football team fielded in 1904 by Florida State College.

Or they may go back even farther, to the time when as an undergraduate at Vanderbilt University, between 1894 and 1896, coo Elmer Smith weighs 156 used to play a steady, if not brilliant, game marked by a knack for running down and tackling ball carriers in the open field.

The 1904 team, last which Florida State had before it became Florida State College for Women was one of which Smith had reason to be proud, although you'll seldom hear him talk about it. Thirty-nine years of classroom teaching have almost crowded out the memories of football.

Smith helped coach the 1904, and also the 1905 team, along with another professor who also was trained on the Vanderbilt Gridiron. He is W. W. Hughes, a professor of Latin who also was head coach.

Hughes left Florida State shortly afterwards, became a lawyer and judge at Memphis and now lives there in retirement.

BEAT FLORIDA

According to one of the 1904 players, Guy* McCord who now is clerk of the Florida Supreme Court, that team "beat everything it played in Florida."

More specifically, according to another Tallahassean who was on the team, Walter McLin, the victims were Stetson and "the University of Florida."

University of Florida was the name given by the 1903 Legislature to Florida Agricultural College at Lake City. When in 1905 the Legislature created the University of the State of Florida, his university occupied the buildings of the Lake City institution for a year until its own were ready at Gainesville.

Professor Joe Coach Smith thinks his now somewhat rusty ideas about football will be of no help to the Seminoles and the only thing he will have to offer in the Virginia Tech game next Saturday is his enthusiastic support.

"Football in 1904 wasn't to be compared with football today," he said. "We didn't have the forward pass and we didn't have any of the formations like the single wing, double wing, T or I."

A native of Lincoln County, Tennessee, Smith entered Vanderbilt in 1895 but it took him six years to finish because he had to drop out twice to earn more money. The second time 1897, he got his first crack at what had long been his chosen career, teaching. For two years he taught at Searcy, Ark., College.

He played football at Vanderbilt during the 1894, 1895 and 1896 seasons. After getting his bachelor's degree he taught math and English for two years at Vanderbilt (and also got his master's degree). Then, until 1900 he taught school at the little Tennessee town of Stanton 30 miles from Memphis and for another three years at a private school at Anniston, Ala.

In 1903 hearing that Florida State was looking for a math teacher to relieve the president of the school, Dr. A. A. Murchree, of some of his teaching duties, Smith applied for and got the job. As he recalls, the college had about 200 students at that time.

One approached the campus, as now, by College Avenue (then called Clinton St. The buildings consisted only of one brick administration building about where Westcott is, a frame gymnasium

Chain Letter Epidemic' Slowing Down

"The 'epidemic' of chain letters which hit the campus last week has been substantially halted," said Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby.

Letters were sent out from the offices of the Dean of Women and the Dean of Men to everyone whose name appeared on chain letters turned in to them.

The majority of students receiving these letters have said that they were unaware of their illegality. After realizing that the buying and selling of chain letters is against the law, most participants ceased further action.

Sorority and fraternity leaders report that the matter has been dropped.

Student Body President Arnold Greenfield said, "Most students just didn't realize that it was illegal. In many cases money wasn't exchanged, and the letters were sold for an I. O. U. The whole thing was an unfortunate event, but little harm was done by it."

28 To Compete

Homecoming Parade Features Fewer Floats

This afternoon's Homecoming parade, which will feature the Marching Chiefs, will be somewhat smaller than last year's venture.

Bob Johnson, student chairman of the event, said early this week that only 28 floats had been entered in the annual parade, a decrease of 14 from last year's total.

"For the first time," Johnson said, "several fraternities and sororities have combined their efforts on floats. This gives us less quantity in the parade, but more quality floats."

The parade, which will begin at the university gates at 3 p.m., will be led by the Marching Chiefs, and will have three other main divisions.

VIPS IN PARADE

The band will be followed by distinguished guests of the university and university officials.

Following the VIPs will be the ROTC color guard and the 28 floats. The floats will appear in the following order:

Queen's float, Delta Zeta, Phi Kappa Tau, Zeta Tau Alpha, Delta Sigma Chi-Phi Chi Theta, Theta Chi-Alpha Delta Pi, Phi Mu, Alpha Gamma Delta, Pi Kappa Phi, Sigma Kappa, Inter-national Club.

Tau Epsilon Phi, Pi Beta Phi, Arts &Education-Industrial Arts, Sigma Alpha Epsilon-Kappa Alpha Theta, Delta Chi, Alpha Gamma Xi Delta, Alpha Chi Omega, Sigma Chi-Chi Omega, Delta Gamma.

Delta Delta Delta, West Hall, Reda Delta Tau Delta, Lambda Chi Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha, Kappa Delta, and Physical Education Majors' Club.

The parade will begin at the West-ern Gates and proceed east on college to Adams Street. Turning right onto Adams, it will move to Pensacola, go east on Pensacola to Monroe, turning north onto Monroe.

The parade will proceed up Monroe Street, turn west on Virginia to Adams, south on Adams to Call, and west on Call to the university.

The judges for the parade will be Dr. James McDonough, head of the art department, chairman Irvin Rubin, assistant professor of art; Dr. Mary A. Maguire, associate professor of English; and Mrs. Ruth Chapman, society editor of the Tallahassee Democrat.

A ten-member committee, consisting of four faculty members and six students has been in charge of arrangements for the parade.

The committee has been preparing the route of the parade and checking with city officials for the past month. They have arranged for the reviewing stand, the order of the parade, and will be on hand to see that all units move out on time.

Faculty members of the committee are: Dr. Vernon Fox, chairman, Dr. Daisy Parker, Miss Ann Sandford and Coach Danny Litwhiler.

Student members of the committee are: Bob Johnson, Rube Waddell, Sheparad Eubanks, Kerry Herz, Barbara Mueller, and Sandra Wilson.

Johnson, chairman of the student section of the committee, said this week that "this year's parade should be the best yet."

"The committee has worked hard," he said, "and we expect visitors to be ready to roll on time."

Clear Weather, Cool Mornings

Sudden showers Thursday made all good Seminoles fear the weather was going to present a repeat performance for the weekend, but the U.S. Weather Bureau reports "clear weather ahead."

The bureau at Dale Mabry Field predicted an "ideal sunny Homecoming weekend," not at all similar to last year when it rained throughout the entire football game.

The more than 2,000 alums who annually attend Homecoming are encouraged to register at the Longmire Building between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Friday and until 11 a.m. on Saturday, picking up tickets and name tags at this time.

2000 Alumni Again Expected

Alumni returning to Florida State University for this weekend's Homecoming festivities have an elaborate schedule of activities planned for them by the ring to Jack McGraw, associate editor of The Alumni Bulletin.

Under the DX plan, classes in clumps of four, beginning in 1907, 1926, 1945, and 1957, have received much literature from the Alumni Association giving their members information on everything from their schedules to specific details on hotel and motel accommodations in this area.

PARRISH PLANS

Handling the mammoth job of planning the alumni portion of Homecoming is Miss Mildred Parrish, executive secretary of the Alumni Association and editor of the Alumni Bulletin.

Aiding Miss Parrish are Jack McGraw, the Bulletin's associate editor, and Miss Sara Coulter, assistant editor.

The more than 2,000 alums who annually attend Homecoming are encouraged to register at the Longmire Building between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Friday and until 11 a.m. on Saturday, picking up tickets and name tags at this time.

After seeing the Homecoming parade this afternoon, alumni will set the mood for the Gold Key sponsored Homecoming Dance tomorrow night.

Using the theme, "Go Modern," the decorations committee, under the supervision of Kay Hufford, will transform the men's gymnasium into a star-studded, futuristic ballroom from the hours of 9 till 1.

Led by the "Father of Modern Jazz," the Kenton band has been setting the pace in modern jazz for many years. The twenty-piece organization appearing here tomorrow night is reputed to be the finest group Kenton has ever had. The group is currently on a nation-wide dance tour.

Early recordings of "Artistry Jumps" and "Artistry in Rhythm" brought stardom to Kenton's group. Appearing with the band at the dance will be the "Modern Men," with the vocal stylings of Ann Richards.

NO CORSAGES

Miss Marie Williams, university social director, announced today that this week that the buying of corsages would be discouraged for the dance. This policy has been in effect for past homecomings.

Dress for the occasion for men will include tuxedos, dinner jackets and dark suits. Women will wear the customary formal attire for the evening.

Reigning over the dance will be the Homecoming Queen and her court, who are to be seated on an elevated platform directly across the floor from the band stand.

The Queen and court are to be introduced and presented with gifts at intermission. Following this presentation, President Robert M. Strozier will speak informally to the group. Jim McIntyre, student chairman of the dance committee, will serve as master of ceremonies for the intermission festivities.

At the close of the intermission presentation, a special "Queen's Dance" will feature the queen, her court and their escorts. The special dance will be in the center of the floor which will be roped off by members of Village Vamps and their escorts.

FACULTY CHAPERONES

Faculty and staff chaperones for the event will be: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wright, Dr. and Mrs. Steven Winters, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Killian, Dr. and Mrs. George Lewers, Dr. and Mrs. Jackson L. Ice, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Newman, Dr. and Mrs. Ben Rogers, and Mr. Dave Robinson.

Platforms for chaperones and dignitaries will be situated on either side of the Queen's platform. Governor and Mrs. Collins, Dr. and Mrs. Strozier and other dignitaries will be present.

Dance tickets are $2 per couple and will be on sale at the door tomorrow night. Entrance will be through the front door only, and there will be a coat check in case of rain.

The Homecoming Dance is the only homecoming activity that pays for itself, and any profit made on the dance will go into a fund for self-sustaining campus activities.

Strozier Talks To Alumni At 5:15 Banquet

By DOLORES LAFFERTY

"The Alumni and Their University" will be the topic of Dr. Robert Strozier's address to those attending the annual Homecoming Banquet tonight.

The banquet, which will be held in the Suwanee Room, will begin at 5:15 p.m. It will be the first formal gathering of the weekend of festivities.

The banquet is sponsored annually by Garnet Key, women's leadership honorary, and Gold Key, leadership honorary for men. It is being run this year, however, on a much less exclusive basis than in the past.

For the first time, the banquet is open to all students who wish to attend. The honored guests include Governor and Mrs. Leroy Collins, members of the state cabinet and the governor's little cabinet, state senators and representatives, supreme court judges, and members of the Board of Control.

Joyce Westbrurge, president of Garnet Key, will be toastmistress at the event with Dr. Edwin Harris, university chaplain, delivering the invocation, followed by a welcoming speech by Arnold Greenfield, student body president.

While the guests are gathering, the FSU Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Robert Bedsole, will play "Fetes," from "Nocturnes" by Claude De Bussy.

Garnet Key President Joyce Westbrurge will extend membership to a woman faculty member chosen by rote of the organization in recognition of service to the university.

Gold Key President Laird Anderson is slated to honor three persons: one a faculty or staff member; the other two Floridians noted for public service.

Identities of Garnet and Gold Key honorary members are traditionally kept secret prior to the banquet.

TAPS INTRODUCED

New members of this two campus honor society will be presented to the banquet crowd by the presidents of the organizations. Gold Key recently tapped nine campus leaders for membership. Garnet Key has not yet tapped for the fall semester.

Mrs. H. Hugo Dichtenmueller, president of the Alumni Association, will introduce alumni from the classes of 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910, 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1945, 1946, 1947, 1948, and 1957, which are reunion classes this year.

Members of Garnet and Gold Key and members of the University Executive Council will be assigned to tables to act as hosts and hostesses for guests, alumni, and visitors, according to Miss Katherine Warren, dean of women, who is in charge of making reservations for the annual affair.

Alumni Breakfast Set Saturday

The annual alumni breakfast, a get-together for all old grads, will be held Saturday morning in the Suwanee Room.

The breakfast, which will begin at 8 a.m., will honor the thirteen classes holding reunions this year.

Both dress and program will be informal, with the Alumni Association striving to provide a chance to relax after exotic doings."

The Alumni Association has announced the banquet through their Homecoming Booklet, saying that it will be "informal."

Wake up to a choice breakfast with friendly banter and speculation about the game to come

Jazz Jumpin' At Half Time

Modern "cats" and oldtimers alike will tap their feet to New Orleans jazz tomorrow afternoon during the Homecoming half time show.

The theme of the spectacle, presented by the Marching Chiefs, is "Dixieland Jubilee," centering around the "music and styles of the Southland."

An old fashioned river boat, with smoke stack, chimney and revolving paddle wheel, will be formed by the band for their rendition of "Dixieland Jubilee."

A lively "stick figure" will dance to the tune of "Dry Bones." Stephen Foster's contribution to Southern music will be represented by "Way Down Upon the Suwannee River." as the Chief's form a map of Florida.

The band's final salute to Dixieland will be in the form of a minstrel show, featuring the majorettes in a soft shoe routine, and the Flying Seminoles twirling to "Hello My Baby."

The trombone section will star in a novelty number entitled "Lasuse Trombone" according to Manley Whitcomb, director.

For a grand finale, the Marching Chiefs will move into a special procession, presenting the 1957 Homecoming Queen and her court.

Dr. Robert M. Strozier, Florida State University president, is also scheduled to present a word of welcome to alumni as part of the half time ceremonies

Wise Man Uses Learning, Dr. Irish Advises Seniors

By JIM McINTYRE

A wise man is "one who knows how to make good use of his learning," Dr. Marian Irish, head of the Florida State University Political Science Department told seniors and guests Tuesday night.

Dr. Irish's remarks came at the annual Senior Investiture, the time when the Senior Class officially assumes its status.

Approximately 800 students, faculty members and friends heard Dr. Irish speak on the topic "The Emergence of a Lifetime."

Quoting former President of the United States Woodrow Wilson, himself a political scientist, Dr. Irish said, "No one has ever dreamed of imparting learning to undergraduates."

"It cannot be done in four years. To become a man of learning is the enterprise of a lifetime."

Dr. Irish went on to refer to the ideas and ideals which "always motivate and dominate our society."

IDEAS INFLUENCE

"It is perhaps paradoxical," she said, "but nevertheless factual, practical men do not influence public affairs. The physician, the preacher, the lawyer, the engineer, the businessman, the public administrator and the scholars on whom we count to uphold and advance our civilization have need for a liberal education as well as professional specialization."

Going on to define some of the purposes of the university, Dr. Irish said: "When you first came to FSU we promise you all kinds of fun and games. So far we have more than made good our promises.

"A university, however, is not intended to be a matrimonial agency, a recreation center, or an Al Jean round resort."

"The real role of the university is entirely serious, to transmit the culture of the people, to conserve the common understanding, to develop the public philosophy, to continue the search for all that can be found about life itself."

"What is higher learning?" she queried. "First of all, it is an individual experience. There can be no such thing as mass education. As a matter of fact, people are always persons, no numbers of them ever consumes a mass."

"The education of any person begins with an inquiring mind. The student must want to know; whatever he learns must come in personal discovery."

MARKS OF EDUCATION

"What are the marks of higher education?" she continued. "Certainly more than a treasury from the registrar's office reaching brains with fact finding but efficiency is more than mere information."

"Facts are something to think about. Higher learning takes active intelligence, a deliberate effort in comprehending meanings, relationships, and purpose. An educated person must discipline his mind. Force it to be free."

In a plea for consideration of others, Dr. Irish explained: "An educated person is not free to live by his rule alone; he must be of good will to others, tempering his own self interest with consideration of the commonweal."

"Sometimes, in the state university," she continued, "there is a tendency to avoid reflection on the sametime beacon. What is good? What is evil? What is right? What is just? Nevertheless these are the most important questions which you can ask in our human situation."

AFFAGS DETERMINISM

Dr. Irish, herself a social scientist of national repute then lashed out at the assumptions upon which many social scientists base their philosophy.

"I have heard it said that in social science there is no good or bad behavior," she said. "That to my mind is nonsense."

"It is good to live in love and charity with your neighbor, it is bad to cheat, to lie and to steal."

Personal responsibility is still alive in the realm of human relationships according to her statement. Dr. Irish went on to remove many of the psychological and sociological explanations of human behavior.

"Whatever the extenuating circumstances—you may have been denied breast feeding in infancy, you may have had a traumatic experience with the girl next door at the age of two, you may be the middle child and both of your siblings smarter than you, your mother's third husband may be a disciplinarian—

"Even so," she went on, "as an adult on your own, you can choose to act decently."

SPIRIT OF THINGS

Miss Irish attributed the real value of higher education to its ability to reach to the spirit of things.

"Education's ultimate purpose," she said, "is to find the truth which makes men free. It is in the very nature of man to believe absolutely in what he can not know for certain.

"It is, of course, unreasonable to believe what can be scientifically disproved. But it is not incompatible with reason to hold fast that which is good even if it cannot be proved.

"Mankind is blessed with profound insights, with intuitive knowledge, with magnificent imagination."

Quoting Barbara Ward, the British economist, Dr. Irish emphasized the need for a recovery of faith in God as a safeguard of western freedom.

"Man is endowed by his Creator with certain unalienable rights," she quoted from the Declaration of Independence. "Freedom to Create, and gone is the god given freedom of individual. Unless one believes in the law of nature and of nature's God, there is no philosophical defense for political rights as against the power of the state.

"But faith cannot be restored by political conscriptions; faith is a personal response people seek and believe the truth."

ACADEMIC FREEDOM

Dr. Irish concluded her speech with a plea for academic freedom to professors and students.

Professors cannot teach, schools cannot educate, students cannot learn," she said, "if we are compelled to sterilize our problems, avoid and evade all that is controversial or unsettled, teach only what is popular or timed to prevailing opinion.

"Especially in the university we must have freedom to inquire and explore, to discuss and to criticize, without fear of surveillance or censorship.

"And so it must be at FSU," she concluded, "we cannot engage in higher education unless we are free to seek the truth, to find it where we can, to stand up for it in the face of all disapproval."

'Who's Who' Results Later

Results of the "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" will be announced at a later date, according to Dr. R. R. Oglesby, dean of students.

He said the names cannot be released until the date set by the publishers of "Who's Who". At this date, the company will release the names of all students elected to it.

Thirty-four seniors were elected Tuesday to the award, according with major university activities.

Of the "Who's Who" committee, Those nominated are required to have a 2.0 scholastic average and senior standing. Those on Honor Court probation are not eligible.

Names for "Who's Who" were submitted to the committee by a representative from each one of student activity and the faculty advisor of each group.

The committee then submitted the nominations to the registrar, who eliminated those not qualified.

"There has been some dissent about names which were dropped off the original list," Miss Keerans said. This was done by the registrar, however, and the decision was made up on the advisement of that office."

Areas students were selected from included fraternal organizations, religious affairs, athletics, student government, dramatics, music, publications, honorary, dorm activities and department clubs and honoraries.

Organ Concert Slated Sunday

Recording Sunday offers a public organ concert by Mrs Roxana Cruikshank Beard, head of the Florida State University Organ Department, at First Baptist Church at 5 p.m.

Mrs. Beard, who taught many returning alumni, will be playing on a new five thousand dollar organ built by the M P Moller Company of Hagerstown, Maryland.

Presently engaged as organist at Tallahassee's First Presbyterian church, Mrs Beard graduated from Columbia University and completed her studies at the Organ Institute in Andover, Massachusetts, and in France.

A TENSE MOMENT in "The Reinmaker", hit play by N. Richard Nash opening Friday Nov. 1 at FSU's Conradi Theatre, finds two brothers of the heroine, Lizzie Curry, engaged in violent argument, as the rainmaker, Starbuck, and their father, H.C., try to separate them. They are, left to right: Craig Monroe, as Starbuck; Royce Pipkin, as Jimmy Curry; Ethel G-ford, as Lizzie; JohnWelker, as Noreh Curry, and Ronald McCall, as H.C. The play, first of four major productions by the FSU Speech Department this year, will run four nights, through Tuesday, Nov. 5.

Too Many Germs

Senate Airs Mecca, Sweet Shop Reports

Student Senate Wednesday heard committee reports on the Mecca and Sweet Shop investigations, the proposal of new campus mail boxes, and an investigation of the campus telephone system.

The Mecca and Sweet Shop will be subject to regular and more frequent investigations by Joe Lang, Health Department according to the report of the senate committee investigating complaints regarding the two eating establishments.

Committee chairman Don Lewis and Sophomore Senators Diane Godin and Pat Mickler met last week with Leon Health Department Superintendent Boswell to discuss problems and complaints about the Mecca and Sweet Shop.

TOO MANY GERMS

The main complaint has been that the same person who prepares the salads and serves the plates also collects the money, thereby spreading germs. The food has not always been clean, the committee reported, and the tables are often littered high with dirty dishes when they could be clean.

Plan To Join NSA Tabled By Senators

The question of Florida State University joining the National Student Association was tabled indefinitely Wednesday in Senate by Men's Vice President Bob Murray.

Action on the controversial organization is due to crop up again after Student Body President, Arnold Greenfield submitted an unfavorable report on it last week.

The bounded NSA's national convention in Ann Arbor, Michigan this summer in order to obtain more information.

Opponents of NSA have objected to its encouragement of integration and have charged the organization with being "communistic."

Greenfield reported that "the organization as a group is definitely not communistic. On the contrary, they have shown definite signs of opposition toward communism and communized student movements, particularly the International Union of Students."

In his report, Greenfield said, NSA has been attacked as pro-integrationist. This would be a correct analysis of their established policy as it stands at the present time. An edequate opportunity is provided at the Congress for shades of opinion to debate this question, and I was quite actively involved in this "A strong segregationist block of votes could alter the policy, but in my opinion, whether or not this is a practical possibility is irrevelant to the question that concerns us. As I see it we should be primarily concerned with whether we want to be a university member, not with the merits of the segregation question."

MANY OPINIONS

NSA has also been charged with being anti-fraternity and sorority. In recard to this, Greenfield said, "Every shade of individual opinion was present but the group has expressed itself against racial discriminatory clauses. This is psychologically tied up with the segregation issue, of course, but to me it seems a hollow controversy as many national officers of NSA are fraternity men."

A committee, appointed last year to study NSA, turned in an unfavorable report which said "while FSU could gain several advantages from NSA," it felt the disadvantages would be greater.

Greenfield said in his report that these were not the reasons he doesn't recommend membership.

"The prevailing philosophy of student government as practiced by NSA is quite different than that which is practiced here and at most large state universities," the report said.

He said his reasons for not joining were that NSA devotes its time to discussing controversial national and international issues. It serves in Congress as a lobby group for a segment of

FSU Version Of 'Rainmaker' Starts Friday

A warmly human interpretation has been given the FSU production of Richard Nash's "The Rainmaker," which will be presented at the Conradi Theater Friday, Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday of next week.

This interpretation, coupled with recent script changes made by the author, will make the FSU production very different from either the Broadway or movie versions.

Directing "The Reinmaker" is Mr. Richard Fallon, university director of theater, who will be aided by technical director Charles Reimer and costumer Patricia Clift.

The cast is as follows Ethel Gifford, Lizzie Curry; Craig Monroe, Starbuck; Bryant Sims, File; Royce Pipkins, Jim; John Walker, Noah; Ronald McCall H C.; and George Goldstein, the sheriff.

The production staff includes stage manager, Marlene Marczuk; control board operators, James Reed and Sue Powell; hand properties crew, Pat Greenwood, Ethel Gifford, Bra West, Jamie Conner, and Linda Baker; set properties crew, Bryant Sims, John Walker, Beverly Capps, Walter Saric, and George Goldstein, sound crew, Joan Cheren and Catherine Crawford; house manager, Alan Kass; curtain puller Charles Curry.

Eight Elected, 37 In Runoff For Frosh, Senatorial Posts

Bruce Brown and Ev Marsh will compete for freshman class presidency in final elections to be next Tuesday from 9 e. m. to 5 p. m.

Eight students were elected and thirty-seven made the runoffs for freshman class and precinct offices as a result of last Tuesday's voting, according to Joan Harmon, secretary of elections.

Miss Harmon added, "Freshmen didn't come through as well as was expected; approximately 850 voted. Precinct voting ran as well as could be expected."

Voting was done at regulated areas: Westcott, the Seminole Club, the Student Center, and the Bryan bus stop.

FILE ESTIMATE

Secretary Harmon has a word to say to all those who are elected. "All students who are elected next Tuesday must file a final expense estimate with the secretary of elections no later than 5 p.m. Tuesday, November 5."

Finalists for the freshman class vice-presidency are Tim Dawkins and Kip Tichenor.

Dana Ball, Martha Bedell, Ann Perry, and Kitty Wade will run off for the position of secretary.

Vying to be frosh treasurer will be Claire Brightwell and Jackie Owens.

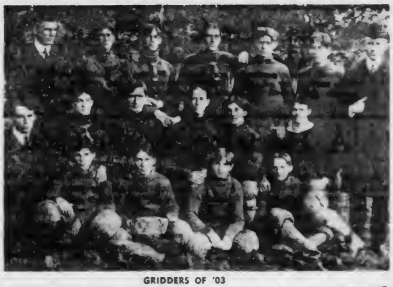
FSU FACULTY OF 1903



Looking Back At 1903

Shades of 1903 are reflected in these photos, taken on campus 54 years ago.

The faculty at Florida State College that year appears in the upper left picture. They were, in the first row, left to right: Mr. Aibar, a teacher from Santo Domingo; Prof. and Mrs. Matthews. President A. A. Murphree; Miss Day; and Prof. Arthur Williams. Back row: J. C. Calhoun, L. W. Barcholz, S. M. Tucker, Elmer R. Smith, W. W. Hughes, Mr. McNeill, Mr. Anderson, and F. W. Kraft.

The result, according to Flambeau files, was an "enthusiastic response."

The faculty picked the first staff, and the staff subsequently sponsored a contest to name the new publication.

Mrs. L. A. Yates, the former Lucille Freeman, who was circulation manager of the paper at that time submitted the winning title.

She chose the name Flambeau because "It represents the three primal ideals enumerated in the college seal with its three torches."

Among the other names submitted were "The Fine Knot," "Florida State Record," "The Weekly Flatacowo" and "Florida State College News."

It was not until the advent of male students on campus that the paper assumed its present semi-weekly form.

It now appears twice weekly, with one four-page edition and one six-pager.

COLLEGE AVE. LONG AGO

STROZIER GREETS ALUMS

Returning alumni and friends of the university will be seeing a new face in the spotlight at this year's homecoming functions.

The face they will notice will be that of Dr. Robert M. Strozier, Florida State University's newly appointed president.

Dr. Strozier, in a special letter of greeting to alumni and friends which was printed in the Homecoming Brochure, said, "My invitation to you to return to the campus for this 1957 Homecoming is most cordial and friendly. I want to know you."

"We are at the beginning of a new era in the development of FSU," he continued. "We want our alumni and friends to be a part of the exciting adventures that lie ahead."

Dr. Strozier will be the featured guest at all the weekend activities, speaking at two of the events.

He will be the featured speaker at the Homecoming Banquet this evening using "The Alumni and Their University" as his topic.

He will also appear at the intermission of the dance Saturday night, giving a welcome to all those attending.

Bob Renn, Seminole back who now ranks eighth in the nation in punting led the team in that department last season with a 39.3 average.

Connecticut Prof On Ike's Committee

STORRS, Conn.—(I P —President A N Jorgensen of the University of Connecticut has been appointed to a four-man subcommittee of President Eisenhower's Committee on Education Beyond the High School to consider methods of financing higher education.

The subcommittee will discuss new ways and means of financing colleges and universities in the face of rising costs and increased demand for higher education.

High among problems to be considered by the subcommittee are new means for increasing faculty salaries, ways of expanding scholarship aid to qualified young men and women, and methods of aiding financially both private and public colleges and universities.

Nine Men

First Coed Class Slates Reunion

That first graduating class after Florida State University became co-educational will be back this Homecoming week-end to compare stories about the big transition from a college exclusively for women.

Wayne B Bell, now editor and publisher of the Playground News at Fort Walton Beach, will be back (or at least he now expects to be) and will be recalling the first months of co-education when he was frequently the only male member of a class.

"The first day I attended an English class," he recalls, the professor, calling the roll, called me 'Miss Bell.' The class roared with laughter when I answered in a boomin male voice"

NINE MALES

Bell was one of nine male members of the FSU class of 1951 for which the alumni office here has records. Members of this class are holding a reunion, along with members of 12 other classes during the Homecoming Friday and Saturday, Oct. 25-26.

Some members of this group entered FSU in 1946—the year an overload of applicants for admission to the University of Florida was admitted to the Tallahassee Branch of UF operated at Florida State College for Women. In the spring of 1947 the college was officially made a university and made co-educational.

Another 1947 male graduate, Roy M. Holt, who is on the staff of the General Office of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company at Atlanta, is one of those students, just out of service at the time, who wanted to enroll in the University of Florida in 1946. He planned to study engineering.

"When I reached Florida State I found that no advanced engineering courses were being offered," he said. "Rather than go home and miss the first semester of school, I changed my major to economics, knowing that I had been assured that I could enter the University at Gainesville in January if I so desired. I liked it so well at Tallahassee that when January arrived I had no intention of going to Gainesville."

Another 1947 graduate and probably the first man to get a master's degree after FSU became coeducational is Wayne V. Ashmore, who for the last three years has been principal of Elizabeth Cobb Junior High School here and previously was principal of Caroline Brevard and Kate Sullivan.

A Homecoming Editorial

As traditional as Homecoming itself, is the Homecoming editorial. "Welcome alums," it usually says, or else it philosophizes on goals the university should strive to attain. It may give a progress report on the university's growth, or look backwards to the "good old days".

THOUGH each may be a fine approach, we cannot become oriented to any one of them. Homecoming it seems is a sad occasion as well as happy. Old grads who come back realize college life can never be recreated. Undergrads wonder, "What will Homecoming and FSU be like when I return many years from now? What will I have accomplished?"

These grads and future grads will have happy memories of their college days: the laughing football hero, the warm sun seeping through the pines, the friendships made in clubs and fraternities, the discreet beer parties, and on and on.

PERHAPS they will have regrets too, of the things they might have learned, of the opportunities never taken, of too much living to crowd into the few short hours of the day.

But what can we say on these days of celebration. The barbeque is simmering on the hickory logs, the campus is dressed in full regalia; reds, blues, and greens among the garnet and gold.

We welcome you alums. The students have set the stage for a gala weekend. Let's all enjoy it.

Collins Must Take Stand

The topic of Governor LeRoy Collins' address to the Southern Governor's Conference has caused much speculation as to the person he had in mind for the presidency.

THE GENERAL consensus of opinion has been that Collins was referring to himself as the southerner who could be elected president.

This opinion does not seem to be far off base. Certainly Governor Collins fulfills, at least in the public mind, the picture he created of a moderate leader.

HE CONDEMNED racists and called for southerners to "quit wrapping themselves in confederate blankets." This is, in itself, an indication of his own moderation, fulfilling in statement the requirement of being moderate that he had set up.

But this type moderation is not quite enough to win favor with the majority of voters. Moderation in the issue of segregation does not mean maintaining the status quo, although in many minds that is all it is.

THE SUPREME Court has interpreted the basic law as applying to all states. It is not moderation to avoid the law and point with pride to the lack of violence within the borders of the state.

True moderation would mean a process of gradually desegregating the public institutions of the state in such a manner as to avoid situations of violence. To a good record in this area, any governor could point with pride.

The southern governor, however, who has had no record of compliance with the law in his own state can hardly be regarded as a moderate by anyone except those in his state.

COLLINS HAS taken the initiative in his speech. Southerners and those from the North alike will be there eyes upon him to see in which direction he moves next.

If his moderation is to be one for speeches only, with little action being taken to implement his professed ideology, then his moderation does not exist. He throws himself in with those who would maintain the practice of segregation on prejudicial grounds, even though he himself may be unprejudiced.

Collins could make his presence felt as a real moderate, were he to do with the Florida university system much as the North Carolina governing bodies have done with theirs.

THERE HAS been no furor on the campus of the various public universities of that state, yet they have been quietly giving Negro students the right to study in the first-rate schools of that state.

The mixing of the true sense of the word, believes in human rights, but is realistic in his approach to them.

Collins has said much about the rights of individuals, but as yet has done little about granting them to all persons. There has been no violence, true, but the Negro student still studies at a university that is not equal to the challenge of the other state universities.

CERTAINLY not all the students at Florida A & M would be able to qualify for admission to the other universities, due in large part to the lack of superior academic opportunities through their entire scholastic careers.

But there are those who have shown inquiring minds and superior ability who would fit in well on any university campus.

WERE COLLINS to take a stand on the admission of these students, upon proper application, to the other state universities, he would be living up to his own philosophy and showing those in other sections of the country that the State of Florida does believe in human rights.

Not until he does this will he have a chance to be considered for an office of national responsibility.

Unscheduled Homecoming Events

By ALAN KASS

For three days, Stan Kenton will be the talk of the campus, then he will rediscover Elvis, Fats and Elvefy.

THERE WILL be a great many who realize by Wednesday they are a bit behind and blame it all on the weekend.

At least one bottle will drop and be smashed.

EXPECT MORE people to listen to the music Saturday night than dance to it.

After the game the winning coach will say the losing coach did "a great job," but won't say quite good enough for the winners.

You'll excitedly drink Cokes without any ice and never know the difference.

AFTER THE game the losing coach will say the winning coach had his team "up" for the game.

At the dance at least one girl will spend all her time looking for her last earring which her escort has in his pocket.

ONE PERSON will claim that the Gator Homecoming was better than this one.

One Joe-College will discover another Betty-Co-Ed he has known for a long time but hasn't really noticed until she wears her new gown.

One person will say that there is none better than the Tallahassee Homecoming.

AT LEAST one of your old flames will show up with another guy.

The visitors will bawl up a storm while the students stay peaceably moderate.

The truly smart students will benefit by studying this weekend.

Many cars will be stuck in a traffic jam and as a result will miss much of the fun.

YOU'LL see at least five boys in ill-fitting tuxedoes.

A guy will drop his glasses and the party next to him will step on them.

One of the girl cheerleaders will pull up her woolen socks before she cheers.

Many people whose thirst is quite great on Friday will certainly be sorry on Saturday, the big day.

Most of us will dread ourselves late the next morning.

Student Gripes Help Write Column

By ART ALBRECHT

There's one sure-fire way of deciding what to write about in the corner each week. That's to casually mention to friends, a loss for ideas. I've tried it in the Seminole Club, classes, the library and almost everywhere else on campus and the results are always the same — everybody's got something to gripe about.

AND NEARLY everybody has some suggestion for a column. It's either a pet peeve, a hot issue, something not quite kosher is going on in student government or in the administration, or just a desire to see certain things get into print.

Could It Be?

Usually I listen to these suggestions and discard or mentally file them away for future use. This week, however, I decided to compile them and let you, the reader, in on some of the typical ideas that are offered to me gratuitously each and every week.

ONLY A FEW minutes after last Friday's Flambeau came out on the stands, I was strongly advised that a full-scale investigation ought to be conducted concerning the selection of candidates for membership in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." One student commented that he keeps up with campus life but still never heard of three-fourths of the names on the list even though they were supposed to have made outstanding contributions to some element of student life. Another voiced the opinion that 90 per cent of those chosen were fraternity or sorority members.

Remember, I'm just reporting the gripes. I've made no investigations and I'm making no comments.

ANOTHER COLUMN I've been asked to write concerns the dropping of volleyball as a varsity sport this year. The way I hear it, it's one of the most inexpensive sports to maintain on campus and it's the only team that has won a national championship several years in a row and produced three or four All-Americans.

Morrison's Food Service is always fair game for any column according to a great many students. However, previous editorials and columns by the Flambeau concerning the exorbitant prices, scrimpy servings, and poor quality of the food have been almost useless. One legitimate complaint came from a penny-pinching veteran who claims he's been eating so much spaghetti in the past few weeks that all his dreams are about Gina Lollobrigida. That's bad!

PROBABLY SECOND to the food on campus in number of gripes is the lack of parking spaces. "Why don't you start a campaign to get the administration to ban sophomore cars?" or "Write a column about the blue sticker drivers taking the black sticker spaces." How about joining the crusade to make Landis Green a parking lot." And so on and so forth.

In the vernacular of a grade "B" movie, one well-wisher gave me the hot tip that a Young Democrat Party will be formed on campus in the near future. Steps have already been taken to get political support within the state legislature, he tells me. This hint might develop into a story.

A REGULAR reader of this column, after seeing the Adult Homecoming Queen, suggested that I write some more about a possible merger. Another enthusiast mentioned that there might be a good story in the fact that FSU has been giving college credits to Negroes for a number of years through Operation Bootstrap.

Another finder felt that a story about the prices of new books and the small rebates given off such books by the Book Store might make a good column. And this goes on and on. As I said above, everybody's got something to gripe about! If they didn't, Lord knows how this column would ever get written.

Democrat vs Profs Tempest Raging

BY NANCY GENE BROWN

All is apparently quiet in Tallahassee these days. No terrible weather; no armed forces standing around the campus; just alumni, and a holiday-spirited Homecoming crowd.

But a tempest has been taking place on the editorial pages of the Tallahassee Democrat during the past two weeks, probably unnoticed by a majority of the university population.

It involves Editor Malcolm Johnson, of the Democrat, two outstanding political scientists on the FSU faculty, and executive secretary of the Florida White Citizens Council, and the Constitution of the United States.

Little Rock touched off the controversy. That situation was, naturally, viewed by the Democrat, whose policy on the matter had both supporters and dissenters.

One such dissenter, who described himself as "a professional political scientist," recently wrote a letter to Editor Johnson, not for publication, but to set the editor straight.

The editorial page, the letter said, amounts to "moral arming of those who resist the law" and are setting up the Little Rock situation here in Tallahassee."

"Every court necessarily legislates in the course of rendering judicial decisions," he continued. "Especially is this obvious in the case of the Supreme Court of the United States. This is inevitable. It cannot, in the nature of things, be otherwise. The school of jurisprudence that held otherwise has been so thoroughly discredited that it has had no serious proponents for many years."

The statement is the crux of the controversy. Mr. Johnson disagrees with the political scientist's statement of "judicial legislation."

"Any rule of political science which says the courts 'necessarily legislate,'" said Mr. Johnson in his reply, column, Sunday, Oct. 13, it something we hadn't read in the primer of our American form of government which bears the standard title, 'Constitution of the United States.'"

"The Constitution hasn't been changed," Johnson said, "and unless there is a revolt against this Cub of the Court which says nine men holding office by appointment for life can make law and say the Constitution is this one day and that the next day we're in a fix. One of these days, he states, the nation will become victim to "judicial despotism" which could even deny us and the professor the right to argue this story.

And if all the political scientists are in accord with this one's viewpoint, then "the Lord preserve us. We can't expect much help from the political scientists," he concluded.

Dr. Marian D. Irish, head of the FSU political science department, quickly promoted the editor's stand.

Unaware of the identity of the author of the letter which provoked Mr. Johnson's column, she said, "Judging the letter solely upon the few bits which you quoted, it was at least a thoughtful letter, deserving a reasonable reaction from the editor.

"The Framing Fathers provided a complicated system

Dear Mama Seminole

DEAR MAMA,

Georgie plenty happy today, Mama. Old braves and squaws come back to friendly village for look around at young ones and new tepees.

LITTLEGEORGE betcha them plenty surprised, Mama. There so many new faces, not only young faces, but some new old faces too. New old faces belong to tribe chiefs who are now big wigwam.

New big chief take over campfire two moons ago, and already has made good record. Him get another little chief to help him out with the wild braves. This man been bring friendly village himself for long time.

HIM IS good friend of all braves and squaws and will be good man for chief of braves.

Georgie sometimes wonder, Mama, when big chief of squaw get modern. Her still live in buffalo age sometime. Her let squaws wear short britches without buffalo robe over them. Her not let them do lots of things, and say it bring better name squaw to friendly village.

ME AGREE with her some, but cannot see why short britches keep good girls off friendly village. Me know plenty head good squaws who wear them. They look pretty nice too. Even nice enough for tourist-type people who gallop through village every now and then.

Me hope her wise up soon.

How About It

Pinball Players Are Lost Athletic Heroes

By BUCKY CANON

As I wandered into one of our off campus eating establishments, I noticed over in one corner a strange, unmoving vocal emitting the weirdest sounds.

MY FIRST thought was that the little green men in flying saucers had finally landed here at FSU. Upon closer examination however, I saw that it was only a crowd of males operating a pin ball machine in the midst of gigantic uproar.

This set me to thinking. I thought: "What a terrible waste these boys have; playing that machine through all that noise and noise. What powers of concentration one must have with all that strain, what stamina, what resistance!"

HOW WRONG it must be to run miles and miles for the track team or what a pleasure it is to tackle huge giants for the football team. Truly, the pin ball players are the forgotten heroes of athletics.

We students must lead a campaign to see that they get proper recognition.

I can see it now . . . 1969 . . .

"HELLO FOLKS, this is Ted Shave, bringing you another Hippopotamus cigarette sport's classic. Smoke Hippotamus the cigarette with the thickest hide.

"Tonight at Tallahassee FSU versus MIT for the pinball championship of the nation. Over 7,000 people are jamming the New Mecca stadium to watch the match, here at Tallahassee, Florida.

"THE MIT Calculators, national champions for the past seven years, do not bring a team to the game. Coach Tom Nosget's FSU boys are not to be counted out.

"Ah folks, here comes Coach Algebra of the MIT team now. Will you look at that stuff he's got under his arm.

"SURE SHAVE. This school sure is bush league. What gonna do, coach?

"Coach, will you tell us how you found the talent in your All American pin baller, Mike Calculus?"

"HELLO FOLKS, this is Coach Algebra rookie I discovered hiding out in a dingy coke store one night playing off his 204 replay.

"Thank you Coach Algebra. Ladies and gentlemen, the National Anthem . . . One verse of God around the Mike Calculus.

"NOW FOLKS, the game is underway. The crowd is climbing over the fences to get a better look at Mike Calculus. Ubangi has been a pin baller and student at FSU for one past, seven years. He is here on an athletic scholarship having formerly played for the Belgian Congo Head-rolling team.

"FLUNG and Calculus are fighting it out. Calculus has his machine up to 900,000—800,000, 700,000—he may go to a million—he's going, going, gone! Calculus has done it, ladies and gentlemen, Mike Calculus is the champion.

"But wait! Ubangi is coming up. The smoke is thickening but I can see 900,000, 850,000, 900,000—he's going—999,907 — 999,908—999,909. He's trying for that last point and . . .

"TILT! TILT for dear old FSU."

Silence Reigns In The City Room

By MARSHALL LaCOMBE

The following assemblage of words is dedicated to the noble idea of a better and more informed student body, and various other ideals. All such are fictional, withheld, or stage, in order to protect the guiltless.

THE SCENE: The Flambeau city room (the one with a-e-a

-r-t-r-e-s on the ceiling) on a Monday or Thursday. The time is approximately 11 a.m. An hour before deadline people are scattered about the room, seen or twice different positions.

Silence reigns! Amelia Pointdexter Chully's nose has a cartoons for this issue, also the ads and various other space-fillers. She continues to write, throwing a few more letters-to-the-editor into the heap. It's for the day is cold. "Perhaps, to fill in that blank spot on the front page," I could get a twelve inch enlargement of Dr. Stroner? What do you think, Algernon?"

ALGERNON HADN'T been thinking at all. But immediately snaps to (the Journalism's cunning ability to think fast!) "What do I think, Chully? I think Algernon, "I think it's relative," he proceeds, "everything's relative."

Silence reigns! The movie columnist is working on a change manager count his movie passes (for he can't count) and, upon counting the number, he continues to copy another brilliant movie review from Time.

SUDDENLY there's a knock at the door. (Door-knocks always appear suddenly in the city room; the same room with a-e-a written on the ceiling.) "Entre," the foreign news editor says. The County Clerk enters with another summons for Meerchaum Labrush, columnist. Meerchaum lacks it to the wall with the others and continues to delve into the meanings of life, which is written at the ceiling. "S-e-x," he insists to himself.

Silence reigns!

From the corner of the room Mas Entire, news editor, stands his fingers and exclaims "I got it!" Everyone gazes at the corner of the room appropriately to hold up the corpse of a mosquito, beaming "Little Mosquito-Sucker!"

THIS BURST of unexpected energy seems to have jarred everything a bit. Amelia Pointworthy peers into the hot noon sun. After finding only a lukewarm sandwich and an undistributed she calls the Press Club and the University.

"Hello, Dr. Stroner? Do you have a twelve-inch enlargement of that photograph of you? You DO?" No sooner were the words emitted when fancy Gene Brown, assistant news editor, dashes over to Stroner to pick up the print. Just as he leaves the room, editor dribbles into the room and bursts in clean. All the writers, looking over his shoulders, occasionally to stare reverently at the ceiling. "S-e-x," he mutters to himself.

FANCY GENE BROWN returns with the photo, scrutinizes at the "Outstanding Editorial Page 1956" plaque on the wall, and reports to the editor, "Great shot, Chully, from a 12-inch enlargement instead." There is a moment of dancing and grinning, so much so that Booth Witchie, the society editor, is awakened. "Shaddup!" she reflects.

Silence reigns!

The sports editor, having finished the typewriters, drifts into most of the room, whistling the Seminole fight song. A few minutes after he has left, the editor reports, "There's 42 column inches left; somebody write a feature on Morrison's."

FANCY GENE BROWN consults Mas Entire's files. "Let me see, four column inches, five column inches . . . Here we are! A six column inch

A Year Ago This Month Hungarian Revolution Raged

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a column in commemoration of the anniversary of the foiled revolution in Hungary.)

By CHARLES MAYO

In October the cold narrow streets of Budapest are covered with snow.

Last October Russian tanks crawled through the dark streets, grim passageways of history which made coffins for the tanks and for the men inside them who did not know which continent they were at war on. Dark streets, lit by the orange gush of gasoline bombs hurled from the rooftops by the Freedom Fighters of Hungary.

Budapest is a big city, the Freedom Fighters, with their hope and their gasoline bombs killed 350 Russian tanks.

Their revolt was on; the illegal radios were on all night now in the cellars, and now the cold hungry houses of Hungary sheltered fires whose sources of fuel the State did not control. For the Fighters, until they were hunted down and shot, until what they had loosed and fed with their blood and courage was held in check again, each moment had meaning.

EASY TO RATIONALIZE

It is easy for us to think that this brief bold moaning of freedom was enough for their deaths and the dying. The reports of the Revolution on the radio said something to us our hearts could not understand.

Perhaps it did prove that which we already knew, that freedom was correct, and that it was wanted by the people wherever it did not exist. But what we would not understand was in ourselves, that when at last the discontent of the enslaved with whom we had so long sympathized broke forth in fire and blood and steel, there should be in our hearts and minds no proper answer to the spiritual problem presented by this terrible, magnificent fact of human, violent rebellion against tyranny.

There was no involvement here. Hungary and its cold bloody streets were thousands of miles away from the warm reassurances of food and automobile heaters and television screens. Something was missing from the minds or the hearts or from both.

SPANISH REVOLUTION

In Spain, in 1937, twenty years ago, for some the Communist cause of the Republic was different from the administrative brutality of Communist causes today.

Communism represented human salvation to those who understood, although as time has proved, they wrongly understood. And so it was that men who thought they understood went to Spain to fight for their ideas.

Hemingway's Robert Jordan, perhaps a good example of these men, went to a foreign land to fight, to give up his life, his love, and his share in the future for a radical's idea of freedom most abstract, and, for him, highly unselfish.

For him the understanding and aiding of the forces of world revolution was enough to die on, enough for him to face personal oblivion with a machine gun and the words "They'll never stop us."

Robert Jordan's idea was basically the same as that of the Philipino Huk who razed his village and murdered his brother for the praise of a bureau chief in Moscow

The same, as the Chinese who pounded themselves like a tide of robots against the U.N. lines in Korea

The same as the Chinese who have destroyed all traces of an ages old culture in a decade of communism and exchanged the proud dignity of their ancient race for a human pestilence of 600 million "blue ants", the living automatons of oblivion.

We call this Communism. For two-thirds of the world it has become a way to power or enslavement.

MADISON ON REASON

James Madison wrote in 1787: "As long as the connection subsists between his (man's) reason and his self-love, his opinions and his passions will have a reciprocal effect on each other; and the former will be objects to which the latter will attach themselves."

Communism is the dogma and act of Man's great final self-love. Mao's reason has led with his caution towards Communism in the 20th Century, because it is a method in which he can believe, can participate, can assert his own nature and forget his timeless ideals.

It matters little that Communism is the negation of God, because more immediate is its negation of man's spirit, which is Godly only when it is free, and is indeed no true spirit when in chains.

The godless method-worship of the world Communist revolution has bound together the passions and opinions of many men, and cemented them with materialism. The fanaticism of these many has enslaved a hemisphere. For Communism destroys individuality and with it freedom.

CANNOT REALIZE

What we of the West cannot bring ourselves to realize about ourselves and Hungary is that our hearts have been fired by no answering flame to the brief fires of freedom that burned and were rubbed out in Budapest. The reason for this is the reason for which the West is losing the battle against the Communist passion.

For we have and enjoy freedom, and yet cannot really believe that it must be fought for, that it, too, must be joined within us, reason to passion, mind to heart, to form a method of revolution, a way to freedom, an ethic of liberation, to be preached and practiced, fought for and defended for, by each and everyone who wishes that his freedom could be the world's.

WESTERN ETHIC

The West has already formulated its ethic of liberation. It is the doctrine of the individual versus the mass, the State; the freedom of each human's actions against his exploitation as a nameless cog in the giant machine of the State.

It is the privilege of government close to the people as opposed to massive centralized bureaucracy. It is economic freedom versus Socialism.

It is God and the unquenchable spirit of men against the godless religion which envisions collectivism man as the end and ruler of creation. It is a world of born against a world of made, of cultural sanctity against manufactured desecration.

It is the rich humanistic tradition of Western Culture against the sterile materialism and social manipulation of Marxism.

DIFFICULT TASK

It will be a difficult task to put the ethic of liberation into words, and even harder to put it into the heart of the Free West, but it must be done. Freedom must have its voice speak clear inside the hearts and minds of all those who are free and do so in such a way that the actions of the free world will be able to speak louder than its words.

The Hungarians knew; in the cold threatened city, with the iron jaws of hate and death tearing the vitals of their precious short-lived freedom, they knew well. They did not put it into words, but into the streets wet with their blood and the dead tanks vanquished by their heroic fury.

It is said that the West failed Hungary; but unless we act the greatest failure is yet to come. Neither Hungary nor our failure will be remembered if we do not soon put into words and into each mind and heart of the Free West a working creed to immortalize and save that for which the Hungarians so bravely died.

We must counter the Communist method with our own ethic of freedom; we must inevitably fight fire with fire. If not, the West is lost.

God is lost, and Man is left to rot out the centuries prostrate before the terrible graven image of himself which he calls Communism.

Morrison's Customer Writes Open Letter To Dr. Strozier

DEAR DR. STROZIER:

You have met, I am sure, a bewildering number of persons, facts, and situations during the past few weeks. It has occurred to me that you may have noted the current dissatisfaction with Morrison's catering and pigeon-holed it as the usual state of having something to gripe about so inevitable with institution life.

THERE ARE two small stories I should like to bring to your undulant attention however. The first is the price of food in general, and coffee in particular. If Morrison's is trying to follow business practices with the University, as they have said, why not adopt the business practice of a meal-ticket which carries a discount —a worthwhile one? This is good restaurant practice.

SECONDLY, if Morrison's was only trying to keep its chin above water when it raised the price of coffee to .08 this academic year, as it indicated, disregarding the fact that there is a local drugstore which still maintains the nickel cup and that any private organization on campus which makes coffee for special occasions manages to do so for a nickel, disregarding these facts, I say, the coffee market has broken.

The coffee I buy for family use was $1.03 during the summer. It is now $ .98. Even instant coffees have followed the trend.

IN THE third place, I hate to think of our university getting a reputation for sweatshop labor. I ran into one of the former waiters of the colleges at a downtown restaurant and on inquiry, found that, kept on for a year at her current salary according to the stipulations of the original contract, she was notified last summer that after her more than ten years' service she would have to accept a cutback in pay if she wished to continue. She resigned — and someplace in the shuffle her paid vacation was lost.

I respectfully draw your attention to these matters in hopes that the situation may be looked into more critically before the time for renewing the contract arrives.

SINCERELY,

H.S.

LANDMARKS FOR HUNGRY AMERICANS

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Adams' Letter Is Bigoted, Prejudiced

TO THE EDITOR:

In relation to the editorial by Mr. Albrecht and the reply by Nolan Adams.

Upon the reading of Mr. Adams' exposition in Friday's Flambeau, I felt it compulsory to write this letter.

IT IS beyond my comprehension how a college newspaper could print such a perverted and bigoted letter, except, perhaps, for the purpose of satirizing, which I felt the Flambeau was not doing.

Unfortunately, Mr. Adams was able to seemingly find only one constructive criticism — that of the library being big enough as it is, not needing any further enlargement. I wonder if Mr. Adams has ever tried doing a research paper on this campus?

IF HE HAS, it is rather doubtful that he would have made such a statement. The FSU library is rather pathetic, although it is new, and we are promised improvement.

It would be a shame if the fraternities and sororities were not pleased with having "colored" houses on campus—this from further to show how noble the fraternity-sorority system really is. It seems strange that four of the top universities in the nation—Yale, Princeton, Harvard and Chicago—have no fraternities. But I am digressing; this letter was not meant to be an attack upon the fraternity system.

THE REST of the letter, written by Mr. Adams, is filled with unconstructive and sardonic bigotry and prejudice—something very unbecoming a college student. One can have only pity and sympathy for Mr. Adams, or anyone else for that matter, who holds such an outlook.

If "our way of life," "our traditions," and "our ideals" were sacrificed by a merger of FSU and A&M, then maybe "our way of life, ideals and traditions" should be reevaluated.

Dateless Girls, Be Available

TO THE LADIES:

It's a little late to get a date for Homecoming, but girls, you have one day left. If you didn't take the advice of Robert Bryant and ask a boy, how about, in the future, giving the boys a chance and make yourself available?

Playing hard to get was a stupid high school device you knew everyone, but here, you can meet three new people every day and it would take four years to meet everyone on campus.

You don't have to be a beauty queen or a popular Miss to get dates, but you do have to be seen enough so that it's possible for the boys to meet you. If you sit in your room every night expecting a call from the boy you saw in English class you'll wait a long time.

Sitting in your room, you can't expect to meet many after this week," he said.

boys. "Don't just sit there; do something!" fits this situation. Get out and make yourself available.

Graduate Game Night Cancelled

The weekly Graduate Club game night, usually held each Friday in the Graduate School Building, will not be held tonight due to the conflict with homecoming events.

The game night, which was originated to provide graduate and mature students with an evening of quiet relaxation, was originated this fall.

Club President Mary Rosenblatt, who recently was elected to succeed Don Spille in the post, announced the cancellation of the affair, in line with the club's policy to avoid conflict with major university activities.

"The game night will be a regular, uninterrupted feature after this week," he said.

Homecoming History

Girls' Volleyball Contest 1925 Homecoming Feature

Homecoming at Florida State University has undergone great changes since its beginning in 1925.

Rather than a football game, weekend, the first homecoming sport was a girls' volleyball game. Following the event, charades and pajama rallies were played in sorority houses, the formal dance of today by Hill McIntyre, winner of the being an unheard of activity.

Dancing was allowed in the houses only with special permission of the dean, this he seemed most reluctant to give, "fearing of the audience at the dance serious consequences."

The percentage of girls with dates was small—this has changed much, however, some authorities still persuade boyfriends to tackle the eight-hour drive from Gainesville.

NO PARKING

To be seen along with a member of the opposite sex in a riding vehicle was quite a disgrace most cases, remained inactive throughout the weekend.

LAKE BRADFORD

The first barbeque at Lake Bradford and the opening of the Garnet and Gold Key banquet to alumni are well-remembered events of the 1951 homecoming.

Tex Beneke and his orchestra and the crowning of Query Billy Kennedy were highlights of the weekend.

Well-known Sammy Kaye and his orchestra provided music the following year. Queen Marian Gessler reigned over the traditional festivities.

"A Floral Jubilee" was the theme of 1953 homecoming. Featured at the dance were Charlie Spivak and his orchestra and Queen Ann Yates.

Refusing to carry out a theme of "Moonlight and Roses" were Ray Eberle and his orchestra in 1954. Queen Betty Wilmon, court, and a large crowd attended a bonfire, pep rally, and Pow-wow. As the latter, guests were entertained by numerous fireworks displays.

Nick Stuart and orchestra and Les Brown and orchestra appeared at the previous two homecoming dances. Recent parades and pow-wows have continued since coming than ever before in FSU's short homecoming history. Margaret Ann Ballinger and Layte Bowden were selected to receive the crowns in '55 and '56.

The first of this weekend's festivities, the Garnet and Gold Key banquet, open to students for the last time, will be held this afternoon. Other activities include the Pow-wow, the parade, the football game and the dance, with the music of Stan Kenton and his orchestra. Accompanying all the events will be the 1957 theme, "FSU Goes Modern."

148 Years Of Service

True Story Of FSU's Growth Reflected In Profs' Memories

The true story of the growth of Florida State is probably best reflected in the memories of four university professors who, combined, repre sent a total of 148 years on campus.

They are Miss Lurlie Richey, professor of accounting, who began her FSU career in 1916; Dr. Katherine Montgomery, professor and director of women's physical education, who came here in 1918; Dr. W. T. Rogers, professor of English, 1922, and Miss Mildred Henry, assistant professor of English who started teaching at the university in 1924.

"Few who lived in the all-dirt road town of 10,000 in the 1920's ever dreamed that the state's capital and FSCW would experience such rapid growth," Miss Henry said. "Even then there was only one paved road from here to Virginia and that was in North Carolina," Dr. Rogers said.

The Western administration building once housed the library in addition to classrooms and offices, he went on to explain. Four women's dormitories—Broward, Bryan, Reynolds and Jennie Murphree Halls—and the Science, Education and History buildings were the principal buildings on campus.

There was an old dining hall and the gymnasium buildings—now the School of Social Welfare—which was located on the site of the present Music Building.

The Music Department used the old auditorium and had its practice rooms in the basement.

When Dr. Katherine Montgomery first arrived at FSU, the Lake Bradford property had just been purchased. A little wooden pier and a frame building comprised Camp Flastacowo, the Reservations predecessor.

"Each year," Dr. Montgomery reminisces," a Water Sports Day was held at the camp in which the whole college, given a holiday from classes, turned out to ride down sand clay roads in wagons to see the show."

Miss Henry's first year, 1924 saw Leon County experience a rainy season not equalled until this fall. Rain squalls and high water held up train and bus service and school opened several days late.

"The English Department in that year had less than ten faculty members. Today there are over forty in the department," Miss Henry stated.

Miss Richey, the faculty member with the longest record of service, came in 1916 to find the old college in a state that had yet to become a tourist attraction. She recalls the giant oaks which lined College avenue and the pleasant serenity that the campus offered.

As Dr. Rogers stated, "we've come a long way since my first year at FSCW, however, we did a pretty good job back in those days."

Housing Facilities Inadequate; 100 Men Moving To Dorms

BY NANCY LEE BIVENS

Statistics show that housing facilities on the Florida State University campus are very inadequate.

Of the applications received this semester, 60 married students who fulfilled all entrance requirements did not come because of the acute housing facilities. Of 1100 applicants, between 500 and 800 did not attend because of these same inadequate facilities.

NO ROOM HERE

About 250 men students are living in temporary quarters off-campus because there is no room on campus for them. One hundred more men are being moved into the dorms this week.

Five dollars a week is deducted from the original $90 that is charged for their living quarters, depending on the number of weeks they have lived. For instance, if the student moves into the dorm the first week of school, he pays the $80. If he moves in the second week, he pays $85, and so on.

ROOM FOR $5?

Just think, a man is supposed to get a room for $5 a week! He comes to college with the idea that his living expenses will be $90, and to his joy, he finds that he is lucky enough to get a room in town for perhaps $12 a week. This really can amount to a great deal more than he counted on," said one male student when questioned.

Some girls have had to live in dormitory parlors and conference rooms at the beginning of the semester. "Where else can you find a coke machine right next to your dresser? Where else do young ladies go to ask for change for said coke machine? Where else do football players serenade you with the sweet strains of Jim Dandy at 6:30 in the morning?" several students asked.

SLEEP IN SHELTER

Other students poured out that in addition to all of these problems, parents have asked questions such as: Are you expected to sleep in this bomb shelter all by yourself?" and "Why do you have to walk up two flights of stairs to take a bath?"

But then, there are other advantages," dormitory residents say. "You can watch all of the couples on the benches outside the windows or through the love scenes that would make Sadie Thompson blush. Or, you can listen to the pin-pong balls.

LISTEN TO SYMPHONY

"If things really get dull, you can wake up at 5:30 in the morning and listen to the symphony of the radiator pipes. If all else fails, you can amuse yourself with the fact that you are thinking out of bed because there is not an atmosphere conducive to study. There, at least, you will not have to wonder, where to put your clothes."

But help is on the he cons. The new dormitory for women will be completed by September of 1958 and 175 will be moved in. The men's new dormitory will be completed at the same time making room for 575 male students.

Three New Buildings Rising; Atomic Plant Due In 1960

Progress in the construction of the new Schools of Business Education, and Geology is ahead of schedule at the present time.

An interesting feature of the Business and Education building is that the planning was done by the faculties of the schools in cooperation with the architects.

The School of Business is situated adjacent to the Student Center. The cost is set at $825,000, with the complete furnishing running the total up to $1,000,000. Contractors in charge of this building are S. J. Curry and Co.

ATOMIC PLANT IN '60

The recently appropriated nuclear accelerator is to arrive in January of 1960 at a cost of $800,000. The building to house the accelerator will be constructed before that date at a cost of $375,000. Architects' fees and other costs will raise the total to $2,000,000.

Site for the nuclear project is presently the playing field adjacent to the Women's Gym.

Next to West Hall will be the new School of Education. This construction is also scheduled to cost $825,000, with $1,000,000 as the total for complete equipping. Rooms of Charleston, S. C. is superintending all of this work.

Looking to the future architects are now working on plans for two new dormitories.

Ex-Prexy Campbell Back At Old Job

By NANCY GENE BROWN

"Come right in! We've been expecting you!", was the friendly greeting extended to two Flambeau staffers, on arrival at 1001 High Road ,equipped with speed-graphic camera, pencil and note pad.

Dr. and Mrs. Doak S. Campbell, FSU's recently retired president and his wife, were the host and hostess.

Dr. Campbell, who left the executive office in Westcott last July after 16 years as president, told us of his present occupation.

"It's very much the same kind of work I did before becoming president," he said. Working with Associated Consultants in Education, he does studies, surveys, and surveys of educational institutions throughout the South. His field workers gather information, which is sent to him for study.

TRAVELS, TOO

This work involves frequent trips to the schools under study. However, he does most of his work at home.

In addition, he is a member of the executive committee of the Southern Regional Education Board Created ten years ago by the Southern Board of Governors, this organization provides for cooperation between states in graduate and professional studies.

As a member of this group, he recently attended the important meeting of the Board of Governors.

Of course Dr. Campbell is frequently called upon for addresses before groups both in Florida and outside the state. "This keeps me busy preparing speeches," he said.

ENJOYS THE WORK

"I enjoy my work—I'm familiar with it, and it keeps me in contact with education in the South," he said.

The Campbells moved into their newly constructed home on High Road last summer, after they left the presidential residence on Tennessee Street. Designed by Mrs. Campbell, it is very attractive, and smaller than their previous home—it's much easier to keep," he said.

After coffee and a pleasant talking session in the spacious living room, we were escorted to Dr. Campbell's study, where current work was spread neatly on desk—which was, incidentally, presented to him by the University deans.

FACULTY'S GIFT

Also in the study was a lounge chair, a gift of the faculty as well as many mementos of his administration here.

In the living room, a special, artistically decorated room to a lovely Winthrop desk presented to the Campbells by the FSU students.

Following a tour through the house, they took us to the where Mrs. Campbell showed us her new patio and explained her plans for the landscaping of the lawn and gardens.

It was a pleasant visit and FSU's ex-president and his wife are certainly a gracious, lovely couple. "The students are always welcome in our home" they assured us.

Fall Registration Complete At 7203

Complete registration for the fall term is 7203, according to Registrar Charles H. Wilson. This number 3036 are men and 4167 women students.

There are 4,315 undergraduate students and 888 graduate students and of the total number 1226 are from out of state.

The freshman class is made up of 1780 students, and there are 1519 sophomores, 1361 juniors, 1369 seniors and 278 special students.

Tribe Seeks Early Thanksgiving

All-Southern QB To Lead Gobblers

By BEN BALSER
Assistant Sports Editor

A flock of Virginia Tech Gobblers will do the "turkey trot" into Campbell Stadium at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon to meet Florida State's Seminoles who stand with axe in hand hoping to protect their record of never losing a homecoming game.

Virginia Tech, which was labeled the best in the Southern Conference at the opening of the season, will carry an unimpressive 2-3 record into the game.

The Seminoles sport the same record.

Leading the Gobbler offensive machine will be quarterback Jimmy Lugar who made all-Southern last season. Lugar is a deadly passer and a slick ball handler.

FSU fans from last year will remember what his passes did to the Seminoles when VPI beat them 21-0.

Backing Lugar at the signal calling position is Bill Caswell who was a star at his sophomore year, but sat out last season because of an injured knee.

Behind Lugar in the T will be three other seniors. At left half will be 185 lb Ray England. He has been rated as the breakaway runner for the Gobbler backfield.

England compiles a 5.5 average last season and has been running consistently this year.

Another speed merchant, Corbin Bailey, will open at the right half spot for VPI. He is the smallest man in the backfield, but had a running average of 7.3 last year.

CONNER FULLBACK

The "bread and butter man" in the Gobbler backfield is fullback Bob Conner who weighs 204 stands six foot and weighs 205, has speed to smash big power, and is often called on to pick up the needed yards in the clutch.

The VPI line, which averages 211, is composed of five experienced seniors, one junior and one sophomore. Chief targets for Lugar's passes will be ends Carrol Dale and Billy Tibbs.

Dale, the right end, lettered as a freshman last season, and is rated by Gobbler head coach Frank Moseley as all-Star material. He other flank is Tibbs who stands 6-1 and is touted as being sharp on defense.

Probably the biggest pair of tackles the Seminoles will meet all year are starters for the Gobblers. At right tackle will be senior Russ Moss, 6-2 and weighing 240. At the other tackle post is Jim Burks at 6-4 and 225 lbs.

The middle of the Gobbler forward wall will be manned by Pat Carpenito, Jim Randall and Ben Schmidt. Carpenito and Schmidt, the left and right guards respectively, both go over 240 lbs. but have the speed to pull out on the end runs.

Randall, a fullback last season, weighs 205, and will be used in the sunpback duties.

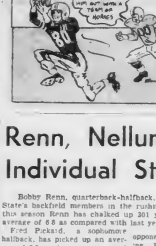
The head coaching Tom Nugent seems to have finally found the backfield combination that can win ball games. He will use the same starting lineup as he used last week in the 24-7 victory over Abilene Christian.

At quarterback will be Bob Renn who has thrown 150 passes in last week's game and is ranked second in the nation in punting. Fred Dobosz, a 185 lb. speedster from Tennessee, is slated to start at the left half post.

DOBOSZ AT HALFBACK

Stan Dobosz will be at right half and Bobby Nellums will be doing the signal calling. Dobosz scored once against ACC last week.

The Seminoles found fullback Bob Nellums will start at that position. He is the leading scorer on the team and scored twice last weekend in his first game at fullback.



Starting at ends for the Tribe will be Ron Schomburger and John Spivey. Spivey took over Nellums end post and has been a doing a adequate job, according to Pilgrim.

Senior Bill Musselman will be at left tackle and Jerry Graham is slated for right tackle. Graham gained "lineman of the week" honors for his performance against Abilene Christian last Saturday.

Two sophomores, Abiter Bright and Al Ulmer, will be starting guards. Paul Slatton, also a sophomore, will place his 205 lbs. at the center position.

VPI Best Foe So Far--Nugent

Virginia Tech will be the toughest opponent the Seminoles have faced during the 1957 campaign according to Coach Tom Nugent.

"A lot of people seem to underrate VPI because of its 2-3 record, but any club that can take Tulane apart has the potential to beat anybody," said Nugent.

The Gobblers won 14-12. They should have been ahead 21-6 at halftime, but they had a score called back, says Nugent.

Fullback Bob Conner was named "Back of the Week" after the game.

40 WILL DRESS

The Seminoles will have about 40 men in uniform, and "we'll give all those playing Homecoming means a lot, but I feel we should be rated more of an underdog than seven points," added Nugent.

The point spread was based on the Villanova comparison.

Comments most optimism. No great feels that right halfback Corbin Bailey is the key man in the Tribe's offense.

Nugent expects that the line play tomorrow will be a deciding factor in the game. The winner Virginia Tech has the biggest line while the Seminoles will face all year.

Four tackles are about 255 pounds, while the others go roughly 235.

Coach Bob Harbison scouted the Gobblers against Tulane and the score was definitely misleading.

Next year the Tribe will probably be playing their toughest schedule.

TOP TRANSFERS

"We have some outstanding freshmen and transfers that should really help us next season," said Nugent.

On the red shirt team is tackle Royce Bynum, whom the coaches think is one of the best linemen we have. And right behind him is end Tony Rosato.

"I'm counting on Dink Lawrence, a transfer, to move into the halfback picture and have Vic Primo back at quarterback. Another promising back is Ken Kessler. Lineman is Joe Razzeti, John Craig and Bo Davis are also in the running," he said.

Right now we don't have enough manpower to take on SEC teams back to back, but I've been told that we have made more progress than any other team in the southeastern area" concluded Nugent.

Renn, Nellums Top Individual Statistics

Bobby Renn, quarterback-halfback, once again leads Florida State's backfield members in the rushing department. This far this season Renn has chalked up 201 yards in 44 carries for an average of 4.6 as compared with last year's total of 4.6.

Fred Pickard, a sophomore halfback, has picked up an average of 5.2 yards per carry, good for second place. Nellums and Dobosz have averaged 3.6 each. Renn's crew holds a slim 40 yard lead in total net yards, 1,135 to 1,075.

In the penalty department we find Florida State being penalized 272 yards in 27 penalties with the opposition in 24 penalties losing 192 yards.

Frosh Gridders Idle; Seek 4th Next Week

BY FRANK BAMOS

Florida State's freshman football team faces a week layoff before meeting a Mississippi Southern's "B" team, and putting their 2-0 record on the line.

After facing Southern, the Baby Tribe travels to the Orange Bowl November 2 to tangle with Miami's Baby Hurricanes.

The Baby Seminoles are hoping to defend their slate of Florida freshman football crown which they won last year by beating Miami, 13-14 after the Hurricanes had defeated Florida's Gators.

Thus far this season the Baby Seminoles have defeated Georgia Military College 51-0, South Georgia Junior College, 13-0, and South Carolina's freshman 13-12.

Leading the Baby Tribe so far have been its backfield contingent of Bobby Conrad, Bud Whitehead, Jim Calhoun, and George Versypilis.

Conrad, working from quarterback, has completed 11 passes in 17 attempts good for 139 yards. Whitehead, the Marianna speedster has averaged 6.3 yards per carry.

Right halfback Versypilis has averaged 7.1 yards a try and fullback Calhoun has picked up 205 yards and six touchdowns.

Standouts in the line have been Terry Moran and Ray Lamb both guards. Head Seminole football coach Tom Nugent has called Moran another All Ulmer.

In comparing this year's freshman football squad to last year's, Assistant Frosh Coach Lee Corso said, "This years team is a slightly stronger team wise, but does not have the individual stars that last year's team had."

Newman Club, PDT Capture Swim Titles; Tennis Monday

By JOHN PEACOCK

A first-up Newman Club splash team took top honors in the 1957 Intramural Swimming Meet, with a total of 60 points. Magnolia Dorm edged SSU 28 and Pentihouse 27 points. Playboys scored 5 for 5th place honors.

When the meet had cleared, and the points were totaled, PDT had edged out SAE by one point. PDT tallied 45 points and SAE totaled 47 points to declare first and second place winners.

TC followed closely with 43 points for third, and claimed 4th place, ATO fifth place, and SC sixth, in the Greek 1957 Intramural Swimming Finals.

TENNIS

Joe Gusic, President of the Intramural Sports Assn. said that Monday competition would begin in the Dorm-Independent division Monday, October 29 and in the Greek division Tuesday, October 29.

There will be Doubles and Singles in both divisions, but go and play must be either both. The intramural Board will hold a meeting at 4 p. m. Monday, October 28, to discuss further rules to be held this semester.

All matches in the Tennis competition for the fall will be played each day.
